Sugar beets are being blocked at present, and prospects for a good crop are very promising. A large acreage of tobacco has been planted during the week.

Peel describes alfalfa as being a very heavy crop. An increased acreage of corn is being planted in Manitoulin as an insurance against feed shortage should the summer prove dry.

The Port Arthur representative states that potatoes have slightly decreased in acreage, and that there are now more Carman No. 1 and less Irish Cobblers being grown.

York: We have been recommending harrowing spring crops even after they have attained considerable height. A junior farmer in the southern part of the county has been harrowing all his spring grains even after it has covered the rows. He completed this operation this week after his grain had been seeded five weeks. He claims this is the most important cultivation of all.

Algoma: The Model Dairy, Sault Ste. Marie and St. Joseph Island Creameries are operating trucks this season, and report cream plentiful. Dairying is becoming more important each year throughout the district.

Bruce: A large number of cattle are being grassed in many sections. These animals have conditioned much earlier than was expected, and it is likely that a considerable number of them will be put on the market early in July. A few farmers who have been feeding hogs are very much disappointed with the sudden break in price, and consequently they will be tempted to hold theirs until they are too heavy, and the result will not get the premium price.

A fairly representative shipment of live stock was made from South Simcoe this week. Seven dollars and seventy-five cents was paid for hogs on the thick-smooth basis, and as high as $7.50 per cwt., for a number of good quality butcher cattle. A few lambs between 60 and 70 lbs. weight, were shipped out, for which the average price was $10 per head.

Algoma reports a large number of pigs being raised this season.

North Simcoe: Very few hogs are being marketed, partly due to low prices, $8.25 per cwt. This means a loss to some men who paid high prices at sales last winter. Fat cattle are a little better, one man receiving eight cents per lb. for an extra good beast.

Carleton speaks highly of the condition of pastures, and says that all live stock, but more especially horses, are looking in unusually good form.

Temiskaming: There have been a great many horses brought in and sold in the district, this spring, prices ranging from $350 to $500 per team.

FAMILY LIVED ON SAME FARM SINCE YEAR 983

By John O'Brien

PARIS (By mail to United Press).—Talk about your F. F. V. and your blue-boooded Knickerbocker New Yorkers who have been located over there since the days when newcomers traded wampums and rum with the original Americans.

They are upstarts compared with certain modest French families, farmers and so on, which have just been honored by the ministry of agriculture. One of them has been plowing and reaping on the same patch of ground since a couple of years before William of Normandy took it into his head to cross the Channel and make England. The modern representative of the family is on the list of those who have received the cross of agricultural merit.

His name is Robert Lascassies-Poublan and he is the twenty-fourth to bear the name since his ancestor settled on a little farm in Lucgarrier, near Pau, in the south of France. That was in the year of grace 1,023—pretty close to a thousand years ago. When a Parisian newspaper man went to see him the other day he proudly exhibited the original birth certificate of his ancestor, Robert Arnaut Guilhen Poublan, who first saw the light of day on Dec. 18, in the year 983.

POWERS RESUME FIGHT TO CONTROL MEDITERRANEAN

Old Apple of Discord Is Again Being Kicked Around By Continental Rivals — France Enters the Lists.

By J. W. T. MASON

NEW YORK, June 21 (United Press).—The Mediterranean Sea, scene of European rivalry for many hundred years, is again looming as a cause of discord among Great Britain, France, Italy and Spain.

Until the German menace in the North Sea distracted attention from the Mediterranean, before the World War, the powers of Europe regarded the waterway between themselves and their North African possessions as their center of naval operation. Now that Germany has been made impotent for at least a generation, the Mediterranean is resuming its old importance as a disturber of diplomatic cordialities.

From one end of the Mediterranean to the other, Spain, France, Italy and Great Britain hold African possessions which give them all an interest in the Mediterranean. Italy and France, themselves fronting the European shore of the Mediterranean, consider their claims paramount. But Great Britain holds Gibraltar, which commands the entrance to the sea, and Spain's control of Ceuta, in Africa, directly opposite Gibraltar, gives the Spaniards an influence out of proportion to Spain's real military strength.

Claims of Italy

Italy claims the moral right to be regarded as the Mistress of the Mediterranean, because all of the Italian coastline borders that water, or one of its arms. No other nation is in a like position. Italy's whole naval strength is permanently stationed in the Mediterranean, by reason of Italy's geographical position. This increases the power of the Italian claim. If Italy were wealthy enough, her controlling position couldn't be doubted.

But France and Great Britain have the more secure financial hold. Therefore, they count more in the Mediterranean than the actual number of their battleships in that water. The real conflict now proceeding under the surface for domination of the Mediterranean is between France and Great Britain. The French have started the contest by developing a new intimacy with the Sultan of Morocco. France and Spain both have Moroccan spheres of influence. As long as Spain has the greater influence at the Sultan's court, Great Britain is not disturbed. Spain's capacity for any kind of offensive action is strictly limited.

The British Disturbed

But France's growing strength in Morocco is more disturbing to the British. There is always the possibility, Great Britain thinks, that if the French become masters in Moroccan territory they will proceed to challenge Gibraltar's sole guardianship of the Straits, and will themselves erect a counter-Gibraltar on the African side. The French authorities say this disquietude is needless, because Gibraltar would be at the mercy of an aeroplane attack if ever the need arose. That argument, however, is of doubtful force.

The British government will not consent to any change in the present demilitarized status of the African border of the Straits of Gibraltar. France is unwilling to challenge Great Britain on this point for the moment. But, with the successive defeats of Spain in her warfare against the tribesmen in Spanish Morocco, France's prestige is constantly increasing in that neighborhood.

It now appears to be only a question of time when France will be paramount in Morocco. That being so, France will gain increasing prestige throughout the Mediterranean. Then will come negotiations for an Anglo-Italian understanding as a counter-move, to keep the ball rolling.

Just One Application And The Hairs Vanish

(Modes of To-day.)

A harmless yet very effective treatment is here given for the quick removal of hairy growths: Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the undesirable hairs, apply paste and after 2 or 3 minutes remove, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. One application usually is sufficient but to be certain of results buy the delatone in an original package. Mix fresh as wanted.

A series of experiments conducted at Liverpool indicates that certain plants grow better by moonlight than by the light of the sun.

HEAVY FINES FOR SECOND OFFENCE.

Patrick Maloney Had Liquor in His Car Near Nassau.

Arraigned in County Court on a remanded charge of having liquor in a place not a private dwelling, Patrick Maloney was yesterday evening given his choice between eight months in jail or a fine of $400 and costs, this being a second offence.

Maloney was arrested on June 13 on the River Road, about a mile from town, while loading liquor into his car. A jar containing a gallon of liquor was found in his car, and a flask was found on his person.

The prisoner failed to obtain a lawyer to defend him, and pleaded guilty. He was sentenced to fines of $200 under the Inland Revenue Act and $200 under the O.T.A. and two months in jail, or, in default of payment of the fines, to 8 months in jail. His car was also confiscated.

CONVICT PAINTS A MASTERPIECE

Convicted Forger's Artistic Ability May Gain For Him Release From the Penitentiary.

A long time ago someone wrote: "Stone walls do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage."

And when Sasanoff came down to the "big gray house," he remembered those lines. Outside, he told himself, he was an artist and opera singer.

"I will not change," he swore.

Secret service men, running down counterfeiters in New York City, uncovered a band. Among those locked up was Sawanoff. They charged him with making the plate used to print spurious currency.

He told the court he had honestly believed himself free of guilt when he started to make the plate. He added that when he did find out what he was doing, he tried to quit, but others forced him to continue under threat of death. Conviction. Three years.

In prison Sasanoff met Father Hayden, prison chaplain. The priest inspired the painter in him. Then within the prison walls, Max started to work.

For six months he painted. He was up with the sun. They had to force him to quit late at night. And now his canvas, measuring 8 by 15 feet, is nearing completion. It shows the Christ ministering to the lame, the halt and the blind.

And while he works, Max sings—the way he did in opera with Caruso and the famous Chaliapin. His rich, well-rounded tenor notes fill the drab place like sunshine.

Sasanoff likes to sing. He likes to paint. And those who knew him outside say if anything, his artistic powers have broadened and multiplied in the dank air of the place society throws its outcasts.

Now it appears Sasanoff's artistic ability may win for him a pardon from the remainder of the three-year term. Friends are busy.

In trying for the pardon, they point out the many canvases he has had accepted. Probably his best known work is a pointing of the World War, which now hangs in the Congressional Library in Washington, D. C.

Father Hayden, in saying how glad he was to hear that Max may get his release, told of a prisoner at Leavenworth, Kas., who painted a picture. The president of the United States, on a visit issued a pardon immediately on seeing the work.

"And that picture," says Father Hayden, "is not as good as the one Max has painted. This is one of the finest mural decorations I ever have seen anywhere."

INCREASE IN DIVORCES

OTTAWA, June 21.— (Canadian Press).—The enormous increase in divorces throughout Canada in recent years and particularly since the war, is shown by a bulletin just issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. In 1913 Divorces granted in Canada numbered 59; in 1918 the number was 90; in 1919 the first year of Peace the number jumped to 376 and in 1922 there were 544.

NEWS FROM CAVAN AND THE DISTRICT

Sunday School Anniversary Offered Encouragement—Successful Garden Party.

CAVAN, June 21.—The Sunday services of Cavan Sunday School anniversary were very encouraging to the superintendent and Sunday School workers. The weather was all that could be desired and the attendance was good.

In the morning the Rev. S. T. Tucker of Millbrook addressed the Sunday School scholars. It was a helpful, interesting talk, to which the older people also listened attentively. Special music was rendered by he choir, and Miss Annie Tinney sang a solo very acceptably.

In the evening the Rev. A. J. Langford of Trinity Church, Peterborough, delivered an able address to a large congregation. Many of the surrounding churches worshipped with the Cavan congregation on this occasion. Rev. S. G. Rorke was present and assisted in the service. He feelingly referred to the fact that this was the last time that the relation of pastor and people would exist between him and his hearers.

Next Sunday is Conference Sunday, when there will be no church services on Cavan circuit.

The music for the evening service was well rendered by an excellent choir.

Annual Garden Party.

The annual garden party of the Cavan Methodist Sunday School was held on Monday, June 18th, when the weather was splendid and a very large crowd attended. An excellent supper was served by the ladies of the congregation.

The basketball game between the Millbrook High School girls and the Cavanville C.S.E.T. boys attracted much attention. The Millbrook girls, due to their skill and experience, won by a score of 14 to 2. The teams were given free tickets for supper.

The night entertainment was given in the new Cavan Community Hall by entertainers from Peterborough. The hall was well filled and the programme was interesting and full of fun and humor. The Highland couple with their bagpipes afforded appreciable entertainment. Bob. Hendry as Lauder's impersonator proved perhaps the favorite.

The proceeds were upwards of $100. The supper was excellent and abundant.

Prominent among the visitors were the two candidates for East Durham, Mr. S. S. Staples and Mr. A. J. Fallis. Mr. Reginald Cuff of Peterborough, who gave an address at the Mother's Day service, was also present, and Mr. Meredith Perrin of Bewdley, formerly of Cavan Centre, motored here with a party of friends and renewed old friendships.

Her Heart Skipped Every Third Beat

Mrs. James Burleigh, 248 King St. E., Chatham Ont., writes:—"I think it my duty to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me.

I suffered for years with palpitation of the heart, my nerves were very bad, and I could not be left alone at any time. I doctored for over a year, and the doctor said my heart was very bad as it skipped every third beat.

I gave up, just at this time, and then my mother advised me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, saying my eldest brother had been relieved by using them when he was very bad with his heart and nerves. I got a box and started to take them, and when I had used it I felt a lot better; could sleep a little and felt stronger. I continued taking them for about three months, and felt better than I had for years.

When I think of the misery and suffering I went through before I started Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I feel like letting everyone know what they did for me."

C.P.S.S. "Empress of Canada."

WHEN, running at an average speed of 20.6 knots, the Canadian Pacific S.S. "Empress of Canada" crossed the Pacific from Yokohama to Vancouver in 8 days, 10 hours and 53 minutes, she established a new trans-Pacific record. The "Empress of Russia," of the same line, which has held the record since 1914 is now forced to relinquish her time of 8 days, 15 hours and 31 minutes actual sailing time, in favor of the larger Empress. The "Empress of Canada" has a gross tonnage of 22,000 tons, and is arranged to carry about 1,759 passengers, all classes, and a crew of 500 men. Her equipment is the last word in modern travel comfort, and on account of her speed, appointments and seaworthiness, she has been chosen to make a "Round-the-World" cruise of 30,000 miles, leaving New York in January next, with over 500 globe-trotters.

LOCK WORKS WON FROM WESTCLOX

Maintained Lead in the Mercantile League--Have Not Yet Been Defeated.

The Lock Works completed the first round of the Mercantile League schedule without a defeat when they trimmed the Westclox nine by a score of 6 to 3 at Riverside Park last evening.

The game was a fast one from start to finish, and th Westclox on more than one occasion to nose out the League leaders.

Neary did the hurling for the Lock Works and Austin for the Westclox. Both pitchers showed streaks of wildness, but both were able to tighten up in the pinches. The Lock Works did all their scoring in the first three innings. They got away to a good start in the first frame when they sent three runs across the pan. They added one more in the second, and two in the third, but were held scoreless for the remainder of the game.

The Westclox also scored only in the first and third frames, and from then on went runless.

Logan in centre field for the Westclox supplied the fielding features of the day with three sensational catches.

The players were:

Westclox—Barry, Lundy, Prosser, DeGraw, Austin, Logan, Baptie, Currie and Cunningham.

PETES BADLY BEATEN GALLAGHER WIELDS WHITEWASH BRUSH

The Petes got a real honest-to-goodness trimming at Kingston last evening, when, with Gallagher performing in stellar fashion on the mound, the Ponies turned back the Petes 9 to 0. After a wobbly start, in which the visitors threatened to score right off the reel, the Kingston southpaw had the Solomon crew at his mercy. Four widely scattered hits were all that they could collect off his delivery and he got better the farther he went, only two of the Petes getting on the runways in the last six innings.

Gallagher has been very shaky in his other starts this season, but he was right yesterday, and if he can duplicate his performance regularly the Ponies stock will be considerably boosted. They played gilt-edged ball behind the big left hander yesterday and won by a large margin on their merits.

Lefty McElroy pitched for the losers and he was found for fifteen hits, including a homer and three triples, while in addition the Petes were guilty of some sloppy fielding behind him.

With Gallagher going as he was, the result of the game was never in doubt after the first innings. It was the worst beating the Petes have run into this season and they were never in the hunt after Gallagher pulled out of a bad hole in the first two frames.

The hitting of Nicholson, Batstone and Rice, a fine play by Short Stop Teeple, who made a toss from a kneeling position and nailed Ansaldo by a step at first, and a one-handed pick up of a hard smash over first by Somerville, were features of the game.

The victory pulls Kingston up on even terms with the Petes while Bellevilles are again out in front by virtue of their win over Cobourg. The Turpin crew drops back to last place.

The Petes lost a great chance in the first when Ansaldo led off with a triple to left centre, and Johnston was walked, and stole second. Swanston tapped to Somerville, who fumbled, but got Ansaldo at the plate. Nicholson playing deep snared Comolli's mighty smash to centre, and after Wolfe was passed, filling the bases, Helson was called out on strikes.

Belleville got away much better. Nicholson walked and went to second on a wild pitch after Daley had flied to Shaughnessy, and Twigg had fanned. Batstone thipled to left centre scoring Nicholson. Somerville's mammoth drive to right was misjudged in the sun by Johnston, and went for a home run, Batstone riding home ahead of the hitter. Cherry got a life when Comolli failed to touch first on Ansaldo's toss. Teeple fanned for the third out.

Collins first up in the second was hit but was forced at second on Shaughnessy's bunt to Gallagher. "Shag" went to second on a passed ball, and to third when McElroy singled over second. McElroy stole second but Ansaldo popped to Gallagher and Johnston fouled to Rice.

Rice started Kingston's half with a triple to deep right and scored on Gallagher's Texas leaguer over first. Nicholson singled past second, but was forced on Daley's tap to Johnston. In an attempted double steal Gallagher was out at the plate, Swanston to Ansaldo to Swanston, Daley reaching second. Twigg walked but was forced on Batstone's roller to Ansaldo.

In the third Swanston lined out to Nicholson. Comolli fanned, Wolfe was hit and Ansaldo running for him stole second. Helson fanned.

For Kingston Somerville flied to Collins, a nice grab in centre field. Cherry was safe when he knocked the ball out of Comolli's hands when the Petes' first baseman tried to tag him after taking Helson's throw. Teeple singled past third. Rice rolled to McElroy and Swanston tossed out Gallagher on a trip in front of the plate.

Collins fanned to start the Petes' fourth. Shaughnessy singled to left, and reached second when Teeple dropped the ball after taking a good throw from Rice. McElroy and Ansaldo both whiffed.

Kingston grabbed another counter in their half. Nicholson and Daley were both safe on successive fumbles by Helson, and McElroy hit Twigg filling the bases. Batstone's roller hit Nicholson and the runner was of course called out. Daley scored on Somerville's out to Comolli on a grounder down to first base line. Ansaldo grabbed Cherry's fly in nice style.

The Petes died in order in the fifth. Johnston whiffed. Batstone threw out Swanston and Comolli fanned.

The Ponies annexed three more unnecessary runs. Teeple started trouble by beating out a hit to third. Rice singled over second, Teeple going to third and Rice taking second on the throw to the difficult corner. Gallagher fanned. Nicholson bunted safely, scoring Teeple. On a double steal, Rice scored and Nicholson reached second. Daley singled to left, scoring Nicholson and was out at second, Shaughnessy to Helson to Johnston. Twigg singled and went to second when McElroy dropped Batstone's pop fly. Twigg died trying to steal third.

In the sixth Wolfe rolled to Twigg. Helson singled over second, Collins struck out and Shaughnessy was thrown out by Twigg.

For Kingston, Somerville fanned. Cherry got a life on Ansaldo's high throw to first, but was forced at second on Teeple's roller to Helson. Rice singled past first. Gallagher fanned.

The Petes were easy in the seventh. McElroy and Johnston rolled to Twigg and in between Ansaldo was thrown out by Teeple, a good play by the Kingston shortstop.

The Ponies got their last run in this frame .Nicholson led off with a triple to left centre and scored on Daley's long fly to Collins. Twigg struck out. Batstone singled past third. Somerville lifted a fly to Ansaldo.

In the eighth Gallagher made a nice stop of Swanston's high bounder and got the runner. Comolli hoisted to Twigg and Wolfe flied to Nicholson.

Kingston also went out in order, Cherry rolling to Comolli, Teeple flying out to Johnston and Rice grounded to first.

Helson, first up for the Petes in the ninth, was robbed of a hit by a one-handed scoop by Somerville of a fast roller over first. Heckman batted for Collins and fanned and Manager Solomon, hitting for Shaughnessy, rolled to Twigg.

OSHAWA WON RETURN GAME

OSHAWA, June 21. (Special.)—Bowmanville and Oshawa played their return division a first section game here yesterday afternoon and the locals took revenge on the hosiery crew for the defeat in Bowmanville by handing them nine goose eggs, the final score being 5 to 0.

Both slab artists turned in good games, Chambers allowing eight hits and fanning nine while Patto allowed five scattered hits and was given errorless support by his team mates.

Rin, Bowmanville's left fielder dislocated his shoulder in sliding into third in the first innings. He made a perfect steal of second and third on Tyson. This win puts Oshawa up into second place in the division standing.

GALLAGHER IS LIKELY STARTER

Kingston Here Saturday and Petes Have to Win to Stay Up There.

The defeat of the Petes in Kingston yesterday makes it necessary for them to turn the tables here on Saturday or drop back to third place. To turn the trick the Solomon crew will have to be on their best behaviour, for the Batstone outfit have won their last two starts, are playing up and coming back and will blow in here on Saturday in a cocky mood.

The Petes are glad of a second chance at the Ponies and hope to redeem themselves for their failure yesterday. They know they'll need to be on their toes all the way and the game promises to be the most exciting fixture of the year. Kingston may start Gallagher right back at the Petes in view of his sensational performance yesterday, and if they do there will be fireworks.

The League standing is as follows:

Belleville..	5	3
Peterboro..	4	4
Kingston..	4	4
Cobourg..	3	5

BOXING CHAMPS MADE BY WHIM

New York State Boxing Commission Crowns and Uncrowns Title - Holders at Will.

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Ask the New York State Boxing Commission.

The Board of Governors of Boxing in New York is practicing a policy of lifting the championship laurel from the head of one boxer and placing upon the brow of another. Thus are champions made in New York. They needn't fight. All they have to do is place a forfeit with the commission, wait six months, and if the challenge is not taken up they forthwith become champion of their class.

A champion may be champion in the State of New Jersey and every other State in the country, and yet a few miles away there would still be another champion of the same class in New York.

This was not the purpose for which the law was made. The purpose of this provision was to avoid the old rule of champions dodging fights with contenders they feared. Before boxing regulations were introduced, a champion could refuse to meet any of his chief contenders and thereby retain his title even though he might not be the best man of the class.

He still can. The law didn't help matters any. It only complicated things.

The commission lifted the title of Mickey Walker because he had failed to answer the forfeit of Dave Shade. The title thereupon was given to Shade. A perfect law would not have permitted this. It would have compelled Walker to meet Shade, and determine which was best. After the order was issued, Walker didn't worry any. He went on fighting in other States under the name of champion. He did just what he pleased outside of New York.

When the commission decreed that Johnny Kilbane was no longer champion because he would not meet Eugene Criqui, it didn't worry Kilbane either. He went on picking up money in other communities as he pleased, and when he got good and ready to fight Criqui he did—and lost his title.

If every State where boxing is permitted had a State commission and three State commissions were bound together as a sort of "court of justice" this old rule could be eliminated and a national policy toward boxing established.

To tell a fighter he cannot fight in New York State does not mean much. He still can ply his trade elsewhere and make money until he himself desires to come back to New York. But to tell a fighter he could not fight in the United States would force him to see the light.

What is needed is a national rule over boxing, instead of a State rule. Then, if a champion refused to meet his best challenger, he would have to come to terms or fight in some other country. There would be few refusals in that case.

As it is, no one pays much attention to changes of titles ordered by the New York Boxing Commission. They don't mean anything.

The Federal Government, of course, does not wish to get mixed up in the boxing game. There has been little agitation for a national commission, and thus far no Congressman has shown enough interest in boxing to seek legislation.

It seems, however, that the commissioners of boxing, who are selected for their desire to better the sport, might do something along a national line.

A Federal Trade Commission rules big business in a national way. The boxing business in the United States runs yearly into millions. The necessity for a national governing body seems obvious.

Questions.

ONE—Is it possible to make a substitution for a base runner, and still have the original player remain in the game?

TWO—In csase of rain or muddy field, who is the sole judge as to whether or not the game should be started?

THREE—In case a game is stopped by the umpire, because of rain, is there any time limit as to when the game can be resumed?

FOUR—What happens when the batter strikes at an illegally pitched ball?

FIVE—Is it necessary that the team at the bat make an appeal for the calling of a balk?

Answers.

ONE—Only by consent of the captain of the other team.

TWO—The manager or captain of the home team is the sole judge as to the fitness of the field for starting play.

THREE—The time limit formerly was 30 minutes. Now under the new ruling the umpire can wait as long as he sees fit.

FOUR—It counts for a strike or whatever may follow.

FIVE—A balk rests entirely with the judgment of the umpire. There is no necessity or reason for an appeal, although the team at bat often raises the claim.

From Schoolmaster to Big League Team.

From schoolmaster to the big league in a few short years.

A few years back Matthews was a small-town school-teacher, playing baseball as a side issue. Now it's different.

Matthews was with Milwaukee in the American Association last year. He had a big season, and Mack, on the lookout for outfielders, decided to take a chance.

The recruit is slight of stature. Looks more like a college student than a big leaguer. He bats left-handed, is very fast and mixes them up at the plate. He can drag, bunt or take a healthy swing, as the occasion demands.

"Matthews looks like a fine prospect," says Mack. "He is intelligent, and that goes a long way. He is troublesome at the plate. He waits out the pitcher and keeps the opposition in the air trying to figure what he intends doing. In all probability he will lead off for me."

PUT MORE "PEP" IN CITY LEAGUE

Officials Appointed For Schedules, Grounds and Umpires.

At a meeting of the City Baseball League held last night, officials were appointed to look after the details of the several leagues. This action was taken in an effort to distribute the heavy work entailed in operating the leagues among the more active baseball moguls. The managers appointed are: Intermediate, H. A. McFadden; Junior, L. LeBarr, Sr.; Juvenile, C. E. Curtis; Midget and Bantam, Alex. Kay. These officials will give all their attention to their respective leagues, thus taking care of a vast amount of work, orginally placed on the shoulders of the City League Executive.

The grounds problem is being overcome to some extent, and it is expected that good results will follow the action taken at last night's meeting.

Vice-President N. Van Peer is leaving Peterboro, and will be succeeded in office by Ed. Wright. "Bill" Prindible is the new second vice-president.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

Charles Ray has another corking comedy role in "R. S. V. P.", the First National attraction which opens at the Royal Theatre to-night. This time the popular boyish star plays his pranks as an amateur artist who dabbles indiscriminately in paint and love. He is equally successful in both, but only after he has run the gauntlet of trouble in trying to assure himself of three square meals a day without giving way to his girl the fact that he is just struggling for a living.

The role fits the star like the evening clothes he wears. In the part of Richard Morgan, who is constantly refusing financial assistance from wealthy relatives in order to retain his independence, he has abundant opportunity to display the droll line of comedy for which he has become famous. He is ably assisted in his character by Harry Myers who, in the role of Benny Fielding, is a bit more starved than the star.

From a humorous angle on the struggles of impoverished artists, the picture veers into the highlight of society. Morgan and his chum stage their debut in the exclusive social set on a 50-50 basis, the split involving a division of the various appurtences of evening dress, each one contributing about half the outfit.

With this as a basis, the star evolves situations that are excrutiatingly funny and that increase in effect as the result of his own halting style of meeting an embarrassing situation.

An excellent cast has been assembled to support the star in doing justice to this plot. Jean Calhoun is the leading woman and the other players are Florence Oberle, Harry Myers, Tom McGuire, Robert Grey, William Courtright and Ida Shumaker. The story is an original by Rob Wagner.

FEARS HE CANNOT

James Hales, K.C., and says that the Peterborough Examiner reported Newhall as making this statement: "I never had more interference in prosecutions than in this case. Citizens of all classes, from clergymen down to ladies and others intruded. If anybody can find anything left undone, I'll forfeit $1,000 for the Children's Aid. There's something for your officers to work on. The man does not live who can prevent me from doing my duty."

Wrote to Chief.

Mr. Pogue says he investigated the statement attributed to Newhall, and on March 13 last, wrote thus to the Chief: "About a week ago I appeared before the City Council and made a request that the City Council procure a denial of the charge, as reported in the Examiner, against the clergy, as I had, as president of the Ministerial Association of the City of Peterborough, satisfied myself that the supposed charge was not correct.

"At a meeting of the City Council I read a statement to the Council, which contained no reflection on you, but which reviewed generally the questions disturbing the public mind. Unfortunately, I was drawn unexepectedly into a discussion, and without reflection or consideration, I appear to have made a remark which I feel I should not have used respecting your or your veracity.

"I now learn from you that the statement attributed to you by the newspaper was incorrect, and that it was not intended by you to charge the clergy with any prosecutions.

"I consider it only fair and right, under the circumstances, to withdraw, as I now do, the over-hasty remark made by me at the Council meeting concerning you. I express regret that in my anxiety to have all the matters cleared up, I should have made use of the remark complained of."

The Chief's writ was issued on March 16.

Mr. Pogue denies that his alleged remark was capable of the meaning taken by the Chief.

CAMP BIRTHDAY PARTY.

This is the fifth summer that the Y.W.C.A. have conducted a camp, and each year one hundred girls enjoy a long or short holiday in the great out-of-doors.

WARDEN'S ADDRESS AT JUNE SESSION

Refers To The Permanent Work Done and Also To Expenditure Beyond the Council's Control.

Warden John Clark's address to the County Council at the opening of the June sessions on Tuesday afternoon refers to the fact that the greater part of the monies the Council is called upon to raise is outside their control. He requested that the sense of economy remain with the Council during the rest of his term as strongly as during the first half.

To the Members of the County Council:

Gentlemen,—It is not only a duty of the Warden, but it also becomes a pleasure to avail myself of the opportunity, of transmitting to you my appreciation of the confidence you have placed in me, by your unanimous consent for me to occupy the Warden's chair, a position I prize so highly, and at the same time realizing by inability, but for the cheerful and unstinted assistance rendered by all of my colleagues up to the present time, and I feel satisfied that the same will continue from the fact that all are progressive, and sincere, in the conduct of the affairs, placed at your dis posal.

The season being somewhat late, precludes a forecast of a definite character of agricultural returns at this date, but as in the past, we rely upon the all wise Providence, for without His hand all human efforts must fail.

I am sure that we all realize that the greater part of the monies that the Council will ask the ratepayers to, raise is beyond the control of of the Council, yet I have nothing to fear, in fact I can safely say that the Council of 1923 will but repeat the action of former Councils in practising the utmost economy consistent with efficiency. You will have the report of th e county valuators placed before you and no doubt will give the same honest and intelligent attention to the same as is characteristic of the County Council of the County of Peterborough, in dealing with the various questions that confront them. The chairman of the Committee on Finance, has I believe, his budget well under way, and after a completed conference with the committees, he will submit the same for your approval at the proper time during the session.

The chairman of the Standing committee on Roads and Bridges will no doubt lay before you the matters entrusted to him as will all who are directly interested in such matters.

The various chairmen will relieve me from any other obligations in so far as a Warden's address is concerned.

The $10,000 debenture issue of last year has been deferred to this session for final passing and the solicitor will advise as to the proper steps to take.

In 1907 the Reeves and Deputy Reeves by Statute returned to the County Council as representatives.

Since, construction of various county requirements has been carried out. Bridges of a permanent character of steel or concrete have been built at a cost of $88,500. Equipment of House of Refuge and permanent improvements have cost upwards of $8,000. Installing of a steam plant for the county buildings $10,000. Rebuilding Court House subsequent to the fire in 1916, deducting insurance proceeds $26,700 ,add the bonded or debenture debt Dec. 31, 1906, and you will find $226,175.

Referring to the bonded debt Dec. 31, 1906, $93,375, speaks volumes for the preceding Councils and also noting the fact, after considering the improvements carried into effect since with the bonded or debenture debt only increased by $18,639, the same being Dec .31, 1922, $112,014, indicating conclusively that the same is responsible for the proud position Peterborough County holds in the Province when rate per capita current, and debenture rate rank among the lowest.

I can but repeat what my predecessors have said, namely; That the efforts of a Warden are neutralized, without the united assistance of the Council and I can candidly say that I am getting the lion's share.

Respectfully submitted,
JNO. CLARK,
Warden 1923.

Ship Liquor Question Will Not Disturb Friendly Relations — Breaking Seals Common Incident

LIQUOR ON OLYMPIC

LONDON, June 22. — (United Press—) —Government officials, disavowing any concurrence with the action of shipping companies in bringing sealed supplies of ship liquor into American ports concede that American custom officials are within their legal rights if they break the seals and confiscate the liquor. The breaking of seals of foreign customs departments is a common occurrence in British ports and the British government will therefore not protest the American action.

There is no likelihood of an Anglo-American incident arising from the shippers' action. If the ship lines take their case into the courts they will do so on their own initiative and without government backing It is understood that the Aquitania will sail for New York Saturday. carrying a supply of liquor sealed similarly to that carried by the Olympic on Wednesday.

New Bridge Recommended to Relieve Acute Traffic.

OTTAWA, June 22.— (Canadian Press.)—The erection of a highway bridge immediately below and beside the existing Victoria bridge between Montreal and the south shore of the St. Lawrence river is recommended by the Montreal Board of Harbor Commissioners in a report to the government. The estimate cost of erecting the bridge is given at $3,000,000. The erection of such a bridge, the commissioners state, would relieve acute traffic congestion for some time to come.

MR. HAY'S OPINION OF MR. FERGUSON

Those who listened to Mr. Gordon's tirade against Mr. Ferguson, last night, may be interested in Mr. Hay's opinion of the Conservative Leader. Here it is, and Mr. Hay repeated it last night:

"From the knowledge I have of my honourable friend from Grenville, I am satisfied there was no personal interest in any of his transactions, and that whatever action he took he believed it to be in the best interest of the Province and of the Department over which he presides." 2d-147 (Advt.)

The Liner Baltic Slipped Into Port With Liquor Aboard

NEW YORK, June 22.—(Canadian Press.)—While Treasury Department officials to-day were concentrating their attention on the Berengaria, the Baltic slipped into quarantine with 6,182 bottles of liquor, under British government seal for her eastbound volage, in defiance of the United States' dry regulations.

Upon announcement that the Cunarder Berengaria was coming to-day with sealed liquor to test the Treasury ruling that no liquor except for medicinal purposes, must be carried across the three-mile limit, Secretary Mellon from Washington, ordered his agents to board the British-er and seize the wet goods.

FURY OF ETNA NOW ABATING

For First Time Since Eruption Much-Tried Inhabitants See a Ray of Hope.

CATALINA, June 22 (Special to The Examiner). — Etna's lava flows are cooling and have slowed to a snail's pace.

Premier Mussolini is here, and the refugees from the buried towns are encouraged by his presence in the comparative calm.

For th first time since Mount Etna became violent, a ray of hope dawned this morning for the much-tried inhabitants of the volcanic region.

The danger is not yet ended, for the crater of the mountain is still vomiting streams of molten lava and great rocks, which threaten the complete destruction of the nearby communities, but undoubtedly the violence of the eruption is decreasing.

A despatch from Geneva says:

Pay in Navy Has Been Greatly Increased.

LONDON, June 22. — (Canadian Press.)—Although the personnel of the British Navy has been reduced from 151,000 to 95,500 since 1913, the aggregate pay has increased from £8,800,000 to £14,000,000.

This striking fact emerges from the report of the Select Committee on Navy Estimates, issued yesterday, which recommends cutting pay all around and re-organizing and reducing the administrative departments.

SITUATION GRAVE

BELGRADE, June 22.—(Special). —A revolution has broken out throughout Northern Albania, where insurgents, after an artillery battle, have routed the regular troops near Krasnitch, according to reports from Scutari to-day.

The rebels are reported marching upon Scutari, aiming to overthrow the Tirana Government and restore the Prince of Wied to the throne.

The press believes the movement is due to the success of the recent Bulgarian coup d'atat.

TAKING VOTE TODAY ON LIQUOR QUESTION

Both Sides in Manitoba Are Professing the Utmost Confidence.

WINNIPEG, June 22.— (Canadian Press.)—With both sides professing the utmost satisfaction as to the outcome of to-day's balloting, and with weather conditions favorable for the casting of a large vote, citizens of Manitoba to-day are expressing their wish as to whether the Manitoba Temperance Act will be continued in force, or the Moderation League's proposal for government sale and control of liquor be adopted.

In Winnipeg considerable activity was displayed around the polling booths shortly after 8 o'clock. In the western and south-western portions of the province heavy rains fell on Thursday, but with a warm sun and high winds it is expected that the rural vote will not be interfered with.

KU KLUX KLAN INVASION OF ENGLAND THREATENED

Asserted Destitute Ex-Service Men Had Formed English Branch of American Klan, and Faces Serious Charge in Police Court

LONDON, June 22 (United Press). — The Ku Klux Klan invasion of England figured prominently in the arraignment of George Husson in the Police Court at Stafford, on the charge of "begging money with menaces."

Husson wrote a woman at Newcastle-under-Lyme ,stating that a group of destitute ex-service men had formed an English branch of the American Ku Klux Klan, and warned her that unless she contributed one hundred pounds to their cause her house would be sacked.

Husson was committed for trial

STOLE COPIES EXAMINATIONS

Questions Distributed in Advance to Scholars Intending to Try McGill University Tests.

MONTREAL, June 22.—(Canadian Press).—Copies of nearly every examination set for this year's matriculation into McGill University were in some way stolen and the questions they contained given in advance to a great number of scholars of this city who intended to try the entrance tests, it was stated this morning. by Dr. J. A. Nicholson, registrar of the University.

The person responsible for the distribution of the papers is known to the College officials. How he managed to obtain them has not yet been discovered. but a thorough investigation is being made into the whole matter, and it is expected that before to-morrow all who have had any hand in the theft and distribution of the examinations will be apprehended.

Whether any criminal proceedings will be instituted against the offenders has not yet been decided.

Election News

TORONTO, June 22. — (Canadian Press).—With election day on Monday, heavy oratorical barrage in the campaign for the Ontario Legislature is lifted practically all along the line, and the candidates for most of the seats are to-day going "over the top" in their own constituencies for an eleventh hour assault to get out votes which, after all, do the final talking and decide the result of the big fight.

While party leaders and party organizers of the Government and the opposition groups continue to express confidence that the returns will spell success to their own respective sectons, it is significant that the independent observers admit that the probabilities in any direction are extremely indefinite. The difficulties of prophesying the outcome of a three-way campaign are many.

Premier Drury is in his own constituency of Halton County to-day, being billed to speak at Milton, the county town, Nelson, Burlington and Bronte. Wellington Hay, leader of the Liberals, is at Niagara Falls, and Hon. Howard Ferguson, for the Conservatives, will address meetings at Owen Sound and Harriston.

Considerable interest is manifested throughout Ontario to-day in voting in the sister province of Manitoba on the referendum on the Government control and sale of liquors. While Ontario on Monday next does not vote on any modification of the present prohibitory law, the question of the enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act has been made the paramount issue throughout the campaign.

German Civilians Waging War Upon The Belgian Forces

DUSSELDORF, June 22. — (Canadian Press)—Two Belgian soldiers were shot dead and a third wounded by one of two German civilians when they had halted on the road near the village of Marl, between Dorsten and Recklinghausen, in the Ruhr.

The Belgians were part of a cyclist patrol. Coming up on the Germans, they stopped and questioned them, whereupon one of the latter drew a revolver, and, firing in reply, shot down all three soldiers before they could act.

Neither of the Germans has been apprehended.

FEAR FIRE RANGERS VICTIMS OF FLAMES

Several Believed to Have Perished While Fighting Bush Fires.

QUEBEC, June 22. — (Canadian Press).—Several fire rangers are missing and are believed to have perished while fighting a bush fire 15 miles in width, which has been burning for over twelve days. It swept down from the north yesterday afternoon and drove away many of the farmers living to the north of a stretch of land between Port Daniel and New Carlisle.

The wind changed when the fire was within a few miles of some of the smaller villages. A large number of fire rangers were endeavoring to stop the progress of the flames, but they were beyond their control. To-day, several are missing and it is feared they have been lost. Among them are Placid Henry, of Bonaventure, and Joseph Babin, of Bonaventure.

Will Not Publish the Minutes of Conference.

LONDON, June 22. — (Canadian Press). — Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin told a questioner in the House of Commons yesterday that the Government would not publish the minutes of the Versailles Peace Conference, as it regarded them as confidential and could not break its pledge.

The question directed at the Premier was whether, considering the partial publication of the minutes, both in Europe and the United States, the full report could not be given out for the information of the public.

In his reply, Mr. Baldwin said that the "deplorable indiscretions" in other countries would not condone a similar indiscretion by the British Government.

KIWANIS CLUB HEARD REPORT OF GATHERING

President J. A. McKone Describes Trip to Atlanta Which Was Marked by Lots of Rain.

VISITORS TODAY

An interesting outline of President J. A. McKone's trip to the International Kiwanis convention at Atlanto, was the feature of to-day's gathering of the Peterboro Kiwanis Club. President McKone prefaced his address with a brief account of the trip down not forgetting to thank the boys for the presentation of a box of chocolates to Mrs. McKone, who accompanied him and a corncob pipe for himself. Speaking of the territory through which he passed, Mr. McKone paid a tribute to the climate in spite of the heavy rains that featured the convention period. The land, said Mr. McKone was hardly as good as Ontario. Part of the trip was through mountainous country.

The visiting Kiwanians were given a rousing reception on their arrival at Atlanta. Community effort and a greater upbuilding of character featured some of the convention addresses. One speaker advocated a yearly program for Kiwanis Clubs.

Addresses of welcome were given by Governor Walker of Georgia, Mayor Sims, of Atlanta, Frank Oliver, Kiwanis Governor of Georgia, and many others. Included in the amusement features of the convention was the presentation of "Plantation Night" and a barbecue. The latter was spoiled by the rain. Side trips to points of interest were recounted by President McKone, who at the close of his address received the thanks of the entire club for his service to Peterboro Kiwanians in representing the club at the convention

The visitors to-day were Dr. C. C. Cragg, a newcomer to the city, and Mr. E. C. Skilling of Montreal.

A telegram was received from Kiwanian Walter Stocker of Montreal announcing the completion of the Jackson Park building.

Kiwanian Tom Marks was intro-

Austrian Woman Slashed Throat in Apartment of Wells

LONDON, June 22.—(United Press.) — An Austrian woman, whose name was withheld by the police, slashed her throat with a razor in the apartment of H. G. Wells, famous British author and was taken to a hospital, where her condition is serious.

The woman had been translator of several of Wells' books and visited his flat to-day, insisting upon seeing him. When Wells saw her in his sitting room, and observing that she was acting strangely, he went to order a porter to summon the police. When he returned alone to the flat he said he found the woman pacing the floor, blood streaming from a gash in her throat.

DECLARE RULE IS NECESSARY

Criticism Regarding the Hours For Passing Through Lift Lock.

Complaints have reached the Toronto press that the regulations governing the use of the Lift Lock in the Trent Valley are absurd. These regulations, it is stated by the complainants, restrict the use of these Lift Locks, so far as small boats, such as launches, motor boats, etc., are concerned, to the hours of 9 a.m., 2 p.m., and 7 p.m. daily.

It is alleged that if a traveller in a small boat reaches Peterborough at 7.10, he can't get through the lock and must stay in Peterborough all night before being locked through at 9 o'clock the next morning.

Was Delayed.

An instance is given by a correspondent. He arrived at 5 p.m. and had to wait until 7 p.m. At great inconvenience and at some risk in view of the weather conditions. Nothing prevented his getting through except Government regulations, although local officials were present and would have been pleased to give him the service. He thinks that this is a poor kind of use to make of a public work which cost the country $1,000,000.

Thinks It Fair.

"I consider it a very fair regulation," said Superintendent A. L. Killaly, of the Trent Canal, regarding the curtailing the hours of lockage over the Hydraulic Lift Lock at Peterborough, about which complaints had been made.

There is nothing to stop boats or launches of any size from passing over the lock at any time if they are bound or are returning from long trips, he said. For local small craft the hours are the mosts suitable possible, and the regulation of traffic of this class is a necessity for the preservation of the working parts of the lock One breakdown might delay traffic for weeks, he said, many of the parts being only replaceable

SALE CHRISTMAS SEALS PRODUCES $25,000,000

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., June 22.—(Associated Press)—Fifty million contributions, totaling $725,000,000, have been made to the national, state and local tuberculosis associations of this country in the last 15 years through the annual Christmas seal sales. Last December approximately eight million people contributed a total of $3,800,000 in the Christmas sea sale. These statements were made by Philip P. Jacobs, publicity director of the National Tuberculosis Association, before the meeting of that body here today.

Mr. Jacobs pointed out that while munity chests last year was $1.71, the average contribution in the Christmas seal sale is about 50c. This fact, he pointed out, indicates the democracy of the Christmas seal sale and also its educational value.

"Someone has said," Mr. Jacobs continued, "that the Christmas seal sale is a patent method of raising money. It is very evidently an annual institution. Millions of people every year look forward to this opportunity to contribute to the fight against tuberculosis and for better health.

"It has been demonstrated in such cities as Philadelphia, Baltimore, Detroit, Indianapolis and other cities that a vigorous Christmas seal sale conducted by the tuberculosis association does not in any way impair the confidence of the public in the community chest, nor decrease the contributions to the community chest. On the contrary, there would seem to be some evidence to prove that the educational value of the Christmas seal sale helps the community chest."

ANTI-RANEYITES WERE MOST IMPRESSIVE BY NOISE AT THE DEBATE

But Impartial Spectator at the Ferguson-Raney Debate in Fergus, Heedful of Points, Would Probably Have Decided the Other Way.

KITCHENER CROWD.

FERGUS, Ont., June 22.— (Special.)— The supporters of each of the Fergus antagonists yesterday no doubt award the honors to their favorite statesman. For noise, perhaps the anti-Raneyites were the more impressive. On points, an impartial spectator, heedful of that matter more than of the manner of presentation, would probably have to decide the other way.

It was a fine crowd that filled the old skating rink. It contained a much larger proportion of women than used to appear at political talk feasts. The town was full of autos, with many from adjacent cities and ridings. Every third man you met in Guelph during the morning was going to Fergus. Mr. Raney twice referred to the Kitchener contingent, which he said had come to break up the meeting. Nobody challenged the aspersion— indeed, Col. Craig, the Conservative candidate, who opened the oratory, did a little aspersing of Kitchener on his own account, for he intimated that liquor can be got there almost as freely as in pre-prohibition times.

Heat Sweltering.

The day was sweltering, but it took some time for the anti-Raneyites to warm up. When Mr. Ferguson came through the throng with the chairman and his candidate, there was some cheering, but it was not one, two, three with the reception of the Attorney-General, who walked to his place without coat or vest, with the Rev. Ben Spence in attendance like a faithful nurse.

Mr. Ferguson's opening was altogether admirable ,as an exposition of the public respect for law, which can only be fostered by an administration of it which deserves respect. Well, the enforcement of the O.T.A. by the Attorney-General's Department had been degrading, through the employment of disreputable characters, male and female. Mr. Raney would answer that the disputable people had been cleared out. "When the horse is gone, lock the stable," cried Mr. Ferguson.

The First Hit.

Then came the listening commentator's first hit. "When the timber's gone, then what?" And there was cheering all over the place. Ferguson invited the questioner to the platform and offered to talk timber after the O.T.A. discussion. The questioner came to the platform.

With the skill of an old lawyer, Ferguson developed his case against the O.T.A. enforcers, reading from the sworn evidence of witnesses, and mentioning names, in support of the allegations that the Attorney-General had gone to the moral gutters for officers of the law. Regarding promptings from the floor, he discussed the "last awful night," which he never would have mentioned, he said, if Mr. Raney hadn't been saying that Conservatives were there, which Raney flatly denied. He renewed his Barrie demand for the Attorney-General to give names, and made a really good play on his own near sight and Mr. Raney's long sight. Mr. Raney, from his office, can see a man taking a drink in Fergus, but is too long sighted to notice violations of the O.T.A. in an adjacent department at Q. Park. Anyway, let's have the names, all the names, of the men and women who were there.

The Raney reply was characteristically definite and bold, but it had to fight against hostilities which called the chairman into play, as some of the objections to the Ferguson talk had previously done. Indeed Mr. Raney a couple of times asked for quiet for his foe. The Attorney General tied Mr. Ferguson down to the reports of his more charges against himself that he had made at other places and then refuted them.

Mr. Raney defended with copious evidence his regime. The employment of spotters was an inheritance from the Hearst government. They had been reduced from over thirty to four. He read the testimony of the former License Commission Chairman, J. D. Flavelle, an eminent Conservative, who said he sometimes thought Mr. Raney too severe in his instructions as to the requisite spotlessness in spotters. He alo had documents from Chairman Hales ,also a Conservative, and General Williams, the Police Commissioner. To the charge that the enforcement forces was being recruited from the classed named by Mr. Ferguson, nearly all the Provincial Police occupied especially on the O. T.A., are returned soldiers.

The motive of the Ferguson charges? The liquor people in the United Staes and here tried to get political parties to take up their cause. They had hoped to capture the Conservative party in Ontario.

In February, 1922, Mr. Ferguson spoke publicly in favor of more freedom in drinking. No bootlegger had been known to express hostility to his stand .It was only recently, when warned by Conservatives that to go back on the O.T.A. would ruin the party, that he had avowed support of the Act.

As to the awful night, Mr. Ferguson had asked, names of women at the party. Mr. Raney referred him to Herb .Lennox for the information. He read a statement of the Premier which says the mistake made was that the members involved ought to have resolution in the House to acknowledge their fault.

UNION BANK WAS PUT ON A FIRM FOOTING AGAIN

Dividend Was Reduced But All Bad Debts Were Cleared and Revaluation Made.

REPORT OF PRESIDENT

WINNIPEG, Man., June 22.— (Canadian Press) — W. R. Allan, president of the Union Bank of Canada, said to the Canadian Press yesterday afternoon that the published statement of the bank to its shareholders represented all that was to be said upon the subject; that there had been a tranfer from the rest account to the contingent reserve of a sum of $4,250,000 and a reduction of dividend from ten per cent to eight per cent. This was done after consultation with and approval of a high official of the Bank of Montreal, and there was now cleared from the books of the bank all bad and doubtful debts. and it is placed upon what Mr. Allan considers a very sound footing, the sum of $1,750,000 being left at credit of rest account. The president, the directors and executive officers, said Mr. Allan are looking forward with confidenc to the future of the institution.

MONTREAL, June 22.—(Canadian Press)—The Union Bank of Canada yesterday issued a statement to its shareholders regarding its affairs The statement follows:

"Shortly before the last annual general meeting your then general manager reported to the president and directors the discovery of certais unauthorized transactions in foreign exchange from which a considerable loss to the bank resulted, which loss had then been fully provided for.

Having regard. however to all the surrounding circumstances and in view of the change of the general management of the bank, a thorough examination and revelation of the bank's asset, was later decided upon

This has been conducted by the present general manager, the chief executive officer and the auditors of the bank, and in addition an independent examination has been made by a high executive officer of the Bank of Montreal, loaned for the purpose.

This valuation has now been completed and after the most earnest and careful consideration your president and directors, your executive officers and auditors, and the officer of the Bank of Montreal above referred to unanimously concur in the following:

MANY BRANCH LINES NEEDED FOR THE EAST

Railway Needs of the Maritime Provinces and Eastern Quebec Are Forcibly Presented.

ALREADY SETTLED.

OTTAWA, June 22.— (Canadian Press.) — Plans for more branch lines for the Canadian National, particularly in Quebec and the Maritimes, were made in the House yesterday. The House was considering a resolution covering proposed branch line construction. A resolution which was adopted and a bill based thereon given first reading. During discussion, Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways, said that believing the promises of the government and of parliament in regard to the Hudson Bay Railway should be carried out, he would consider including an item in the supplementary estimates in this connection.

Hon. C. Marcil (Liberal, Bonaventure) complained of the inadequate services in the Gaspe peninsula. While parliament was voting millions for parts of the country where new settlers would be arriving, he said, the oldest province was left without proper railway communication. He noticed that it was proposed to spend $25,000,000 on the construction of branch lines. Seventy-one miles would be in Nova Scotia ,twenty-five miles in New Brunswick, fourteen miles in Quebec, and twenty-nine in Ontario. All the remainder would be in the west.

"I consider that this part of Quebec has been overlooked," said Mr. Marcil, "and when I placed the matter before Sir Henry Thornton on a purely business basis he was amazed at the state of affairs He offered at once to undertake to operate these railways as branch lines of the Intercolonial. But we are held up by these English companies who are keeping the roads alive merely for the purpose of obtaining their price."

R. B. Hanson (Conservative, York-Sunbury) made a plea for the residents of Kent county, New Brunswick. There was a railway in this county known as the Kent Northern which had been the subject of negotiation for purchase. This railway company had originally refused the offer made to it by the government but he understood that it was now willing to sell, and he thought the government should take it over. Last winter the people of this county had been without railway facilities for forty-three days.

P. F. Casgrain (Liberal, Charlevoix-Montmorenci) asked for branch lines in his constituency to develop industries already located there A. T. Leger (Liberal, Kent) remarked that he thought his constituents could get along without the interference of the member for York-Sunbury (Mr. Hanson.) At the time the offer for the Kent Northern Railway had been made by the government he had done all in his power to have it accepted.

Attorney-General Has Obtained Two Injunctions Against Brokers—Stock Exchange President Resigns.

STRONG ACTION.

NEW YORK, June 22.— (Canadian Press.)—The house cleaning in Wall street, inaugurated after the failure of E. M. Fuller and Company for $5,000,000 and disclosure that the house was one of scores of bucketshops where brokers bet their brains against their customers' money, brought four important developments yesterday.

1.—Inauguration by Attorney-General Sherman of a campaign to close all bucketshops by injunction, under the recently adopted Martin Act.

2.—Announcement that W. S. Silkworth, who has been sharply under fire because of his alleged relations with now bankrupt members of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, had decided to resign, the Exchange pre-

CANADA NEEDS NEW CAPITAL

Also Greater Population Stresses E. W. Beatty, President of Canadian Pacific Railway.

LONDON, June 22.— (Canadian Press Cable.) — Some frank views concerning Grand Trunk matters was given at considerable length by President E. W. Beatty of the Canadian Pacific Railway in his speech delivered at the Canada Club dinner last night. Mr. Beatty also dealt with Canadian development, emphasizing the necessity for greater population and the equal necessity for the introduction of new capital to the Dominion. E. R Peacock, a director of the Bank of England and former assistant head master of the Upper Canada College, presided and there was a large gathering of prominent Englishmen and Canadians present.

"In recent years," said Mr. Beatty in opening, "Canada has proceeded in framing policies with tortoise-like slowness which has been irritating particularly when contrasted with the forward and progressive policies of other parts of the Empire. Faith in ourselves is, however, returning and some of us now fear that the greatest mistake of all was that of the delay and loss of opportunity to secure the highest type of immigrant which has been the penalty for that delay. Fortunately however, some agencies were able to counteract the propaganda of despondency to a limited extent and immigrants are now coming forward anl many more will come forward in consequence of the optimism and confidence which prevails and also the removing of certain government restrictions which have denied up to now the entry of some of the finest types of immigrants that Canada could secure.

ADVERTISING PETERBOROUGH.

Peterborough is attracting considerable attention just now as a desirable place for conventions and fraternal gatherings of all kinds.

Already several organizations have met here this year and during the summer there will be a number of other conventions and annual meetings.

On Sunday, for instance, the Detroit Ticket Agents Association will be in Peterborough and the Ancient Order of Foresters from all over the district will hold a church parade here.

The Michigan Pikers will visit Peterborough next month and the Oddfellows are holding their encampment in this city later on in the summer.

Such gatherings are doubly welcome because of the publicity gained by the city and also because of the opportunity of meeting good fellows from many localities.

The citizens generally should do everything in their power to assist in welcoming the visitors who will be here this summer and to help in creating an impression that will prove advertising of the most valuable kind for the community.

We have many things here that we are proud to show the stranger within our gates and if in addition to that we succeed in leaving upon the minds of our visitors a consciousness of warm hospitality and genuine welcome we will be "selling" Peterborough with a vengeance to people from all over the continent.

A USEFUL CITIZEN.

The passing of Ex-Warden Joseph Forster on Monday ended a career of faithful service on behalf of his fellow citizens, a career that included many years experience in municipal activities and that furnishes an object lesson in these days of indifference and apathy in regard to civic duties.

It is usually difficult nowadays to persuade citizens with the necessary qualifications to take upon themselves the responsibility of office.

There was nothing of the slacker type about the late Joseph Forster.

For nineteen years he served his fellow citizens as a member of the council of North Monaghan. Six years as a councillor and thirteen as reeve, being returned to the latter position eleven years by acclamation.

His long term of office as reeve of course made him a member of the county council for a similar period and on two different occasions he was warden of the county.

In addition he did good work for several years as a member of the Trustee Board for School Section No. 3, North Monaghan.

The confidence placed in him by the people in electing Mr. Forster to so many offices of trust was justified by the efficient manner in which his duties were discharged, and the faithful service rendered by him during his long record of public activity.

The township of North Monaghan, where he lived for nearly sixty years owes much to him.

TAKING A BIG CHANCE.

The Ontario contest is almost over; with another day's campaigning the case will have been completed and turned over to the jury for a verdict.

To that portion of the jury comprising the electorate of West Peterborough the Examiner would like to point out the fact that it is their duty to review the evidence—or in other words the records, policies and personalities involved in the contest—and to return a verdict on Monday.

And the duty should not be thrown upon the shoulders of only half the jury—on the other hand every voter whose name is on the list should resolve to discharge the responsibility that accompanies the possession of the franchise.

The campaign has been a fairly long one, the leaders of the three parties have carried on extensive speaking tours, and the newspapers throughout the province have devoted ample space to reports of the activities of the contestants and the issues involved.

The people, therefore, should be fairly well informed in regard to the political situation and ready to give their answer to the various appeals that have been made to them.

To treat such an important an occasion as a provincial general election lightly is a dangerous proceeding—yet it is to be feared that large numbers of voters here and elsewhere are treating the present campaign lightly.

The all-important fact that Monday's verdict determines the composition of Ontario's government for at least four years, in the normal course of events, is being overlooked.

Yet the provincial government plays a very important part in the lives of the people. It has very much to do with our business, our pleasures, even our habits. It has wide powers—and sometimes uses them not wisely but too well. It digs deep down in our pocketbooks and spends vast sums of our money. It comes into our municipalities and lays down the law to them and in a thousand ways the provincial administration comes into daily contact with the conditions of everyday life in Ontario.

It seems strange then in view of the authority invested in the Legislature that so many of our people are apparently indifferent as to what party is returned to power.

There would be a state of civil war in Ontario were an attempt to be made to disenfranchise half the electorate.

Yet fully that proportion of the total voters seem to be quite willing to virtually put themselves in the place of disenfranchised electors—by remaining away from the polls and displaying no interest in the contest.

The people who refuse to vote are taking a big chance—and do not deserve a good government.

"It may be, as some of our politicians say, that Ontario is in need of men in its Legislature who are used to handling business in a big way. It is also true that it would not be a bad idea to have a few people down there who still regard a thousand dollars as a lot of money."—London Advertiser.

Perhaps it is as well to have both classes represented, as the Advertiser suggests, but, after all, the man who is used to big business is the type that is most urgently required.

The big business man has the same regard for one thousand dollars as the little man, but he knows or should know enough about modern conditions to see to it that the Province gets one hundred cents value for every dollar expended.

The experienced business man is liable to be more economical because of the business principles he has been trained to follow than the other chap who, no matter how anxious he is to save the people's money, does not know the right way to go about it, and fritters away more in inefficient methods and doubtful experiments than he can possibly save.

Amateur students of economy who "still regard a thousand dollars as a lot of money" are hopelessly out of their depth when it comes to efficiently directing the expenditure of large sums on undertakings, the significance of which they dimly visualize.

We have had too many of that type in control of Ontario's expenditures, and the increase in the debt speaks eloquently of their presence in the Legislature.

HENRY FORD ON WAGES.

Mr. Henry Ford has had a good deal to say lately on the subject of wages—what they are, how they are paid, when they are sufficient and so on. It is an exceedingly important matter and is to-day the potential cause of as much worry and anxiety in the world as perhaps anything else. As a great employer, and in some respects an exemplary employer—in the sense that he has relative contentment in his huge factories—Mr. Ford speaks with authority. At all events, he speaks courageously, and goes to the pith of things. For example, he asks and answers the following questions:

"When can a wage be considered adequate? How much of a living is reasonably to be expected from work? Have you ever considered what a wage does or ought to do? To say that it should pay the cost of living is to say almost nothing. The cost of living depends largely upon the efficiency of production and transportation; and the efficiency of these is the sum of the efficiencies of the management and the workers. Good work, well managed, ought to result in high wages and low living costs. If we attempt to regulate wages on living costs, we get nowhere. The cost of living is a result and we cannot expect to keep a result constant if we keep altering the factors which produce the result. When we try to regulate wages according to the cost of living, we are imitating a dog chasing his tail. And anyhow, who is competent to say just what kind of living we shall base the costs on?"

Mr. Ford says quite boldly that a majority of people in the world are not mentally, even if they are physically, capable of making a good living. Men thus defective in equipment are ranked as unskilled workers, and the situation in that respect must be frankly accepted. How are these men to be paid? The answer he gives is that they must be paid in proportion to what they are able to produce, since, as he says, "it is not the employer who pays wages. He only handles the money. It is the product that pays the wages, and it is the management that arranges the production so that the product may pay the wages." In that decisive way he disposes of an economic issue as to which there is much controversy.

Incidentally, Mr. Ford throws a strong light on the methods which obtain in his workshops, which are regarded as models of efficiency and therefore of low cost in production. What he says in that regard is so applicable to the whole industrial problem of our day that at least one example is worth giving. Speaking of the single process of adjusting the piston rod, he says:

"The foreman, examining the operation, could not discover why it should take as much as three minutes. He analyzed the motions with a stop watch. He found that four hours out of a nine-hour day were spent in walking. The assembler did not go off anywhere, but he had to shift his feet to gather in his materials and to push away his finished piece. In the whole task, each man performed six operations. The foreman devised a new plan; he split the operation into three divisions, put a slide on the bench and three men on each side of it, and an inspector at the end. Instead of one man performing the whole operation, one man then performed only one-third of the operation—he performed only as much as he could do without shifting his feet. They cut down the squad from 28 to 14 men. The former record for 28 men was 175 assemblies a day. Now seven men turn out 2,600 assemblies in eight hours. It is not necessary to calculate the savings there!"

This description presents a vivid picture of the thoroughness and efficiency which have given the Ford shops a high name in the industrial world. Time studios, however, were not invented at Detroit. They are associated with the name of Frederic C. Taylor, an engineer, who developed and introduced them into many shops. They are opposed by the labor organizations, and in the annual appropriations for the arsenals of the United States there is a clause specifically forbidding them. Nevertheless, Mr. Ford regards them as the secret of his success in being able to pay high wages and, at the same time, make money for himself. "Dividing and sub-dividing operations, keeping the work in motion—these are the keynotes of production," he says.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

If the interest in the campaign were as warm as the weather has been a record vote could be looked for next Monday.

Soldiers who are to go to Petawawa on Sunday will not be able to vote. It is a shame to stop anyone who wants to register his franchise.

Considering the weather conditions Messrs. Raney and Ferguson must have had little trouble in staging a hot debate yesterday.

Although yesterday was the longest day of the year, Monday will be long enough to give time to everybody to register a vote.

Trenton is to have an old Home week this summer. Peterborough seems to be about the only centre in which such a proposition is not considered feasible.

The disposal of the large quantities of seconds, which are on the market at this season is a problem to which several have been giving close attention, and if an export market can be worked up for these eggs broken and frozen it will solve one of the greatest problems with which the trade is faced at the present time in connection with the marketing of eggs.

CROWDS VISIT FAIR.

GOTHENBURG, Sweden, June 22.—(Associated Press)—Fifty thousand visitors a day, many of them from far corners of the globe, are seeing the Jubilee Exposition in Gothenburg.

What impresses the visitors most, aside from the architectural beauty of the exposition buildings, is the iron, steel, and machinery section of the Export Exhibition. Never before at any fair has the story of steel in all its various aspects been so graphically represented. From the mining of the ore, represented in an artificial mine, through the various processes of steel making, and into such typical Swedish manufactures as ball bearings, micrometers, fine cutlery, cream separators, turbines, oil motors, artillery, etc., the story is illustrated with great vividness.

sidency next Thursday, and that Lawrence Tweedy, Vice-President, slated to succeed him, would immediately start a thorough re-organization of the Exchange.

3.—Disciplinary action by the New York Curb Market against two members alleged to have committed acts injurious to the Exchange. One was expelled and one suspended for a year.

4.—Reports that powerful banking interests in the Street had inaugurated a series of conferences to seek some means of stabilizing conditions in the financial zone. In this connection, the statement Wednesday night by President Cromwell of the New York Stock Exchange that a movement was on foot to organize a pool to save houses subjected to runs, was recalled.

Much mystery surrounded the reported meeting of big banking interests to devise a stabilizer for the Street. Most of the bankers interviewed insisted the financial district was sound and asserted there was no occasion for any sort of conference. Despite denials, however, the reports persisted.

The bankers interviewed made no bones of charging that malicious spreaders of rumors had done more to unsettle confidence in Wall Street than any actual developments. Most of the failures, they declared, could have been averted if public confidence in the attacked houses had been kept intact.

U. F. O. AND LIBERALS JOIN FORCES IN PICNIC

Excessive Heat Fails to Stem Flow of Oratory—Wellington Hay Challenged to Manage Farm—U. F. O. Could Afford Expensive Coal Scuttles

TAXES HURT NOBODY.

Over a thousand people attended the picnic held yesterday at Wallace's Point by the U.F.O. clubs of Cavan, South Monaghan and East Peterboro. Under a broiling sun, political orators from near and far discoursed on the good qualities of U.F.O. and Liberal organizations, while men, women and children sat on the grass of the eastern slope of the hill at the Point, grouped around the low platform, and listened to the four men and the lone woman who discussed the issues of the day for nearly three hours, to a chorus of intermittent babies' wails and the creak of teeter-totters that held exuberant youngsters. W. H. Barnard of South Monaghan, president of the Cavan and Monaghan U.F.O. club acted as chairman. The speakers included: Mrs. M. Laws, of Toronto, secretary of the U.F.W.O. of Ontario, who was accompanied by Mrs. S. F. Redmond of Otonabee; Rev. W. A. Amos of Palmerston; E. N. McDonald, U.F.O. candidate in East Peterboro; Sam Clarke of Cobourg, Liberal standard-bearer for West Northumberland; S. S. Staples, former U.F.O. member for East Durham, who is contending the riding against A. J. Fallis (Conservative) of Millbrook, and Rev A. H. McConnachie of South Monaghan.

Rev. W. A. Amos.

Rev. Mr. Amos was the first speaker, a Presbyterian clergyman and farmer who alluded to his birthplace as Bletcher's Corners, near Port Hope.

Speaking of the complaint of "the dear old Globe" as to the non-partisan attitude taken by many of the smaller dailies in political matters, Mr. Amos referred to the explanation made by the Woodstock Sentinel-Review that the press of today was not concerned with politics so much as in giving the public the facts in an unbiased manner. The speaker declared that the open attitude of mind was the proper stand to take in political issues of the day.

"I am not here," said Mr. Amos, "to defend the record of the Drury government, but I contend that when Wellington Hay says, as he did in his manifesto at Milverton, that what we want now is a business administration, I would like to ask Mr. Hay two questions, first, does he insinuate that the farmers have not the intelligence and stamina to give a business administration, and second, does he infer that the farmers are not business men when their occupation and calling and enterprise is in business? I would like to challenge Mr. Hay to move up a hundred miles to my farm and live in the way he is living now and make it pay."

The Temperance Issue.

"All the leaders are temperance advocates today. I would like to ask Mr. Hay when he became such an ardent temperance advocate. Most of us read the press, and some of use read the Globe, because we have to get news somewhere, and according to it, Mr. Hay did not come out and make any frank statement on the temperance issue until they asked him. Even then, he tagged on behind. As for the other leader, Mr. Ferguson, they have been after his scalp on this subject all over the country, and it is well known what it is thought he stands for in this matter. Mr. Drury was the only one who came out manfully and said what he stood for in regard to the O.T.A. question."

"Regarding the record of Mr. Ferguson in the timber and Kapuskasing Settlement matters, he says, of course, that the timber investigation was framed up. We know that when Mr. Nickle, now Mr. Ferguson's first lieutenant, investigated the soldier settlement project, he brought in a report that was very damaging to Mr. Ferguson, and it cost the country over a million dollars to establish and then break up that colony. These things show how the wind blows and something of the calibre of the men, and it does not much matter when even a good Canadian gives a man a clean bill of character. That does not signify much in these days when you can get a recommendation from almost anyone. You have not any consciousness of the pressure in public life that is brought to bear, even on the ministry, to grant such recommendations. No matter what some say, who have reasons to say so, we have intelligence enough to realize the facts of the case."

Saying that the policy of the people during the last dozen years has been that of "let George do it," and that "we have been too weak-kneed in the enforcement of law and order, Mr. Amos said; "we might better have no O.T.A. unless we are prepared to stand behind it and see it enforced. If you don't want it, say so, and get it off, and don't be working along these hypocritical lines. We must see it enforced, and see that the Government is returned to power that will see it through. We can't afford to have it made a laughing-stock of."

Ferguson Incapable.

E. N. McDonald, in a short address, referring to the different leaders of political parties said; "I believe that if the rank and file of the Conservatives in this province had their way, that Mr. Ferguson would not be their leader, and I sometimes feel like saying to those who are good, honest people, and who have been Conservatives for a good many years, if they would like to see him elected as premier of this province. There are two ways they could take. One is to stay at home and not vote, and the other is to go out and vote for some other candidate. I don't believe in his ability to administer the affairs of this province as its prime minister. Some say he is honest, others say not, but of one thing we are sure, that he showed himself incapable of administering his department."

Mr. McDonald defended the Backus deal, saying that some thought the timber had been given away. He said, "We got the crown dues, eighty cents a cord for all the spruce and pine, and forty cents a cord for all the pulpwood."

Mrs. M. Laws.

Mrs. M. Laws, the next speaker, spoke of the time when the Toronto Globe was considered "the Scotsman's Bible" and when Conservatives "took without salt, everything they read in any one of the Conservative organs" this being equally true of other parties. "It is so no longer."

The people now think for themselves, and have achieved the habit of considering questions of national and provincial importance, and not trivalities and personalities. Mrs. Laws urged the formation of a centre from which all departments might be co-related, in the movement which had three sides; educational, social and political

Sam Clarke.

Sam Clarke of Cobourg was greeted with applause, and his audience accorded his snappy, humorous speech, delivered in characteristic fashion, a generous measure of appreciation.

Mr. Clarke spoke of the mighty task which faced the U.F.O. government in the Ontario House. "You fellows may know it all, but I'm darned if I do. You must have a certain amount of schooling and training to get the mastery of a job like that."

Referring to the remark of Mr. Howard Ferguson on the platform at Cobourg recently, when he called Mr. Clarke a U.F.O., Mr. Clarke declared his allegiance to the Liberal party, and to the work carried on during the administration of Liberal leaders, "when two thirds of our public institutions were built, when we built the Parliament Buildings and paid for them, when the bonded debt of the whole province was only eight million dollars, and it wouldn't have been that much if we hadn't built the T. and N.O. Railway."

Proud to be Liberal.

"I am proud of being a Liberal. When we went out, the debt was eight millions. In fourteen years, the Conservatives ran it up to ninety seven millions. Then Mr Drury took office, and today you have a net debt of about two hundred and twenty-five millions.

The cry is that the province is nearly bankrupt. Someone said to me the other day that in another four years, this province would be bankrupt if we went along at the same rate, but you know, that fellow hadn't the brains of a jackrabbit. I remember the times when I had to spend to make money. It was "pump or drown" and thank God, I came out without drowning. Of course, your taxes have doubled, but I believe in fighting fair. No man should fight with one hand when the other fellow has two. Look at your roads. Look at that provincial highway from Sarnia to Quebec. You were paying forty per cent of the cost, and the rest was paid by the Government. Then the Government comes around and says: If you want to make good roads in your counties, we will give forty per cent of the cost. They paid to the municipalities two dollars where they got one."

Highways and Hydro.

"Look at the Hydro and Chippewa Falls. One of the big hobbies of the Conservatives is the Hydro. They almost have persuaded themselves now that they own the whole shooting-match. Seventy-four millions on account of the Hydro in the last four years, and forty millions on good roads. But look at the roads you have compared with those of forty or fifty years ago. And you shouldn't forget that these roads with their increased tax burdens, aren't the Government's fault. They are the County Council's fault. They can't build a mile of road until the County Council says it wants it, and then the Government sets the standard, and pays forty per cent of the cost.

"Look at the great comfort you would get from the Hydro if you had it here. The whole house lit up with electricity, even the chicken houses lighted up, the churns and washing-machines turned with it. Why, a man could stay up all night and fix his machines, if he wanted to, that is, if we had it."

"We have good assets for every dollar spent. No rubbish. No rotten apples. All good stuff. Look at the good that has been done by this government in some of its legislation." Mr. Clarke went on to illustrate the benefits accruing to impoverished and over-worked women and children unable to appear decently clothed before their schoolmates, by the operations of the Mothers' Allowance Act.

"We spent thirty-eight millions in running this province last year. There was plenty of good done with some of that money. And there are one thousand more inmates in the asylums than there were four years ago, but they are mighty comfortable in the different institutions. The money, amounting to some two hundred thousand dollars, spent by Cobourg for good roads, was here referred to, which the speaker declared was good business, "even though the tax rate is forty-two mills."

"A Bunch of Amateurs."

Referring to Rev. Mr. Amos' allusion to Mr. Hay's plea for a business administration, Mr. Clarke declared that Mr. Hay was right, and that the province wants a business administration. "It will be a long time before you get a bunch of amateurs to run things as they did down there. Imagine old Peter Smith, used to selling a critter for seventy-five or a hundred dollars, going along doing business in a small way like that, and then jumping right in and writing cheques for millions. Why, it has taken every hair off his head."

Mr. Clarke also sympathized with "poor Raney, and the time he has had" in filling the double responsibility of being the only lawyer in the U.F.O. administration, and therefore being called on to give legal opinions on every conceivable matter while also harnessed with the responsibility of enforcing the Ontario Temperance Act.

Ferguson's Covert Wink.

"Don't forget, however, that a man may take a drink and still be a mighty good citizen. I am not saying, either, that he is any the better for the drink." Hon. Howard Ferguson, Mr. Clarke declared, was a mighty clever and shrewd politician, who could ride two horses at once. He was able to wear a soft hat in such a way that he could wink at one onlooker while another was unable to see him do so When speaking to temperance advocates, he would declare that the O.T.A. was entirely of Tory origin. In Cobourg he had said in effect: "If I am returned, of course the law will be enforced, but oh, so differently. It will be a human enforcement." "Of course," said the speaker, "you all know what that means. Nobody will be hurt."

"I believe, if Toronto has one bootlegger, it has ten thousand, and the majority of them are foreigners. It is said that Raney hires thugs to catch these fellows, but you would hardly expect him to walk up to them and say, "I am a good Presbyterian." You wouldn't get one in seven years that way. You have to set a thief to catch a thief. I'll bet Raney will win in the riding where he is running on Monday. Of course, some will say, as they say about good roads, that we might have been a little easier in the start, that towns might have licensed shops, etc. I don't know. I don't believe there are twenty-five men here who would want to go back to conditions as we had them ten years ago."

Referring to the thirty-eight millions of annual expenditure, Mr. Clarke declared that it all came in from such sources as motor licenses, increased corporation taxes, nickel show tax, on death dues, and a tax on the man who lost at the horse race. "And nobody was hurt."

U.F.O. Could Afford it.

He said that Hon. Mr. Ferguson's talk about expensive coal scuttles and installation of private bathrooms for members of the U.F.O. government should be taken with the realization that the money recovered from the Shelvin-Clarke people would pay for such things ten times over.

S. S. Staples spoke very briefly, urging the electors to mark their ballots on Monday for what they considered in the best interest of the province, remarking that he was proud to be a supporter of Mr. Drury and of the cause he represented.

Rev. A. H. McConnachie brought the speeches to a close by announcement of "U.F.O." Sunday to be held at Wallace's Point on June 24, when Rev. R. Pogue will be the special speaker.

What I Have Learned in 47 Years Practice

I HAVE been watching the results of constipation for 47 years, since I began the practice of medicine back in 1875. I am now 83 years old, and though from time to time the medical profession makes some wonderfully interesting experiments and tests, the fundamentals of causes and relief in this particular ailment are unchanged.

But the people take greater interest today in their health, in diet, exercise and the drinking of water. Constipation, however, will occur from time to time no matter how one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. I believe in getting as close to nature as possible, hence my remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It is made of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics. Children will not willingly take bitter things. Laxative Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written me to that effect.

Over 10 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin are now sold every year, and it is the most widely bought family laxative in the world. I say family laxative because all in the family can use it with safety. It is mild enough for the infant in arms, effective in the most chronic constipation of an adult. The formula is on every package.

Recently there has been a new wave of drastic physics. Calomel, a mercurial that salivates and loosens teeth, has been revived; salt waters and powders that draw needed constituents from the blood; coal tar disguised in candy form that causes skin eruptions. In a practice of 47 years I have never seen any reason for their use when a medicine like Laxative Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping, and without shock to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It lowers your strength 28 per cent, hardens the arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope but go to a druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin. It is a generous-size bottle. Take a teaspoonful that night and by morning you will be well. The cost is only about a cent a dose. Use Laxative Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, piles, indigestion, loss of appetite or sleep, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

UNABLE TO SLEEP—DEPRESSED AND NERVOUS

Quickly Relieved by Wincarnis

"For several years I had been in a weak and run-down condition. I had frequent fainting spells which always left me almost completely exhausted. I suffered so with nervousness that the least little thing would make me jump and it got to be almost impossible for me to get a good night's sleep. I would get terrible fits of depression which would last for days. I had taken doctors' medicines and tonics without number, but nothing seemed to do me much good.

I saw Wincarnis advertised and decided to try a bottle. In an incredibly short time I got back my strength, my nervousness disappeared and I could sleep as peacefully as a child. I really believe Wincarnis is the greatest of all tonics.

UNION BANK

(1). Losses have developed in connection with certain loans made during the period of inflation and in addition to taking care of these, it is prudent to make provision in respect of loans, the full liquidation of which has been delayed by the well known abnormal conditions which followed that period.

(2) The ordinary losses inseparable from commercial and agricultural banking, no matter how conservatively and carefully conducted would have been readily taken care of by the usual provision had it not been for the unexpected and abnormal items above referred to Prudence and sound patience call for adequate provision for such risks in the current business of the bank.

(3) To provide amply for the foregoing losses and risks it has been deemed advisable to transfer from the rest account to contingent reserve account, the sum of $4,250,000. This leaves the present position of the bank as follows.

Will be Recoveries

Capital, $8,000,000 rest account $1,750,000; profit and loss account. $159360. Your president and directors believe that the investigation and appraisement of bad and doubtful accounts have been so searching and thorough, and the relative appropriations so liberal as to warrant the confident expectation that considerable recoveries will be ultimately realized. A policy of economy as rigid as is consistent with unimpaired, efficiency, has been inaugurated, which has already reduced, and will further materially reduce the operating and overhead charges of the bank, and in order to further implement this policy it has decided to reduce the dividend for the time being to 8 per cent. per annum.

While your president and directors deeply regret the necessity for this announcement they are confident that you will appreciate that it is complete and candid statement of the facts and will, in the circumstances approve their decision.

They cannot too strongly assure you of their belief in the fundamental soundness of the bank's position. They point out that with all bad and doubtful accounts provided for not only is the bank's capital unimpaired but its rest account is still substantial.

As a going concern with a long-established and widespread business, a splendid earning power, a good-will founded on more than half a century of banking service, a loyal an experienced staff and a reorganized executive, actuated by a policy of strict economy and prudent conservatism, it only requires the continued confidence and support of its shareholders and customers to insure for it a future of progress and prosperity.

R. T. Riley, who was a director and vice-president or many years, and rendered most valuable service to the bank, has, we are pleased to advise, again accepted a seat on the board of directors. Mr. Riley has consented to act as chairman of the newly constituted executive committee of the board, where his wide experience and sound judgment will eb of invaluable assistance.

MONTREAL, June 22.—(Canadian Press).—The Union Bank was founded in 1865 in Quebec. It had, according to the 1922 annual financial review, an authorized capital of $15,000,000 and a subscribed and paid-up capital of $8,000,000. The reserve fund was $6,000,000. Previous to 1918 dividends of 9 per cent. were paid. In that year they were increased to ten per cent. In 1920 a bonus of two per cent was paid.

GIVEN HIS "LETTER" FOR FIDELITY ONLY

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 22.—Faithfulness and patience is valued as highly at Michigan University, as supremacy in athletics.

R. D. Gibson, senior, although one-armed, has been awarded a "letter" for track work at the University.

Gibson never made the track team, but he came out every day, all four yeras of his time at the University and tried hard with the other members of the squad. He was unable to overcome his handicap enough to "make the team," but his morale had its effect on the squad.

He was given the letter on recommendation of Coach Farrell and members of the track squad.

THE BANKING BILL IS BEFORE SENATE

Action of Union Bank May Possibly Affect the Measure.

OTTAWA, June 22. — (Canadian Press).—The possible effect upon the fate of the Banking Bill of the Union Bank action in writing down its rest account by over four millions is now being canvassed in Parliamentary circles. The bill is now before the Senate, and it is stated to be probable that some amendments will be inserted in the measure in that Chamber. If that occurs, the bill must come back to the Commons and the subject of the position of the Union Bank may be brought up.

Proceedings upon the concurrence in the Senate amendments are customarily brief, and the near-end of the session makes it doubtful that a lengthy debate will take place. It is stated, however, that precedents are being looked upon with a view to seeing what action might be taken in the way of a motion or amendment to the bill.

The publication of the report of the Union Bank just after the Bank Bill had passed the Commons has been commented upon in progressive circles as a "coincidence" or a "synchronism."

Miss Merle Upton, who has been teaching for the past year, has been re-engaged for another year at Shea's School (S.S. No. 1, Seymour).

MOVE TO DUCK NEWSPAPERMAN

Edgar Watson Resents the Alleged Colored Reports of "Last Night Party" of the Legislature's Members.

LINDSAY, June 22.—There were wigs on the green at the Progressive picnic at Pleasant Point on Wednesday. The Toronto Telegram representative, who has been camped in the riding and who has been hot on the trail of Edgar Watson ex-M.P.P., appeared on the grounds and was given a lively reception Mr. Watson accused him of sending untruthful and misleading reports to the Toronto paper relative to his alleged participation in the "last awful night party." The reporter after a severe gruelling admitted his articles were highly colored but he was obliged to send in a story.

The picnickers were so indignant that two stalwart Progressives made a move to throw the Telegram man into Sturgeon Lake.

Edgar Watson denied that he was a member of the "last night party."

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Meeting Last Evening in the Interests of the U. F.O. Candidate — Personal Mention.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 22. — A fairly large number, among whom were quite a number of ladies, attended the meeting held last evening in Cole's Opera House in the interests of Mr. Wesley Montgomery, ex-M.L.A.

Mr. Matthew Mulhearn occupied the chair most acceptably, and in a gracious speech outlined his reasons for being on the platform in that capacity, and stated that regardless of what his political affiliations had been, he felt it his duty to support Mr. Montgomery, who had been largely instrumental in having the High School grant restored to Campbellford

Mr. Montgomery, in his opening remarks, stated that he perhaps owed the people of Campbellford an apology for coming to address them again, but he felt that his opponents had not been fair in their charges, often exaggerating and manufacturing statements derogatory to himself and to the Government. The speaker referred to the visible assets of the Province and their growth in the last four years, expenditure for Hydro, radials, colonisation roads, bank account and bonds, which of course cost large sums In the four years, but one item, the $60,000 grant for farms for returned men at Guelph, was opposed by the Opposition.

Mr. Montgomery said the Opposition favoured larger expenditures, for asylums, universities, and yet they called the Drury Government extravagant He outlined the useful legislation passed or amended by his Government, such as the Workmen's Compensation Act, which was increased from 55 per cent. to 66 2-3 per cent. Raised compensation to widows from $30.00 to $40.00 per month, and stated that this Act was beneficial to employer and employee alike, and the Act is administered very cheaply. Mothers' Allowance and Minimum Wage Bills were justified, and the good work of the Department of Public Health had reduced the death-rate from typhoid in Ontario from 61 to 4 in every ten thousand. In 1916 diphtheria toxin cost $15.00 for one treatment, now it is free.

Hon. Doherty, through his sole efforts, succeeded in removing the cattle embargo, so that now the farmers are getting the actual benefit, 3,000 cattle last week being sent to Britain. He also has the credit of the Dairy Standard Act.

The speaker explained clearly the Backus deal, and stated that Kenora, which was nearly in a state of bankruptcy, had now a pulp mill employing 700 men, which promises to employ 1,000 Backus also developed water power of 50,000, and pays the town's indebtedness. This limit was sold for twice what the previous Government got for a much better limit.

Mr. Montgomery asked that the Government be given an opportunity for four years more to continue the reforms they were introducing.

"Ferguson," said Mr. Montgomery, has been on all sides of the fence in regard to the O.T.A., and at the first of the year Mr. Ferugson, in Hamilton, advised his Party to wait and see what attitude they should take in regard to the O.T.A.

Prof. Sissons.

Prof. Sissons, of Victoria University, the second speaker, also has a farm at Newmarket, and stated that he had grown to know Mr. Montgomery within the past four weeks, and stated him to be a man of honesty of mind, frankness of purpose, a man of judgment and honour. Professor Sissons regretted that on public questions the press could not always be trusted, and affirmed that we must trust to political meetings and debate to convey this knowledge of public affairs to the people.

The speaker referred to The Examiner's reports of Mr Nickle's address here last week, in which he stated that the Hon. Drury was not to blame. In the larger towns and cities there were not farmer candidates, but the significant fact is this, that when a band of working men were asked to assume the task of Government, they did so with only two or three desertions. It was predicted that the Government would only last one season, but it has lasted four, the members realising the Hon. E. C. Drury is the ablest man in the House. The Liberals could not respect the Conservatives and the Conservatives could not trust the Liberals, and in only one or two cases did either Party dare to force a vote.

"J. J. Morrison did not dominate the Government," said the speaker. "Sometimes the Government agreed and Drury did agree to consult, not the U.F.O. executive only, but the candidates, defeated and elected, and the U.F.O. executive." Hon. Drury was the first president of hte U.F.O. and first secretary of the Canadian Council of Agriculture. He believes in dealing with other men in a democratic manner.

Prof. Sisson stated that the children are the greatest asset of the Province. The Government had the humanity to see that the children were not penalised because of the parents being unable to support them. He also referred to the criticism of the Mothers' Allowance account being charged to extraordinary expenditure, and said it did not make any material difference to use whether charged to extraordinary or to ordinary account.

Every single man, except the Attorney-General, whom I respect, asserted the Professor, has known what it is to work day by day with his hands—what often governments of professional men do not know.

"I am quite convinced," said Prof. Sissons, "that the government has a surplus, and that the financial condition of the province is sound. He referred to the statement of an opponent that the Provincial Treasurer's books for receipts did not close till Nov. 15, and stated that seven times between 1911 and 1912 the books were not closed before Nov. 15."

Ferguson and the Shevlin-Clark deal were also made clear, the speaker declaring that Ferguson favored his friends at the expense of the province.

The government had been compelled to advance $71,00,000 to the Hydro, which was a sound investment, but there is such a thing as going too far. Sir Adam Beck asked $2,000,000 more to build radials. Two years ago the National Railways went behind $70,000,000 and last year $50,000,000 this is over $8 per capita and with motor traffic so attractive should more radials be asked for? Premier Drury asked delay, and Toronto and Hamilton, and even rural sections, have turned Back down. Sir Adam does nothing small. He draws $18,000 a year, and besides got $250 a day extra while working on a commission.

The establishment of a forest nursery and the abolition of the patronage system, were commenable acts of the late government. The speaker urged his hearers to support truthful, honest men, who do not nod at one and wink at another and abuse their opponents. Shall politics be a game in which professional tactics will be employed, or shall it be a calling to attract more gentlemanly men?

Mr. Drurys farm at Crown Hill is not a mudhole but one of the best farms in Ontario and has been in the possession of the family for four generations. Instead of having so many lawyers and professional men in charge of this province, let us have more men who will work with their hands.

The speaker closed by exhorting his hearers in the next few days not to listen to some unscrupulous things which are being said in this campaign, but to vote intelligently, knowing the records of Mr. Montgomery and Hon. Mr. Drury, Major Belford and Hon. Mr. Ferguson.

The feeting closed with the National anthem, after which three cheers were given for Mr. Montgomery and Mr. Drury.

Mr. L. G. Leggett, meter inspector of Belleville, was in town on Thursday in his official capacity.

Mr. C. H. Harris of Montreal, spent the week-end with his family here.

A large number of the friends of Miss Nellie Barnum, assembled last evening at the home of her father, Mr. Alfred Barnum, Seymour East, and presented her with a miscellaneous shower prior to her marriage, which takes place in the near future, to Mr. Ernest Sloggett of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sloggett of Campbellford. The evening was pleasantly spent in music, etc.

Miss Violet Naylor.

There passed away on Wednesday, June 20th, at the home of her brother, 627 Palmerston Blvd., Toronto, Miss Violet Naylor, daughter of Mrs. Naylor of Toronto, and the late Thomas Naylor of Campbellford.

The late Miss Naylor, who was in her 36th year, was born in Seymour township, on English Line, later coming with her parents to Campbellford, where she attended High school and where she was beloved by teachers and pupils for her loving disposition. She entered the John Hopkins', Baltimore, U. S., where she graduated as nurse and for a time after her graduation accepted a position in the hospital as surgical nurse. Se also held important positions in other hospitals and quite recently was superintendent of nurses in the Homewood Sanitarium, Guelph.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her mother and one brother, Robert W. Naylor, M.D., at whose home her death took place.

A funeral service was held on Thursday evening, the body being sent to Campbellford on Friday morning and the interment takes place this afternoon on the arrival of the 1.33 train, to English Line cemetery, where interment will take place, the service being conducted by Rev. C. F. McIntosh, pastor of St. Andrew's church, of which the deceased was a faithful member while resident in Campbellford. Universal sympathy is extended the family in the loss of a loving daughter and sister.

Miss Grace Gillespie, B.A., of the Norwood High School staff, is holidaying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Gillespie, Booth Street.

Calvin Gray arrives at Dallas and rents the most expensive suite in the most exclusive hotel. Because he is financially broke, Gray accepts a commission from a friend, who is vice president of the largest jewelry house in Dallas. He goes to Ranger and sells valuable diamonds to Gus Briskow, who has struck oil. Gray meets Ma Briskow, Allegheny, the daughter, and Ozark, the son. Gray falls in love with Barbara Parker, who buys land for Henry Nelson. He calls at Nelson's office and warns him that he means to smash him financially. Nelson defies Gray.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

"You know what I mean. You're not a Westerner. You are what a cowpuncher would call a swell Easterner."

Gray looked at his watch. "Even the good must lunch. Where shall we go?"

Barbara's brows drew together in a frown of consideration, and Gray told himself that she was even more charming when serious than when smiling. "Wherever we go, we'll be sorry we didn't go somewhere else. We might try the Professor's place. He's a Greek scholar—left his university to get rich in the oil fields, but failed. Then there is Ptomaine Tommy's. Cafes are good and bad by comparison. After you've been here a few days you'll enjoy Tommy's."

"Then I vote for his poison palace. The very name has a thrill to it."

On their way to the restaurant, Gray said: "Pa and Ma and Allie Briskow and the tutoress have gone to the mountains—Ma's beloved mountains—and they appear to be living up to her expectations. The mountains, I mean. The old dear writes me every week, and her letters are wonderful, even outside of the spelling. She hasn't lost a single illusion."

"And Allie has a tutor!"

"The best money could secure. And, by the way, you wouldn't have known the girl after you got through with her that day."

"There is a boy, too, isn't there?"

"Oh, Buddy! He's away at school. He'll make a hand, or—well, if he doesn't, I'll beat the foolishness out of him. I've assumed complete responsibility for Buddy, and he'll be a credit to me."

To wrest possession of a cafe table for two at the rush hour was an undertaking almost as hazardous as jumping a mining claim, but Calvin Gray succeeded and eventually he and "Bob" found themselves facing each other over a discolored tablecloth, reading a soiled menu card to a perspiring waiter.

"Just what are you doing and how do you do it?" Gray wanted to know.

Barbara was glad to tell him about her brief but eventful experience since that morning at the Nelson bank when she had executed her coup, and she recited the story with enthusiasm.

"Having no capital to go on," she explained, "I've merely bought and sold on commission so far, but I'm not always going to be a broker. I'm making good, and some day dad and I will be big operators. I've been able to buy a car, and most of my time I'm out in the field. They tell me I'm as good an oil scout as some of the men working for the big companies; but, of course I'm not. I merely have an advantage; drillers tell me more than they'd tell a man."

"But I'm not. I'm afraid of everything that other girls are afraid of." Leaning forward confidentially, the girl continued: "I'm a hollow sham, Mr. Gray, but dad doesn't know it. After I learned how badly he wanted me to be a boy, and how he had set his heart on teaching me the things he thought a son of his should know, I had a secret meeting with myself and I voted unanimously to fill the specifications if it killed me. I abhor guns, but I learned to shoot with either hand until—well, I'm pretty expert. And roping! I can build a loop, jump through it, do straight and fancy catches like a cowboy. Horses used to frighten me blue, but I learned to ride well enough." Barbara attempted a shy laugh, but there was a quaver to her voice.

For a moment Barbara's listener studied her thoughtfully, then he said: "I'm immensely flattered that you like me well enough to make me your confessor. Now then, I'm tremendously interested in what you have told me about yourself, and I'm sure you are a better oil man—oil girl—than you have led me to suppose. So, then, for a bargain. I am going to enter this field in a large way; if you will take me for a client, I will buy and sell through you whenever possible. Perhaps we can even speculate together now and then. I'll guarantee you against loss. What do you say?"

"Why—it's a splendid opportunity for me. And I know of some good things; I'm overflowing with information, in fact. For instance—" Barbara hurriedly produced her oil map and, shoving aside the dishes in front of her, she spread it upon the table. "There is a wildcat going down out here that looks awfully good."

Gray's head was close to the speaker's, but although he pretended to listen to her words and to follow the tracings of her finger with studious consideration, in reality his attention was fixed upon the tantalizing curve of her smooth cheek and throat.

"If you will come over to the office, I'll show you how I think that pool lies," Barbara was saying, and Gray came to with a start.

It was midafternoon when he left the Parker office—at least he thought it must be midafternoon until he consulted his watch and discovered that, to all intents and purposes, he had completely lost two hours. An amazing loss, truly. There was no lack of youthful vigor in Calvin Gray's movements at any time, but now there was an unusual lightness to his tread and his lips puckered into a joyous whistle. It had been a great day, a day of the widest extremes, a day of adventure and romance. And that is what every day should be.

CHAPTER XII
Four Against One

If Gray cherished any lingering doubts as to the loyalty of Mallow, erstwhile victim of his ruthlessness, or of McWade and Stoner, the wildcat promoters, those doubts vanished during the next day or two. As a matter of fact, the readiness, nay, the enthusiasm with which they fell in with his schemes convinced him that he had acted wisely in yielding to an impulse to trust them.

At their first council of war Gray gave each of them a number of definite things to do or to have done, the while he sought certain facts; when they assembled for a second time, it was to compare, to tabulate, and to consider an amount of information concerning the activities of Henry Nelson that would have greatly surprised that gentleman had he been present to hear it.

For some time longer the conspirators busied themselves over the details of their plans, and Gray was beginning to feel some satisfaction at his rate of progress when an interruption took the form of a call from a group of highly excited and indignant purchasers of stock in the Desert Scorpion Company, that promotion in which Professor Mallow had assisted on the morning of Gray's arrival.

They had been sold, victimized, flimflammed, skinned; the scorpion had stung them and the poison was boiling in their veins. Briefly, the swindle was this: investigation had shown that the land owned by the Desert Scorpion was not where it had been represented to be, but more than a mile distant therefrom. Chance alone had brought forth the truth; the hour of vengeance had struck.

Calvin Gray withdrew quietly from the hubbub and asked Mallow, "Can that be true?"

McWade and Stoner were not in the least dismayed by this amazing intelligence; as a matter of fact, the former assumed an air of even greater geniality than usual and nodded a careless agreement to every accusation hurled against him.

"Right you are, men! Absolutely right. We were victimized, but we're tickled to death to rectify the error. Mighty fortunate mistake, as a matter of fact. Brick, out with the old check book and give these birds back their money." With alacrity Mr. Stoner cleared off his desk and seated himself, pen in hand: "Step up and get a dollar a share—just what you paid. Fair enough, I calls it. The banks are open and the checks are good."

Imediately the repurchase of stock began, but anger and suspicion still smoldered; there were dissatisfied mutterings. One investor, a field man in greasy overalls, spoke out:

"We'll get ours, all right. Don't worry. But how about the other suckers? There's fifty thousand shares out. What are you going to do about that?"

"We'll pay a dollar and a half a share for all you can get, tomorrow."

There was a stir among the indignant speculators; the man for whom Stoner was writing a check inquired: "What's the idea? Why not a dollar and a half now?"

Stoner and McWade exchanged a meaning glance—it was not lost upon their attentive audience—but the latter shrugged and smiled provocatively. "That's our business," he declared, lightly. "You ghost dancers went your money back and we're giving it to you. You're letting up a holler that you were robbed, so come and get it. The faster you come the better it'll suit us. Scorpion stock will close at a dollar and a half or better tomorrow night."

"Bluff!" somebody growled.

Stoner finished his signature with a flourish, blotted it, then he hesitated. He flung down his pen and turned defiantly upon his partner, crying:

"This ain't fair to these men, Mac. They're customers of ours and we owe 'em the chance to make a killing. It's up to us to tell 'em the truth."

McWade was angry. His indignation flamed. Vigorously he denied the charge of unfairness. A spirited argument ensued.

LABOURED THREE HOURS ON MATTER OF EQUALIZATION

Reported to the County Council of Northumberland and Durham Addition to Equalization of Towns and Villages of 16 Per Cent.

COBOURG, June 22—The report of the equalization committee as finally adopted passed through the County Council sitting as a committee of the whole Wednesday afternoon without either debate or amendment. Reeve Wood of Millbrook, who presided, read the report which provided for an addition to the equalization of the towns and villages of 16 per cent on the increase shown in their assessed value since 1912.

The sub committee on equalization labored for nearly three hours Tuesday night before reaching a decision. The three members from the township at first stood out for and increase of 25 per cent as first suggested and the three reeves from the village and towns were just as firm for a 15 per cent increase. Finally the township reeves dropped to 20 per cent, but the final result was that a compromise rate of 16 per cent was agreed to. Tuesday morning this action was endorsed by the members of the entire equalization committee composed of all the reeves in the two counties.

What Increase Means.

The total amount thus added to the equalized values of the municipalities in Northumberland and Durham is $486,507, making a grand total of $29,655,841. There is no change in the equalization of any of the rural municipalities except in Brighton township where a reduction of $20,000 has been made because of the Government's taking over of Presque Isle Point for park purposes. The equalization of Colborne village has been reduced by $1180 as the assessment has shown a decrease since 1912. The increase in each case and the equalization of the municipalities affected as as follows:

	Equalization	Increase
Bowmanville	$1,064,051	$156,551
Cobourg	1,488,842	141,343
Port Hope	1,373,734	81,234
Campbellford	787,584	85,548
Brighton	471,464	27,464
Hastings	186,494	7,194
Millbrook	196,004	4,054
Newcastle	191,264	4,264

If the county rate this year is the same as for 1922 Campbellford, under the new schedule of equalization will pay an additional tax approximately $850, a trifle over half a mill on the town's assessed value. Hastings will pay $71 and Millbrook $40.

Fairs Asks Increase.

Alex Hume, president and F. Nelson Stone, secretary, of the Seymour Agricultural Society, ex-warden Henderson and J. N. Molsill, clerk of Millbrook, representing the Fair board of that village and vice-president George Poole and Directors Wilbert S. Nelson, Robert Honey, C .H. Curtis and Secretary James Armstrong of the Warkworth Fair, appeared before the council at Wednesday afternoon's session to ask that the usual grant of $1000 made in a lump sum to all the fairs in the two counties—12 in number—be increased to $2000.

Secretary Stone, who was chairman of the delegation, introduced the speakers. Mr. Stone was four years a member of the Council as deputy-reeve from Campbellford. He stated that while only three of the 12 fairs were represented on the delegation, communication had been had with the others and with the single exception of Bowmanville all had joined in the request for an increased grant.

The case of the delegation was ably presented by Messrs. McGill, Curtis, Hume and Henderson, who explained that on account of increased expenses the various Fair boards were finding it difficult to carry on. Mr. Curtis said that the grant of $1000, made years ago, remained stationery, while the value of the dollar had gone down and everything else in the way of outlay had risen.

Mr. Hume, who was warden in 1914 could not recognize among the members more than three who sat with him in that year. One of these was Reeve Foulds of Hastings. Mr. Henderson, one of the delegation, went into the council in 1914 and in 1919 was warden.

The delegation was given an attentive hearing and Warden Smith complimented the speaker on the clear and forceful arguments presented. Their request was referred to the committee on agricultural on motion of Reeve McColl of Brighton township.

Grant For Bridge Lights.

Reeve Anderson applied for the usual grant of $30 for lightning the Campbellford bridge and this was referred to the committee on roads and bridges.

After the transaction of the usual routine business the Council adjourned until 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon. There is considerable work to do by committee in the meantime.

WOULDN'T LEAVE MOTHER.

NEW YORK, (United Press).—Rather than part with her mother, Margit Treis, exempt from the immigration quota as a dancer and artist, accepted deportation and returned to Brazil. The mother, an Hungarian, was barred because of the quota restrictions, so both have returned to South America.

Time is contrary. When you want it to hesitate it speeds and when you want it to speed it stops.

Unsolved Mysteries

THE DEATH OF QUEEN DRAGA

Late in the evening of June 10, 1903, a dozen men were seated around the table in a tavern in the roughest section of Belgrade. At one end of the table sat Nicholai Mashin, colonel of the 6th Serbian Regt. At the other was Lieutenant Colonel Niglitch, while at the center of the table, so played that he could address all of the conspiritors with ease, was Basilovitch Semkoff, who had the unenviable reputation of being the cleverest and most unscrupulous of Russian agent s in the Balkans.

Just what transpired in that room at the Inn of the Black Dog has never been made public, but it appears certain that right there was hatched the plot which was to have such tragic consequences shortly after midnight on June 11.

At this time the balance of power in Europe had undergone a sudden change. Russia was being eyed with suspicion by Germany and in the unrest which was manifesting itself in the Balkans the White Bear of the North saw her opportunity to extend her influence, particularly since Alexander I. of Serbia was becoming very unpopular in his own country and the indiscretions of Queen Draga were not aiding in the quelling of the storm. In addition, Alexander had recently showed a disposition to treat with Austria and Russia, in order to protect what she hoped would be her interests in the Balkans, was preparing to step in at the first favorable opportunity.

Shortly after midnight some 2,000 soldiers, under the leadership of the majority of the men had gathered at the Black Dog, moved forward toward the royal palace, surprised the watch and before effective opposition could be offered swept through the halls toward the apartment where Alexander and Queen Draga were asleep. With drawn swords and revolvers that were ready to deal instant death, Mashin and his men crashed through the door which led to the inner chambers of the King and Queen. Draga, clad only in the flimsiest of nightrobes, fled to an inner room. Alexander, amazed at the unexpected onslaught, strode toward Mashine and demanded the reason for the outbreak. Some one in the mob fired, wounding the King in the cheek, and the sight of blood acted upon the conspirators like it would upon a pack of hungry wolves. A moment later they swept on, leaving behind them the mangled and bleeding corpse of him who had been Alexander I.

The door of the antechamber where Queen Draga had taken refuge was then shattered in and the helpless woman slaughtered, both bodies then being thrown out into the courtyard, where they remained until given a decent burial by some of the faithful retainers. With the passing of Alexander I. Russian influence in Serbia became all-powerful; but it is only by reading between the lines that an explanation may be secured to the mystery of the double assassination.

MOONSHINERS QUIT.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—(United Press).—The old moonshiner has given up in disgust.

Refusing to compete with the modern bootlegger, who manufactures "poison booze," the moonshiner in the mountains of the south has taken to farming, reports to Prohibition Commissioner Haynes show.

It was partly a matter of principle with the moonshiner and partly a matter of money. His personal safety had nothing to do with it.

"Ninety per cent of the moonshiners have gone out of business," said a report to Haynes from one of his Tennessee agents. "They have turned to farming instead."

The moonshiner, long a picturesque figure of the south, and the sworn enemy of all "revenooers" did not surrender to the law He was driven out of business because he refused to compete with the makers of "poison booze."

"Moonshiners," the dry agents report continued, "were ignorant folk, but they were respectable, according to their own view of things. Their code would not permit them to make impure or harmful liquor. When the bootlegger with his synthetic rum began to flood the place with bad booze, the moonshiner just quit."

Now the moonshining in the south is done by the lowest elements of the population, willing to sink to the levels set by the professional bootleggers, to whom human life means nothing beside profits, according to the revenue agents.

In one military cemetery on the Western Front lie 2,192 men whom it was impossible to identify, to 1,156 whose names are known.

LAKEFIELD VILLAGE AND THE DISTRICT

LAKEFIELD, June 22.—Rev. P. B. Grobb gave his justly celebrated illustrated lecture on the Passion Play before a large audience in the Queen street theatre on Tuesday evening.

This play which originated in the 17the century in Oberammergan as the result of a vow made by some devout persons to God that if He spared the m from the plague which was raging in Europe at that time, that they would perform once in ten years the Passion of our Lord. They have faithfully kept their vow and every ten years this little village in the Bavarian Mountains enacts the world's great tragedy with the utmost reverence and how the play has become famous and thousands visit it. The spirit of the play dominates the village and it is a great honor to be allowed to take part and the great ambition of the children of the village is that sometime they may be deemed worthy of a part. There is no make up used in the play everything must be genuine. Before going to take part in the performance the players go first to mass and receive the communion; they are all devout Roman Catholics. Visitors to the village are billeted in the village homes and have as opportunity of seeing the characters in their simple home life. Auton Lang played for the third time last year the part of Christ, he will be too old to play it when the play is next given and the great honour will pass to someone else. The young girl, who played the part of the Blessed Virgin was chosen from among twenty-five applicants and was in appearance very like the Madonnas so many of the old masters loved to paint. Judas Iscarciot was the finest actor in the play and his conception of the part was marvellous.

The play opens on Palm Sunday with the triumphant entry into Jerusalem and the climax, of course, is reached with the Crucifxion. The play is interspersed with tableaux of Old Testament scenes foreshadowing or typifying the world's redemption.

The scenes were all actual photographs and were colored and very clear. Mr. Grobb's description of the play brought it home and made it seem as if those present were among the thousands in that theatre in Oberammergan.

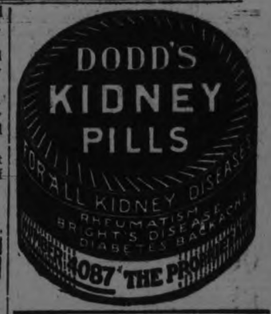
UTILIZE JAPANESE TIDES.

KOBE, Japan, June 22.—(Associated Press)—Dr. Okada, of the Kobe Marine Observatory, believes there are great possibilities in the utilization of the rushing tides of the Inland Sea for commercial purposes, and has asked the government to establish a tide station here.

The complicated conformations of the land cause strange irregularities in the tides about the coats of Japan, and these Dr. Okada says never have been thoroughly investigated.



SAVE NORTHERN BABIES.

CHICAGO, June 22.—(Associated Press)—The Grenfell mission in Labrador needs goats to supply milk to preserve infant life, and the herds of some Chicago millionaires are being assessed to meet the demand. Mr. James A. Patten and Charles A. Stevens are among those who have contributed pure bred animals

It has been said that the lives of 500,000 babies could be saved annually in the United States if the infants could have goats' milk, which comes nearest to mothers' milk. Goats' milk sells at about 40 cents a quart, an deven at this price it is hard to get.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

The "Why" of Constipation.

Of all the universal ailments that attack infants and children constipation heads the list. Almost every other letter I receive goes this way. "My baby is well, healthy, gaining nicely, but—he is constipated." The reason that constipation is so hard to cure is that there are so many causes for it, in the first place, and once it has become a habit you must both eradicate the cause and break up the habit of nonbowel activity. Not an easy task.

A child may be constipated because it is getting so very little to eat that there is practically no residue in the bowels. Sometimes this kind of a child will have a natural movement every other day, but cannot seem to have one every day.

The child may be getting a diet so rich in fats that instead of acting as a lubricant to the bowel tract as it might otherwise it forms with the contents of the intestinal tract a kind of soap. These movements are very, very hard and have in them tiny particles which look like pieces of soap.

Sometimes in children who are very weak when born the muscles of the rectum are also weak and incapable of moving along the contents of the instestines. The opening of the rectum may be too small. These, of course, are congenital defects, but in seeking for a cause of obstinate constipation they must be taken into account.

The giving of repeated doses of castor oil is one very certain way of prolonging constipation. The intestines are kept so emptied by this constant purging that there is no chance ot have sufficeint bulk to stimulate a natural movement.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills
The Great Liver Regulators

The duty of the liver is to prepare and secret bile and serve as a filter to the blood, cleansing it of all impurities and poisons.

Therefore when the liver is inactive and failing to secrete bile in sufficient quantity constipation and other liver troubles soon follow.

Mrs. H. D. Hutchinson, Peterborough, Ont., writes:—"I have been using your Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and they have done me a lot of good.

My liver bothered me a great deal; I was drowsy and tired all the time and didn't feel like doing anything, let alone my housework, I tried everything, but your Pills seemed to do the work for bet.. than anything I had ever taken."

PEARL VALUED AT $60,000.

SYDNEY, N.S., W., June 22.—(Associated Press)—The discovery at Broome of a pearl of 102 grains, a double-button shape, is reported by the chief pearling inspector of West Australia.

The pearl, which is valued at $60,000 surpasses the famous "Star of the West" which weighed 101 grains and was valued at $50,000.

AUSTRIA SENDS EMISSARY.

VIENNA, June 22.—(Associated Press)—Capt. Joseph Einsle, formerly of the Austrian navy, accompanied by two friends, will attempt to cross the Atlantic in June from Hamburg to New York in a sailing yacht 46 feet long. The three men built the boat themselves on Lake Constance, the cost being defrayed by public subscription.

On arrival in America Capt. Einsle intends to give a series of lectures on Austria as a tourist country.

REPAIR BRIDGE AT LAKEFIELD

County Council Decides Against Project of Rebuilding — Deputation Day.

Deputations punctuated Thursday's session of the County Council, which was taken up for the most part by the Committee on Roads and Bridges, with Reeve Coughlin presiding.

E. P. Cuffe, J. F. Elliott, and H. Webster, of Norwood, asked for a grant of $950.00 toward the maintenance of the Fourth Form in the Norwood High School. Their request was for a continuance of the financial assistance received from the county last year for the advanced work in the High School.

James T. C. Lang and Fred Holmes, representing the Peterborough Poultry Association, also appealed to the county for an unstated amount to help them in their effort to improve the standard of poultry in this district.

Adjutant Smith, Sergeant-Major R. C. Braund, and Frank Dobbin appealed in behalf of the Salvation Army's maternity home, and urged that the county's grant be increased to $1,000.

These petitions, together with the representations of the Peterborough Exhibition Board for $2,000, were referred to the Finance Committee.

Shirt-sleeved Session.

Hotter than a hay field was the Council Chamber, and the members sweltered in their shirt sleeves. The proposed rebuilding of the Lakefield bridge was fully discussed, and the project was reduced to a repair job, which, it was felt, would meet all the requirements of traffic.

The cost of the work was estimated at $3,800, including a new floor. The eye-bars will be bored for larger pins.

Considerable time was devoted to the problem of the Chemong bridge, and it was finally decided to request the Highways Department of the Province to make an inspection and survey of the locality with a view to determining the site and rebuilding. It was suggested that a new bridge might be constructed about one-third of a mile south of the present structure where the span would be shortened by one-quarter of a mile and the cost proportionally lessened.

Build Hynes Bridge.

Hynes bridge in Douro will be rebuilt according to the recommendation of the Committee. It is on the road from Lakefield to Keene and from Lakefield to Norwood. Its thirty-five-foot span will cost approximately $2,500. Plans have been prepared or this work, which will be commenced in July or early in August.

The Committee aproved the expenditure of $250.00 on the Bobcaygeon Road or Cheetham's Halls by Reeve Parker of Harvey in compliance with the provisions of Victoria County and the townships of Harvey and Verulam.

Smith Township received a grant of $50.00 to improve the road through the House of Refuge lot

Reeve Rye and Deputy-Reeve Lillico of North Monaghan were given power to act with representatives of Northumberland and Durham in the matter of Whitfield's bridge.

Warden Clark and Reeves Coughlin, Eason, and Darling were appointed to supervise the building of Hynes Bridge.

Trout Creek Bridge in Asphodel was assumed as a county bridge, and a committee composed of the Warden and Reeves Coughlin, John Scott, and Easton, was authorised to have this bridge rebuilt.

The requirements of the Benafort Bridge were left in the hands of Reeve Eason of Otonabee and Deputy-Reeve Anderson was instructed to telephone the representative of South Monaghan in regard to it

Reeve Duncan Brown was authorised to respond to the Colonisation Road Inspector in having the Perry Creek Bridge temporarily repaired.

Chairman's Report.

Your chairman, accompanied by the Warden and other representatives, inspected the following bridges:

Depot Bridge—In anticipation of the Government taking action at that time, we deferred action.

Nassau Bridge — The Reeves of Smith and Douro were authorised to have necessary repairs made.

Hynes Bridge-Your representatives decided that it would not be good business to defer action with regard to this bridge owing to its condition and the amount of traffic it carried, and decided to build a new permanent bridge.

Boland's Bridge — Due to the limited traffic this bridge is taking care of and the fairly good condition of the timber, your representatives authorised Messrs. Scott and Montgomery to have it substantially repaired.

Deer River Boundary Bridges (Hastings and Peterborough)—Your representatives, after conferring with representatives of Hastings County, beg to report that authority was given for the replacing of the present abutments with substantial cedar structure as abutments, there being steel superstructure in good repair.

Warden Clark, after ascertaining that the boundary bridges between Haliburton and Peterborough were past repairing, requested your chairman to have representatives from this county meet the Haliburton Committee, and the result is that the Reeves of Snowden and Galway Townships were authorised to rebuild two substantial cedar bridges capable of taking care of considerable traffic.

In passing, other bridges were noted and a fair idea of the condition of the same was obtained, but no immediate repairs are required.

M. P. Coughlin, Chairman.

The Last Day for the Blind Workers' Demonstration

People marvel at the speed and accuracy of the blind operator who is demonstrating on our Main Floor, and the possibility of one so handicapped being able to be self-supporting. She is totally blind, yet operates a sewing machine driven by motor with great efficiency, making up attractive dresses and aprons. Several numbers of these articles made by the blind are on sale at special prices near the demonstration.

"WOLF OF MOSCOW" WAS EXECUTED

Ivan Komarov and His Wife Were Convicted of Murdering Thirty-Three Persons.

MOSCOW, June 22. — (Canadian Press).—Ivan Komarov, known as "The Wolf of Moscow," convicted of murdering 33 persons since 1921, and his wife, were executed Monday night by a firing squad.

Throughout his trial Komarov had affected bravado, but after his conviction he endeavored in every way to save his life. First, he appealed for a new trial, and when this was denied, he pleaded with the Government for clemency. The man showed surprising knowledge of the technicalities of the Criminal Code. He contended that he had been wrongly convicted, and also that the law provided for only a sentence of ten years' imprisonment, instead of death.

Komarov made a special plea for clemency for his wife. The Central Executive Committee, however, declined to change the sentence, and Komarov and his wife were put to death.

Komarov was a former Moscow Cabinet officer. He was arrested last month on a charge of having murdered 33 persons, twenty-two of the bodies of whom were found in the cellar of his house tied in sacks. When arrested he made an escape and jumped from a window and was at large for a while. Later he was taken into custody while writing a confession of his crimes. The confession involved his wife and other persons. He said all the victims were killed while attending tea parties in his home, where they had been invited for the purpose of robbery.

WARNING ISSUED TO MINE WORKERS

Attempts to Create Discord in the Ranks of the United Mine Workers of America.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 22.—(Canadian Press). — Warnings to members of the United Mine Workers of America and other trade unions in the organized labor movement against giving aid or comfort in any form to the promoters of the "Progressive International Committee of the United Mine Workers of America," was contained in a statement issued here yesterday by the International Executive Board of the United Mine Workers of America which has been considering the movement.

"The International Executive Board views with great concern," says the statement, "the activities of certain sinister individuals, who, in various sections and under divers circumstances, are obviously attempting to create discord and confusion within the U.M.W. These individuals, many of whom are without trade union standing, seem to derive their energy from the general source and are apparently actuated by similar motives."

The statement reviews the "temporary existence" of the "working class union," in the south-western coal fields; of the "One Big Union," in the western provinces of Canada; of the "Industrial Workers of the World," and of the "Red Trade Union International of Moscow."

ETNA SUBSIDING.

ROME, June 22. — (Canadian Press). — The fury of Mount Etna seemed to be diminishing last night, and messages of hope are pouring in from Sicily. The flow of lava, which became slower during the day, is now almost stopped, although the volcano is still belching forth smoke, cinders and dust.

MAGICAL BEAUTIFIERS FOR WOMEN

Women everywhere are trying all kinds of beautifiers, only to find that their effects are transitory. The first requisite of beauty is health. Without it the steps lag, eyes are lusterless, dark circles appear beneath them, the complexion becomes sallow, and almost invariably the underlying cause is some ailment peculiar to women. There is a very inexpensive remedy for this condition in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for nearly fifty years has been relieving women from some of the worst forms of female ills. Why not let it restore you to health and beauty and the joys of living?

PENSION CHECKS.

WASHINGTON, June 22. — (United Press)—One of the biggest business operations the government has to perform every month is making out, signing and mailing 549,066 checks nvolving an expenditure of $20,660,018.

These are pension checks, and it is a point of pride with the Pension Bureau to get every check to its recipient promptly on the 4th of every month. Special arrangements with the post office department insure this.

The pensions go not only to soldiers and sailors and their widows and dependents, but to retired civil employees of the government.

The checks are printed in sheets of five, and after they have been filled in with the name sand amounts, are carefully checked over for errors. They then go to a force of clerks, who sign them. The signatures of all these clerks are on file in the Treasury.

Each clerk signs ten checks at once. This is done by using the "ten-pen signagraph," an apparatus which repeats the signature, exactly as written, on ten checks at once.

From there the checks go into an electric cutting machine which clips them apart, and after that they are sealed up and mailed.

Strike Has Closed Eight German Plants.

BRANDENBURG, June 22. — (Canadian Press).—Eight of Brandenburg's leading factories, employing 11,000 men, have been closed in consequence of the extension of the strike of metal workers, begun last week. A bicycle works, spinning mill and docks and foundries have been affected by the movement.

The strikers, by a small majority, rejected the conditions submitted to them by the Manufacturers' Association for a resumption of work, and the association now declines to resume negotiations with the men.

Simple Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this, get two ounces of peroxine powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The peroxine powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

GERMANY MAKES IT HOT FOR THE GREEDY

Police, Courts and Price-Fixing Commission Work Together to Prevent Exploitation of the Public.

By CARL D. GROAT

BERLIN, June 22 (United Press).—With all the thoroughness of "German organization talent," the Teuton government is waging, with a veritable police army, a sharp battle against profiteers.

The police, the courts, and expert price-fixing commissions are locked together into an organization that is making life miserable for the greedy. Woe unto th shopkeeper who charges too much for his sugar, his butter, and his meat! Woe likewise to the coal dealer who holds back his supplies in the hope of higher prices.

The shopkeeper and the coal dealer, the big meat dealer at the central cattle market and the little trader at the open-air markets can be—and are—fined for their delinquencies, or, as it sometimes happens, they go to jail and have their places closed for three months after they emerge.

The "Wucher" police group is an outgrowth of the tremendous profiteering which, arising during the war, has now become an almost general evil. In the first place, there is a price-fixing commission—the "Preispruefungsstelle"—composed of merchants, manufacturers and representatives of the public. This commission takes into consideration prices paid originally, the overhead costs, the devaluation of the mark between the time of purchase and sale, and then establishes what percentage of profit may properly be taken for each branch.

Once this profit is set, the Wucher police task is mapped. They "go get" profiteers, turn them to the courts and the courts fine or imprison offenders.

LAWYER'S DREAM BRINGS ROTARY TO 26 COUNTRIES.

Chicagoan Unfolded a Vision of a Happier World Which Proved the Origin of Rotary.

ST. LOUIS, June 22.—A Chicago lawyer, with humanitarian impulses, called three of his friends into conference with him at his office one wintry night.

Before them he unfolded a vision that haunted him night and day—a vision of a happier and better world.

People, he told them, needed some doctrine of service making dynamic the static, ethical principle of the Golden Rule.

Why not help him draft such a philosophy? Why not pledge themselves to abide by it in their different walks of life?

Would they help him? They did.

One of the three was a coal dealer, another a mining operator, and the third, a merchant tailor.

That was 18 years ago—Feb. 23, 1905. The men went out and interested others in their creed.

And that was the beginning of Rotary.

Idea Spreads

They called it "Rotary" because in those early days members met in rotation in their offices and shops.

Three years later the idea spread to San Francisco. Then the germ descended in other parts of the country. The "National Association" was formed in 1910.

And today it's Rotary International. It's the organization with which all Rotary clubs throughout the world are affiliated. It's an organization of 1420 subsidiary clubs, with approximately 90,000 members in 26 countries.

Delegates from all these nations are gathering in Louis for their annual world m[illegible] ne 18-22. From all parts of [illegible] they're coming.

The lawyer-founder of Rotary is Paul P. Harris, president emeritus of Rotary International. Born in Vermont, he went west after leaving Princeton University. He was admitted to the bar in Iowa in 1891. But he wasn't ready to start practice then.

For five years he worked nearly all over the world. He was a reporter on daily papers in San Francisco and Denver, and rode the range in the cow country. Then he picked oranges in southern Louisiana, sold marble and granite, crossed the Atlantic twice on cattle ships and made a third trip to Europe later.

In 1896 he hung out his shingle in Chicago. He had neither relatives nor friends there. But he considered Chicago the city of destiny—the city wherein many social and industrial problems could be solved.

Many Speakers

Harris will be the leading light at the convention.

Other conspicuous figures will include Raymond M. Havens, Kansas City Mo., retiring president, Rotary International; Frank Eastman, Perth, Scotland, president Rotary International Association for Great Britain and Ireland; Chesley R. Perry, Chicago secretary of Rotary International; Anton Verkade, president, Rotary Club, Amsterdam, Holland; —— Patterson Dayton, O., vice-president, Rotary International, and former Premier Arthur Meighen of Canada.

Broadening the scope of its boys work will be one of the most important questions Rotary will face at this year's sessions.

The Rotarians, since entering this field have erected gymnasiums and clubhouses for the youths of many cities, sponsored Boy Scout troops looked after the newsies' interests and labored among the luckless lads hailed before the juvenile courts.

DEATH OBLIGED HIM

GENEVA (United Press).—Summing up a statement before a court in which he was charged with murdering his wife in order to obtain insurance money, a man named Strumer shouted, "May Almighty God strike me dead if I am guilty."

Strumer immediately fell dead. Death was due to "cerebral agitation."

N.Y. DECLARES WAR ON CARELESS PICNIC PARTIES

NEW YORK (United Press).—New York has declared war on those of its citizenry who picnic in the public parks on Sundays and depart without the formality on cleaning away newspapers, tin cans, pickle bottles, food fragments and miscellaneous litter so dear to the Sunday picnickers.

Park officials had complained to the police department that two or three days were sometimes required to clean up after Sabbath festivals in Central and Bronx Parks. Special squads of bluecoats were thereupon assigned to patrol the city parks on Sunday and on the first day, 300 summonses were served, ninety-five per cent being charged with throwing rubbish on the lawns, the remainder for violating park ordinances, such as trespassing on forbidden park property.

COOKING MADE EASY

By BERTHA E. SHAPLEIGH

June, the month of joy for brides and sweet girl graduates, may end in days of gloom and disappointment for the same sweet brides and graduates—if they fail in the important art of preparing dainty wedding breakfasts or luncheons. It is one of the stringent tests friends put on the young housewife, and one for which every girl should prepare herself.

There will be many young housekeepers who will have to do all the planning and cooking alone, or with little help. For these, I would suggest a simple menu which can be perfect in its way and yet not too tiring for the one who prepares the food.

For example, the following:

Breakfast

Fresh Pineapple and Strawberries or Strawberries
Fresh Salmon Croquettes with Green Peas
or
Chicken Croquettes with Asparagus
Hot Rolls
Spanish Cream Angel Cakes
Coffee

The pineapple should be cut up into sections, leaving on the skin. Alternate these sections with large, ripe strawberries, having the hulls left on, around a mound of powdered sugar. Some green leaves, such as laurel, are attractive for garnish. With the asparagus, if served, have a Hollandaise sauce, which is made by cooking over water egg yolks and butter with lemon juice, using one-half cup of butter, two egg yolks and one tablespoon lemon juice. Cook until smooth and thick. Or melted butter, with lemon juice and salt, is just as good, but not so attractive as the thick yellow sauce.

Bridemaids' Luncheon

(Color scheme: Pink and green)
Cream of Pea Soup
Bread Sticks Olives Radishes Rolled Fillets of Halibut with Lobster or Shrimp Sauce
Broiled Chicken
Savory Rice Croquettes
Buttered Asparagus
Pistachio Ice Cream
with Crushed Strawberries Small Cakes Frosted with Pink Frosting
Coffee (small cup, black)

Another selection for a bridemaids' luncheon may be the following:

Chicken Bouillon (in cups, with a little whipped cream on top)
Assorted Cold Meat
Creamed Potatoes au Gratin
Hot Rolls or Biscuits
Strawberry Ice Cream
Small Cakes Coffee

For the assorted cuts of meat have chicken. The water in which the chicken is cooked will give the bouillon. Strain it through double cheesecloth and have it well seasoned. With the chicken, ham and tongue make a good combination.

Gloves Again

In Paris gloves have returned to favor and are worn for practically all occasions. It is interesting to notice that nearly all the gloves are of short length and make no attempt to cover the space between the wrist and shoulder.

Chiffon Negligee

A chiffon negligee on very simple lines pins its whole claim to distinction on a lace bertha which is very wide over the shoulders and follows the line of the center opening to the feet, shading in width until at the hem it becomes very narrow.

SUFFERS FROM WAR SHE DIDN'T START.

And Heavy Reparations Demand Would Prove Downfall of Hungary.

BUDAPEST, June 22.—So dollicately balanced is the situation in Hungary today that a heavy reparations demand would topple her over and those making the claims would lose everything.

This must be taken as it stands, for in which direction she would topple, I, nor anyone else, could say with any degree of certainty.

But this much is certain: Were a large reparations amount fixed upon, and—upon Hungary's failure to meet it—an Hungarian "Ruhr" would be attempted, the occupying power, or powers would reap only trouble as their unique reward.

Two facts are quite ample to back up these statements.

Fact No. 1 is, the people feel they have already more than paid for their share in the war and this feeling runs pretty deep in every Hungarian.

Fact No. 2 is, Hungary can't see her way out of the woods without any reparations to face. Her population are lacking in confidence and at the first "boo!" in the shape of a large reparations demand, things would begin to happen.

Disclaim Responsibility

Hungarians as a people claim they did not favor the war which Germany brought on. In all discussions of "Who was responsible" for the war, Hungarians insist they, at least, were not.

They do not say this in a spirit of begging off. To the contrary. They admit they came into the war and did their bit, once the war was on. But, they add, they have already paid the limit for their share in what took place.

They lost their mines, railways, territory which had been theirs for a thousand years, cattle, coal, ships on the Danube and so on. They lost so much, they point out, that what is left is going to have a hard time to keep from collapsing. If more is demanded the jig will be up for Hungary, that's all. That is what they say.

Must Get A'd

In the case of Austria, facing a similar situation, the powers decid3d to release her for an indefinite term of years, to be determined later, from any and all claims against her. Then, instead of pressing her to the wall, the powers lent her money to ride her over the first critical months. They are now, through the League of Nations, co-operating with her in carrying out money-saving reforms which, in two years, it is calculated, will again put her on her feet.

Some such plan as this, modified to suit the particular and peculiar needs of the Hungarian—for the Magyar is temperamentally different from the Austrian—seems imperative to many foreigners here.

Austria was saved "for the general welfare," so it was said. Hungary, even harder hit by the war than Austria, if such a thing be possible, right now needs sympathetic assistance for that same and highly important reason.

AUSTRALIA IS GROWING

MELBOURNE (By mail to United Press).—The population of Australia increased 124,323 during the year 1922, according to figures just issued by the commonwealth statistician. The population on December 31, 1922, totaled 5,510,229.

This increase was made up of an excess of births over deaths to the extent of 86,185 and a gain by immigration of 38,138. The population increase represents 2.26 per cent per year.

The infant mortality rate in 1922 was the lowest on record, being 53 per 1,000 births, as compared with 66 in 1921 and 69 in 1920.

CITY OF VLADIVOSTOK IS INVADED BY SPIES

TOKIO, June 22. —(United Press.)— More than two thousand spies are employed by the Bolshevik Commissares in the City of Vladivostock, according to Japanese officials who returned from the Russian port.

Any person showing signs of anti-Bolshevik tendencies, is spied upon and there are now more than 100 Russians and scores of Chinese and Koreans in jails there.

Three Japanese are also imprisoned, a fourth being electrocuted.

Research Workers Differ With Dr. Nolan.

PITTSBURGH, June 22—(Associated Press).—Scientists of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research of the University of Pittsburgh do not agree with Dr. William P. Nolan, of Jeannette, Pa., that inhalation of pure carbon and calcium is beneficial in the treatment of tuberculosis, as declared by Dr. Nolan in a paper before the Westmoreland Medical Society recently. In his paper Dr. Nolan referred to assistance given him by fellows of the Institute.

In a statement the university authorities sought to "correct the entirely erroneous idea that any medical faculty members have been responsible in part for the treatment announced by Dr. Nolan," and, referring to the Institute's "smoke survey" of 1912, continued:

"The results of these researches indicated that tuberculosis was less likely to spread in a lung affected by the continued inhalation of smoke than in that of a normal individual, but that pneumonia was likely to be more dangerous in such a lung. The general belief at present is that coal dust does not make tuberculosis more likely, but that marble dust does make it more likely to develop.

"Most of the people living in Pittsburgh have fairly large deposits of carbon dust in their lungs, and Pittsburgh has a low death rate from tuberculosis and a high one from pneumonia.

"A number of inquiries made elsewhere have demonstrated that dust, and especially mineral dust, may irritate lungs, convey tuberculosis germs, and make pre-existing tuberculosis worse through irritation. Medical authorities are united in the opinion that marble and limestone (calcium carbonate) dusts tend to produce fibroid phthisis, if inhaled for long periods of time."

RAT POISON ROUTE.

By CLARENCE DUBOSE

TOKYO (By mail to the United Press).—A vast fortune in Japan awaits the genius who can invent a rat poison that will bump off the rodents, but upon which human beings can thrive and wax fat.

The Japanese, who are strong for suicide, have been going the rat-poison route to an astonishing extent this year.

The authorities have become greatly alarmed. They cannot prohibit the sale of rat-poison, for if they do rats will capture the country. And, at the same time, they must do something to check the tremendous and fatal vogue of rat poison as human food.

Poison is for sale at almost every corner shop in Japan. Fire-arms are not for sale anywhere. Nobody "carries a gun" in Japan—not even the cops. Hara-kiri, or disemboweling, and jumping into the moat, the ancient form of suicide, seem to have fallen into disfavor. Poison is the mode.

.500,000 FOR CHARITY

DETROIT, Mich. (United Press).—Philanthropic activities by the Maccabees will be put on a national basis by the amalgamation just effected of the two philanthropic branches of the fraternal society, the Maccabees home and relief association and the Pennsylvania Maccabees home association, according to an announcement of D. P. Markey, supreme commander. "The merger of the two branches," said Markey, "will give the society a combined fund of $500,000 for philanthropic work. The work of assisting the needy in their homes will be continued, but the Chatham home will be nationalized and will care for poor and aged members from all states and their widows and orphans."

RECIPES

By BERTHA E. SHAPLEIGH

"Can she make a cherry pie!" That's the query and exclamation of housewives and husbands when it comes to one of America's national desserts. And now is just the time when it is heard most.

Here's a good recipe for cherry pie that should bring forth only exclamations of delight from those who taste it.

Make a good pie paste, roll to one-fourth inch in thickness and cover the plate, leaving a half-inch of the paste extend beyond the edge of the plate. Pit one pound cherries, add one and one-half cups sugar mixed with one tablespoon flour and one-eighth teaspoon salt, and fill the pastry-lined plate.

Turn the edges of the paste over the fruit, cover with paste exactly the size of the plate, press edges firmly together and bake 40 minutes in an oven that is hot at first, then cooler so that the pie may not be too brown but the cherries well cooked.

Want Ad Tips by John T. Bartlett

ONE BIG WANT AD., OR SEVERAL SMALL ONES?

Getting ready to write their want ad., a question readers sometimes put to themselves is:

"There are two courses open to me. I can get up a big want ad., and run it just once. Or I can take the same money, and run a small want ad. several times. I wonder which way would get the best results?"

Not only want advertisers, but manufacturers, merchants and other heavy display advertisers, have been confronted with this same question for many years. Experience is conclusive concerning the answer. In a great majority of cases, it is much better to spend a given sum of money on several small want ads. than the same amount on a large one. This is not theory, but fact.

If we study the situation a little, we see why this should be true. The series of want ads. will get the offering before more people than the large want ad. Instead of a single chance that each reader will see your message, you have several chances. The greater number of people who will see your offering will offset the larger size of the single insertion.

There is still another argument for the series-of-insertion plan. The force of the single small want ad. is not so great as the force of the single large want ad. That is obvious. However, the small want ad. will get results through repetition. You are advertising, perhaps, that you decorate rooms, and do the work on very reasonable terms. Mrs. Simmons reads your little ad. today, is favorably impressed, but doesn't get to the "action" point. She will probably neglect to preserve your want ad. and forget your 'phone number—unless a day or two later she happens on your message again. This time she tears it out and 'phones you.

A certain percentage of people respond to a want ad. the first time they see it. Some don't. Several insertions of an ad. gets replies from both kinds.

The small want ad. for several insertions should be large enough to give the important points of your offering. Otherwise, the big single want ad. is much the better.

TRY YOUR COPY "ON THE DOG"

"When I've written a want ad.," remarked the old advertiser, with brusque epigram making an excellent suggestion, "I always try it first 'on the dog.' "

"The dog," was this man's way of referring to himself. He read over, he meant, his want ad., and put to himself these several questions. How would the want ad. strike him if someone else should insert it and he, an average reader, should see it? Would he be interested? Would the article offered look worthy of investigation? Would the appeal be so strong that, did he need the advertised thing, he would hasten to inquire further?

As a result of his "dog" test, sometimes he struck out words, put in others. Perhaps he lengthened the message. Perhaps he put a headline in it.

This advertiser knows how beneficial is "trying want ads. on the dog." Since he adopted the practice, he has averaged much better advertising returns.

Besides using this hint, another excellent idea is to invoke the aid of several friendly critics. The want ad. originating within the home usually gains strength if the writer of it, having first tried it on himself, submits it to other members of the family. How does it sound to different ones? Is there anything lacking? How would they make it stronger?

Finally, if you have any doubt about your written want ad., try it on the folks at the want ad. counter. If they see opportunities for improvement, they will be glad to help you.

Kept It Working.

The story was related at the office of the Trent Canal here how when the Lift Lock was first opened an enterprising citizen set up a business with no other capital or machinery than a motor launch.

He took passengers aboard below the Lock ,and for a fee of 50 cents from each passenger ran his boat into the Lock, blew his horn, and set the gigantic Lock in operation to carry his sight-seeing crew to the upper reach and back.

To end this and similar nuisances the Department put certain restrictions of the hours of lockage for the small craft in 1918. These were set at 9 p.m. and 2 p.m daily.

It was found later that a hardship was imposed on those who had long distances to travel, and in 1919 the regulation was revised to allow boats from Lake Ontario to Lakefield or from Rice Lake to Lake Simcoe or vice versa to pass at any hour.

Local craft can pass at 9, 2, and 7. These hours are most convenient for launches leaving Peterborough after mal time, and the local officials assert it is easy for such boats to arrive at the Lift Lock at the proper time.

"The regulations are made by the Department," the Peterborough office said. "And we have nothing to do do with it. Personally I think it is very reasonable."

It was pointed out that the schedule is no more inconvenient than the schedules on which trains, hadthe schedules on which trains, radials, and other public utilities run.

SEEK METHODS TO WIPE OUT THE WHITE PLAGUE

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., June 22 (United Press).—At the opening of the nineteenth annual meeting of the National Tuberculosis Association today, Dr Lawrason Brown, Saranac Lake, N. Y., president of the association, stated that one of the greatest needs of the tuberculosis campaign is more extensive research for the purpose of discovering a positive cure for tuberculosis. The long search and the scantiness of financial reward have discouraged many brilliant scientists from entering the tuberculosis field.

Dr. Brown declared that "a complete eradication of tuberculosis must follow along one of two lines. First, by vaccination or by some other method which will prevent tuberculosis completely as smallpox is prevented today. If such a method fails, some method of treatment which is as successful as the administering of quinine in malaria must be discovered.

Another possibility is that pulmonary tuberculosis, like leprosy and typhus, will gradually recede until in countries with a high hygienc civilization it will be of slight importance."

At the present time public education in disease prevention increased sanatorium facilities, and adequate after care in order to prevent a relapse, are best available means of still further reducing the mortality and case rates, the speaker said.

"I am convinced," said Dr. Brown, "that in a few years we shall see established in America, in one of the large centers of population such as Chicago, Denver, Cleveland, New York, San Francisco, Los Angeles, a foundation that will do for tuberculosis what the Rockefeller Institute and other foundations are doing for general medicine.'

"In our endeavor to find some therapeutic agent that will cure tuberculosis or tend to eliminate certain of its disagreeable symptoms, we are bidding fair to bury the patient under an avalanche of drugs and serums," Dr. LeRoy S. Peters, Medical Director of Saint Joseph Sanatorium, Albuquerque, N. Mex., told the physicians in attendance.

"I would like to show," said Dr. Peters, "the uselessness of drugs and the advisability of treating tuberculosis by the application of common sense. I shall not attempt to convince the profession that drugs have no place in the treatment of tuberculosis but I wish to argue for their saner application and use."

ENGLAND DEMANDS EQUAL STRENGTH IN THE AIR

British Statesman Says France Could Destroy London in 12 Hours — Dramatic Changes Are Noted.

By the RIGHT HON. THE EARL OF BIRKENHEAD, Former Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain

LONDON, June 22. (United Press). —For many centuries the security of Great Britain has depended upon the fact that the center of the Empire was an island. We were inaccessible to any attack, unless it proceeded from a nation stronger than ourselves upon the seas. We could afford to disregard the relative strength of our army as compared with those of Continental Powers.

But dramatic changes occur so swiftly that we are almost blind to their consequences. The conquest of the Air has revolutionized every strategic conception upon which the very existence of this Empire depends.

We are face to face with this prodigious circumstance—that London, the capital of the empire, can be destroyed in twelve hours unless it is protected by defences in the air adequate to meet and repulse this assault.

What is the situation today? The nation which geographically is nearest to us; the nation which could, if it would, in one swift moment destroy London, is, in every term by which one can measure air strength, four times as strong as we are.

No sensible person will raise his voice on the subject of Anglo-French relations except in the hope that he may improve them. It is equally true that no observant person will fail to note the fact that feeling in France, as reflected in the Press, has never been so unfriendly to this country since the Boer War.

I am myself extremely hopeful that moderate opinion in both countries will induce the conclusion that the fundamental interests of both require the maintenance of that Alliance which was attended in the War by so much glory, so much anxiety, and so much success.

But as far as I am concerned, I will not and cannot take chances. I cannot and I will not be a party to any policy which leaves England weaker than any possible rival in the air.

The League of Nations

Idealists may talk to us of the League of Nations. Some time or other the League of Nations may become a really effective body. It can never become so until the Powers as a whole jointly exercise a material strength able to impress itself upon a recalcitrant minority. And of such a readiness I discern at the present moment not the slightest sign.

We are therefore thrown back upon elementals. This country is safe so long and only so long, as it can be protected by the strong arm of its own citizens. We must still maintain our Navy. We have scrapped our battleships in accordance with the undertaking we made at Washington. Others have not yet taken that course. And among those who have not taken it is a nation which, allied and friendly to us as it is, is at this moment in great diplomatic divergence from our views upon almost every diplomatic subject of importance.

This country is not only in a position of hopeless inferiority, but it could not possibly defend the capital of the Empire against a sudden air assault. No nation in the world must be stronger in the air than the British Empire.

Demands Air Strength

The formula which requires the immediate adoption by the Government is that this nation shall possess as least equal strength in the air to that of any other country in the world which can geographically make an assault from the air upon the main artery of the Empire. And no one, reasonably, can take exception to our adoption of such a standard.

Nothing will satisfy us but a British Air Force comparable in every valuation by which you measure the strength of air force with that possessed by any other country in the world.

We cannot decide our own national destinies, nor indeed can we play the part allotted to us in the reconstruction of Europe, if those who talk to us know, and we to whom they talk know, that in twelve hours they could destroy the nerve-center of the British Empire.

Such, however, is the situation today. And it is a situation which, so far as my individual exertions are concerned, I hope to end. The day of the Navy as an exclusive counter in the scale of startegic valuation has disappeared.

LATONIA DERBY BRINGS OUT BEST 3-YEAR-OLDS

CINCINNATI, June 22 (Associated Press).—While Latonia opened wide its gates to the lovers of horse racing June 5, yet the Latonia Derby, to be run here Saturday, June 30, is the outstanding race of the meeting, and admitted by all to be only second to the Kentucky Derby in point of interest. In fact many horsemen pronounce the Latonia classic as the real test of stamina and speed combined, for the race is a quarter of a mile longer than the Kentucky Derby.

The race is at a mile and a half, and will draw the very cream of the three-year-olds of the west and probably a considerable number of eastern horses.

Those who were familiar with the beautiful Mildale course found many changes upon visiting the track this summer. The stewards' stand has been moved from the outside of the track to a position in the infield to give these officials an unobstructed view of the entire course. Another innovation is the construction of a tunnel beneath the track near the paddock entrance. This was thought necessary as the old route from outside the track proper to the infield had a tendency to wear a hard footpath across the track in the very middle of the stretch and it was known to have caused horses on several occasions to lose their stride on hitting this hard surface.

A number of new stables have been added and the track can now accommodate 1,200 horses comfortably.

FEWER BIRTHS.

OTTAWA, June 22. — (Canadian Press.)—Births in Canada (except Quebec) during 1922 are announced by the Bureau of Statistics as numbering 162,552 and deaths as 68,175. In 1921 birth were 168,979 and deaths 67,722. Infantile mortality shows an improvement. Deaths of children under one year constituted 20.6 per cent. of all deaths in 1922, as compared with 21.9 per cent. in 1921 and 21.4 per cent. in 1920.

PINEAPPLES ADVANCE

HONOLULU, June 22 (Associated Press).—Increases in the prices which the large pineapple canners in Hawaii will ask for their pack this year are expected to raise the territory's gross revenue from this commodity from $19,000,000 the amount in 1922, to approximately $24,255,000, it has been estimated.

The increases, announced already by the Hawaiian Pineapple Company, the largest packers of the commodity, and the Pearl City Fruit Company, one of the smaller concerns, average about 25 percent. They are made necessary, according to the firm's announcements, because of the increase of the prices of sugar, cans, boxes, and the raw pineapples. The price advances approximate 50 cents a case of one dozen cans

The groom had been condemned only to 20 years imprisonment. All four were fugitive Flemish who had been convicted by the Belgians because of certain Flemish tendencies and pro-Germanism.

BEER DISPLACES SAKE

TOKIO, June 22 (Associated Press). —Beer is rapidly replacing sake as the national drink of Japan. While there has been no appreciable increase in the output of the distilleries which produce sake, the increase in the amount of beer brewed is very marked. Ten years ago 21,288 koku of beer were brewed; last year the consumption was 765,027 koku.

Sake still is used on ceremonial occasions, but beer is the more popular beverage.

JAPANESE IMPERIAL FAMILY TO BECOME MORE DEMOCRATIC

LONDON, June 22 (Associated Press) —In line with the democratic tendencies of European kings and queens, the Japanese Imperial Family, says a dispatch from Tokio, will in future adopt a more democratic attitude in its public activities. Much of the pomp and ceremony which accompanied the social functions of the royal house in the past will be eliminated.

Members of the imperial family plan to attend theatrical performances, concerts and similar public gatherings more frequently, and will mingle with the people with greater freedom than heretofore. Guards of honor which have invariably appeared in the past as escorts to members of the Imperial household are being dispensed with, except in the case of state functions.

HEIDELBERG TO RECEIVE HELP FROM ABROAD

HEILDELBERG, June 22.—(Associated Press)—Faculty and students of Heidelberg University are rejoicing over the announcement that the institution will receive 50,000 English pounds from the estate of the late Dr. Mond, who founded one of the leading housese in England an is the father of Sir Alfred Mond, who was a member of the Lloyd George cabinet. Dr. Mond was born in Germany, but became a British subject.

Heidelberg is one of the most international of the German institutions of higher education. It had 2,500 students during the term which recently closed, about ten percent of whom were foreigners.

Of these, Switzerland led with 47 students, a majority of whom were taking law courses. North and South America sent six students, England had 12, Greece 11, Bulgaria 13 and Japan 13, 13 of whom were studying philosophy.

SUGGEST ASSURED ALLOWANCES FOR COUNTRY DOCTORS

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22 (Associated Press).—The American Medical Association has a membership of 88,519 physicians out of the approximately 150,000 in the United States, Dr. Olin West, secretary of the association, reported to the House of Delegates meeting this morning.

In its report the Bureau of Legal Medicine and Legislation, operating under the board of trustees, called attention to a ruling of the prohibition commissioner preventing a firm of pharmaceutical chemists from securing large quantities of alcohol on the grounds that it did not sell patent and proprietary medicines. An effort is being made to find the basis for this action of the commissioner. The report said also that efforts have been made to reduce the tax on physicians under the Harrison anti-narcotic law, and to secure advance notice of narcotic prohibition regulations in order that they may receive consideration and discussion before being put into effect.

Dr. W. C. Woodward, director of the Bureal of Legislation, called attention to the inadequacy of medical practice acts to protect the public against fraud and cultists who are able to follow their calling uncontrolled by state legislation.

The council on Medical Education and Hospitals presented an extensive report, calling attention to the greatly enlarged or entirely new teaching plants that have been completed during the last 15 years in 11 medical schools. The indications are that the number of medical graduates will be increased by about 900 a year, reaching 4,500 in 1925. The adoption of higher requirements in medical schools has greatly advanced the age of graduation, so that the physicians graduating today average 26.8 years of age.

The council expressed the opinion that from 80 to 90 percent of all cases of illness can be treated successfully by general practitioners, and that 90 percent of all patients can be cared for efficiently in their homes or in physicians' offices without the need of a hospital. It was suggested that modern medical knowledge and practice can be furnished to the entire public, including the supply of physicians to rural communities, if citizens of such communities will guarantee the physician an income of $2,500 or more each year for a term of five years.

UNIVERSAL LANGUAGES MAKES GREAT STRIDES IN ENGLAND

LONDON, June 22 (Associated Press) —Esperanto the universal language, is making much headway in England among the commercial classes. The British Esperanto Association, organized in the interests of furthering the language in Great Britain, has grown by leaps and bounds.

The association has about 15,000 active members, and classes are held in London seven times a week. Hundreds of pupils have already graduated from the course and readily find positions translating the language for use in the continent, where it is now becoming a popular form of communication between commercial houses.

Now Sleeps the Night Through

James Scanlon got little sleep until he took Dreco that so regulated his system as to maek bedtime a pleasure.

"I was in a terribly run down condition," says Mr. James Scanlon, of 26 Cameron Ave., Windsor, Ont. "My appetite was very poor and I was very constipated. Strong laxatives gave me but little result and were always keeping me in a weakened condition. My liver was very sluggish and I often had pains in the back, due to very weak kidneys. Would often have pains around my heart, caused by gas forming after meals and would frequently take dizzy spells while at work. I was very restless at night and never slept more than three or four hours at night.

"But I am glad to let everyone know than since taking two bottles of Dreco I have certainly much improved. My appetite is better than ever and I am now able to eat things I was unable to touch before. My digestion is fine, pains around the heart all gone and my liver and kidneys are also in splendid condition. My bowels are also very regular. But the best of all is that for the first time in two years I am sleeping the night through without awakening. I am glad to speak of the great results I obtained from Dreco. It is the best preparation I have ever tried."

Why suffer longer from such symptoms as Mr. Scanlon describes, when Dreco offers so wonderful a measure of relief? This splendid corrective is made from roots, herbs, bark and leaves and contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs. Dreco is a reliable tonic and regulator for run-down systems and gets the highest praise from every one who tries it.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterboro by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sold in Lakefield by E. H. Northey, and by a good druggist everywhere.

NEW METHODS TO SAVE AGRICULTURE IN RUSSIA

By JOHN GRAUDENZ

MOSCOW (By mail to United Press) —"The reconstruction and improvement of Russia's agricultural system is not as complicated as it might appear,' Prof. Albert A. Johnson, a well known American agriculturist, declared in an interview with the United Press on the "Perspective of Russia's agriculture."

"In a short interview," he said, "I am, of course, unable to give an exhaustive picture but I want to emphasize the fact that the present moment is the most opportune for the introduction of new methods. The Russian Government knows that if it waits long, the Russian peasant will be drifting back to the old methods.

"There are three favorable factors for the introduction, namely:

"First of all, the famine itself. The peasant who underwent terrible sufferings and losses begins to think what measures might prevent a repetition.

"Secondly, the government's intention to educate the peasants theoretically and practically.

"Thirdly, the great loss of animals. Russia is short of seven million horses alone, besides the large number of oxen and other trucking animals, which to replenish will take many years.

Buying Tractors

"Owing to the lack of these animals the first natural step is the introduction of tractors on a large scale.

"But just as important—if not even more so—is it to increase the number of skilled operators of tractors. For this purpose schools should be established where short but intensive courses of about three to four months should be given to men and women. The schools must be fitted with the most modern machinery.

"During the war the peasant has learned many things about the "Science of Warfare." His mind is now open for the "Science of Agriculture." The argument that his education is still too low is entirely wrong. He possesses a natural instinct which enables him to grasp the advantages even much quicker than the theoretically more highly educated man.

"The fact that the Russian peasants live together in villages is of a great advantage to the educational side, because the traveling instructors find the peasants whom they came to instruct right on the spot.

"There is a great similarity between the grain growing part of the U. S. A. and the United States of Russia with regard to the soil, temperature, rainfall depth and texture of the soil, etcetera.

Cost Hundreds of Millions

"The U. S. A. spent hundreds of millions of dollars for the development of the system of farming and machinery. This experience can be transplanted into Russia with equal success immediately. Because of the above factors there should be clause relationship between the two countries.

"I am glad to see that Russia is already taking advantages of these factors and am convinced will be doing more so in the near future.

"The Russian peasants should not make the same mistakes as the American farmers did by dropping their home industries. Because besides the practical side it has an important educational value for the younger generation.

"If you modernize your farms, don't forget to modernize your homes. The Russian slogan 'Electrification of the Industries' and 'Motorization of Agriculture' is apt to bring about general modernization of Russia's life, with equal advantages for workmen, as well as for the peasants."

WON BY FRANKNESS, THE DUCHESS GLADLY DOUBLES HER GIFT

LONDON, June 22 (Associated Press) —The Brighter Britain Movement, which aims to popularize rural life, is attracting interested attention here, and one reason is that it has turned away from the time honored English practice of having women of title on its list of patronesses.

A certain duchess was asked for a subscription. Languidly she answered: "You may put me down for 100 guineas and you may add my name to your list of patronesses." The efficient young woman solicitor replied that they would gladly take her guineas, but that there were no patronesses, so that aspect of her contribution must be ignored.

The duchess, at first amazed by this unexpected frankness, was not slow to see the possibility presented to become, for a moment, her own press agent. So she doubled her contribution, and said she was glad to belong without being listed as a patroness.

Women run this movement, peeresses and working women taking part, and it is affiliated with the National Federation of Women's Institutes. Cooperation is the keynote. Everybody is supposed to help somebody. Snobbishness, the nane of rural life in this old land, is the one failing for which there is no forgiveness.

The members meet regularly at their institutes on terms of absolute equality and good fellowship. They teach one another useful handicrafts, especially in the domestic arts, discuss the problems of the day, and brighten and stimulate the communial life with folk songs and dances and dramatic performances. They are out to banish from the villages the deadly dullness which most people who have lived in them say makes existence intolerable.

The movement really started in Canada, which perhaps accounts for the spirit of independence and self-help which has always animated it.

UNDIES FOR SUMMER

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, N. Y., June 22 (United Press).—

The inner side of every cloud
They say is bright and shining.
You've but to turn them inside out,
To show their silver lining.

The inner side of every frock
We also find is lined
With undies blue or pink or green,
To match the frock designed.

* * *

Undergarments this year match the frock with which they are worn or carry out the color of the frock in lighter tones. Even the little cotton frock has lingerie of colored voille to match it. Voille underwear is best when simply made and trimmed in embroidered rosebuds or hemstitching, rather than when lace trimmed, as lace is more effective when used on crepe de chene, georgette or chiffon.

Replacing flesh shades are colors such as peach, Nile green, mountain haze and lemon. These colors are made up in cotton garments as well as in silk ones. Quantities of lace are used this season, as women have grown weary of the simple hemstitched garments. Medallions of lace embroidered with monograms are set onto bodies of costume slips and step-ins. Wide bands of lace form yokes on many garments and are also used as a border about the petticoat hems and drawers.

Step-in drawers attached to long bodices are among the summery models. The other day I saw a practical garment of this sort which did away with a separate costume slip. A long bodice with drawer attachment had buttons at the sides, front and back of the waistline so that a petticoat could be button, ed onto it, eliminating the costume slip and at the same time holding the petticoat at a low waistline.

Irish lace is used extensively this season on undergarments. It is often dyed to match the color of the garment. Since ecru is so popular as a dress shade, ecru dyed laced used on an ecru crepe de chene garment is lovely. Being a neutral shade ecru can be used under various colored frocks.

Vacation Undergarments

Among the new crepes one can find numerous lovely materials for the vacation underwear, which is easily laundered and will require no ironing. Crepes are always prettier in colors than in white, as white turns yellow so quickly unless laundered by experts. The most practical crepe lingerie is made without lace or trimming, except hemstitching or border effects of contrasting color. Some of the novelty crepes are lovely for the outdoor girl, as they have borders with tennis racquets, golf balls, etc., stenciled in contrasting colors.

While pongee makes a practical vacation undergarment, it is not as cool as other silks or cotton materials.

Nightgowns which have become torn under the arms can be cut off and stitched on a band of wide lace to which are attached shoulder straps, making a cool vacation nightrobe.

Coiffure Hint

The popularity of the high Spanish comb has been responsible for the return of other hair ornaments. Large pins are very popular. One stunning brunet wears two large sticks of ivory to hold her knot in place

ALASKAN VOLCANO AGAIN IN ERUPTION

KING'S COVE, Alaska, June 22 (Associated Press).—Shishaldin volcano, on Unimak Island, which erupted violently November 20, 1922, was emitting bursts of heavy smoke early in May, officers of the coast guard cutter Haida reported on arrival of the vessel here in the course of her annual patrol of Alaskan and Bering Sea waters.

The 1922 eruption of Shishaldin was picturesque, according to the stories of eyewitnesses. Great flames burst from the crater and the top of the volcano was blown high in the air, about 200 feet of the summit disappearing. Lava poured edown the canyons, melting the snow, and the black streams could be seen for miles. Lava continued to flow for three days, and heavy smoke was emitted for more than a week. At one of the light houses on Unimak Pass, the flames lighted up the sky for days, appearing, according to the keepers, in the form of a cross.

On Christmas Eve, 1922, Pavlof Volcano, on the Alaskan Peninsula, was in eruption and lava flowed for several days thereafter, with a heavy emission of smoke for a longer period.

Natives at villages visited by the Haida declared that Bogoslov, the "disappearing island" that first appeared from the sea during a period of heavy earthquakes and volcanic activity in 1906, had changed its contour during the last year, but the report could not be confirmed. Scientists declare that Bogoslov is in reality a submerged volcano, only the peak appearing above the surface of the ocean.

COUNTY GRANT TO EXHIBITION REMAINS SAME

Fair Board's Appeal for Special Contribution of $2,000 Made No Impression on the Majority.

NORWOOD $175 TOO

Eloquence and argument of both the country and city members of the Peterborough Exhibition Board were of no avail upon the County Council this morning when, in committee on finance, they granted $175 to both the Peterborough and Norwood fairs, and $75 each to the Keene, Lakefield and Galway agricultural exhibitions.

The Peterborough directors had presented a strong case Thursday afternoon in their request for $2,000, largely on the ground that it is a county fair, that it serves to promote interest in agriculture and also for the reason that the bulk of the prize money is distributed among farmers.

Both the disappointments of a year ago were repeated this session. The Exhibition directors had agreed among themselves to appear before the County Council on Wednesday afternoon, but the Council decided in the morning to dispense with an afternoon sitting in order that as many as possible might attend the funeral of ex-Warden Forster. The directors who heard this divergence from the routine of the Council's affairs hadn't time to pass the word around, especially to notify their farmer colleagues ,and just as it happened last year, the Exhibition Directors arrived at the Court House only to find the sign out, "Back in the morning."

On both occasions the attendance on the return visit was slightly less, although there was no decline in the ardour of the speeches. Mr. Roland Denne, president of the Exhibition Board, contended that the Fair was a county concern and deserved the assistance of all the farmers in Peterborough county. He said that according to the Government report there were 3,000 farms in the county with a total acreage of 460,000, or an average of 115 acres. Ten years ago the lands, buildings and implements represented a value of $15,200,000, and the live stock $3,200,000, a total investment of $18,400,000.

Manufacturing industries spent at least one per cent. of their capital for advertising. If every farmer in Peterborough county contributed one cent a week to the Peterborough Exhibition this assistance in a year would amount to $2,000.

Mr. Denne referred to the incidental result of the Exhibition Board in creating an interest in agriculture and in bringing farmers and city people together. Agriculture was one of the biggest industries this country possessed, and both farmers and citizens should be eager to improve and advance it in every way possible. Out of the $6,500 prize money last year, $5,700 had been paid to rural exhibitors.

Mr. Denne said the Board was glad the farmers had won most of it, but at the same time there should be some recognition of this work from the county and some substantial financial help to enable the County Exhibition to expand.

Harry Webber of North Monaghan ,J. T O'Connell of Otonabee, and Tom McIndoo of Cavan Township enlarged upon the points Mr. Denne had brought out, and presented their own impressions of the good work the Exhibition was doing for agriculture in this county and the district.

Mr. O'Connell produced plans for another cattle barn, the need of which was brought home to the directors and exhibitors last year, and Mr. Webber declared that farmers had to specialise to get the best results from their herds, and to that end the Exhibition brought out the best stock in the country, and created a healthy spirit of emulation among the breeders.

Fifty years ago, Mr. McIndoo said, there were only three registered bulls in Ontario. To-day the farmers of this Province have some of the most notable herds on the continent, competing with all-comers. The other live stock were of equally high standards, and all this progress had been greatly quickened by the competitions among the farmers.

In this morning's session, Reeve Rye and Reeve Middleton of Smith tried to put through a motion to grant the County Exhibition $1,000, but it was defeated by a vote of 8 to 5.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Sir.—The political atmosphere on the eve of this election seems peculiar. It is not charged with political electricity. There seems to be a most deplorable apathy due not to indifference so much as to despair. Inefficiency and rottenness seem to vie with blackguardism at the top and at the bottom at Toronto to so great an extent as to indicate a loss of nerve on the part of our people a most dangerous and lamentable weakening. The fine clean call of manhood and womanhood has become a muffled and half-stifled groan Force has killed faith in ourselves as well as in our affairs. The penalty of calling Jesus a wine-bibber is at hand. We cannot mock God and get away with it

MARKET GETS IMPETUS.

NEW YORK, June 22. (United Press.) — With the reserve ratio of the Federal Banking System in new high ground for the year and the figure for the New York Bank at close to the record high, the recovery in progress in the stock market at the previous close received aditional impetus to-day.

New York airbrake jumped 1½ points to 37 on the announcement of the restoration of dividends through a $1 payment. Cuba Cane preferred advanced 2 points to 48, while Corn Products sold at 130 7-8 up 1 1-4 reflecting the expectation of an extra dividend at this afternoon's meeting.

Gains averaging about 1½ points were general throughout the active list; price movement in the first hour gave evidence of gradually returning confidence; Steel reached a new high on the recovery at 93 1-8, up nearly 2 points from the week's low. American Can showed a 5 point rally at 92 7-8 and Baldwin an equal comeback at 125 1-8. Coppers acted especially well, Anaconda selling at 41 1-8 a rebound of 2¼ from the previous session's low. Copper producers have not changed their opinion over the outlook. They still hold that copper prices will soon begin to advance, instead of a falling off in consumption there has been an increase. It has been known that one or more copper mergers are under consideration. The Copper and Brass Research Association says between 125 million and 20 million pounds of copper will be consumed by transmission lines to be erected this year. Opening prices: Southern Pacific 35 3-4 up ½; Studebacker 106 7-8 up 3 8; American Can 92½ up 1-4; Baldwin 124 3-4 up 3-8; New York Central 101 3-4 up 7-8; Pan American B 52½ up 3-8; Cal Petroleum 21 5-8; Corn Products 130 7-8 up 1¼; Con. REPORTS BY RADIO FROM THE NORTH.

If, some time after June 25, you happen to be listening in on certain strange weather reports—"Freezing temperature, snow flurries and high winds," while you're sizzling under the heat, for instance—keep an open ear for the station signing off.

For most likely as not it will be station WNP, the polar schooner Bowdoin, on which Donald B. MacMillan, the famous explorer, will be cruising the North Arctic region. And if it is, mark it down as a red letter event in your history of reception.

Amateurs throughout the United States will have their sets ready to receive the messages which MacMillan promises to send back from the polar region. He has definitely agreed to wireless a news story of 500 words a week, conditions permitting. Besides, the alert amateur may be able to tune in on other messages WNP will flash to Washington, reporting th progress of the MacMillan expeditione.

"Ham" Station

WNP—Wireless North Pole—is to be an amateur station throughout. At present, MacMillan is seeking an adventurous "ham" who can take care of the station and not become blue when he finds himse lf alone with his pet in the vast open expanses of the north. The American Radio Relay League officials are helping him find one.

The station is to work on a wave length of between 200 and 300 meters. It is to be equipped with two 50-watt tubes and will have a 500-cycle plate current from a half-kilowatt generator, motor-driven from the ship's 32-volt storage battery.

Station Records

Besides sending messages to the amateurs in the United States, MacMillan says he'll transmit a weekly list of the amateur and other stations he hears. That's an incentive to amateurs.

The purpose of the present expedition, according to MacMillan, is to make certain observations of the aurora borealis for the terrestrial magnetism laboratory of the Carnegie Institution at Washington, D. C. MacMillan will take pictures of the phenomenon with two cameras 10 miles apart, connected by telephone wires.

He was inside the aurora several times and last in 1921, when he was able t o copy time signals from Arlington through it. This was on long waves. Now he will see whether short waves also will penetrate it.

SILVER SCREEN GOSSIP

By ROBERT A. DONALDSON

LOS ANGELES, June 22 (United Press).—Pola Negri's work on her forthcoming picture, "The Cheat," will be eagerly watched by the critics. Her work will be all the more interesting in view of some very interesting scenes "behind the scenes" at the Lasky studio recently.

Pola Negri's haughty attitude and bursts of temperament have caused more than one gray hair on the Lasky lot during the past six months. In the first place, Gloria Swanson was forced to move out of the best dressing room, so Pola, at her own request, could move in. It wasn't large enough, so the scenario writers had to be moved too.

Then Pola paid but little attention to George Fitzmaurice, her director. She did things her own way—or not at all. She worked when she liked, and stalked haughtily off the set whenever anything displeased her.

Then her first American-made picture was put on the market—"Bella Donna." It wasn't a flat failure, but it was far from showing the magnificent work of her German-made pictures, which gave her a reputation.

Finally the heads of the Lasky tudio held a conference. Jesse L. Lasky, Charles Eyton, production manager, and others were present. The upshot was that Eyton was made "the goat" to brave Pola's temperament and tell her that she must act according to schedule, and according to her director's directions, or else—well.

Eyton survived. Then a well known movie critic in a paper on the following Sunday simply tore Pola up. He criticized her work as being decidedly second rate. In fact, he tore "Bella Donna" all to pieces, and put the blame all on Pola.

He charged her former successes to Ernest Lubitsch, the German director now directing Mary Pickford. Lubitsch is noted for his "mailed fist." He is polite, but Lubitsch will not be disobeyed.

Pola was sick an entire day after reading the story. It was some time before the atmosphere cleared. When it did, Pola worked in more subdued fashion—and worked oftener. There were less afternoons when the entire cast stood around, and Fitzmaurice raged, just because Pola would not leave her dressing room.

It is reported that "The Cheat," with Jack Holt, and Charles De Roche, adapted by Ouida Bergere from Hector Turnbull's story, is a very much higher type of emotional drama than "Bella Donna."

Pola's next picture will be "The Spanish Dancer," an elaborate costume picture, adapted from a story called "Don Cæsar de Bazan." Pola will be directed by Herbert Brenon.

URBAN MAIL SERVICE TO NORTH MONAGHAN

Appears Council Not Willing to Assist in Advantageous Scheme.

In regard to the Federal Government's projected extension of the mail carrier service to districts in North Monaghan adjacent to the city's limits, the following letters are self-explanatory. It appears that the Township's Council cannot see its way clear to comply with certain strict improvements suggested by the Postal Department as a condition upon which the proposed urban mail service shall be established.

14th June, 1923.

G. N. Gordon, M.P.

Dear Sir,—In reply to your communication of recent date, in regard to the extension of the mail carrier service, as enjoyed by the City of Peterborough for the Brownton district of North Monaghan, I am instructed to reply as follows:

That sidewalks can only be built by petition of the property owners.

That it would not be legal or just for the township to construct sidewalks at the expense of the general ratepayers, including farmers.

That the Council of North Monaghan thinks that if the mail carrier system is extended, that the Claraday district should be included, as this section is well supplied with sidewalks.

Yours sincerely,
Bruce Johnston,
Township Clerk.

Mr. Gordon's reply follows:

Ottawa, Ontario,
June 21st., 1923.

"Bruce Johnston, Esq
Clerk, Municipality of North Managhan,

"Dear Sir,—I beg to acknowledge your favor of the 15th instant written to me under the instructions of, I presume, a majority of your Council.

"I note that you say that side walks can only be built by petition of the property owners.

"This is not the law, and has not been the law for many years.

"It is said further, that it is not legal for the Township to construct sidewalks at the expense of the general ratepayers.

"This is another new evolution of the law.

"I note, too, that the Council thinks that the mail carrier system should be extended to the Claraday District as this section is well supplied with sidewalks, according to your letter.

"I have not the slightest doubt, if I suggested that the mail carrier system should have been extended to the Claraday District, that the members of the Council who instructed you to write that letter would have thought that the Byersville District was he proper place.

"It is abundantly plain to me that your Council intends to prevent, by every possible means a letter carrier service being extended in the Byersville District, so I will see the Chief Inspector again, and see if the service can be extended to those streets where there are sidewalks or cinder paths.

"I might add that it is very difficult to get extensions of the letter carrier service, or rural mail delivery and it was taken me several weeks to have this plan developed as far as it is.

"I had hoped that after the Byersville District had a daily letter carrier system developed, the Claraday area might be included next year; as I could get no assurance from the Post Office Department that they would make the increased expenditure, including both Claraday and the Byersville area.

"However, it would appear that, from the action of your Council they are not willing to give any assistance to what I consider an exception ally advantageous scheme.

"Yours truly
(Signed) G. N. GORDON."

Conservative Flays Howard Ferguson

"I AM A GOOD CONSERVATIVE, BUT I AM NOT IN SYMPATHY WITH HOWARD FERGUSON, AND I BELIEVE IT WOULD BE A CALAMITY IF THE PROVINCE WERE TO SELECT HIM AS PREMIER."

This statement was made publicly a week ago by Lieut.-Colonel Arthur C. Pratt, who was the Conservative member in the Legislature from South Norfolk for fourteen years. It supplements his letter which was published in the Toronto Daily Star, in which Colonel Pratt, ex-M.P.P., denounced the Hon. Howard Ferguson as a "TREMENDOUS HANDICAP TO EVERY CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE IN THE PROVINCE."

Lieut.-Colonel Pratt not only declined to run in the present election, but even refused to take part in the campaign in any way. His reasons constitute the most damaging condemnation of the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson that has been uttered in this campaign.

Lieut.-Colonel Pratt would not consent to a candidature as an Independent, and in a letter of May 3rd to a friend who was trying to persuade him to enter the lists he explains everything.

Liberals who have been urged to vote for the Conservative candidate, and Conservatives who distrust Howard Ferguson, will find in Lieut.-Colonel Pratt's letter an emphatic reason for voting for THE LIBERAL CANDIDATE, JOHN W. MEYERS.

'Dear Sir: I have your very kind letter and I wonderfully appreciate your suggestion that if I were to run as an Independent in the coming provincial election I could be elected. The confidence of your friends who join you in this suggestion is indeed very gratifying. But there are two reasons which compel me to decline your invitation. First: I am a Conservative, have always been a Conservative and I thoroughly believe in the Conservative party and in its principles. It is essentially a party for the people and of the people, and if it is in the shadow of defeat today, it is there not because the great principles as enunciated by Sir James Whitney have failed, but because the leaders of the party, men who thought themselves leaders, and forced themselves into leadership without the formality of selection by the rank and file, have by mistaken theories disorganized and disintegrated the once great army. My second reason is the fact that an Independent is rarely able to accomplish anything, and politics without accomplishment for the constituency and for the electors does not appeal to me. I have had fifteen years of public life and I know something of the cares and trials and disappointments, and the mere glamor does not attract me.

CONSERVATIVE PARTY IN WILDERNESS

"I believe that the Conservative party is still wandering in the wilderness to which Hearst consigned it and I fear that THE HON. HOWARD FERGUSON IS NOT SO VITALLY CONCERNED IN EXTRICATING THE PARTY AS HE IS IN EXTRICATING HIMSELF FROM THE POSITION IN WHICH HE FINDS HIMSELF. Before we can succeed, I believe that there must be something in the nature of a great revival for our party. We must confess our sins, renew our faith and put aside self and selfish ideals and consecrate ourselves anew to the service of the people. If you look over Ferguson's political record, you will find that he entered politics by defeating an old-time Conservative. When he came into the house he was a continual thorn in the flesh of Sir James Whitney, and those of us who were in caucus in the early days of the Whitney administration will remember the exasperation of the grand old man when he threatened to read the present leader out of the party and debar him from the caucus.

"I well remember during one session we sat up all night in order to pass a special act enabling him to retain his seat after he had accepted a paltry fee and later found that the acceptance of this fee violated the independence of parliament act. During the Hearst regime the Hon. Howard Ferguson was his chief confidante and advisor and in the fateful election of 1919, he was delegated to handle the campaign funds. Then came the nauseating timber investigation and it is only necessary to read the evidence in the Shevlin-Clarke timber deal to realize the dissimilarity between Sir James Whitney and the present leader.

SAYS LEADER A HANDICAP

"In my opinion it is against all British tradition for a public man, placed in the position of Ferguson by this investigation, to remain or attempt to remain as leader of a great party. It is distinctly unfair to the party. IT IS BOUND TO BE A TREMENDOUS HANDICAP TO EVERY CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE IN THE PROVINCE BECAUSE THE TIME OF PUBLIC MEETINGS MUST BE TAKEN UP IN DEFENDING THE ACTION OF THEIR LEADER. Someone in the audience or on the platform is sure to mention timber. Immediately there follows a dog-fight with accusations and recriminations and instead of discussion and debate we have the spectacle of the pot calling the kettle black.

"Farmers today are reading the daily papers, and they are keeping themselves thoroughly informed and up-to-date.

"There are a thousand men in Ontario who could lead the party, and I need only mention such men as Col. Tom Gibson (who had political as well as very wide military experience overseas); Sir Adam Beck, Home Smith, Billy Nickle of Kingston, Billy Price of Parkdale, Dr. Peter McGibbon (late dominion member for Muskoka); Donald Sutherland of South Oxford. In fact I believe we could do as they did in ancient Rome and take a man from the plow and stiff the great Conservative party would march onward to victory."

SAYS FERGUSON UNPOPULAR

"THE ONLY OBSTACLE THAT DAMS THE ONWARD MARCH IS OUR LEADER, FERGUSON. He and his friends believe that they can ride back to the most desired position by using the name of the great Conservative party and the organization machinery that has grown up around the party. I AM CONVINCED THAT FERGUSON KNOWS THAT HE IS UNPOPULAR THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY, and he must know that he is unpopular in Toronto, because every third Conservative that you meet on the street, is most outspoken in his disapproval. APPARENTLY THE PARTY MUST GO DOWN TO DEFEAT IN ORDER TO RID ITSELF OF THESE POLITICIANS WHO DESIRE TO USE THE PARTY FOR SELFISH ENDS.

"I have told you why an Independent nomination would not appeal to me. From the above you will gather that A NOMINATION AS A FERGUSON SUPPORTER WOULD CARRY NO APPEAL TO ME.

"I have felt that in justice to your very kind letter I should set out my reasons at length to you because I not only value your friendship but I recall with profound satisfaction the fact that you were among the first to enlist in the old 133rd, that you crossed to England and to France with us and that you lost a leg while with that fighting battalion, the 14th, in France. The fact that notwithstanding this handicap you have returned to your native country and thoroughly and successfully re-established yourself in your chosen profession does not diminish my regard for you.

"With kindest personal regards, I am,
"Yours very truly,
"A. C. PRATT."

LETTER STATES HIS POSITION

Lt.-Col. Pratt was interviewed by The Star in this matter. "The letter means just what it says," he stated. "It explains everything. I am not going back on my party. I am a good Conservative, but I am not in sympathy with Howard Ferguson, and I BELIEVE IT WOULD BE A CALAMITY IF THE PROVINCE WERE TO SELECT HIM AS PREMIER. He doesn't believe in public ownership, and I would be greatly surprised if Sir Adam Beck expects any sympathy from him. I know he got none in 1919.

"I have had a great many requests to speak, and I have been compelled to refuse, very often against my will, for I have the greatest admiration for the men who are making the most difficult fight. I have not spoken in my old riding. I am not going to speak there. I am not going to aid in the campaign in any riding."

The support that Lt.-Col. Pratt gave to the Conservative party is evidenced in his political career. He was elected Conservative member in the 1905 Whitney election. In 1908 he defeated Captain C. S. Killmaster. In 1911 he defeated George Hammond. In 1914 he defeated Andrew Innes, who ran as an Independent candidate. In 1919 he was defeated by Joseph Cridland, the U. F. O. member.

"It is shown that I have always been a Conservative," concluded Lt.-Col. Pratt, "but I WILL NEVER SUPPORT HOWARD FERGUSON AS LEADER OF THE PARTY."

Lieut.-Colonel Pratt has confirmed the public's doubts and suspicions of the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson.

CONSCIENTIOUS CONSERVATIVES CANNOT PLACE THEIR CONFIDENCE IN G. HOWARD FERGUSON AGAIN. They will not vote for him.

Conscientious Conservatives have every reason for voting AGAINST G. Howard Ferguson, and FOR the Liberal candidate, JOHN W. MEYERS.

WOOLLENS EASY FOR THE PACKERS

Packers Piled Up a Big Lead in the First Half and Won By 6 Goals to 2

The C.P.C. completely outplayed the Woollens and won a one-sided game of football at the King Edward park last evening by a score of 6 to 2. The Packers scored four goals in the first half chiefly due to effective combination, and maintained this lead throughout the game. Early in the second half Chambers was injured and was forced to retire, leaving the Woollens short-handed.

Both teams were at full strength, and each goal was visited in rotation. One of the visits by the Woollens' forwards gave Chambers a chance to score, but Curtis picked the ball up nicely. Shaw returned to Mitchell who beat Curtis easily. From the centre the Packers forced the play to the Woollens' territory. Anson took advantage of the opening and equalized in one minute. Immediately afterwards from a misunderstanding in front of the Woollens goal, the Packers added the second goal. Midfield play followed with the Woollens pressing. On a solo run by Anson to Ted Hotston the latter added another for the Packers. From the centre H. Hotston beat along the line and crossed over to Anson for still another goal, just before half-time. C.P.C. 4; Woollens 1.

The second half opened at a fast pace with the Woollens pressing. From a tackle in front of goal Chambers injured his ankle and retired. He came back to the field later but was not fit to play.

The play was fast and even, with the Woollens visiting Curtis often. A foul throw against the Packers caused the defence lots of work with Curtis playing a great game between the sticks. Play was transferred to the other end and where Lazenby made it five for the Packers. The Woollens tried hard to get a goal even with the ten men. Chambers having retired altogether. James Shaw had three consecutive tries for goal but Wag Hotston always headed out. Roberts shot hard for Curtis to save nicely. A concentrated effort on the part of the Packers in front of the Woollens' goal gave them the sixth score. From this time until the finish the play was uninteresting. A minute before full time Mitchell got the second goal for the Woollens. C.P.C. 6; Canadian Woollens 2.

The teams were:

Woollens — Brinton, goal; Cridland and Perry, backs; Warman, Reid and Sayers, half backs; Leach, Chambers, Mitchell, Shaw and Roberts, forwards.

C. P. C. — Curtis, goal; Underwood and Wag. Hotston, backs; Bradbury, Shaw and Battey, half-backs; Lazenby, H. Hotston, Anson, Ted Hotston and Fendon forwards.

Referee, J. Clark.

PETES HAVE TO WIN TOMORROW TO STAY UP IN THE RUNNING

Still Have the Edge in Big Four Race By Virtue of Being Only Team to Win Away From Home.

The Petes in tackling Kingston here tomorrow are in one sense fighting with their backs to the wall inasmuch as they have to win to stay up near the top of the heap but on the other hand they have an edge on the other Big Four teams because of the fact that they are the only team in the section to win a game away from home and because of the remaining four scheduled games three of them are to be played at Riverside Park while Belleville has to play three out of four away from home and Cobourg and Kingston two each.

While it is true that the Petes have not been at the top of their form in the last few games, it is equally true that none of the other teams have been playing good ball away from home. The Petes probably have more reason for that than the other Big Four outfits for the flooding of Riverside Park knocked them out of two much needed practice weeks. With the arrival of hot weather and the drying up of the park which has been anything but suitable for good baseball since it was flooded the Solomon crew should hit their stride again and breeze down the stretch in the first section.

Kingston with two runs to their credit this week will undoutedly give them a memorable tussle. Harry Batstone has Kingston up on their toes and playing great ball—only one error in the last two games—and the Petes will have to travel on high all the way.

It is not yet known what pitcher Batstone will send in against the Solomon outfit. It is Cherry's turn but Gallgher turned in such a great game on Wednesday that there is the off chance that the Ponies may select the veteran southpaw for another whirl. Moore the college boy who beat Belleville Monday and pitched such a good game against the Petes here before may get the call.

Kingston are strengthened rather than weakened by the absence of catcher Johnn Evans who is out of the game through injuries. Young Rice who stepped into his shoes is throwing better than Evans ever thought of doing and he has been hitting the ball hard.

Heckman will get the pitching assignment for the Petes.

HAS-BEENS WON FROM WOULD-BES

Scots Had a Gala Time at Big Field and Sports Night Last Wednesday.

The Peterborough Caledonian Club held a very successful field night on Wednesday evening at the Exhibition Grounds. A large attendance of members and friends were present. Alex, Dick and Tom McArthur started the fun with an exhibition of how softball should be played, after which the chief event of the evening took place. This was a football game between the Has-Beens and the Would-Bes (Thistles).

The Has-Beens won the toss and elected to play with their backs to the sun The Thistles kicked off, and sent Jackson away on the right, but he kicked the ball bye. Jackson came back with another effort, and from his cross Stott scored, but was ruled offside. The Has-Beens then made a few raids on the Thistles' goal, Bobby Gilmour at centre testing Richmond with some grand drives. The Thistles came back, and Anderson scored, giving Brunton no chance to save. From the kick-off the Has Beens forced a corner, which Laurie placed right in Richmond's hands, only to slip down his back for the equaliser. Half-time was called with the score standing at 1-1.

The game resumed with Dick and McArthur in the front line to add a little weight to the attack, which, however, did not help matters much, for McMillan broke away on the left to score past Brunton. This goal was disallowed and given to the Has-Beens, owing to McMillan being in the Has-Beens' uniform, with the idea, no doubt, of confusing their defence. From the kick-off, Dick put in a terrific shot to beat Richmond just as time was called, leaving the Has-Beens winners by the score of 3 to 1. It would be well for the Thistles to study the methods employed by the old-timers in both combination work and defence, and try it in their next league game.

After the football game several races were run, but the arrival of the pipe band put a stop to further sport. Piper Grant played for an eightsome reel and Gilmour's band officiated for other dances. Before the break-up, Mr. French presented R. Gilmour, as captain of the winning team, with a silver cup and medals. A. Burgess, as captain of the Would-Bes, also received a set of medals for his team. It is said that most of the team have indigestion as a result of eating their trophies, and they may not be able to meet the Vets on Saturday. Valuable (?) prizes were given for the winners in the races, and the secretary says he hopes next time there is a similar event there won't be more prize-winners than runners.

CLEVER BALL IN BANTAM OPENER

Guiry Fans Eighteen and Gives Only One Hit When Rotary Wins.

SNAPPY FIEEDING

Pitching Rotary Bantams to an 8 to 2 victory in the first game of the series for the John I. Allen trophy at King Edward School grounds last evening, "Lefty" Guiry struckout eighteen batsmen and restricted his opponents to one hit. The Rotary heaver had seven strikeouts in a row in the first, second and third, and he fanned the side in order in the fifth and sixth. Lewis the Kiwan is twirler made the only hit, when leading off in the first innings.

The youngsters played snappy baseball, ielding cleverly, and show ing a knowledge of the game that made many of the spectators gasp with astonishment. McDuffy, the Kiwanis shortstop, played a remarkable game. taking four chances with out a sign of a slip, in which he cut off two runners at the plate. From deep left field, Holland also turned in a neat play when he threw accurately to the plate to nip Macdonald.

Lewis Scores First

Kiwanis tallied their lone counter in the first when Lewis singled, stole second and third and went home on a passed ball. They had the bases leaded in the seventh but were able to score only one run. Spencer and Marshall were passed when Guiry lost control. They advanced on a wild pitch. Jennings fanned. McDuffy drew a walk filling the bases. When E. Wolff fanned, Brenton dropped the third strike and made an unnecessary play to 1st base Spencer on third, took advantage of the play and scored. Guiry then fanned Lucas retiring the side and ending the game.

Rotary tallied in the first after Graham had been thrown out at first. Goodfellow hit to right for three bases and scored when the throw to the bag went wide. An infield error, singles by Macdonald, Brenton and Guiry. and Graham's double was good for three runs in the second. Sowden singled and stole second and third in the third, but was left stranded when Lewis fanned LeBarr and Koster and threw out Gillespie. Macdonald tripled in the fourth, only to be caught at the plate by McDuffy following Brenton's grounder. Guiry singled, Graham and Goodfellow were retired at first.

Heady Baseball Here

The fifth saw some fast baseball Sowden singled LeBarr was hit and Widdess was passed filling the bases Sowden was thrown out at the plate by McDuffy who fielded Gillespie's grounder. Lewis handled Macdonald's rap and got Lebarr at the plate. The pitcher throw out Brenton at first.

In the sixth, Guiry made the bag when Spencer allowed the third strike to get through. Morphet dropped Graham's fly and Goodfellow scored the runners with a two-bagger. The latter made third and scored on Sowden's infield out. Lewis struckout LeBarr, passed Widdess, and retired the side by taking Gillespie's short fly.

BASEBALL COMMENT

Manager Solomon's batting average dropped 500 points on Wednesday when he went in as pinch hitter in the ninth at Kingston and failed to get a hit.

Wednesday's win was sweet for Ted Gallagher the Ponies' lefthander. The Petes beat him four out of five games last year when he was performing for Oshawa but Gallagher got a bit back by standing them on one ear on Wednesday.

Somerville the Kingston infielder is playing a sweet defensive game. His work at second base in the first two games against the Petes was great and he looked even better at first in Wdnesdays' game. He will likely be found at the initial sack tomorrow.

Teeple who played for Port Hope last year is occupying the territory between second and third for the Ponies in the absence of W. Evans on the injured list.

A play came up in Wednesday's game that had the umpires and nearly everybody else puzzled for a moment. Kingston had the bases loaded with none out when Batstone hit through short. The ball hit the Kingston runner going to third and was then picked up in time to force the man who had been on first. Meanwhile the base runner at third had scored. For a moment it looked like a double play and one run in. Then the umps remembered that only the man who was hit could be out and that no run could score on the play.

The Kingston field is as hard as pavement and not any too smooth in the outfield. The result is that hard hit gound balls roll a mile and extra base hits are easy under the circumstances.

"Red" Legon was an absentee from the Petes' line up Wednesday owing to the fact that he is writing examinations this week. He'll get back in the game tomorrow.

In spite of Gallagher's fine showing there is little doubt that a base hit at the proper time in the first or second inning on Wednesday would have made a lot of difference. The big southpaw has not been going very well this season and he was shaky at the start, ready to blow. Getting out of two bad holes gave him a world of confidence and he finished like a whirlwind. After the first two frames he would have beaten any team in the League.

Harvard and Yale in Big Water Battle.

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, June 22.—(United Press).—Yale and Harvard renew their age-old eight-oar shell duel on the Thames, at New London, Connecticut, this afternoon, with the honors in favor of Yale.

Since the race first was inaugurated in 1855 the Blues from New Haven have won a far larger number of the annual two-mile contest in their private feud. Harvard won but once sine 1918 and that in 1920.

The crews have been training for more than a month. Harvard at Red Top, down the river and Yale at Gales Ferry.

An extraordinary amount of interest has been stirred up between the colleges over the Freshman race this year because of the apparent evenness of the crews. Yale authorities had threatened to cancel the match because of the outburst of Freshmen in a celebration two weeks ago.

FRENCH COURT MARTIAL IMPOSES HEAVY FINES

BERLIN, June 22. — (Canadian Press.)—A French court martial at Werden has imposed sentences ranging from six months to five years' imprisonment and fines of 3,000,000 marks on five former German policemen accused of shooting at French gendarmes in Essen.

A German press photographer was fined ten million marks for taking photographs of the French troops in Essen.

TWENTY FIFTH SASON AS UMPIRE

Tommy Connolly, dean of the American League staff of umpires, with the beginning of the 1923 campaign started his twenty-fifth season as a major league umpire.

Connolly is one of the few big league umpires who has enjoyed a successful career in both major organizations.

The dean of the American League arbitrators began his major league career as an umpire in 1898 in the National League, serving three years in that organization.

Shorty after the American League was organized, President Johnson, on the lookout for efficient arbitators, signed up Connolly for his organization.

This season marks the twenty-second that Connolly has spent in the American League. He has seen players come and go by the hundreds. As a matter of fact, not a player remains in the American League who was in the organization when Connolly made his debut as umpire.

Tommy has been retiring for the last five years. Each year he insists that he is playing his farewell engagement. Connolly is the father of eight children and it takes real money to keep a family like that going.

"I find it hard to make good on my threats to retire," says Connolly, "my family seems to increase with the salary and I just can't pass up the old game."

ROTARY BOYS' CAMP WILL SOON BE READY

Rotary Boys' Camp on Clear Lake will open for this season in just a little over a week's time with the boys of the Y.M.C.A. in possession. Extensive improvements have been made by the Rotary Club to the site so that it now ranks as one of the finest camps for boys in this part of Canada.

The advance party for "Y" Camp will leave Peterboro on Saturday next, June 30th, and will have everything in good shape for the arrival of the main body of campers on the Monday morning. The cook-house staff will also go into camp on the Saturday and will have that end of the programme ready for the accentuated appetites of the boys during the days of the camp term.

It should be understood that although this first camp is promoted by the Boys' Work Committee of the Y.M.C.A., attendance is not confined to the members of that institution. The Boys' Secretary will act as camp director, and with a staff of competent leaders, will supervise all activities on land and water. It is one of the rules laid down the Rotary Club for the use of their splendid camp site that all camps shall be conducted at a cost to the boy just sufficient to cover the actual expense of operating. This makes possible the attendance of almost every boy who so desires at some time during the summer months.

Registrations are now coming in to the Y.M.C.A. office and prospects are bright for a capacity attendance. To ensure a place, any boy who is thinking of attending camp with the Y. M. C. A. should 'phone in his name or call and see the member of the staff on duty.

WOULD APPLY EFFICIENCY TO IMPROVE PUBLIC HEALTH

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., June 22.—(Associated Press)— Application of scientific management to public health work was advocated by John A. Kingsbury of New York, in an address today before the National Tuberculosis Association, now in session in this city. Mr. Kingsbury announced also that the Milbank Fund, of which he is director, is completing plans to spend between $300,000 and $500,000 annually for the next five years with the next five years in New York state in co-operation with the health authorities in an effort to reduce the death rate for all causes.

Cattaraugus County has been selected as a typical rural and urban area, and Syracuse as a typical city area in which intensive demonstration will be carried on A district of 200,000 population will also soon be selected in New York City. In these three areas of 500,000 population, the Milbank Fund will carry on the largest and broadest health demonstration ever attempted in the United States. Commenting upon the plans for the demonstration, Mr. Kingsbury said:

"In the course of the next five or ten years, in these typical American communities, we shall endeavor to determine the extent to which the general death rate can be further reduced, and which diseases most readily yield to intensive effort. We shall try to determine whether it is possible practically to eliminate certain of these diseases, such as diphtheria and typhoid, and further substantially to reduce the extent of reduce the extent of tuberculosis; we shall utilize all known methods of proven value and shall attempt to devise better ones and to measure an test the effect of each, and, most important of all, we shall endeavor to determine what it will cost these typical communities to do a hundred percent health job. We shall attempt to apply scientific project, and to keep the cost down to the minimum per capita rate consistent with efficiency.

WOULD ALLEVIATE HUNGER PANGS OF PHILIPPINE PAGANS

MANILA, June 22.—(Associated Press)—Governor General Wood has taken steps to bring about the economic development of the Mountain Province where the people, who belong to non-Christian tribes, are engaged in what the chief executive terms "a desperate struggle for a bare existence." In a communication to Jose Sanvictores, director of the bureau of non-Christian tribes, General Wood asks that a plan be prepared which would eliminate the handicaps to the economic improvement of those regions.

The governor's communication to Mr. Sanvictores is based on a report submitted by Lieutenant Colonel Gordon Johnston, member of the governor's staff, who has just made an inspection of the Mountain Province in company with Colonel Edward L. Munson, United States army.

General Wood in his communication says:

"I have always been very much concerned about the economic development of these people. In the course of 2,000 years they have been able to reclaim from their mountains a limited area of land to which water can be brought. In past years feudal strife between settlements and tribes, as well as a very high death rate, prevented undue increase in population.

"However, with the restoration of law and order and the development of hygiene, sanitation, services of hosptals and doctors, the population has been continually increasing without a corresponding increase of arable land land. At present the mass of the population is engaged in a desperate struggle for bare existence. In the majority of districts there is not sufficient rice, and the people eke out a very meager existence with sweet potatoes. They lack clothing, proper shelter, salt and the tools necessary in their labor. I am informed that prices for necessities in the stores throughout the Mountain Province average from 200 to 1,00 percent above those that prevail in the nearby lowlands."

The governor general recommends that means of prompting trade between the mountain people and the inhabitants of the lowlands be created and that inter-communication be encouraged.

THEATRES

One of the most exciting photodramas seen here in some time is showing now at the Capitol Theatre in "Westbound, Limited," a stirring "movie," depicting the daily round of the railroad engineer. The cast is splendid, and the picture is replete with thrills, woven about the romance of the daughter of the president of the road and the son of the engineer.

Dynamic action is the keynote of the production of "Westbound, Limited," which has a very real atmosphere in its fine photography. Ralph Lewis, as Jim Buckley, is the hero who rides desperately on his white horse to prevent a collision between two speeding trains, on one of which his father guides the throttle. The many wild rides of the screen are surpassed in this breath-catching episode, picturing the young man urging his steed over the cliff, and, in a last desperate endeavor, firing the tracks.

There is a real bad man in this picture, a villain who pursues the heroine, hires a drunken sot to bring about the mighty train collision that will take in its toll of life the parents of the girl he is victimizing, and who meets his nemesis later at the hand of his own half-wit son.

For pure thrills and exciting action, in a picture whose rapid movement rushes on through dramatic situations and complex threads of human passion to a satisfying finish, "Westbound, Limited," can hardly be equalled.

END OF ENGLISH BETTING STILL SEEMS FAR OFF

LONDON, June 22.—(Associated Press)—The special committee appointed to help the government decide whether it will pay to tax betting, held another public sitting recently and examined several police officials. Their testimony was against it.

Mr. Caldwell, police superintendent of Liverpool, said the betting law was very difficult to enforce and very unpopular Its inconsistencies and loopholes were so numerous that in practice it amounted to one law for the well-to-do, who could bet on credit without incurring any risk of getting fined or imprisoned, and another for the poor who, because of their poverty, had to confine themselves to ready money betting which meant street betting and were liable to get into trouble if they were caught at it. In Liverpool $40,000 a year was spent in efforts to enforce the law against betting, and the result had been a total failure.

Thevor Bingham, assistant commissioner of the metropolitan police, said a striking development of late years had been the increase of betting among women of the poorer classes. London was so riddled with street betting that to deal with it effectively would require a very much larger number of police than could be made available without prohibitive expenditure. The police felt, he said, that even if the repressive law were re-enacted in a clear and more drastic form it was almost certain having regard to the strength and extent of the taste for betting, that some means of evading it on a large scale always would be found.

Mr. Bingham's views on betting are entirely at variance with those expressed by the majority of the spokesmen of various religious bodies that have appeared before the committee.

VISCOUNT GRAY MAY JOIN BALDWIN CABINET

LONDON, June 22. — (United Press).—Viscount Grey of Fallodon British Foreign Minister at the outbreak of the war, will return to that post in the Baldwin Cabinet succeeding Marquis Curzon as soon as the Lausanne treaty conference ends, the Daily Sketches political correspondent states to-day.

Strongly Liberal, Viscount Grey would undoubtedly only consent to become Foreign Secretary if Britain's policies are to be less imperialistic than under Curzon's guidance

The presence of Viscount Grey, Lord Robert Cecil, Austen Chamberlain and Sir Reginald McKenna in Baldwins cabinet would give the government a more Liberal aspect than it has worn since Lloyd George resigned.

SECOND DAY OF DELORME TRIAL

Events Surrounding the Making of Raoul Delormes' Will Under Searching Examination

MONTREAL, June 22.—(Canadian Press). —Events surrounding the making of Raoul Delorme's will were subjected to searching examination this morning when Father Delorme entered the dock for the second day of his trial on the charge of having slain his half-brother.

Throughout the hearing Delorme maintained a rapid fire of heated conferences with both his counsel, Aleyn Taschereau, K.. and C. H. Cahan, K.C. Between times he scribbled voluminous notes on the thick pad of paper he uses and at times even called advice aloud to his counsel.

The first witness heard was Bishop Rheaume, who, as rector of Ottawa University had witnessed Raoul Delorme's will. The Bishop was followed on the stand by Adrien Belanger the notary in which care the will was ultimately entrusted. Belanger dealt with Father Delorme's application for the will immediately following Raoul's murder.

LOCAL POLICE START ZOOLOGICAL GARDEN

Constable Bromley, of the city police force, assisted by County Constable Dickson, started this morning what may be called the first zoological garden in Peterborough.
A call was received at the Police Station, asking for a posse to remove a racoon that had lodged in the trees and was scampering over the roofs of the houses on Murray Street. The constables responded, and, after an exciting chase, which took them to precarious altitudes, they succeeded in clubbing the coon. The animal was taken to the Police Station, but no charge was entered against it. Later it was released in Nicholls Oval, where it forms the nucleus of a zoological garden. This is probably the first coon to have a ride in the side car of a motor cycle.

Customs Officials Confiscate Beer, Wine and Liquors Destined for Passengers.

CAPTAIN PROTESTS

NEW YORK, June 23.—(United Press). — The seals of the British Government on the Liner Baltic's liquor store room, were broken today and contrabrand beverages found there in were seized by agents of the U. S. Government.

Customs agents boarded the Baltic and made a formal demand on Capt. John Roberts, for the liquor listed as surplus stock. Captain Roberts ordered his chief steward A. T. Hatrick, to show the agent the liquor.

Beer, Wine. Whisky

Inspector Chas. Connor of the Customs service broke the seals. The Customs men then started the task of removing the six thousand bottles of beer, wine and liquors to the dock where Canfield and his men awaited it with a fleet of motor trucks. The liquor will be removed to the army base at Brookiyn pending disposition of the case by Washington.

Before the customs officials were led to the liquor room Captain Roberts handed them a formal protest from the ship owners.

A copy of the protest will be dispatched to the British Government. The protest stated that the liquor was designed for use of the passengers outside the three mile limit on the voyage east.

SAYS PEACE NOW PERCHED ON AN AMMUNITION DUMP

Lloyd George Declares His Conviction That Next War Would Blot Out Civilization—Cites Examples of War's Damage

LONDON, June 23 (United Press). — "Peace is perched on an ammunition dump," Lloyd-George dramatically told the members of the Oxford University New Reform Club at a luncheon on Friday.

He declared his conviction that the next war would blot out civilisation, and cited the present conditions as an example of the war's damage to the entire world.

Great Britain spent fifty billion pounds on the World War, he said, pointing out that in peace times she should at least be able to sweep away the slums now housing 3,500,000 people.

POLICE RAIDS NETTED COURT NUMBER FINES

Provincial Police Make a Clean-up on Armour Road—A Girl Implicated.

TOO MUCH LIQUOR

A drunken carousal in East City early in the week brought several men before Magistrate O. A. Langley, where they received sentences varying from $10 and costs to $200 and costs.

Two of the men were charged with being intoxicated on Armour Road on Tuesday, and both pleaded guilty. The minimum fine was imposed and paid.

A third party was charged with having liquor in a place other than a private dwelling, and was the only one who called a lawyer to his assistance, entering a plea of "not guilty."

The arrests were made by Provincial Constables George Cookman and Story and License Inspector J. Stewart, following information received by them.

Girl in Party.

The first witness called by the prosection was a debonair young lady who had previous experience in the witness box. This girl, who was attended by Adjutant Mrs. A. Smith, told of going for a ride in a car with another girl and the two men, of their having whisky in the car and drinking it, and of the fight which followed a friendly dance in an Armour Road house. The liquor was picked up by the party in a house near the Lift Lock, she testified, and the bottles were first opened while crossing the Hunter Street Bridge.

Answering a question from Magistrate Langley, the girl said the lady members of the party were not offered a share of the drink, which she was quite certain was whisky. "I know the smell of whisky," she said. When they arrived at the Armour Road house the men went in, taking liquor with them, but the girls remained outside until invited in by the lady of the house. They saw two bottles on the table, one full; the other "pretty well gone."

Asked by the cross-examining counsel whether she was under arrest, the witness answered, "I suppose so."

Q.—"What is the charge?"

Witness—"I suppose it is for being with the boys when they were drunk."

Some Would Cede West Indies to States For Debt

LONDON, June 23.—(United Press.)—Robert Murray, Labor M.P., representing a Scotch constituency, has given Parliamentary notice that on Monday he will formally announce in the House that there exists a considerable body of electors of an opinion favorable to the West Indies being ceded to America in settlement of the British debt.

Whether he has examined the proposal, and if so, whether he will urge its adoption, is not divulged.

LAVA STREAM IS ADVANCING

LONDON, June 23—(Special).—A despatch to the Times from Milan says that size of devastated area area around Mount Etna is about four square kilometers, three quarters of which is planted in vineyards and the remainder with nut trees meaning that millions of vines have been destroyed and likewise millions of nut trees.

This is a serious loss, the despatch adds, because the destroyed property was not that of wealthy landlords, but numerous small farmers who had invested most of their savings in this property.

Relief Work

Re-habitation and relief work in the section devastated by the flow of lava in the eruption of Mount Etna went forward to-day.

American Amabssador Child visited the region and investigated the situation.

Premier Mussolini has returned to Rome, but other goverment officials are remaining until the situation is improved.

Commander Perera, General delegate of the U.S. Red Cross, conferred with Senator Ciraolo, and it was agreed that relief funds collected in the United States would be repaid by subscription.

The lava stream is still slowly advancing.

Cold Wave Follows Volcanic Eruption.

CATANIA, June 23.—(Canadian Press).—The Mount Etna refugees are hard hit by the cold wave which is sweeping the country. Warm clothing, part of the remaining war stocks, is being sent here by the Italian Red Cross for the fugitives from the stricken zone.

Temperance Men Admit Wet Victory Bad Blow to Cause

TORONTO, June 23.—(Canadian Press).—Temperance leaders in Toronto candidly admitted that the wet victory in Manitoba was a blow to the cause, though they had felt for some time past that there had been a re-action in Manitoba sentiment.

A variety of opinions were voiced regarding the cause of the wet win, and one of the chief of these was the fact that since Manitoba went dry there has been no active temperance organization, such as the Dominion Alliance, working in Manitoba. The drys had got the law on the statute books, they said, and then sat down to watch it work, leaving all dry propaganda to social service, which had a dozen other things to do.

DELORME CASE THIS MORNING

Sisters Give Evidence—Defence Will Recall a Witness.

MONTREAL, June 23, Canadian Press. — The Delorme case was resumed this morning. Prior to calling Lily Delorme to the witness box, R. L. Calder, K.C., Crown Prosecutor, announced that Miss Rosa Delorme would be recalled by the defence. He asked that she be ordered to remain in the building until re-summoned. The court granted the order.

Lily Delorme, half sister to the accused and a full sister of the dead youth, Raoul, related her knowledge of events which transpired on her way home on the day of the murder, January 6, 1921.

She told of having seen Raoul leave the house at 2.30 p.m. He was fully dressed, but she did not notice whether he wore any rubbers.

Mr. Calder — "Had he an overcoat on when he left?"

Witness — "I did not notice, but he must have, as it was very cold out."

Mr. Calder — "Did you actually see him leave the house and walk along the street?"

"Yes, I noticed him particularly, I remarked to my sister Rosa, 'Look at Raoul! He is walking along like a policeman!' He walked towards St. Catharine street."

"And you mean to say that you noticed how he walked yet didn't notice whether he wore an overcoat?"

"Well, I didnt notice him; he was supposedly going to theatre and was expected back for supper."

NEW EXAMINATIONS WILL NOT BE GIVEN

Circumstances Surrounding the Theft of McGill Examination Papers Are Being Investigated.

MONTREAL, June 23.—(Canadian Press).—No new papers will be set to replace those already written for the McGill matriculation, it was decided at the meeting of the matriculation and school-leaving boards held here yesterday afternoon at McGill University, when the circumstances surrounding the theft of the examination papers were investigated. All students who know anything about the matter are asked to go to the head of their schools and tell just what facts they are in possession of. It is hoped they will regard this as a point of honor, Sir Arthur Currie, Principal of McGill University, said. The investigation will be continued until those guilty are apprehended and the matter is entirely cleared up.

ANOTHER SPEED RECORD ON BRINY DEEP ESTABLISHED

Liner Leviathan Reduces Time of Ocean Trip From America to Europe—Relegates Mauretania to Second Place

ABOARD S.S. LEVIATHAN, June 23 (By Wireless to the United Press). — The re-conditioned American liner Leviathan captured another speed record to-day.

At 8.17 a.m. the Leviathan had run 25 hours at an average speed of 27.48 knots an hour, breaking the previous world's record of 25.02 knots an hour, held by the British Cunard liner Mauretania.

The Leviathan's time was made during the same hours of the day as the Mauretania, which established its mark on 25th and 26th January, 1911.

MONAGHAN WILL APPEAL REPORT OF VALUATORS

THE CHANGES

Monaghan will

The valuators' report on the equalized assessment of the county was adopted by the County Council in committee Friday afternoon after a prolonged discussion.

Four votes were registered against it, the dissenters being Reeve Rye and Deputy Reeve Lillico of North Monaghan, Reeve Montgomery of Norwood and Reeve Eason of Otonabee.

"We shall appeal, that's all, if this is adopted," declared Reeve Rye just before the division was called. Earlier in the afternoon he made an emphatic protest against the action of the valuators in the large increase they had applied to Monaghan's assessment under equalization. The total increase over the whole county was $387,376 of which $211,195, or 52 per cent. of the total, was tacked on to Monaghan.

Reeve Montgomery of Norwood, urged the Council to consider what, he said, was a disparity between the equalized assessments of the three villages, Norwood, Lakefield and Havelock. On the basis of that comparison he declared that Norwood's assessment should be lowered if justice were to be done to that village.

One Valuator Present.

Only one of three valuators reponded to the Council's request to appear before them. Mr. P. J. McNulty, of Asphodel, explained the work of himself and colleagues in appraising the assessments of the county. He intimated that he had anticipated, from some rather sharp comments reported in the press, that the Council was chiefly perturbed about the remuneration the valuators had received. He compared the allowance with that of five years ago and stated that the county's appointees had made practically no profit out of their work after they had paid the high travelling expenses charged to-day.

After lightly touching on that point, Mr. McNulty proceeded with a review of the valuation. In regard to the assessment of North Monaghan Mr. McNulty said one house that was assessed by the municipality for $970 was held for sale at $5,000, and other properties in the same district near the city showed similar differences.

Reeve Rye argued that the township had to bear heavy relief charges for the care of people living in that part of the township adjoining the city. That expenditure should

The Lost is Found By the Examiner

A lady in East City lost a purse containing a sum of money. An advertisement in The Examiner restored it to her next day.

A farmer seeking lost cattle, instead of spending time and energy in racing over the country in pursuit, inserted a Lost Ad in the Examiner pages. Next day, they were returned to him.

No matter what is may be, whether running around on the hoof or an inanimate object without life, if you lose it, and advertise in The Examiner, it will come back to you.

SMALL FRUITS LOCAL MARKET

Home-grown berries made their appearance on the farmers' market this morning. Several of the carts had small quantities of them, at a general price of 30 cents a box. One man was selling a small supply at 25 cents a box. A. Stenson of North Monaghan, had a quantity and upstairs, Melville Johnston, of North Monaghan, was selling his large, ripe fruit at 35 cents. Growers reported that theer are expectations of a good crop, although in some districts, berries have not yet begun to redden.

Potatoes, fairly plentiful, are still a dollar a bag, generally, one man selling his supply at 95 cents. Little pigs are $11 apair. Rhubarb, green onions and lettuce were much in view, giving a cool note to the hot atmosphere, and cabbage plants were 15 cents apiece.

Butter and eggs and fowl were very plentiful. Butter ranged in price from 28 to 35 cents a pound, and eggs from 20 to 28 cents a dozen. Year old birds were selling at 25 and 30 cents a pound.

Gooseberries here were 15 cents a quart, and asparagus was two bunches for a quarter. One lady had salad dressing in half pint and pint containers, at 15 and 30 cents.

Flowers were much in evidence, gorgeous bouquets at 35 cents, containing sweet william, garden heliotrope and sword grass, cream and mauve iris, blazing red peonies and lemon lilies. Bunches of pale pink lady slipper were 20 cents. The first sweet peas were in, from Joseph Grierson's East city garden.

A patent-medicine dealer on the open square, accompanied by a youth whose head was veiled in mosquito netting, addressed his audience as "neighbors," and dilated on the charms of his "liquid electricity," which was said to be a cure-all for headache, neuralgia, lumbago, indigestion and sundry other ailments.

CATTLE WILL BE LATE

LONDON, June 23.—(Canadian Press Cable).—In connection with the arrival at Cardiff, Wales, of the first direct consignment of 240 Canadian store cattle, it is stated that the Canadian Government Mercantile Marine steamer "Canadian Leader" with the beasts aboard, is not expected to dock until June 27 or 28.

The Normal School Had a Geod Picnic

The out-going pupils of the Normal School and the staff of teachers, enjoyed their yearly outing on the water yesterday, voyaging as far as Burleigh and the head of the lake, and returning about 6 o'clock last evening, with luncheon and supper served on board.

The weather man smiled on the Normalites yesterday. The rain that usually mars their outing was conspicuous by its absence. According to Mr. D. Walker, this is the fifth good day in an era of Normal School excursions stretching over a period of 15 years.

BELGUIM FEELS EFFECT OF THE RUHR PROBLEM

Solution Hangs Fire Dangerously, and Each Day Sees France Further Isolated.

PROVISIONAL NOTE

(By H. N. Moore).

LONDON, June 23. — (United Press). — I have it on reliable authority that Marquis Curzon will resign as soon as the question of reparations and the various problems before the Lausanne Conference are settled, unless indeed the state of his health forces him to retire earlier. The Foreign Office may then be offered to Viscount Grey, despite his Liberal affiliations and in view of his wife's desire that he should again assume Cabinet rank, he would probably accept.

Meanwhile the solution of the Ruhr problem is hanging fire dangerously owing to the French efforts to pin Belgium to a firm acceptance of her policy. Belgium is feeling the effect of the Ruhr occupation upon her trade, and the necessity of extending the period of service of a large number of troops for some ten or fourteen months in the face of Socialist opposition places the Government in an embarassing position.

Every day's delay in replying to the German note sees France further isolated from her allies, and it is more probable that Belgium will join Britain and Italy than again submit to French dictation.

Lord Curzon is understood to be preparing a provisional reply, which may be sent early next week, unless the French attitude is officially disclosed.

REPLY SEPARATELY.

PARIS, June 23. Canadian Press. —The British ambassador, Lord Crowe, yesterday suggested to Premier Poincare, that France reply separately to the British note on the Reparations without waiting for a settlement of the difficulty with Belgium.

Lord Crowe suggested that while Great Britain did not want to rush negotiations such a French reply would enable the Belgian government to solve its domestic problems without the complications attending the necessity of making a decision on international affairs.

Premier Poincare's reply was a flat rejection of Lord Crowes' proposal.

Poincare maintained that if France proceeded without Belgian sanction the action would create the impression in Brussels that France did not think the Belgian Premier strong to ake such a decision.

BOYS RESCUED PAL WHO FELL INTO A HOLE

Firemen Responded With the Lung Motor But It Was Not Necessary to Use It.

COULD NOT SWIM

After spending 15 minutes in the waters of the Trent Canal yesterday evening at Carlyle street, with no knowledge of swimming, Maxwell Louis Laidley, who resides at the corner of Hilliard and McClennan streets, was rescued by companions.

Young Laidley, who is 16 years of age, thought that although he could not swim, he would be safe while his companions were there, and followed them in diving into the canal. When he attempted to stand up he found that he was in a hole.

A boy named Markwick of 324 Euclid avenue, G. Butcher and H. Haywood, succeeded in bringing him to the shore where they immediately applied artificial respiration.

The fire department was called on to take the pulmotor but on arrival at the scene of the accident they found that owing to the good work of the three young boys their services were not needed. They took young Laidley to the fire hall and kept him there until he had fully recovered.

Civil Service Needs a Superannuation Scheme.

OTTAWA, June 23.—(Canadian Press).—"The adoption of a superannuation scheme would remove one of the greatest deterrents to efficiency and should be adopted at the earliest possible date." This is a recommendation in the final report of the parliamentary committee on the Civil Service which was tabled in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon. The report, which is signed by James Malcolm, Liberal member for North Bruce, chairman of the committee is divided into two parts. The first part consists of 16 suggested amendments to the civil service act of 1918, under which the service now function. The second relates more particularly to the service and less to the act.

In the second part, the committee recommends among other things that the Civil Service Commission be given power to establish advisory boards on which employees would have representation, to advise on matters connected with classification, promotion, dismissal, salary revision etc. It state, that there should be a salary revision and adjustment with out delay. It also recommends the continuance of the practice of giving preference to returned soldiers in appointments.

SIX OFFICIALS OF THE L. R. STEEL COMPANY TO FACE INDICTMENTS

ONE NO-BILL.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 23. — (Canadian Press.)— Grand Jury indictments against six former officers and directors of the defunct L. R. Steel Corporation, were reported, and five of the indicted officials arraigned before Justice Hinkley in Supreme Court after a week of investigation conducted before the jury by District Attorney Guy B. Moore and Deputy Attorney General Hugh Reilly.

All five of the defendants arraigned pleaded NOT guilty and were admitted to bail Two of the indictments reported were secret. The defendant named in one of them appeared in court and was arraigned with those in the four open indictments. The sixth official indicted has not yet been before the court. It was reported that he would probably appear for arraignment Monday. One no-bill was returned by the jury.

Indicted and arraigned yesterday were: Walter M. Wilkins, former General Counsel for the Steel Companies, and head of the L. R. Steel Corporation when it was thrown into bankruptcy on April 30, shortly after the sudden death of Leonard R. Steel on a train near Toledo, charged with receiving commissions in violation of a section of the State Corporation Laws relative to stock sales.

Paul F. Chase, former head of the L. R. Steel Service Corporation, indicted on four counts of grand larceny in connection with the sale of Steel stock.

Arthur J. Todd, former Superintendent of Branches of the L. R. Steel Service Corporation, indicted on three counts of grand larceny in connection with the acceptance of commissions.

James R. Nicholson, former Treasurer of L .R. Steel Company, and a director of several of the companies, charged with receiving commissions in violation of the corporation laws.

Francis J. Roper, former president of the Steel Realty Development Company, appeared in court and pleaded NOT guilty to accepting commissions in violation of the law.

Chase and Todd were held in $7,500 bail each. Wilkins, Nicholson and Roper were admitted to bail in $1,000 each.

Gerald K. Rudolph, former director of L. R. Steel Publicity, and a director of the Mary Lincoln Candy Shops, who was before the Grand Jury during the investigation, was voted a no-bill .Mr. Rudolph said he not connected with the Steel enterprise at the time of the crash.

The Grand Jury included in its report a special statement to the court in which it commended Attorney-General Carl Sherman, "for instituting and carrying out" the investigation. It also commended Deputy Attorney General Hugh Riley, District Attorney Guy B. Moore, and Assistant District Attorneys Rowlands and Hofheim for the development of evidence and its presentation before the jury.

Owing to the proximity of the summer recess, it was indicated that none of the defendants would be brought to trial before the fall term of the court.

Leonard R. Steel surrendered the presidency of L. R. Steel, Inc., the L. R. Steel Service Corporation, and the L. R. Steel Realty Development Comapny, on January 27 last, and placed his stock holdings in these and a group of subsidiary concerns in the hands of an executive board.

On March 8, twenty corporations comprising the Steel interests were placed in the hands of receivers by Federal Judge John R. Hazel, and on April 30, L. R. Steel, Inc., was thrown into bankruptcy on petition of credtiors

Prior to the bankruptcy petition, Attorney General Carl Sherman had, on March 21, ordered an investigation of the stock selling and financial methods of the L. R. Steel Corporation, which resulted in yesterday's indict. The day following the announcement of the Attorney General's investigation, Leonard R. Steel died suddenly on a train near Toledo en route from Buffalo to Chicago.

The Steel financial star ascended rapidly from the investment of a small amount of capital in 1919. Mr. Steel personally directed advertising and stock selling campaigns in Canada and the United States and disposed of stock estimated in the neighborhood of $25,000,000 in L. R. Steel, Inc. ,and in various subsidiary companies. The founder, his associates said, ruled the destinies of the vast Steel interests in Canada and the United States, with a high hand and branched out into many enterprises, including chain stores, restaurants, cafetarias, a coal mine, and a permanent international exposition at Niagara Falls, which never advanced beyond the blue print stage, but which was reported to have absorbed $180,000.

Steel financial methods were attacked by financial experts, but it was not until three years later that the first signs of distress became apparent and Mr. Steel surrendered the presidency of the parent and several subsidiary organizations. He was said at that time to be broken in health and to have retired virtually penniless except for his stock in his $25,000,000 corporation.

A LIBERAL RALLY OMEMEE VILLAGE

L. V. O'Connor Receives a Promising Welcome — Issues of Day Discussed.

OMEMEE, June 23.—A fair audience greeted the Liberal candidate Mr. L. V. O'Connor, supporters in Coronation Hall on Thursday evening. Mr. Jeff. Widdis made a very able chairman.

Mr. Dewart was the first speaker and he strongly criticized the Drury Government for their reckless expenditure of the public money, and also for increasing the public debt during their four years of office. He reviewed the chief features of the Shelvin-Clarke deal, the lumber commission and in fact scored both the present government and the preceding one.

Mr. Meehan of Lindsay favored the audience with a vocal selection also an encore both of which were well rendered.

Dr. White of Lindsay who needed no introduction to Omemee citizens was the next speaker. He had not come to dictate to the people how to vote but to quietly and frankly discuss the questions of the day the policy and the planks of the Liberal platform. "I am a Liberal" the speaker said, and proud to belong to a party formerly headed by Hon. Sir George Brown. Hon. Sir Oliver Mowatt, Hon. Geo. W. Ross and Hon. Sir Wilfred Laurier." He here criticized the timber limit deals and Mr. Ferguson, and paid a glowing tribute to Mr. Drury as to his honesty. We have a perfect right to criticize but let us not abuse by mud-slinging and let us stop these unkind unjust, personal criticisms of our opponents. He referred to the increased expenditure adding that it is absolutely impossible for any one class of doctors, lawyers, farmers or any one rank of person to legislate for all other interests in the province. Two parties are likely to assure better government than when the house is divided into three or our groups.

Educating System

Dr. White then referred to the Educational system of Ontario, he him self having always been closely connected with it. And he says that while Ontario has a lot of noted teachers who deserve appreciation for the services rendered is not anything to be proud of. The text books he claimed, have not the high standard of morality as in former days and neither are the poems written of so high a standard.

Referring to the O.T.A. issue, he said he had always been a hearty supporter of Temperance having made a house to house canvass for prohibition; and he was pleased to state that the candidate is also a prohibitionist. A straighter man. than Mr. O'Connor will never stand in shoe leather and if elected in this riding he will look after all interests to the best of his ability.

A Warm Welcome

Mr. L. V. O'Connor, who had just arrived from a meeting at Frank Hill was then warmly welcomed. He also needed so introduction, being well known in this vicinity and trusts that his many friends will give him a square deal on the 25th While many candidates count the campaign a hardship he had enjoyed it and in fact it had been a holiday for him. All candidates are trying to do their part to build up a good strong nation, he said. The speaker here went on to say there had been no mud-slinging from him during the contest and if defeated he will be able to meet either of his opponents after the election and say "We have lost a good clean fight."

Mr. O'Connor's address was most ly a repitition of the former speakers he having not heard them. He is strongly in favor of good roads, but thought it an unnecessary expense to build them 80 feet wide. He also briefly referred to the hotel commission, the embargo and also government commissions on matters which he declared, should be settled in Parliament without causing unnecessary expense. In conclusion the speaker asked for the loyal support of the citizens on Monday next. "Why not get back to the old two-party system and assure good administration in the interest of all."

TOO DIFFICULT TO ESTABLISH WHEAT BOARD

Premiers of Alberta and Saskatchewan Reach Conclusion After Extended Season.

FUTURE UNCERTAIN.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 23. — (Canadian Press).—After prolonged conferences and negotiations, the Premiers of Alberta and Saskatchewan have reached the conclusion that it is not possible to form a satisfactory wheat board. This decision is concurred in by representatives of the farmers' organizations who have been in conference here during the week with Hon. C. A. Dunning, Premier of Saskatchewan, and Hon. Herbert Greenfield, Premier of Alberta. Last night a statement reviewing the negotiations and announcing the abandonment of the effort to form a board was issued to the Canadian Press, with the two Premiers' signatures, who are to leave for their homes at once.

"We have found it impossible," said the statement, "to secure a board combining all necessary elements of experience, ability and public confidence."

The situation was made more difficult, it is stated, by the decision of the Manitoba Legislature to not co-operate with the Western provinces. This made it certain that trading in wheat on the Winnipeg Exchange would continue, and men who might have been available had the compulsory board applied to all three provinces, would not accept responsibility for marketing the crop of two provinces only.

Newspaper Office Was Raided By the Police.

LONDON, June 23. Canadian Press. — The police raided the offices of the Daily Herald, the Labor organ last night, and held the members of the staff for an hour while while they searched for the original and all copies of the picture of the Submarine X-1, which the Herald published on Wednesday.

Police officers questioned the staff as to how the picture of the new submarine which was launched at Chatham last Saturday, was obtained, and confiscated all copies of the paper containing the picture.

The Admiralty had excluded reporters and photographers from the launching of the "mystery ship" as the submarine had been called, and withheld all details with regard to the craft.

Last night's raid was carried out under the powers of the "Official Secrets Act." No information was divulged as to how the Herald obtained the picture, which is small and lacks clearness. Although the picture might possibly give some information to the technicians, it conveys little to the public.

OBITUARY

JOSEPH FORSTER.

On Monday evening, June 19th, there passed away at his home, 554 Bolivar street, a respected citizen, in the person of Mr. Joseph Forster.

The late Mr. Forster, who was born in 1843, of British parentage, was a Canadian citizen of the highest type, and took intense interest in everything pertaining to the welfare and growth of Canada. For nineteen years he occupied the position of member of the council of the Township of North Monaghan. He was for six years a councillor, thirteen years Reeve, to which office he was returned eleven years by acclamation, and was warden on two different occasions. For a number of years he was on the Trustee board of S. S. No. 3.

In his religious life also, of which his secular duties were but a reflection, he was always about his Master's business. With other men of kindred spirit, he was instrumental in building the Charlotte street Methodist church and had the unique experience of being present at the opening service and also at the last service which marked the closing of the church. He served for a number of years on the church's Quarterly Board.

On June 14th, 1870, he married Miss Bella Lillico, and on June 14th, 1920, they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary . His widow and daughter, Mrs. Harold Baptie Edith) of Springville, are left to mourn his loss.

The acid test of every man's life is the estimate of his neighbors and in their expressions of sympathy and sorrow they show that they feel a friend has passed from their midst, who was a Christian gentleman, and whose every act inspired men to a noble life. It is comforting to reflect that those who knew him best can speak most highly of his many excellent qualities of mind and heart. —(Contributed.)

Andrew Bonar Law's Health Not Serious.

LONDON, June 23 (Canadian Press). — Contrary to reports which have been circulated that former Premier Bonar Law's ly serious, it was stated at his condition was growing increasingly serious, it was stated at his home yesterday afternoon that his health was giving no cause for worriment.

"He is getting along very well indeed," an inquirer at the residence was informed.

E. N. M'DONALD HELD MEETING

Addressed a Large Body of Electors in Norwood Last Evening.

(Contributed)

NORWOOD, June 23.—Norwood Town Hall was well filled on Friday evening with citizens from village and country to hear the last discussion of provincial affairs in present campaign by Mr. E. N. McDonald government candidate. and other speakers.

Mr. John Elliott acted as chairman

The most sensational remarks of the campaign were sprung by Mr. McDonald, who took up the timber question from a local standpoint as related to the Monteith Pulp Co., which he stated was one of the companies given timber limits with out competition by the late Conservative government, and of which company Mr. James Thompson ex-M.P.P., for East Peterboro was president. Mr. McDonald said he had never intended to mention the Monteith affair if Mr. Thompson had not come into the riding to oppose him. Mr. McDonald substantiated his statement by reading a tele gram from Mr. H. Wallace, Deputy Minister of the Department of Forests, and also quoting the editorial reference in Friday's Toronto Globe Mr. McDonald stated that on Sept. 2, 1919 the Monteith Pulp Co. had by agreement been granted rights on 18 square miles of timber limits by Hon. Mr. Ferguson's department. This agreement was cancelled after the U.F.O. Government came into power. Mr. McDonald read the tele gram which stated that the Monteith Company had been granted cutting rights on 18 square miles in the Temiskaming district without public competition. The prices of the agreement including timber dues were 80c per cord for Spruce pulpwood; 40c for other pulpwood; 12c for railway ties; $10 per M for lumber and a cash deposit of $1000; Mr. Thompson's company to pay ground rental and give fire protection. In April 1920 Minister of Forests ruled that permission could not be then issued to carry out the agreement and it was cancelled. If the cancellation had not occurred Mr. McDonald stated that Mr. Thompson's Company would have found itself in live with the Shelvin-Clarke Co., for investigation. This cancelled property Mr. McDonald stated was afterwards offered for sale by public competition, and the Monteith Pulp Co. given an opportunity to tender which they did not. The Holt Lake Co., of Monteith purchased it paying a cash deposit of $3000 and giving besides bonds to the extent of $6000 to provide against non-payment of Crown timber dues. The prices including dues were: White Pine, $13.50 per M; Jack Pine $8.00 per M; Spruce $7.00 per M; Spruce Pulp wood $1.30 cord; other pulpwood 65c cord; together with ground rental and fire protection charges to be paid by the Company.

Mr. McDonald argued that the increased prices received by Mr. Beniah Bowman for the property, showed the Department was more efficiently managed than under Hon. Mr. Ferguson. "You've heard all about the other timber deals, here's a company you know something about," said Mr. McDonald. "I would not file on a homestead or do two days' work on a highway, when your representative," said Mr. McDonald. "Im not going to make any bargains with the Department."

Denies Statement.

Mr. McDonald also made denials of certain statements made at Norwood by the Hon. Mr. Ferguson. On the latter's criticism of the sixteen million Provincial bond sale, Mr. McDonald said that the price received by the government was 94.18, and not 92, as stated by Mr. Ferguson and they were not sold by the dealers for 100, but 96.38 "After careful financing these bonds are to-day worth 107.75, said Mr. McDonald.

He also referred to the challenge made to Mr. J. E. Humphries, of Campbellford to meet him at the meeting, but stated the latter said, he was too busy in his own riding. "Not too busy' to speak here tomorrow night, as his name appears on the hills," said Mr. McDonald.

The Debt Charges.

Mr. McDonald replied to the debt charges, giving figures that of the 244 millions of debt 152½ millions was revenue producing, being invested in the T. N. O. Railway, Hydro-Electric development, drainage and housing schemes.

After deducting some 16 millions cash in the bank from land sale, 8 millions succession duties, etc, the debt not revenue producing really only stood at $64,564,339, stated Mr. McDonald.

Speaking on Good Roads expenditures, Mr. McDonald said he found

CANADA WILL NOT ENFORCE LAWS OF U.S.

Clearance Papers Will Be Given to Ships Carrying Liquor For Export to United States Ports.

NO SPECIAL PERMITS.

WASHINGTON. June 23.—(Canadian Government has informed the United States State Department, through a note from the British Ambassador here, of its inability to adopt the suggestion put forward by the Department last March that clearance papers be declined to vessels with cargoes of liquor destined to ports in the United States unless a permit authorizing its importation was presented.

The Department in announcing yesterday receipt of the note explained that it had addressed a note to the British Ambassador for transmission to the Canadian authorities drawing their attention to the difficulties experienced in enforcing the prohibition laws of the United States along the Canadian border.

It was pointed out that the Canadian authorities permitted small motor boats to take on cargoes of liquor and to make regular customs clearances to ports in the United States, thus complying with the Canadian law which prohibits the sale of liquors to persons in Canada, but allows the exportation to a foreign country.

It was suggested that since the importation of liquor into the United States without a permit was illegal, the officials might be disposed to decline clearance papers to vessels with cargoes of liquor destined to ports in the United States unless permits authorizing importation were presented.

The reply of the Canadian Government through the British Ambassador, received Tuesday, said it had carefully investigated the matter and had ascertained that the provisions of the law were being properly observed. It was further stated that the export of liquor from Canada was not prohibited and there existed no provisions in the customs laws or regulations warranting refusal of clearance papers to vessels carrying liquor destined fo a foreign port, simply because its entry without special permits is prohibited

MANITOBA HAS GONE WET BY A SWEEPING WINNIPEG MAJORITY

Moderation League Satisfied With the Result—Winnipeg Turns in a Large Majority.

RESULT INCOMPLETE

WINNIPEG, June 23.—(Canadian Press.)— Manitoba has gone "wet" by a sweeping majority, which went beyond 30,000 in Winnipeg city, and which was going up slowly as the country was heard from. The bill of the Moderation League was endorsed and the policy of prohibition represented by Manitoba Temperance Act, law of the province for seven years, was overturned.

The weather also was wet, and a violent electrical rain storm which swept the city at ten o'clock, drove bulletin crowds to cover, darkened newspaper offices and hampered seriously collection and compilation of returns. It had been shown, however, that the country had reversed its traditional policy of "dryness" and appeared to be voting fairly evenly, while the city, which voted wet in the important referendum of 1920 by about 7,000, rolled up tremendous majorities in almost every poll and almost tripled that figure.

Prohibition workers admitted by ten o'clock that their cause had met a decisive defeat. They were surprised and disappointed at the showing from rural polls and smaller towns and at the size of the majority in Winnipeg. Moderation League workers expressed gratification and pointed out that they had claimed a campaign in sentiment throughout the province.

Returns compiled early this morning showed a majority in the province for the Moderation Bill of 31,196. Nearly all country constituencies were incomplete and from several no returns whatever nad been received. An electrical storm had occurred in many districts, interrupting telegraph and telephone lines.

Of the total majority for the "wets," 25,732 was secured in Winnipeg and 5,464 in country districts, so far as reported. It will be some days before complete figures for the province are available, but it is estimated that the majority at that time will be close to 30,000.

NO PLACE FOR SANITARIUM.

MOOSE JAW, June 23—(Canadian Press). — The University of Saskatchewan Board of Governors yesterday afternoon refused to allow the Provincial Government to erect the new $250,000 tuberculosis sanitarium on the University campus. Last week the City Council offered a site on a down-town park, but vetoed the decision when the ratepayers rose in protest.

TO OPEN TWO SCHOOLS.

EDMONTON, June 23.—(Canadian Press).—That only two the Provincial schools of agriculture will be opened next fall is definitely announced by the Minister in the calendar of the Alberta Farmng Colleges for 1923-24, which has just been issued. These two schools will be the Olds and Clareshom institutions, it having been decided to close Vermilion and Raymond in addition to Gleichen and Youngstown, already on the suspended list.

WHEAT IN GOOD SHAPE.

BRANDON, Man., June 23. — (Canadian Press).—A good rain that was general in Brandon district on Thursday proved most beneficial to the crops, which were in need of moisture. Wheat is looking fine and should soon be in head. The coarse grains are coming along rapidly, and fodder crops are in splendid condition.

Company Formed to Look After Estate.

LONDON, June 23. Canadian Press. — Like a number of landed proprietors, Viscount Novar, Secretary for Scotland, has formed a company for the management and development of his estates in the direction of building, afforestation, working the mines and quarries, and the acquisition of fresh water fishing rights. The Viscount and his wife are the principal subscribers to the registration of the company.

Election News

TORONTO, June 23 (Canadian Press). — With balloting in Ontario elections in full swing within forty-eight hours, candidates for Legislature are to-day putting forward all their eleventh-hour effort toward success.

In most constituencies meetings and platform talking is all over, and political argument to-day is principally of the "over-the-ience or the front verandah variety."

Hon. Howard Ferguson, the Conservative leader, was scheduled to return to his own riding of Grenville to-day, but changed his plans so as to speak in Hamilton to-night, in the interests of the Conservative candidates for Hamilton and Wentworth.

Party organisers and leaders are to-day trying to gauge the probable influence on their respective prospects of the swing yesterday of Manitoba towards the "wet" policy of Government control and ownership of the liquor traffic.

It is agreed that the result of the Referendum in the neighbouring Province will focus some of the attention of the Ontario electorate on the Ontario Temperance Act and the relation of the various parties to that measure.

All of the three principal parties in the campaign, however, are pledged to rigid enforcement of the Act until repealed by the vote of the people.

CONDITIONS ON WALL STREET MUCH BETTER

Powerful Banking Interests Have Come Forward to Stabalize the Money Markets.

PRICES WERE UP.

NEW YORK, June 23. Canadian Press. — Wall street, shaken to the depths by the string of failures and the resultant loss of public confidence which followed disclosures of widespread bucketing of customers' orders, breathed its first long breath in a week yesterday when powerful banking interests stepped into the breach to stabilize the market.

While the banking support was confined to brokerage houses holding membership in the New York Stock Exchange, the strength infused into that market carried prices up on both the Consolidated and the Curb exchanges, and a marked spirit of optimism prevailed. The rushing to cover by shorts aided in the strengthening process. It could not be discovered whether a pool had been formed to support the market and save the brokers from the disastrous runs like the ones that overcame the Stock Exchange houses of Knauth, Nachod and Kuhne, and Zimmerman and Forshay.

Conditions on the Consolidated Exchange also appeared much brighter yesterday, partly as a result of the announcement yesterday that W. S. Silkworth, Exchange President who had been connected unpleasantly with firms that had failed, had decided to resign, and that the Exchange would be thoroughly reorganized under a new president, Lawrence Tweedy, the present Vice-President of the Consolidated.

Indeed the reorganization apparently started yesterday with the expulsion from membership of P. G. Stamm, of P. G. Stamm and Company, who was alleged to have failed to appear before the Board of Governers Thursday to answer to a charge of fictitious trading.

There were no outstanding developments in the Curb Market situation yesterday.

SATURDAY, JUNE 23, 1923.

JUST A LAST WORD.

The campaign is almost over, and so far as West Peterborough is concerned it ha been a clean fight, devoid of mud-slinging and personalities.

For this the candidates and their organizations deserve thanks.

The manifold issues have been discussed at length, with tonight's rallies the last word will have been said, and on Monday the result of these weeks of speech-making and vote-hunting will be ascertained.

The electors have the last word; they have been talked at for many days, but their turn comes on Monday, and it is to be hoped that nothing will prevent them from taking advantage of the privilege that belongs to them, the privilege of deciding by votes the composition of the next Provincial Government.

To the voters of both sexes, the Examiner respectfully suggests as a last message in the campaign that they accept the responsibility cheerfully and willingly and make sure that their votes are registered.

Let no petty excuses keep you away from the polling booth—your duty is clear and the ordinary routine should be suspended long enough to enable you to mark your ballot.

Find out tonight—if you don't already know—where you vote, and do your part on Monday.

Let it not be said of West Peterborough, at least, that only a minority of voters had public spirit enough to do their duty.

BEWARE OF ROORBACHS!

In warning the people of Ontario against roorbachs in the Provincial campaign, Premier Drury was justified in issuing such advice.

With a Sunday intervening before election day, and consequently no newspapers available to give explanations or denials, a last-minute election rumour could be given a wide circulation over the week-end, and while the responsible leaders of the various parties would not stoop to the roorbach method of electioneering, there is always the danger that misguided followers may not prove so scrupulous.

The Examiner passes the Premier's warning on to its readers, pointing out at the same time that voters should remember that were there any important revelations to be made they would have been given publicity long since by those who might hope to make capital out of such things.

Therefore, any new story detrimental to any of the parties or candidates that may be circulating tomorrow can be dismissed as most unlikely to be true.

The elector who is credulous enough to believe any sensational rumour that may be floated in the last few hours of the campaign should not have a vote at all.

And yet because there is a chance that voters may be misled by roorbachs it seems necessary to issue a general warning against this kind of campaigning.

Be very dubious about believing eleventh-hour stories—in ninety-nine cases out of one hundred they are lies.

THE PETERBOROUGH INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.

The County Council in its attitude towards the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, as emphasized by the meagre grant voted, seems to have utterly failed to realize that the big exhibition is a county affair and has a quite different status from the other annual fall fairs held throughout the county.

The object of the directors is to make it a county fair such as are held in various States across the line—and the progress made in this direction might have been expected to secure for the exhibition the enthusiastic support of the county government.

On the contrary, the members of the County Council refuse to consider the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition as anything but the same footing as the Norwood Fair, making the same grant, a meagre $175, to both institutions.

The directors asked for a special grant of $2,000 in view of extensive additions to the plant and further accommodation for livestock exhibits.

There are improvements that have been needed and are justified by the large increase in entries and in the general growth of the exhibition.

The county fathers have shut their eyes to the strides made by the annual event and have been satisfied to dole out less than one-tenth of the sum for which they were asked.

Evidently the spirit of co-operation so necessary to ensure the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition reaching the prominence aimed at by the directors has not invaded the county body.

SESSIONAL INDEMNITIES.

Miss Agnes MacPhail, the only woman member of the House of Commons, who was expected to provide Parliament with considerable fireworks, but who has failed hitherto to produce anything sensational, has at last landed on the target with a resolution that the sessional indemnities of the members should be reduced from $4,000 to $3,500.

Needless to say, the motion was not carried—in fact it got support from only one member, Harry Lawson, M.P., who last year made a similar attempt on his own part to reduce the indemnities.

Miss MacPhail doubtless thinks that if a woman member could get along all right on $3,500 a session, all other rulers of the country should have no difficulty in keeping their heads above water.

Somehow or other, no matter how keen a member of Parliament may be for economy, how anxious he may be to demand that the pruning knife be used vigorously upon expenditure, or how eagerly he calls for the Treasury lid to be nailed down, he finds the greatest difficulty in convincing himself that a good place to start his economy campaign is right at home.

He can see many reasons why the rural mail carriers, for example, should be paid by the old contract system, rather than given a fair day's pay for a fair day's work.

But when it comes to a question of the member's own salary it is another and quite different matter.

Miss MacPhail must have known that, and it is not unfair to suggest that her resolution was little more than a gesture that would look good to the electors at home, and at the same time would be negatived by the House.

If the people of Canada were to be the jury to decide the amounts to be paid, the result might be considerably different.

"IS THIS HOT ENOUGH FOR YOU?"—KILL HIM.

The jolly old Senate stands fast in its redoubt in defence of the last remnants of the exclusiveness of the Criminal Code, says the Ottawa Journal. It declines to permit the righteous and moral Commons to transform the Code into a bulwark for the decalogue and the moral law. It foils amendment after amendment as they are sent over from the Green and immature Chamber.

But there is an amendment that might be made to the Criminal Code that would bring benefit to the land at large, not merely meet the prejudice of a moral minority. We propose the addition of a clause to the Code making it an indictable offence to indicate by word or gesture disloyalty to or displeasure with the benign providence that regulates our weather. We are persuaded that this would make for the greater comfort of our people, would fortify their hardy virtues.

Under the amendment to the Criminal Code as we would frame it any outward sign of treasonable thought or feeling toward the dispenser of our weather would be sufficient to invoke the machinery of the law. The mopping of neck or bald head in a street car or other public place should warrant arrest. So also should the unconcealed interference or attempted interference with the seasonably adhesive tendencies of blouses, especially when such movements are accompanied by frowns of discomfort or signs of collapse. The assertion: "Ohhh, I'm hawe-awe-t" coupled with a drooping look should be prima facie evidence of guilt. Salutations and greetings taking the form of requests for confirmation of preconceived opinions as to the prevailing temperature would expose the offender to summons before a magistrate.

In short the object of the proposed legislation is to restrain and prevent public display of the reactions of temperature on the people, to forbid one citizen from offending or boring another by disclosing his real or imaginary feelings under the influence of sun or frost. We hold that this is a much needed reform containing possibility of immeasurable boon to the public and that it might well be considered by the Senate in these waning hours of the session.

WHY WAKE UP ASIA?

The Prime Minister is well advised in encouraging Mr. Jacobs (Cartier division) to bring up the question of the political status of the natives of British India now domiciled in Canada. It is to be hoped when Mr. Jacobs presents his case that members of Parliament sitting for constituencies east of the Rocky Mountains will not pursue their usual course and turn an indifferent shoulder to what they are all too apt to regard as exclusively a British Columbia issue.

It is true that British Columbia is more concerned than any other Province. This is for two reasons—one that is ever present in the minds of the British Columbians, and another of which they apparently never think. The first is, of course, the fact that practically all of these exiled natives of British India live in British Columbia, and there form a part—though a very inert and unimportant part—of her Asiatic problem.

The other reason is that if the policy of the British Empire—or any part of the British Empire, such as Canada—toward India, should result in the ejection of the British from India, the last and the greatest stronghold which has supported the prestige of the white race in Asia will have disappeared. The remarkable stirring of Asiatic ambition—not to say, of a budding Imperialism—which followed the defeat of Russia, a white nation, by little Japan, a yellow nation, will prove to have been a mere ripple on the surface when compared with what would happen if great "England" were to go down. "England" is the towering, majestic, impregnable, all-powerful representative of the white race in the eyes of Eastern Asia. Now that Russia is hors de combat, there is practically no other formidable white spokesman. The United States is respected for its enterprise and inventive ingenuity; but is not considered seriously as a military power.

So if the British Colossus were to be shattered in India, there would be nothing against the sky-line to prevent a general Asiatic resurgance; and if this new Mongol movement were to turn toward the East instead of toward Moscow and Delhi, the first tit-bit in its path would be precisely British Columbia.

This is the one thing of which British Columbians never seem to think.

* * * *

All that is asked is that the British Indians who are now living in British Columbia be accorded the rights of citizens, including the franchise. There are only a few of them; and if they are uninformed and possibly venal, they enjoy a monopoly of these political virtues, even in British Columbia.

It seems a small thing to carry such dread consequences. But the situation in India is peculiar. Even the agitators against British rule—who are only a fraction of the agitators for better treatment of the Indians—have practically no home grievances, except that they fall short of full control of the power of the purse. Their sentimental grievances are all overseas. Moreover, they are all in the Overseas Dominions and not in Great Britain. They say: "The British come out here and talk of us being citizens like themselves in the British Empire; but look at the way that Canada, Australia and South Africa treat us when we go there. That shows what a lie it is to pretend that we are 'British citizens'." And every experienced public man knows that the sentimental grievance is far more inflaming than the practical.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

There seems to have been more firing than casualties about the Battle of Fergus.

The campaign ends Monday, but the effects last throughout four years. That is why every elector should study the situation and be ready to vote.

The names of those who attended the last night party continue to form the great mystery of the campaign.

Don't let hot weather stop you voting on Monday. It is better to perspire for one day than to sweat four years paying exorbitant taxes.

TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, June 23.—Steady to strong markets have characterized the cattle trading all through this week. Monday's prices opened firm at the advance made in the closing markets of the previous week. Monday's receipts included a good proportion of grass fed cattle of a very fair average quality and finish. Stall fed cattle are about cleaned out. In some of the principal feeding sections practically none are left. Some of the grass finished heavy steers were good export quality, realizing very satisfactory prices for their owners. Among the top sales for the week in the export section were a load of 1,370-pound steers, fed by T. T. Foster of Burlington, and sold at $9.25. A choice shipment of 100 export steers owned and fed by George Rowntree, was bought by the H. P. Kennedy Company at $9.25. Throughout the week, export prices held steady at the opening quotations, ranging from $8.50 to $9.25 for steers, and $8 to $8.25 for heifers. Heavy export bulls have held a fairly steady market at $5.50 to $6 for the best, and fair $5 to $5.25. The firms of Rogers & Maybee, and the H. P. Kennedy Company, each took between 400 and 500 export cattle during the week.

In the butcher cattle section there has been a good, steady market from opening to week-end. Choicest butcher steers and heifers ranged from $7.75 to $8.25, with a few extra choice at $8.40 to $8.50. Fair medium butcher, $7 to $7.50, and fair common, $6.50 to $6.75. Choice butcher cows in good market at $6 to $6.50, and choice butcher bulls at the same price. Common cows and bulls ranged from $4 to $5.25.

Good demand for stockers, but trade in this section quiet, owing to light offering and the keen demand for anything of killing quality.

Hog market weak at close at $7.75 f.o.b. and $8.35 fed and watered. Serious complaints are made as to the carelessness and cruelty shown by many farmers who ship their hogs f.o.b., but who leave the hogs entirely unprotected from the scorching heat on the cars at the receiving station. Apart from the cruelty of this practice, serious losses are incurred by many of the hogs dying from the heat and overcrowding. A tarpaulin or any other kind of covering would prevent much loss and suffering.

To The Electors Of The Riding of West Peterboro.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,

The Liberal Convention having honoured me with the nomination, I take this early opportunity of expressing my thanks for the confidence shown in me, and in asking the Electors generally for their support in the coming Election.

The supreme need of this great Province at the present time is a Govrnment which will conduct public affairs in a sound, prudent, business-like manner, and put a curb on all extravagant expenditures. With a public debt of $240,000,000 and an annual expenditure which has reached $38,000,000, the future credit of the Province absolutely depends on economic, business-like administration. This is the kind of administration the country may expect with Mr. Wellington Hay as Premier, and to such a Government I will give my unqualified support.

Having been in the closest touch with agricultural interests all my life, it is my ambition to make myself particularly useful to those engaged in the basic industry of this Dominion. If elected, I can be safely depended upon to give the closest attention to agricultural problems generally, and to watch carefully the rural needs of this constituency. Believing that there must be closer co-operation between the man who produces in the country and the man who consumes in the city, I will do my utmost to solve this problem so far as it may be considered a local or Provincial problem.

Labour will also find me sympathetic to its needs. I consider that I am particularly well adapted to represent labour, because both as an employee and employer I have had a long experience with both sides of the many problems that have come up in this field from time to time. The Liberal Party has invariably stood for the rights of the toiler, as against the privilege of the idle rich, and under all circumstances I may be absolutely depended upon to see to it that the men in our industrial life and all those dependent upon them will receive a square deal in the Legislature.

My views on temperance are well known. The Ontario Temperance Act was passed following a direct demand for prohibitory legislation on the part of an overwhelming majority of the people of this Province, and if elected I purpose to give it my hearty support.

It is my intention to meet as many as possible of the Electors of this Riding before Election Day, and I will avail myself of every opportunity to discuss public questions with members of the Electorate. In seeking your support and influence, I promise, if elected as your Member, to devote myself faithfully and earnestly to the duties of the position, and to uphold and advance the best interest of the people of West Peterborough.

Faithfully yours,

J. W. MEYERS.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, June 23.—Although Monday next is decision day as regards who will represent West Northumberland in the Provincial Legislature, there is little excitement in this riding. As to just how active a fight is being quietly put up is not known. The general opinion seems to be that Mr. Sam Clarke, who has represented the riding for the past twenty-five years, will be retained.

New S.O.E. Lodge.

At Trenton last Monday night a new lodge of the Sons of England Benefit Society was instituted by Supreme Lodge officials and Belleville S. O. E. officials. There were twenty-two initiations, and D.D.G.P. Arthur Haram presented the charter after the new members had been installed in office. After the dinner, to which ample justice was done, Supreme Lodge officers give addresses, and this was followed by a programme of music and song.

Returning From Japan.

Rev. W. R. MacWilliams, Mrs. MacWilliams and two children are expected to have sailed from Japan Wednesday to spend a year's furlough in this district. Mr. MacWilliams went out to Japan seven years ago under the General Mission Board of the Canadian Methodist Church. Mrs. MacWilliams, before her marriage Miss Bessie Winter, was called home four years ago by the illness and death of her mother, the late Mrs. Wilbur Winter, Grafton. They will visit her father at Grafton and other relatives.

Funeral of Mrs. Staples.

The funeral of Mrs. Harold J. Staples took place on Monday afternoon from the family residence, Ontario street, to the Cobourg Union Cemetery. The services were conducted by Rev. I. S. J. Wilson, and the pall-bearers were members of the Cobourg Rotary Club—Messrs. W. L. Allen, A. J. Gould, A. L. Jen, W. H. Dundas, L. H. Wilson and Dr. E. W. Hayden. Mrs. Staples was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hare, Provincial road, east. Since her marriage she has resided in Cobourg. She is survived by four brothers—Richard of New York State, John on Provincial road, east, Donald in the Northwest and Stanley of Cobourg—and by two sisters—Mrs. Laura Mulhall and Miss Mary Hare of Cobourg.

County Ball League.

There is a great deal of speculation among baseball fans as to what teams are going to land the championship in the Northumberland County Baseball League. Trenton, a new-comer, has put in a strong team that is making a good showing. Roseneath and Brighton are good contenders, and there is Warkworth to be reckoned with, as well as Colborne, Orland, Hastings and Harwood. With a schedule only about a quarter completed, almost anything is liable to happen yet, as nothing is so uncertain as baseball.

Good Fishing.

Rice Lake had many visitors over the week-end who gathered to try a hand at the fishing, some for the first time this season. Fishing is reported to be good, and some good catches are recorded.

Wedding Bells.

The marriage took place on Saturday evening at Port Hope of Miss Ellen Ivey Best of the Port Hope Hospital to Mr. William Cork, son of Mr. Edmond Cork, Port Hope. Rev. Canon Rigby conducted the ceremony. After a trip to Niagara and other western points, they will take up residence in Port Hope.

JUNE WEDDINGS COBOURG DISTRICT

BUTTERS—MANN.

COBOURG, June 23.—A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Robert and Mrs. Mann, Baltimore, on Wednesday, at high noon, when Ethel May, their eldest daughter, was united in marriage to Clarence John Butters, Baltimore. The bride, who carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses, was given away by her father. She wore a blue silk crepe dress with deep lace bertha collar and a string of pearls, the gift of the groom. The wedding march was played by Miss Evelyn Boddy. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. J. Mann, B.A., Newmarket, assisted by Rev. S. Ferguson, Baltimore.

Foley, Salem, gave an able and helpful address on "To Do As We Think." Rev. R. A. Whattam, Colborne, who is an enthusiast in boys' work, gave a good address on that timely subject. He spoke of the responsibility resting upon parents, the Sunday School teacher and the community to endeavor to guide the boy right. Rev. W. P. It is just as necessary to train Sunday School teachers for their work as to train doctors, lawyers and other professional men He also spoke on the graded lessons and showed their importance in junior class work. A profitable general discussion followed before the assemblage adjourned for supper.

After a song service, conducted by the President, the delegates at the evening session listened to a strong address by Rev. R. T. Richards, Carlton, on religious education and national vocation. Mr. Richards emphasized the three great factors in making a people great—the home, the school and the church.

Durable—Their base is extra heavy roofing-felt—thoroughly waterproofed. These rugged shingles stand staunch and tight against storm and blizzard throughout the years. A special rot-proof "seal back" protects the under side from air and moisture.

Fire Resisting—Because of their heavy mineral surface they are highly fire-resistant.

Come in and see these sturdy, fire-resisting, easy-to-lay shingles. Let us give you figures on a new roof of Barrett Everlastic Giant Shingles. Prices are moderate.

S. I. S. Roll Roofing
(Seamless Inch Selvage-Edge Roofing)

Total width of roll 32 inches. 15½ of the width of roll is mineral-surfaced. 17" of the width is plain surfaced to insure firm cementing of the overlap. A roof of S. I. S. is double thickness throughout with weather-proof, fire-resisting mineral surface in red or green.

Everlastic Liquid Roofing Cement

Gives new durable surface to worn-out "rubber" and other prepared roofs—stops all leaks. Easy to apply, low in cost.

Plastic Elastigum Patching Cement

Stops leaks in roofs; repairs flashings, gutters, cisterns, etc. Sticks to wet or dry surfaces. Easy to apply and economical.

Creosoid Fly-Oil and Cow Spray

An effective, economical fly-oil, lice-destroyer and cow spray. It is safe and easy to use, and gives unfailing results.

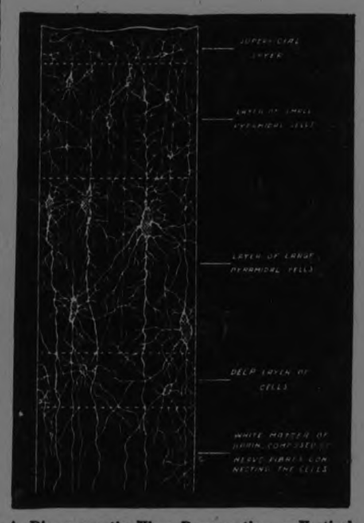
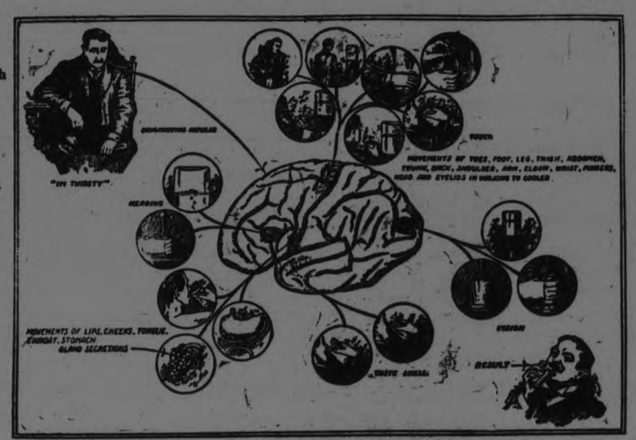
New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life



A Diagrammatic View Representing a Vertical Section Through a Portion of the Rind or Cortex of the Cerebral Hemispheres, Showing the Cells Upon the Size of Which the Higher Faculties Depend.

How the Brain Directs the Body



The Diagram Shows, for Example, the Mental Associations Which Occur in the Brain When There is a Feeling of Thirst. The Originating Impulse, That of the Sensation of Thirst, May Find Its Seat in Many Centres, the Throat, Oesophagus, Stomach, Etc. This Is Transmitted to the Brain by Means of Various "Association Fibres."

THE discovery of just how man's brain functions to enable him to think, remember and direct his body throughout its life is the one great triumph of modern microscopical study, and there is nothing more interesting or significant as the light which it has thrown upon the relation of the mental powers and the minute structure of this organ. The results of the numerous researches carried on in colleges and scientific laboratories, as well as in those abroad, have established the fact that complexity in the structure of certain portions of the brain means complexity of mental life as well. And it may be safely said, that in all the known universe there is nothing more wonderful than that intricate piece of machinery, the fully developed intellectual organ of man.

"The human brain," writes Leon Augustus Hausman, Ph. D., Department of Zoology, Rutgers College, in Science and Invention, "is built up of countless millions of tiny cells, known as neurones. It is a rather bulky structure, weighing about fifty ounces in the adult. Its three chief divisions are known as the fore-brain, mid-brain, and hind-brain. In man the fore-brain is the largest, and weighs about forty-four ounces. It consists of two large hemiovoid masses, known as the cerebral hemispheres, or together as the cerebrum. Covering the entire brain is a thin layer of 'gray matter,' which is distributed with great regularity over the cerebral hemispheres, where it is known as the cerebral cortex. And it is this portion of the brain, this rather thin layer of nerve cells which harbors the higher mental faculties. Think of it: our memories, our loves, our hates, ambitions, reverences, adorations, chagrins, logic, in short our personalities, all locked up in a smear of gray cells just underneath the roots of our hair!

"Let us look into the minute structure of so remarkable a mechanism. It is the frontal region of the cerebrum, which has to do chiefly with those faculties which distinguish man from his lower kindred, the anthropid apes. The structure which the microscope reveals in the cortex of the cerebrum (cerebral cortex) is a complex mass of nerve cells, called neurones, arranged in four rather well-defined layers, from the surface downward (right). Each separate nerve cell consists of a cell-body, with long root-like tendrils reaching out and branching and ramifying in every direction. A closer examination of the cells in the four layers of the cortex shows that they are not all alike. The outer layer, or superficial layer, contains few minute cells, and the fourth, or deep layer, contains few, while in layers 2 and 3 are located the largest and most important cells of the cortex. They are known, from their general form, as pyramidal cells, and are chiefly concerned with our intellectual, and other advanced mental capabilities. These cells send out a large number of rootlets or tendrils (called dendrites), in such a way as to connect with one another and with other cells in the various portions of the brain.

"As the result of numerous studies by scientists it has been shown that a direct relationship exists between the intelligence of an individual, and the number and development of his pyramidal neurones, and interestingly enough, his pyramidal neurones of the third layer. So it seems that these cells, these large pyramids, of nervous tissue, are the main workers in our brains, with respect, at least, to our mentalities. In persons of superior mental attainments, these neurones become larger, are more numerous, and what is perhaps most important of all become more perfectly connected together by reason of their branching rootlets, or dendrites. In short, we are now in a position to say that the mental capability of an individual depends upon: (1) the number of pyramidal cells or neurones present in the cerebral cortex, and especially in the frontal region of the cortex; (2) the size, or healthy development of these neurones, and (3) the length and richness of branching of the nerve rootlets, or dendrites. Furthermore, we can say that this also conditions the mental powers of those animals with brains similar to our own.

"For each of us, growth in mental ability means growth of the neurones and their root-like dendrites. Now, as we might expect, the brains of idiots and feeble-minded persons exhibit pyramidal neurones either few in number, small, or possessing few and short dendrites. In other words such persons 'fail to make the connection' as we say, and in this phrase we express a deep physiological truth. Their pyramidal cells are not interconnected, and they can, in truth not make the connections between words, ideas, and what they have experienced. The brain of such a person is a machine with its parts not co-ordinated.

"In extreme cases of idiocy, no rootlets, or dendrites, are present at all. This means that correlation of ideas, of memories, of acts is not possible. Such individuals do not live long.

"Mentally incapable parents, such as the feeble-minded, cannot, therefore, transmit to their offspring anything better than their own mental machinery, and they often may contribute a worse one! This is a tragic fact. But if we may not add to the number of our 'thought-producing units,' we can at least take comfort from the reflection that we can, by education, increase the number of the interconnections of those pyramidal cells that we do already possess, and by sane and simple living and high thinking, become better and better, each day, mentally.

"The fact is that most of us are feeble-minded when we compare what we now are mentally, to what we might be, if we would but give to the systematic training of our minds as much time and thought as we now give to, say, the selection of our clothes.

"When we consider that there may be, in the average cerebral cortex millions upon millions of nerve cells, with the possibility of each one developing millions of dendrites, and that this would mean millions times millions of interconnections, with resulting mental powers, imagination itself is staggered when it attempts to conjecture what latent forces each of us possesses."

Imitation Jewels That Are More Costly Than Nature's Own

FALSE jewels are now made in such great numbers as to constitute an industry of no mean proportions. And the remarkable part of it is that in such cases the manufactured gem actually may be more costly than nature's own handiwork. For example, by mixing paraffin spirit, bone oil distillate, and metallic lithium in a powerful cast-iron tube, and heating the compound in a reverberatory furnace, an English chemist has obtained artificial diamonds identical in composition with the original gem as dug from the mine. But the process is long and costly, while the diamonds resulting are so tiny that mine stones of the same size can be bought for a quarter of the money.

A Swiss scientist has produced sapphires of pure crystallized aluminum. The only difference between his sapphires and natural stones is that the former are not quite so hard. He hopes eventually to make their production a paying business, but here again the cost is many times that for which he could have bought sapphires of the same size in the open market.

An opal made by fusing silica with ether is said to be even more lovely in its changing hues than the mine stone.

The number of false jewels manufactured is enormous.

Among the imitation gems none has ever been more perfect than so-called Venetian pearls, according to a writer in London Tit-Bits. Their manufacture is a lost art, the secret having died with the inventor, a poor Venetian, and it was not until after his death that their beauty and value were recognized.

There are said to be no more than ten or twelve thousand in existence. They are very hard, their lustre is perfect, and they now command a price almost equal to that of the gem produced by the oyster.

Cameos were carved on gems by the ancient Greeks with a perfection unattainable until about a hundred and thirty years ago. Then James Tassie, a native of Pollokshaws, near Glasgow, came to London, and, working with extraordinary industry, produced nearly 15,000 imitations of the best of ancient gems, besides cutting portraits of many of his most famous contemporaries on precious stones.

How to Tell Good Canned Food

IT is a simple matter to tell the difference between good canned foods and bad. Many of the canned food poisoning cases show an utter lack of precaution in differentiating a very important point.

If users of canned food would follow the advice of the bureau of chemistry of the United States department of agriculture there would be fewer fatalities from canned food poisoning, experts say. In all experiments conducted by the bureau of chemistry canned foods, free from gas or swill, from disintegration, and from bad odors, has proved safe. Spoiled canned food, however, is not safe, because the consumer cannot separate harmless decomposition from poisonous decomposition. No canning scheme is perfect enough to prevent the loss of an occasional can. The contents of such a can should be destroyed, not eaten.

In poisoning cases investigated by the bureau of chemistry it has been repeatedly shown that the food consumed was spoiled and that some of those who handled it recognized its condition. As long as people take a chance in serving food known to be unsound deaths from poisoning will occasionally occur.

Are GHOSTS MERELY FEELINGS?

GHOSTS may or may not exist, and if, as is thought by thousands, ghosts have no real existence, then just what can it be that haunts the house? It's very easy to give the glib answer, "A ghost," but it is by no means easy to prove.

"In the first place, to say a ghost," explains a writer in Pearson's Weekly, "is most unsatisfactory. We don't know much about them, other than that they are given the credit of doing all sorts of nonsensical things which living people would not think of doing; and secondly, where do ghosts live? If they exist it is only reasonable to expect they have some place where they hide till midnight, the hour when they are supposed to sally forth on their hauntings.

"Perhaps the most practical way to deal with the haunted house question is to ask yourself: Why do I like So-and-so?

"Although we had never met him before, yet at sight we become fast pals, or perhaps we took an instant dislike to him. To like or dislike is a process of feeling. In other words, we feel the person whom we have met. This means we have come into mental contact with each other, caught each other's thoughts, as it were, and unconsciously practised telepathy.

"Haunted houses can be explained in the same way. Usually, a house of this description has been connected with murder, suicide, or some ghastly happening. It is really haunted by the strong thoughts, or feelings, of the individual concerned. These thoughts, or feelings, are intensified on account of the tragedy, so much so, that others entering the house feel the undesirable influence, and at once declare the house to be haunted.

"'I feel something strange and awful about this house,' they repeat to each other. What really happens is that they get into contact by unconscious telepathy with the thoughts or feelings of the place.

"Another explanation as to the way a house gets the reputation of being haunted is that people think of it as having a terrible atmosphere about it. The thousands who think about the house in this way are really making it more haunted by their own thoughts of tragedy. In exactly the same way as you feel a person you meet, so on entering a haunted house you exercise just the same strange process of telepathy. A haunted house is haunted by thoughts—that's all!"

Seeking a CURE for "KLIEG EYES"

SCIENCE is coming to the rescue of the movie actors with a cure for "Klieg eyes," a peculiar malady which has caused much pain and even temporary blindness among film players, as well as costing producers thousands of dollars. This condition is produced by the use of powerful arc lamps employed for lighting effects in interior motion picture photography.

Maurice Tourneur, a photographer and film producer, has been conducting a series of experiments to the end of preventing "Klieg eyes," and believes he has the remedy.

"Science has established the fact that 'Klieg eyes' is an artificial sunburn of the eyes caused by the ultra-violet rays thrown out by the powerful arc lamps on the studio 'set,'" Mr. Tourneur explains. "Inasmuch as these violet rays are highly essential in photography, in that it is light of this quality that makes the impression on the sensitive surface of the film, the problem concerns itself with the substitution of an agency for the violet ray or the development of the partial elimination of the violet ray by means of a filter which would necessitate special treatment of the film itself in order to make it more highly sensitive.

"My experiments have been along both channels and my latest thought has been concentrated on the matter of combining both ideas to an extent where the violet rays are rendered harmless to the eye and yet will be of sufficient strength to make impressions upon specially treated film.

"My experiments involve a special glass placed over the opening of the arc lamp which eliminates the ultra-violet ray to a point where it is harmless to the naked eye. This is based on the principle of the colored eye-glasses worn by persons in bright sunshine. There is also involved a special coating for film which intensifies the violet ray matter which has been subdued by the filter in front of the lamp. The recent encouragement I have had in these experiments gives me the hope that, with the aid of several colleagues, I will be able to give definite results in the near future."

The FIRST CLOTHES WORN by MAN

TWO farmers in Sweden who were digging peat on a moor not long ago came across a number of most interesting relics which had lain there undisturbed for from 3000 to 4000 years, according to the opinions of eminent scientists who investigated the find. The period to which the articles belonged was determined by the presence of various implements and ornaments of bronze.

Garment of Coarse Linen and Wool Worn During the Bronze Age.

The unique object of the lot was a mantle with cape woven out of coarse linen and wool. The fabric was well preserved in spite of its great age. It has long been known that a peat bog has a powerful preservative effect on organic matter. A Swedish paper remarks the style and general appearance of it was such that a person wearing it in the streets of a modern city would not attract any special attention; the garment would be taken for a raincoat.

When it is remembered that this mantle was made long before the Christian era began, long before the Celts had migrated into western Europe or the Germans had left the Scandinavian peninsula, the interest of the discovery is manifest.

Just How a Tree Tells History of Forest Fires

OLD blazes and forest burns tell of ages of trees with almost absolute accuracy. They always leave scars from which the forester or experienced woodsman can count the annual growth of the tree to some later scar on to the present time. It is thus from the trees left standing which were only partially burned that the exact dates of great forest fires in the long distant past have been ascertained or verified.

A photograph reproduced in the Scientific American shows a section of a pine tree which has braved these forest fires, one of them 178 years ago, in 1744, when the tree was 66 years old. The next damage was 158 years ago and the last burn was 148 years ago. These three burns have left a dead side to the tree and have forced the growth to the opposite side, but two big lobes partially encircled the dead portion. In very old trees there will always have been some years of great drouth or "famine" among the tree kind, when the year's growth is almost nothing so that it is frequently necessary to use a microscope to determine a ring of growth. The photograph and count of the rings of this tree were made by the Commission of Conservation of Canada.

WHAT Is the POWER of Your JAW?

DO you know the power of your jaw? The next time you sit down to a meal, the thought will either make your jaw ache with weariness, or you will be absorbed in mathematical calculations of the horse-power developed by the occupants of your table.

The president of the Chicago Dental University, Dr. C. E. Black, has invented an instrument of simple construction, but with a name that is guaranteed to contort the strongest of jaws—namely, the gnathodynamometer.

The jaws are built on the principle of a pair of tongs, and this instrument is used to determine their strength.

Dr. Black has performed gnathodynamometric tests on the jaws of a thousand people. The average power was 171 pounds for the molar teeth, but much less for the bicuspids and incisors.

In addition to the gnathodynamometer, Dr. Black has devised another instrument, the phagodynamometer, with which he tests the resistance of various foods to chewing.

Tongue is found to be the tenderest of foods; the central part offers only a resistance of from three to four pounds. Mutton chops require from thirty to forty pounds pressure, and beef from forty to fifty. Beef steaks that are well done and somewhat tough require a pressure of from sixty to eighty pounds. Meat that has been made tender by storage reduces these figures by about one-third.

A butcher chose some very tough meat from the neck of an ancient animal, and the amount of pressure required before the meat was masticated was shown to be between seventy and ninety pounds.

Can Science INVENT a NEW WATER?

A NEW kind of water, very different from any water, salt or fresh, known today, may be discovered as the result of recent research into the properties of the tiniest particle of water, according to Sir Joseph J. Thomson, discoverer of the electrop, in a recent lecture at the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia.

Sir Joseph would not discuss the properties of the hypothetical water. Since it probably never has existed, he felt that would be a little hazardous, but contented himself with saying that another sort of water might be achieved if a different arrangement of the electrons in the water molecule were made.

"The discovery of a cataclysm, or substance, that would break down one of the hydrogen electrons in the atomic arrangement of the water molecule, would make possible another kind of water," he said in his lecture. "There is always something new coming from water and there is no reason why with a strong enough catalystic another kind of water itself could not be discovered."

The combination of atoms to form molecules and the interpretation to the mind of the physicist of the chemical bond, or affinity, was the central theme of Sir Joseph's address. The point at which solids become gases in chemistry was the electronic saturation point in physics, he explained. That is, the grouping of as many as seven negative points about a positive centre of an atom may still maintain the substance in a solid state. But when eight groupings are reached it is the saturation point, and after that the product is likely to be gaseous.

According to Sir Joseph the rearrangement of the two hydrogen atoms in the water molecule to unite with the oxygen atom, which brings with it six negative points, whereas the hydrogen atom, each have but one point, means that the arrangement of the eight electrons is asymmetrical. If they could be made symmetrical and a hydrogen electron could be disunited from the arrangement by a cubical formation, Sir Joseph would have his second type of water.

HOW the SPIDER Makes LOVE by DANCING

THE courtship of spiders is well known as a remarkable instance of a form of instinctive display. The male is often a pigmy compared with the female; his advances are made with caution, for her temper is very uncertain. In the family of garden spiders the courting is to some extent carried on by vibrating certain lines of the web—a method which has the advantage of leaving a way of retreat open. The males sometimes engage in mock fights. In other cases what is most developed is a kind of dance. The male poses so that he displays his good points in the eyes of the short-sighted female and may describe a semi-circle in front of her to and fro, many times. Or he may whirl madly about her until, it may be, her coyness breaks down and she joins gayly in the dance.

The calling crab of the Indian Ocean disports himself before his mate on the shore, brandishing his brilliantly-colored right claw, which is exaggerated out of all proportion. It is a far cry from this to the strutting and parade of peacock and pheasant, Argus and Tragopan, or to the more dance-like aerial antics of birds of paradise and humming birds, but throughout there is a touch of nature that makes the whole world kin.

USING THE MOTOR CAR TO BOOST THE CHURCH

A New Application of the Parable of the Good Samaritan — Story of Lukewarm and Undependable.

There was a certain non-church-goer in the city of Peterboro whom the church lost when he dropped out of the Sunday School Class in his high school days. While enjoying the benefits made possible by the churches of his city, he did nothing to conserve them as a tremendous asset to the community.

It happened, however, that the forward-facing churches of his city designated one Sunday for Automobile-go-to-church-Sunday, and sent forth a stirring challenge, "We automobilize for Church Sunday." The event attracted wide attention.

The immediate neighbors of our friends were undependable and lukewarm, both of them members of the church, and owners of cars. While Undependable's name was on the church records, the lure of the Sunday auto trip was stronger than his loyalty to the church. On Saturday night he was busy getting his car in readiness for the usual Sunday trip. Non-church-goer remarked to Undependable, "I see you are all set for the big Auto-go-to-church-Sunday." "No," answered Undependable, "they'll not miss me tomorrow. I am going to take the family for the usual outing to the lakes."

Non-church-goer did not say very much, but he was thinking seriously. He said to himself, "It will take some strong will power behind the steering wheel to get Undependable's car out of the old rut that it has worn to the lakes. He surely isn't creating the morale that will capture a fellow like me. It is the life a man lives that is the best test of the sincerity of his religious belief."

The same night Lukewarm was also busy polishing his seven passenger. Now, Lukewarm was considered by most folks a pretty good church member, but there was this against him, that he lacked the push to get behind a big program for his church. His motto was, "Let George do it." Lukewarm was going to church as usual the following day. He meant himself and his wife on the front seat, and five vacant seats behind, for he had not cultivated the habit of building up the congregation to which he belonged, and was as much responsible for the empty pews as the man who didn't go.

Non-church-goer walked toward his home thinking of a motto that caught his attention only a few days before, "For when the One Great Scorer comes to write against your name, he writes not that you won or lost, but how you played the game." He thought to himself, "Lukewarm isn't surely playing the game fair, neither with God, himself, his pastor, or with a fellow like me. To be honest, however, I haven't any excuse for not going to church, even if I have to go uninvited and on foot, but you know the call of the church would mean much more to me if one of those church members thought enough to what he got at church to ask somebody else to enjoy it."

As he entered the house in this frame of mind, the phone rang. Putting the receiver to his ear, he heard the glad voice of a genuine Booster, "I suppose that you know it is Auto-go-to-Church-Sunday, to-morrow. The road to church will be the most popular auto route in Peterboro. I knew you had no car, so we want you and your wife to come with us, and if you know of any shut-ins that could go, let us know."

"Well, that's mighty kind of you," said Non-church-goer. "The church after all must have a lot of good folks, or it couldn't do the business that is is doing."

"It's the least that we can do," said the Booster. "We've got to put this program over. The minsters have done their share. It's up to us laymen to make good. In fact, "We automobilize for church every Sunday."

"If you mean it, Booster, count on us to be with you. Nobody ever talked to us like that before."

Who was the best neighbor to the fellow who didn't go to church?

The Booster, who automobilized for church Sunday.

"Go out and do thou likewise."

CUT COUNTIES RATE DOWN TO 8 MILLS

Finance Committee Recommends to Council of Northumberland and Durham a Reduction of One Mill.

COBOURG, June 23.—The finance committee of the Counties Council at their session Thursday afternoon set the county rate at eight mills, one mill less than that of last year, on motion of Reeve Anderson of Campbellford, and Deputy Reeve Elliott of Murray. Everything in the way of unnecessary expenditure was cut out. Reeve Anderson of Campbellford, who was one of the leaders in the movement to have the equalization of the towns and villages reduced from 25 per cent, the increase first proposed, to 16 per cent as finally adopted, advocated the eight mill rate. The increase in the equalization will not mean any raise in the county rate of the towns and villages. On the contrary, with the rate set at eight mills these municipalities will apy less county taxes than they did last year with a lower equalization. This can be seen from the following table of some of the municipalities in the northern part of the counties:

	County Taxes in 1922	County Taxes in 1923
Campbellford	$ 6,318.00	$ 6,300.67
Millbrook	1,727.55	1,568.00
Hastings	1,613.70	1,491.95
Cavan Twp.	17,385.89	15,454.12
Manvers	12,971.70	11,530.56
Seymour	14,518.85	12,965.64
S. Monoghan	6,895.35	6,129.20
Percy	11,042.46	9,815.52

The total amount to be raised by the two counties is $237,174.82. The report of the committee has not yet been adopted by the council.

Charles Benor Appointed

When the Council resumed at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon Charles Benor was appointed a member of the Campbellford Board of Education to succeed S. J. Moore, who resigned on account of ill health. Campbellford High School was given a special grant of $30 for the maintenance of its cadet corps, and the same grant was given the continuation schools and high schools that take up this branch of the department work.

Reeve Fowlds Reports

The report of the committee on schools was presented by Chairman Fowlds who stated that the list of grants for the maintenance of High and Continuation schools could not be completed as mistakes had been found in a number of the reports of attendance for the past three years and these had been sent back for correction.

Reeve Fowlds, who attended the meeting of the Trustees and Ratepayers' Association in Toronto last Easter, as the delegate from the Council, gave an interesting report of the proceedings. When he went there, he confessed, he was skeptical as to the value of such gatherings. He returned convinced that they were a wonderful aid in the work of education, and he recommended that every municipality send representation to the annual conventions.

No Help For Villages

It was decided to take no action on the communication from the Council of Perth asking for co-operation in requesting the Provincial Government to pay 50 per cent of the cost of building Hydro transmission lines into small villages that contracted to take at least 50 horsepower.

Raise Grant to Fairs

Deputy Reeve Haig of Haldemand, Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, reported in favor of giving the Fairs in the two counties an annual grant of $1,500, instead of the $2,000 which a delegation asked for Wednesday.

A long discussion ensued. Reeve Fowlds led off with a protest. He believed the Fairs should be given the full amount of the increase asked for, $1,000. The grant benefitted the entire public not a few individuals. The Fair directors used the buildings and grounds for only a few days in the year and for the rest of the time the place was the playgrounds af the people. He instanced the case of Warkworth with which he is most familiar.

Reeve Hartt and Deputy Reeve Elliott of Murray, took the opposite side of the question and held that an increase of $500 was sufficient. Reeves Anderson of Campbellford, and McCamus of Cavan, favored a grant of $2,000. The latter said the small Fairs should be encouraged as they make the big exhibitions. The former will grow in favor if the prize lists are increased.

What Warkworth Does

In reply to a question as to what grant is made by Percy township to the Warkworth Fair, Deputy Reeve Nelson of that municipality said the Council gave the Fair $500 the year the large building was put up. The usual township grant was $200 or $100. Each of the 15 directors contributes $5 out of his own pocket every year.

Reeve Van Volkenburg of Seymour, also favored the $2,000, but lost when the question was put, the report of the agricultural committee, for $1,500, was adopted by a vote of 18 to 14.

Grants For Campbellford

Reeve Anderson secured a grant of $3,150 for work on improved highway in Campbellford, and also was allowed $30 to help defray the cost of lighting the bridge.

Hastings got $745, and Millbrook $784 for the improvement of streets.

Oiling County Roads

A delegation from Baltimore, of which Rev. S. Ferguson, the Presbyterian pastor, in the village, appeared before the Council to ask for a grant for oiling the county roads and that certain improvements be made, including the cutting out of a dangerous curve.

The recent change in the regulations with retard to the oiling of county roads passing through unincorporated villages has raised a new problem. Formerly such places paid 60 per cent of the cost of this work and the Government the balance. Now the latter pays nothing unless the work is done by the county and charged up as maintenance.

Reeve Hermiston and Deputy Reeve Nelson of Percy, joined in a request for $130 to help pay for oiling the county road that passes through Warkworth. The work will cost $355, and the merchants of the village are willing to pay $225 of this.

The request for the grant was withdrawn, to be presented again at the December session, when Warden Smith explained that a delegation from the Council would visit the Department of Highways to ask that the former regulations be restored. Baltimore, too, will have to await the result of this conference.

Visit Institution

A number of the councillors, including Warden Smith, Reeve Anderson and Wilkinson of Campbellford, Reeve Van Volkenburg and Nelson of Seymour, Reeve Hermiston and Deputy Reeve Nelson of Percy, inspected the jail and House of Refuge last evening, finding the management of both institutions satisfactory in every particular.

The Council will hold its concluding session today and in the evening Warden Smith will entertain the members at dinner in the new Dunham Hotel.

CANNOT MAKE FLIGHT.

NOME, Alaska, June 23.—(Canadian Press).—Advices yesterday from Wainwright confirm the report that Raold Amundsen, Norwegian explorer, aviator, had damaged his airplane in a trial flight there, making impossible his proposed flight this summer over the North Pole.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Well Known Seymour Township Resident Dead—Good Fishing at Campbellford.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 23.—One of Seymour Township's and Campbellford's most highly respected citizens, in the person of Mrs. Joseph Cassan, passed away on Wednesday, June 20, at the home of her son, Mr. Albert Cassan, Toronto. The deceased, who was in her 91st year, was a sturdy pioneer of this district, was a woman of kindly and loving disposition, one whom to know was to respect and love, and one whose influence in the home and community will live long in the memory of those with whom she associated. The late Mrs. Cassan, whose maiden name was Priscilla Stephens, was married to her late husband, Mr. Joseph Cassan, who predeceased his wife about 13 years ago, after which she removed from the old homstead, English Line, to Campbellford, where she continued to live until a year ago, when she went to reside in Toronto. She leaves to mourn her loss a family of eight, four sons and four daughters, viz., Albert and Hunt of Toronto, Henry of Hamilton, Frank of Alberta, Mrs. Charles Muffitt of Coe Hill, Mrs. Richard Hall of Apsley, Mrs. Brown of Montreal, Mrs. Geo. Miller of Toronto; also one brother, Mr. Richard Stephens of the English Line.

The deceased was a faithful member of the Methodist Church, and the funeral was held on Friday afternoon after the arrival of the 1.33 train, to English Line Cemetery, where interment took place in the family plot, the service being conducted by Rev. C. F. McIntosh.

The community extends sympathy to the family in their irreparable loss.

Good Fishing.

Those who enjoy fishing are having great success in the river near Campbellford. Yesterday afternoon, Mrs. John Shaw, Church Street, landed a 'lunge weighing over 16 lbs. below Dam No. 11.

Traffic on the Trent Canal is well up to the mark for this season of the year. Already several pretty yachts have passed through town, the "Luanne," an American launch, having been anchored here for the night this week and yesterday it locked through again on its return.

Traffic Held Up.

On Friday morning traffic on the main highway bridge was held up for about three hours, when the lift section of the bridge failed to come down after being lifted to allow a tug to pass. Mr. Joseph Poulton, in charge, assisted by Mr. James Sanders and others, did all in their power to restore traffic, and about 11 a.m. their efforts were rewarded, much to the satisfaction of pedestrians, motorists and others, who were forced to go down to the railsiding bridge or bridge near the Canadian Paperboard Co.'s mill to cross the river.

Personals.

Mrs. Robert Curle, of Seymour West, has purchased the brick residence on Garry Street, owned by Miss Armour, and occupied by Mr. Henry Baker.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heim and two children, of Rochester, N. Y., motored to town yesterday and are visiting their aunt, Mrs. Daniel O'Sullivan, Sr., Queen Street.

Mr. Albert Cassan, of Toronto, and his son Carl came down from Toronto yesterday, accompanying the remains of his mother, Mrs. Jos. Cassan.

Friends of Mrs. George Potts, So., Inkerman Street, will regret to learn she is confined to her bed through illness, and wish her a speedy recovery.

COMMONS DEBATES RENOVATED BUTTER

Resolution to Permit the Importation and Sale Strongly Opposed.

OTTAWA, June 23.— (Canadian Press.)— "Renovated butter versus oleomargarine" was the subject of debate in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon in connection with a resolution of the Minister of Agriculture to amend the Dairy Act. The resolution which proposed to allow the importation, manufacture and sale of renovated butter in Canada, aroused much opposition and after two hours' debate the Minister proposed that it be laid over for further consideration at the same time intimating that he was willing to consider amendments.

Hon. S. F. Tolmie, ex-Minister of Agriculture, led the Opposition to the bill, while W. F. Carroll, Liberal member for Cape Breton South, who moved the resolution favoring the sale of oleo, joined in warmly.

"The Minister is creating a new industry," said Mr. Carroll, "we used to have people going about crying 'old rags and bottles.' Now we will have them coming about our back yards calling 'dirty butter, dirty butter'."

Offers Solution.

Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, defended renovated butter as a solution of the problem of "a cheap spread on bread," and defined it as "about half way between creamery butter and oleomargarine."

"It is rancid butter," said Mr. Carroll, "it is decayed or it would not need renovation."

They had many classes of bootleggers, continued Mr. Carroll, now they would have another, the renovated butter bootlegger who would bring this butter into the country from the United States without paying the tax imposed on it in that country

While not opposed to renovated butter as such any more than to oleomargarine, W. C. Good (Progressive, Brant) declared that the House needed more information, first as to how far products of decomposition in butter could be removed, what protection would be possible against fraud and misrepresentation, and to what extent, the product could be sterilized. In view of Mr. Motherwell's vote against oleomargarine a few days ago, Mr. Good thought his attitude towards renovated butter very extraordinary.

Experts Differ.

Mr. Motherwell said he was frank to admit that experts in the department differed with regard to this matter. He was prepared to move, he said, that the word "importation" be struck out. The bill had yet to go before the standing committee on agriculture and experts could then be heard. He had an open mind, he said and had performed his duty by bringing the matter up.

Hon. H. H. Stevens (Conservative, Vancouver Centre) asserted that the Minister of Agriculture seldom presented anything to the House calling for debate without making something of a burlesque of the whole thing. In the present instance he had not departed from his usual custom. Mr. Stevens said he thought perhaps he had better address his remarks to the prime minister.

Read Protests.

He then read protests against the measure from two associations of milk producers, numbering, he said, $3,000 dairymen.

A. W. Neill (Independent, Comox-Alberni) asked if the two associations quoted by Mr. Stevens had not made similar representations against oleomargarine and which Mr. Stevens had ignored.

Mr. Stevens: "Not to me. I merely read what I received."

If the minister promised the House that no proclamation would be issued for a year, said Mr. Stevens, why not the government drop the bill till next session to give the agricultural committee an opportunity for studying the question.

T. G. McBride (Progressive, Cariboo) asked if the writer of the letters quoted by Mr. Stevens opposing the manufacture of renovated butter was the same man, who when the question of reducing milk prices came up said "To Hell with the people."

Mr. Stevens said he did not know. He simply quoted the letters as they came to him.

The prime minister said the minister had indicated clearly that he intended to defer the bill to the agricultural committee. If the committee doubted the wisdom of this section, the government would not press it. He suggested that the House should pass the resolution in order to expedite business.

Mr. Stevens thought they might as well discuss the question before it became legislation.

The minister for agriculture commenting on Mr. Stevens' remarks on his "burlesque methods," said that Mr. Stevens as a sportsman should be ready to "take what was coming to him."

people of the country not grumbling but asking for good roads.

G. A. Brethen.

Mr. G. A. Brethen, M.P., who had come down from Ottawa for the meeting, said that while some people liked speaking to strangers there was nothing that gave him more pleasure than speaking to his own people. He stated that his duties at Ottawa being of the first importanee had prevented him taking as active a part in the campaign as he wished. He believed the Drury government was the best at this time for the province and the best government for a great many years.

Mr. Brethen replied to the rumours and criticism of the "U.F.O. Sunday" advertised for Wallace Point, declaring it was an annual affair, and the idea originated in Western Canada, and that it was not a political meeting.

Mr. Brethen replied to the increase in the Civil Service staff, stating that many classed as temporary had been included in the permanent list. He also stated that much of the increase in salaries was accounted for by all miscellaneous extras and perquisites, such as allowance for rent, heating, to civil servants being done away with. This and other unfavourable criticisms by the Opposition, he stated, was peanut politics. He also added that Mr. Ferguson based his campaign on charges rather than constructive policies.

Mr. Brethen also referred to Major Belford's speech at Campbellford on Premier Drury coming from a mud hole at Crown Hill.

Mr. Brethen, in rebuttal, said the highest tribute to Premier Drury as one of Canada's best farmers and greatest men.

In speaking of the Conservative Party, he pointed out that to-day not one Provincial Government or Dominion Government is Conservative, and that people had lost faith in the Conservative Party.

Mr. Brethen also appealed to the women, on the Mothers' Allowance Act. In concluding, he predicted that the Drury Government would be returned with a larger majority than before.

Mr. J. J. Thurston, M.P. for Victoria, was also a speaker, and touched on rural depopulation, the increase secured by the Government in revenue, and the benefits given to the people as a result. He also spoke of the increased grants to education, and the credit due to Hon. Manning Doherty for securing the removal of the cattle embargo, also the co-operative marketing proposal.

SISTER OF PRIEST TOLD OF EVENTS

Most of the Evidence So Far Presented in the Delorme Trial Is Merely a Repetition of Former Trial.

MONTREAL, June 23.— (Canadian Press.) — Rosa Delorme, the pretty sister of Father Adelard Delorme, the priest who is standing trial for the murder of his half-brother, emerged from her seclusion of nearly one year to tell, yesterday afternoon, her story of the events immediately following the tragedy of Raoul Delorme's death.

As she took the stand, she became the instantaneous target of a barrage of piercing scrutiny from all angles of the court. At first she exhibited indifference, although this later gave way to an extreme nervousness as both the prosecution and the defence grilled her through an exhaustive examination.

Added color was lent to the proceedings, which were otherwise simply a repetition of evidence heard in previous trials, by the breakdown of the prisoner when the young medical student St. Jean Des Rosiers told of the high esteem in which the slain boy appeared to regard his brother and guardian.

"Raoul told me," Des Rosiers said, "that his brother had offered to hand over the estate to him if he wanted to handle it, but Raoul thought his brother was very capable in his administration."

It was then that the prisoner drooped his head and sobbed aloud. A minute later he regained his composure and the routine proceeded

An unusual feature of the trial is the entanglement of newspaper cameras which have almost constantly blockaded the passageways in the fight to secure exclusive court scenes. The granting of permission to photographers to interrupt or distract proceedings in a Canadian court is said to be without precedent.

Evidence during the afternoon and the morning sessions was mainly of a detail nature, supplementing the record of previous hearings. In the morning Bishop Rheaume of Haileybury, formerly rector of Ottawa University where Raoul Delorme was a student, related in minute detail the circumstances attending the composition of Raoul Delorme's will when the boy, facing an operation for appendicitis decided to prepare his last testament.

During the afternoon witnesses passed through the box to tell of the $25,000 insurance policy taken out on the slain boy's life by the priest; of Raoul's movements immediately prior to his murder, and of the prisoner's actions both before and after the murder.

Defence counsel Alleyn Taschereau, K.C., and C. H. Cahan, K.C., kept in close communication with the prisoner throughout both hearings. The priest armed with a bulky pad of paper and several pencils, scribbled furiously all day and poured a stream of notes to his attorneys. This procedure he varied from time to time by conversations with his lawyers whose attention he would attract by a sibilant hiss which was audible through the court room.

Mr. Cahan, in the cross-examination of the witness, L. B. Ducharne, secretary of the Sauvegarde Insurance Company, elicited that Father Delorme had only intended insuring his brother for $5,000 or $10,000 to "teach him thrifty habits," but the persuasions of the insurance company's salesman had induced him to raise the policy to $25,000. Rosa Delorme, high strung and apparently nerved for an ordeal, clasped the Bible upon which she had been sworn throughout her stay in the witness box. She answered all questions both from R. L. Calder, K.C., the prosecutor, and Alleyn Taschereau, the defence counsel, with striking readiness and clearness.

Deposition showed that though she was the favorite of her half-brother Raoul and of her brother Adelard, the prisoner, to whom she always referred as "Monsieur L'Abbe," the girl was little more than a roomer in the Delorme home She ate all her meals outside for a reason not disclosed and when she returned she would usually go immediately to her room and remain there.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — New York Stock Exchange — And Curb Prices

To-Day's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, June 23 (Special to The Examiner). — To-day's stock market gave further evidence of the passing of the fright which gripped the financial community most of the week. While the volume of trading was restricted, prices were steady and the attitude of the market as a whole suggested that the confidence in the fundamental soundness of the economical situation had been pretty well restored. President Harding's pleas for a square deal for the railroads, and his opposition to Government ownership reacted favourably on the carrier list in the early trading in the stock market. New York Central, Atchison, Pere Marquette, Erie, and other active issues were in demand at the best levels of the week Industrials were stimulated by the weekly mercantile reviews reporting gains in retail buying despite the intense heat of the past few days.

Steel advanced fractionally to 93 3-8, while American Telephone sold at 122 1-2, a rally of more than 2 points from its recent low. Announcement that U. S. Rubber and Kelly Springfield had made cuts in the prices of tires had little effect on the stocks of these companies, as the reduction was expected Sluggishness developed in the general list before the end of the first hour. Transactions fell off to a low volume and the price changes were without significance. In view of the prosperous conditions prevailing throughout the country, the public's indifference to the market was a matter of comment. That there is abundance of money awaiting investment is evident from the ability of bankers to dispose of new investment issues.

Many traders have been buying stocks on the break on the theory that there will be an outburst of public buying before the end of the current Year. Stocks, they said, should soon start to discount the fall business activity, big corporation earnings, dividend increases, etc.

The Street is less apprehensive over possible radical legislation by the next Congress. A further curtailment took place in the volume of dealings in the last half-hour, the market coming almost to a standstill before the close.

Corn Products showed the effects of profit-taking on the announcement of a $10.00 extra dividend which had been discounted by the strength maintained by this issue through the recent break. Oils displayed a better tone under the lead of California Petroleum, which reached new high ground on the recovery.

Opening prices: United States Steel 93 7-8 up 1-4, Southern Pacific 88 5-8 up 1-8, Studebaker 106 3-8 off 1-8, American Can. 93 3-4 off 1-4, Sinclair 24 7-8 off 1-8, New York Central 102 1-8, Pan-American 69 1-2, Marland 40 up 3-8, American Telephone 122 1-2 up 3-4, California Petroleum 22 3-4 up 1-4. ....

FOREST FIRE SITUATION IN QUEBEC IMPROVED

QUEBEC, June 23. — (Canadian Press). — The forest fire situation was reported much improved last night. Heavy rains have considerably contributed towards extinguishing the more recent outbreaks, and in many other districts bush fires have been entirely extinguished. Although there is general improvement in the situation there have been a number of new fires in many of the counties in the province.

THANKFUL MOTHERS

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little one she would use nothing else. The Tablets give such results that the mother has nothing but words of praise and thankfullness for them. Among the thousands of mothers throughout Canada who praise the Tablets is Mrs. David A. Anderson, New Glasgow, N.S., who writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my children and from my experience I would not be without them. I would urge every mother to keep a box of the Tablets in the house." The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach; drive out constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and make teething easy. They are sold by medicine dealers, or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

UNION BANK OF CANADA

The Directors of the Union Bank of Canada announce that a revaluation of the assets of the bank has been made and that it has been decided to transfer $4.250,000 from rest account to contingent reserve account and to reduce the rate of dividend to shareholders to eight per cent per annum the capital of the bank now stands at $8,000,000—rest account, $1,750,000 profit and loss $159,360. In making this re-valuation the bank has had the benefit of the valued services and concurrence of a high officer of the Bank of Montreal loaned for the purpose. The transfer of the above amount from rest account to contingent reserve account is due to writing down assets which were found to have depreciated owing to the heavy deflation and depressed business conditions recently experienced and to making prudent provision for loans the full liquidation of which have been delayed owing to abnormal circumstances large recoveries of these assets so dealt with are to be expected but in the meantime they are being placed in contingent reserve account. The Board of Directors has been strengthened by the election thereto of Mr. R. T. Ritey. a former vice-president of the bank, who is well known throughout Canada. The directors give the assurance that the bank is in a very sound position and that there is every promise of a successful and profitable future for it.

BODY OF SUICIDE FOUND

BROCKVILLE, June 23.—(Canadian Press).—Crown authorities here were yesterday advised by Doctor F. S. Young Coroner Seeley's Bay, that the body of a man named Smith had been discovered in Pearce's Bay an arm of the Rideau Lake about midway between Seeley's Bay and Morton. Investigation by the coroner led to the conclusion that the man had committed suicide and no inquest was held.

A CHANGE OF FRONT BY U. S. AUTHORITIES

NEW YORK, June 23.—(Canadian Press).—The seizure of the White Star liner Baltic's supply of liquor, brought into this port for the return voyage in defiance of the United States dry laws, was mysteriously halted this morning just after Britain's Customs seals placed on the cache had been broken and Federal agents were preparing to cart away the wet goods.

Deputy Surveyor L. R. Sanders, who had been placed in charge of the raid, received an order over the telephone to halt. Whether it came from Secretary of Treasury Mellon, who is in town sailing at noon on the Majestic, could not be learned at the pier. Also reporters were left in doubt as to the reason for the change of front on the part of the United States authorities.

Rotary News

Here follows an abstract from the annual address of Raymond M. Havens, of Kansas City, Mo., President of Rotary International, at the recent convention in St. Louis:

The revolution in business has taken place. Formerly the law was—"Let the Buyer beware" Now the seller must beware lest he misrepresents.

The doctrine of the irresponsibility of the individual is false as hell It contains the gems of moral decay.

Rotary is for the individual and the individual is for the betterment of all men.

His strength is in his individual responsibility for his business or profession, for his community, his country, his civilization.

What can he do? He can make his principles known; he can make them felt by his unity with his fellows who practice business honor, sympathy and understanding.

This present convention is a world convention of men who have discovered that friendly and honorable relations between man and man are capable of infinite expansion. The limit is only the population of the earth.

Not Theorists

We are not a congress of theorists. Our principles are not cold calculations of the intellect. They are of the human heart, as much as of the human brain. We are the forerunners of a parliament of men which will be a reality when mankind are friends.

Civilized society today needs spiritual help more than material increase. There is a mistaken notion that spirituality is A Product of familiarity with literature and the fine arts. Not at all The realities of the spirit spring from unselfishness According to Rotary analysis, unselfishness has its beginning in friendliness, good will, co-operation and the sincere willingness to understand.

Rotary is expressive of the ideal that we must live for others as we would that others should live for us. All of us have something to sell, and all of us are buyers.

The man who attempts to be sufficient unto himself, if he is logical, must go into the wilderness and live as the lonely savage.

Why should business men assume leadership in world friendliness? We answer that modern civilization is built upon business. And business is the principle that I am willing to pay you a fair price for your service to me if you are willing to pay me a fair price for my service to you.

Universal Principle

All production, distribution and service, carried on under this universal principle is business. Every art and science has its business aspect. Business is not simply banking, or manufacturing, or merchandising, but the forthcoming of everything that can be grown, dug out of the earth, taken from the sea, or made by human hands or created by the human mind. Therefore, the Golden Rule, if persistently applied to business, will touch in the end, the highest and most humble citizens of great empires and small peoples; but especially the middle class of civilized society, which is similar in all countries; and therefore in them is the hope of the world understanding. No such magical power to allay fear and prejudice was ever known to exist among mankind in the past. The stubbornly local spirit still blocks understanding, and a complete expression of world understanding still remains for solution in the future.

Rotary encourages the love of homeland, but more emphatically it is an organization of the age of transportation and communication, far-flung credit and universal exchange which makes this earth our greater home.

Rotary International works through the innumerable personal and individual contacts of this universal exchange. It must exist as an aroused sense of personal and individual responsibility, and not as a beautiful cloud floating above our heads.

Rotary principles must germinate in the heart and mind of every individual Rotarian. Otherwise our visions will be as fleeting as the glory of a sun-gilded cloud city that glitters but an hour.

Bad citizenship and lack of business principles go hand in hand, and good citizenship and right business practices are equally inseparable.

The ties of society teach us to respect one another, but the best way to respect others, is by respecting the law and following honorable business ethics.

Three Obligations

Rotary demands three business obligations—sincerity in affirming, simplicity in bargaining and faithfulness in performing. And I may add that good citizenship is a business obligation.

In free governments Public Opinion is supposed to be the controlling or shaping influence in public policies. The pressure of good citizenship, in turn, should shape public opinion. But not if so-called "good citizens" can be reproached—for questionable business dealings. He who is selfish will not long remain within the strict laws of honesty and truth.

If you are asked how you can talk of "peace on earth and good-will toward men," in the grim, dead face of the late war, you have a living and logical answer. Your most emphatic answer should be that the triumphs of peace are greater than the victories of war

Whence came modern civilization? From war? No It is common to trade Britain's greatness from the destruction of the Spanish Armada. But modern British power got its force from the steam engine and the coal mine.

What was the great event in American history? Was it not the westward sweep of the empire in its march toward the setting sun? Some day, higher than all other monuments, will stand some artist's vision of a man with his gun and ax, with his dogs and his oxen, and his prairie schooner bearing his wife and children, plowing into the unknown, to sow and plant for the granary of the world

Was it war that caused modern civilization to leap forward in one hundred years—mainly in the last fifty years—until we possess knowledge, arts, and tools of which the Roman golden age did not dream, or Greek philosophy even guess?

Did war do it? Did war create this marvelous era of transportation, of machinery, of electricity, of magical communication, of enormous manufactures? The age of Business Was it Edison or Ludendorff? Certainly it wasn't Ludendorff

Universal Exchange

Most of us here are business men. We should be inspired by the fact that the philosopher, the writer, the educator, the astronomer, the chemist, the artist, all thrive upon the universal exchange of the products of human work and human brains, which we call business.

When did philosophy and science ever have such a wide world to address as today? When did literature and art ever have such tremendous machinery to project themselves?

Never before Whence does it come? By what process is it true? The answer is the business of selling the products of genius to the people and our free public schools which would be impossible except for the taxable values of property created by business. No system of supplying human needs and demands that was ever known, or tried in the world before, can take the place of modern systems. Smash the wheels, close the banks, nail up the shops, and see It has been done. But not in this country Too many of us are prosperous

Rotary International offers another plan. It offers the equality of doing right, the only equality that stands upon rock bottom. It is sending its members as ambassadors to their own craft organizations to plead for the adoption of codes of correct business practices.

We don't plead for sentiments. We demand rock bottom principles. And to start this great ball rolling it is vital that we, ourselves, shall be known to practice what we ask our fellow business men to practice.

Sentiments are emotional, principles are realities; and the principle of Rotary—that friendliness and co-operation are fundamentals of doing right—cannot be overturned. Reverse the order of the words and the meaning is the same.

Peach and proper social intercourse of men cannot be estimated in coin. The advance of humanity is slow and often pauses and retrogrades. Determine your future conduct, anticipate consequences, take wide views and lay down definite rules for constant guidance.

My last word is that the individual is responsible

Had Bad Pains In Her Heart

Nerves Were Very Bad

Mrs. John Case, R. R. No 4, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: — "I wish to say that I have been bothered very much with my heart and nerves. I doctored with two different doctors, but did not find much relief. I would have such bad pains in my heart, at times, I would be almost afraid to move or breathe, and at night I could not sleep. If the pains in my heart were gone, my nerves would be so bad I could not lie still and would only get a little sleep by being tired out. My stomach was also very bad and I could eat but very little, and then only certain things or I would have so much distress, which always made by heart worse.

I had been suffering for nearly two years until one day I was talking to our druggist about the way I felt. He advised me to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a fair trial. I have now taken five boxes and am feeling so much better. I am able to do my own work, and can eat anything I wish. I cannot praise

ACES OF WORLD TO FLY FOR BIG PRIZES AT MISSOURI MEET

ST. LOUIS June 23 (Associated Press).—A program enabling virtually every type of airplane and dirigible to compete in the International Air Races here October 1 to 3 has been prepared by the Flying Club of St. Louis.

In addition to the Pulitzer Trophy race many other events designed to test the speed durability and construction of the different types of aircraft have been arranged.

For the first time the Pulitzer race probably will assume an international aspect as assurances have been received that Sadi Lacointe, the French ace, and Brack Paya, Italian aviator, will enter. The British government may enter Herbert James, the English ace, it has been announced.

The races will be over a 50 kilometer (31.07 miles) triangular course, similar to that in Detroit last year. Each corner of the triangle will be marked by a pylon 60 feet high and about 20 feet square at the base for the guidance of the flyers, who, it is expected, will make the turns at high speed.

The list of trophies and prices has mounted steadily. In addition to cash prizes totaling $13,000, numerous trophies emblematic of championship in the respective classes will be awarded the winners. Gold, silver and bronze decorations will be given pilots finishing second and third.

A cash prize of $1,000 and a silver loving cup donated by the Chamber of Commerce of St. Louis, will be awarded winners of the "On-to-St. Louis" race. About 100 entries are expected from all parts of the United States and possibly points in Canada.

Other major events and prizes include:

Flying Club of St. Louis trophy, a silver loving cup, and cash prizes totaling $1,000 for two-seated low-power planes; Liberty Engine Builders' trophy and $1,500 in cash for military observation planes only; Aviation Club of Detroit trophy and $2,000 cash for light commercial speed and efficiency planes; Merchants' Exchange of St. Louis trophy and $2,000 cash for large capacity planes, both civilian and military; Mulvihill Model trophy and $300 cash, duration race for model airplanes; and the Detroit News Air Mail trophy and $1,500 for air mail pilots.

LOWELL ASTRONOMERS DISCOVER NEW STAR

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., June 25 (Associated Press).—Dr. C. O. Lampland of Lowell observatory here has announced the discovery of a new star located in a spiral nebula of the southern heavens in the constellation Centaurus. The discovery was made through comparative photographic plates, one plate showing nothing and another, taken nine days later, giving a sharp and clear image of the star, Dr. Lampland said.

The nebula in Centaurus, known as Messier 83, has been observed at Lowell observatory for many years for the purpose of detecting changes which might occur in it. With the modern highly improved and accurate optical instruments used in the comparisons of photographs of different dates, it is possible to detect extremely small differences in the details of the photographic plates used, Dr. Lampland said in explaining the discovery.

New stars are of the greatest interest to astronomers, because their growth in brilliancy, their decline, and sometimes their ultimate disappearance, afford the investigator an opportunity to study changes in the chemical composition of the body.

Want Ad Tips by John T. Bartlett

SUMMER WANT AD. OPPORTUNITIES

Faithful Jim the model employee watches the office clock backsliding—it's summertime The Ninth Street backyard pennant race is in full blast. Who'll have the prize pumpkin the tallest hill of beans? Yes it's summer

Summer brings more than heat and baseball games—it mothers many want ad. opportunities. One of the early colonial "millionaires" made his initial fortune by shipping ice to the West Indies and even to the East Indies. His is the brand of enterprise required now. There is no time like summer to turn several kinds of quick want ad. profits.

The automobile season is at its height. Folks crave the outdoor air the open country. The hunger was born way back in the spring. It's grown stronger and stronger. A very favorable time now to sell used cars. One enterprising automobile dealer actually finds the outdoor market so good now that he runs regular want ads. on what he calls "Fishing Cars" cheap used cars for fishing trips.

All sorts of fishing and camping equipment are in demand.

No better time than now to advertise camp and resort property for sale or rent.

And the vacations people take have an abundance of significance. A wide-awake painter and paperhanger goes energetically after contracts to decorate while owners are in the country. He is responsible and families naturally like the idea—they escape all the fuss and trouble usually incidental to such home improvements.

There are a lot of lawns to be cut gardens to be hoed. The youngster after pocket money uses want ads. written by dad and gets a bunch of customers who'll employ him right through the summer.

How are you going to use summer want ads.?

ADVERTISED NAMES IN WANT ADS.

The national advertising which you read in this newspaper is not only a powerful and beneficial thing for the manufacturers who advertise for retailers and for consumers. It will help want advertiser too—if he will let it. This is how:

There was a time once when practically the only advertisent hings known to the public were patent medicines. Year by year at first slowly then more rapidly then very rapidly the list of nationally advertised merchandise increased. Now all sorts of building materials all sorts of house furnishings and home equipment automobiles bicycles fence posts tools etc. are known by advertised names to a large section of the public. And the same advertising which has made the name known has made the general characteristics and high quality known.

Probably 99 per cent. of people prefer to buy an advertised to an unadvertised brand. They have confidence and faith in the name. Shrewd want advertisers make capital of this fact.

A house painter advertises to paint houses at a stated sum the square foot. He mentions in his want ad. that he used a named nationally advertised paint.

The builder of several modern bungalows elaborates his statement that "Best materials are used throughout." He gives the brand name of the lumber used the advertised name of the plumbing fixtures the name of the furnace. Readers learn that their lighting fixtures belong in the same elite group of nationally known articles. The familiar advertised names immediately capture the reader's confidence.

In some cases the effect of the advertised name in producing inquiries is astonishing. Besides possessing confidence—winning and appeal properties advertised names have space in description which the want advertiser can give to such things as condition bargain price etc. When you can use such names do.

A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

OUR BEST

Even if faith is dim, our our hold on the truth seems to have grown weak and uncertain, it is better to be kind than to be selfish, to be brave rather than cowardly, to do our best rather than sit down in gloomy hopelessness. Light will come to the one who lifts a prayer in the darkness and pushes on.

GIVE!

Give a word to someone weak:
'Tis so easy just to speak
One brave word, and yet it may
Clad a soul in strong array.

Give a look of friendly kindness:
Life is full of selfish blindness
For the lines of care-filled faces,
In the busy market-places.
Just a look of friendliness
Smooths out wrinkles of distress.

Give a prayer: just God alone
May have marked that sharpened stone
In the track some feet have trod.
You may see a part, but God
Watches all the travel-road,
Knows the weight of ev'ry load.
Give a prayer: your eyes are dim;
Trust your fellow-chum to Him
And where you might helpless be,
God can guide him perfectly

Fashionable Sport Clothes For Summer

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, June 23 (United Press) —"They're off!" resounds throughout the grandstands at Belmont Park. And women who are more interested in clothes than in horse races seize this opportune moment for glancing at the fashionable women about them.

The costumes worn by the "Four Hundred" are authentic forecasts for the summer's sport styles. Black satin suits with short jacquets and medium length skirts outnumber all other costumes. They are usually accompanied by satin turbans or small, black tailored hats. Black satin shoes and sheer black and tan hosiery are worn with these black costumes. Blouses are either of beautiful ecru lace or of silk of a brilliant color, such as red, lanvin green or yellow. Gloves throughout the audiences are mostly white glazed kid.

Little Fur Seen

One is surprised to see such a small representation of the short jacquette of summer fur. With the excoeption silver fox neckpieces and sable scarfs, there is very little fur seen. There is also a noticeable absence of bright color—no Egyptian prints, no colored shoes except light tans and grays and these are mostly of suede rather than of glazed kid and are worn with the idea of matchint the costume rather than of giving a contrast.

Tailored frocks in tans and grays are quite noticeable and usually the hat worn with them matches in coloring the frock. There are several types of silk gowns trimmed in pleated frills of georgette. Sometimes the three-tiered skirt effect is seen with accordion pleated tiers which start at the hip line and extend to the hem. With the silk frock one notices a great deal of costume jewelry in sets, which include earrings chains and bracelets. Cornelian is perhaps the most prominently used stone with amber, jade, lapis-lazuli and crystal following in popularity.

While the top coat, which is carried over the arm, is generally of a soft wood shade, its lining is of colorful batik with reds and greens predominating. Few parasols are seen, although now and then there is a red or green cane with a leather strap handle.

Hats are of the mushroom variety and are trimmed in ribbon cocardes or accordian pleated wings.

Twin Finger Rings

An European actress is responsible for the present fad of twin rings which are identical in design and are worn on the third finger of either hand. Since this is only a passing fad, one purchases these rings at the jewelry counters of the department stores where semi-precious stones are sold.

Huge single pearls are popular for evening wear and turquoise blue settings are worn with the Egyptian frocks, as turquoise harmonizes better than any other color with the Egyptian materials.

BLACK WALNUT FRAMES.

NEW SCHOOL IN PARIS

PARIS, June 23 (Associated Press). —Acting without the aid of speech to interpret each expression, is being taught in a new course at the French National Conservatory. Georges Vague, master of pantomime; trains pupils in facial gymnastics and posture. His students are given exercises in moving muscles of the face, and in developing their ability to stimulate anger, hate, joy and sorrow just as in the conventional classes they are taught to convey ideas with a combination of facial expression, gesture and tone of voice.

One of Vague's ideas is the suppression of undue motion. Instead of waving their arms and contorting their bodies in stress of emotion, his pupils cultivate an ability to express themselves rather with postures than with gestures.

GIRLS AND WOMEN HELD BY ANAEMIA

Rich, Red Blood Needed to Restore Their Health.

There are thousands of growing girls and women held in the deadly clutches of anaemia. Slowly but surely a deathly pallor settles on their cheeks; their eyes grow dull; their step languid; their appetite fickle. Daily they are losing their vitality and brightness. Pains in the side, headaches and backaches follow, and life seems to be scarcely worth living. What is needed in cases of this kind is new, rich red blood which will bring back to weak, ailing girls and women the charm of brightness of perfect health. To obtain this new, rich blood try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Their action is directly upon the blood; they supply the elements necessary to make it rich and red, and in this way they bring back the glow of health to the cheeks; brightness to the eyes, and a lightness and energy to the step. Among those who have found benefit through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Miss Emma J. Johnston, R.R. No. 1, Clinton, Ont., who says:—"In the spring of 1921 I felt weak and very much run down. It was with difficulty that I forced myself to work at all. I had headaches, was very pale, and felt constantly tired. In our local paper I ran across the testimonial of a lady who told of the benefit had from using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to give them a trial. Very soon I felt a change for the better, and by the time I had taken five boxes I felt like a new person. The tired, worn out feeling had vanished and I could go about my work from morning until night without any difficulty. I certainly cannot speak too highly of Dr. Williams Pink Pills and when I meet anyone weak and run down I strong advise them to give these pills a trial."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Ball-Bearing Steering Spindles Give Jewett Easy Steering

THE Paige-built Jewett responds instantly to your slightest touch on the wheel. The reason is in those ball-bearings at the top of the steering spindle—an exclusive nicety of Paige engineering. Only in actual driving do you appreciate the magic difference they make.

And the ball-bearing steering spindles—oiled not greased—will retain their ease of movement. They are a part of the Paige-Timken axles—typical of Jewett's quality. Women who drive the Jewett find it like no car they ever knew for delightful behavior and real comfort. It is this same quality of touch-guidance steering that makes Jewett Six a real car for real men. Try it yourself.

SAVE ROAD SPACE

Congestion in the downtown districts of some of the cities has grown to such a state of despair that authorities are now seeking the co-operation of owners against waste of road space, as a help toward relief.

"Don't waste the highway," is the cry.

By this is meant, don't take up space which your car actually doesn't cover.

For example, in parking, the correct method is to line up as close to the curb as possible. That leaves all the rest of the roadway to moving vehicles. But if the car is parked a foot off the curb, although parallel to it, there is waste of a foot, the length of the car, into the roadway.

If the street happens to be crowded with vehicles going in both directions, even this foot of waste may mean the crowding out of a line of autos and further congestion of traffic.

Angular Parking

This, however, is not so bad as parking with the rear jutting out into the street. Here there is a waste not only of the space between the car and the curb, but also that space which completes the rectangle formed by the curb and a parallel line drawn along the outermost edge of the parked car. When a car coming along the road has to turn out to miss the parked auto, and the street is filled with vehicles, a jam easily follows.

This sort of carelessness in parking results in a call to police court, and a possible fine, in some cities.

Not only in parking, but in driving is there opportunity to save the roadway for others. The accompanying diagram shows how this is possible.

An auto running along the middle of a roadway, wide enough for four vehicles, for example, wastes the width of a whole car—or a half car on each side. Another, running between the curb and the middle of the road, uses up enough space for two cars, instead of only one.

Heavy Traffic

Of course, this doesn't matter on open roads where one auto may turn out for another to pass with ease. But where traffic is heavy and slow, where cars must run two or more abreast, one car should not take up room enough to crowd out another alongside.

The same contention of the traffic authorities applies to turns and safety zones. A car parked too close to a safety zone makes it difficult for moving vehicles to turn into it, or for the double row of two to merge into a single line through the zone. Therefore, it is suggested that a driver park as far back of the safety zone as is possible. Besides it might save his left front fender from being bumped.

In turning right, there is waste, if the driver does not hug the curb as closely as possible, so that those going straight on ahead may continue at one speed at his left. For the same reason, a driver intending to turn left, should at first turn right into the cross street and around to his left, preparatory to crossing. Thus, cars going straight through have plenty of room to pass without being obliged to turn out to the left and cause further congestion.

DUKE OF WELLINGTON PAYS A YEARLY RENT

LONDON, June 23—(United Press).—"Rent Day"—usually a source of annoyance to the average citizen—found the Duke of Wellington in a state of blissful calm. The rent was ready. The annual rent of the Duke's mansions at Apsley House, London, and Strathfield Saye, Buckinghamshire, is no great thing to worry about. The "rent," in fact, is merely a small silken flag on a silver staff, replica of a French standard captured at Waterloo, which must be tendered to the King, as the representative of the British nation, every year on the anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo.

Such was the condition on which the nation presented to the "Iron Duke" to commemorate his victory, the estates of Strathfield Saye and Apsley House. This morning the Duke's agent proceeded to Buckingham Palace and duly turned over the "rent," so that the Duke is assured of a roof over his head for the next twelve months.

THE "TROUBLE SHOOTER"

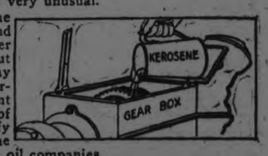
Shows How to Adjust and Tune up Motor for the Season's Running.

By E. H. SCOTT

This article gives practical, step-by-step instructions to the motorist who wants to reduce Mr repair bills, get more power from his motor, and eliminate trouble during the coming touring season.

Care of Gears—Universal Joints and Rear Axle

Trouble with any of the above units is a rare occurrence, but noise, due to lack of care is NOT so very unusual.



If your car is a new one, the gear box should be drained and flushed out with kerosene after the first 500 miles to wash out any grit or metal chips that may be in it. After draining thoroughly, fill up with the lubricant recommended by the makers of your car, or if he does not specify what oil to use, then consult the chart issued by one of the large oil companies.

Be careful to get the right grade of oil. If it is TOO THIN, it will creep out, but if it is TOO THICK it absorbs power and does not lubricate the gears properly. The level of the oil should be kept just below the main shaft bearing. If the oil is kept above this level, it will leak out of the case, but if it is allowed to get too low, it will not throw enough oil on the gears to lubricate them properly, and result in wear and noisy operation of the gears. After the first 500 miles, it is generally sufficient to examine and refill the gear box with oil every 1,500 to 2,000 miles, and drain and flush out once a season.

After attending to the gear box, examine the universal joints. There is one situated just behind the gear box, and another one is sometimes used at the end of the propeller shaft where it enters the rear axle. It is generally necessary to crawl under the car to lubricate these joints, and for this reason they are often neglected. If you DO neglect these important parts, it will not be long before you will have them brought to your attention by a rattle that will not be ignored, especially when you are running at slow speeds. When the universal joints wear, it causes "backlash." When there is very much slackness in these joints the power, instead of being transmitted smoothly to the rear axle, is transmitted with a series of jars and shocks, and eventually will cause trouble in the gear box and rear axle. The above remarks apply only to metal joints, the fabric and leather joints that are now used on a large number of cars require no attention other than to see that the bolts are kept tight. If you fill the joints with grease every 500 miles, they will give you very little trouble. If the joints are open and are exposed to water or dirt, it is a good idea to fit a flexible leather cover over them.

Remove the drain plug at the bottom of the differential casing and drain out all the old oil, then pour in about a quart of kerosene. Now jack up one rear wheel and securely chock up the front wheels, then start the engine. Now engage high gear and let the wheel you have jacked up revolve for about a minute or so, to get the kerosene flushed all around the casing. Drain off the dirty kerosene and allow the case to drain thoroughly, then fill up to the level of top plug with the lubricant recommended for the rear axle fitted to your car.

If you keep the oil at the proper level in the differential casing and use the correct bodied oil, yet it leaks out on the brake drums and wheels, you can generally cure the trouble by taking off the wheel on the side the oil is leaking from and fitting a new felt washer. If this does not cure the trouble, bore a small hole on each side at the bottom of the casing about 2 inches from the side of the brake drums. The excess oil will drop through the holes, yet allow sufficient to be carried along the axle shaft to lubricate the bearings.

At least once every month, clean all working parts that are exposed to water and dirt, with a stiff brush and some gasoline, then lubricate properly. These parts are neglected on 80% of the cars running on the road today, with the result that they soon become worn, then they rattle and squeak, and frequently break and cause delay and inconvenience on the road. *Keep all parts of your car clean so that inspection is easy.

Put a drop of oil on all hinges, locks, spark and throttle connections and all parts that have a rubbing contact. Go over and tighten up all loose bolts, nuts and screws. The vibration loosens the body bolts, fender bolts, screws in the floor and running boards, radiator bolts and lamp bracket bolts, etc., and regular attention each month is necessary to stop your car from developing annoying squeaks and rattles. This attention is very necessary during the first 2,000 miles a car is run, until all bolts, nuts and screws are bedded down.

AFRAID OF RATS THIS WOMAN MADE FRIENDS OF THEM.

Rats Were So Tame They Staged Revue on Her Roof — Ate Ten Loaves One Day.

NEW YORK, June 23—(By Canadian Press)—Mrs. Mary Tobin, who lives at 266 Old Bergen Road, Jersey City, recently discovered a rat in her house. Being afraid of it, she did not like to incur its enmity by appearing unhospitable, so she decided to be friendly. She tossed it bits of bread and placed a saucer of milk for it on the floor. Nothing loath to accept these evidences of good will, the rat ate the bread, drank the milk and departed. Mrs. Tobin congratulated herself on her tact in dealing with her unwelcome visitor. A day or so later, however, she was horrified by another visit from the rat, who came with a dozen companions to show his appreciation of her kindness. Mrs. Tobin was terrified but did not know how to get rid of them, so she pursued her former plan of making friends.

Each day she placed pans of milk for them about the house and generously distributed loaves of bread, some days going so far as to take no less than ten extra loaves for her obnoxious guests. This went on for over a fortnight, during which time the rodents made themselves thoroughly at home. Their ranks increased daily until the noise they made attracted the attention of Mrs. Tobin's neighbors, who notified health officials. But Mrs. Tobin had gone too far to draw back. Her only salvation lay in gaining the rats' affection, so, thinking to endear herself to them, she built a ladder from a hole they had made in the floor to another in the roof. This enabled the rodents to stage a "Rat Revue" in the open air every night, which motorists came from far and near to witness, illuminating the "revue" with their lights. Finally health officers intervened, and prepared a banquet for the rats consisting of bread soaked in arsenic. One official stated that when he entered the kitchen the floor was covered with nearly a hundred rats, who paid not the slightest attention to him. They were, he affirmed, absolutely fearless, and one actually licked his hand. After the banquet the rats were removed in baskets.

MANY CHILD SUICIDES

CHICAGO, June 23—(United Press).—More than 900 children committed suicide in the United States in 1922. The average of boy suicides was sixteen years and girls fifteen. This was the assertion of Prof. A. N. Farmer, an educator.

"Juvenile suicide is increasing at an alarming rate," said Farmer, who based his statement on the annual report of the Save-a-Life League. "In 1919 there were 477 child suicides. In 1920 there were 707. In 1922 there were over 900, making 3,000 in four years.

"Most girl suicides, it is shown, use poison. Boys use guns. Intolerable home conditions, faulty educational methods, mental derangement and child marriages are mainly responsible for this appalling total. Most children who marry soon find they have made a mistake, quarrel, separate and supply a big per cent of the suicides."

PRES. HARDING WILL SUBMIT NEW TREATY

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(Canadian Press.)— President Harding will submit to Senate another important International treaty when that body meets again in Washington. It will take the form of a five-power convention between the governments of the United States, Great Britain, France, Japan and Italy, proposing a new code of International law with respect to the use of two of the newest and most vital agencies in modern warfare, aircraft and radio. If rattified by the Senate and the other four Powers, the new treaty will set up important new rules for observance or infraction in the next great war.

COBOURG NEWS

COBOURG, June 22.—The Ontario Car Ferry Company of which Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, was elected president at the annual meeting of the Canadian National System in Montreal, operates between the Port of Rochester, New York state, or Genessee dock, and Cobourg. Its two ferries maintain a continuous passenger and freight service summer and winter, bringing in coal and merchandise. The service is a great convenience not only to Cobourg but to the surrounding district. The great need appears to be the establishment of a motor car transit service between the two points as this would be a great benefit to the entire district.

A Quiet Campaign

The Provincial election campaign in West Northumberland is proving to be the least spectacular for years. Locally the two parties, Liberal and Conservative, have contented themselves with a meeting each, the Liberals meeting for nomination of candidate, and the Conservatives to hear Hon. Howard Ferguson. Mr. Sam Clarke, Liberal candidate, has two meetings this week, at Roseneath last night, and at Harwood tonight.

Choirs Exchange For Service

An innovation in church music is a characteristic of choirs and organists in the Lake Ontario district. Last Sunday the choir of Simcoe St. Methodist church, Oshawa, and the choir of Bowmanville Methodist church, with their organists, exchanged duties at a Sunday evening service. Upon one occasion Cobourg and Port Hope Methodist churches reciprocated in a similar exchange and upon all occasions the innovation proved popular.

Giving the Farm a Name

Indications are not lacking that many more farmers than has been, in this locality, are observing the laudable custom of giving the farm a name. The special importance of giving the farm a distinguishing appelation is being more readily recognized as farmers individualize in their offerings for market. If one farm's products are better than another, it is a good way to advertise their value.

In Favor of Margarine

Some of the local Councils of Women in the Lake front district have been discussing the question as to whether the sale of oleomargarine should be permitted or not. The Oshawa Council recently passed a resolution endorsing its use, which was ordered sent to the local member.

New Methodist Church at Stockdale

Stockdale,in East Northumberland, Rev. R. J. Merriam pastor, is to have a new Methodist church, the corner stone of which was well and truly laid last Wednesday, under the auspices of the Masonic Order. The Deputy Grand Master, W. J. Drope, of Grimsby, and the Grand Secretary, Wm. Logan, of Hamilton, representing the Grand Lod Lodge of Canada in Ontario, had charge of the ceremony. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Merriam, called the assembly to order, he introduced the Deputy Grand Master and asked him to take charge. The beautiful ritual of Masonry was used, interspersed with hymns, songs by Brighton Masonic choir. Short addresses were made by Rev. H. G. Kenny of Campbellford, and Rev. W. H. Clarke of Trenton. Previous to tie ceremony some seven hundred peop., were served with dinner. The church when finished, will cost about $9,000 of which $6,000 has already been provided, it is stated.

ENGINEER REID'S REPORT ON BRIDGE AT CAMPBELLFORD

Structure Over Trent River Needs Some Repairing — Recommends Laying of Concrete Floor.

COBOURG, June 23.—At the closing session of the Counties Council Friday morning. Engineer G. G. Reid of Toronto, submitted the following report on the bridge over the Trent River at Campbellford:

"Gentlemen;— As requested, I have examined the superstructure and floor of this bridge and beg to report as follows:

This bridge consists of three Warren truss riveted spans of 79' - 6" C to C. or about 243' long over all. The trusses were built in 1904 but the floor ebams asd stringers, I am informed, were the old ones taken out of the structure replaced at that time. The present concrete floor is the second one that has been laid on this bridge and is now in a very poor shape, full of holes and has been broken through entirely in one or two places and been patched. The trusses appear to be in fair condition but require to be cleaned with brushes and painted .

An analysis of the enclosed stress diagram will show that the trusses are good to carry Class A loadings in accordance with the Specifications of the Ontario Department of Public Highways, that is a live load of 100 pounds per square foot of the roadway or a concentrated load 15 tons (10 tons on one axle at 6' guage). We have assumed that the roadway and sidewalks would never be fully loaded at the same time. The floor beams and stringers are very much weaker and will allow of excessive vibration and defection, no doubt the cause of the breaking up of the two concrete floors. The floor beams of the old bridge were supposed to have been strengthened by bolting a 10" I beam on top. It is of very little value as it is not as stiff and deflect, leaving the lower beam to take nearly all the load. Thus under full load the 10" I is stressed to 14700 (less than the allowable 16000) pounds per square inch while the lower old beam is taking 26500. The floor beams then are safe for only 60 pounds per square foot or for a concentrated load of about 87 pounds or a concentrated load of 5 1-2 tons.

In view of the weakness of the floor system, I think it would be unwise to attempt to repair the present floor or the surface of it with asphalt. I would recommend that a new floor system be built and a new concrete floor be laid thereon. The enclosed sketch shows the floor and a suggested new floor system. The floor beams will not be difficult to replace, as they are suspended by U bolts from the truss, but the taking out of the 10-inch will lower the floor 8 inches, which may require jacking up of the trusses. I have shown the outer stringers unchanged. The other old stringers could be used to replace the wooden sidewalk joists as far as they will go. Or the outer old curb stringers might be placed on the sidewalk, and new 10-inch ones used at the curbs and a concrete curb used instead of the steel one.

There is a new type of lighter concrete floor known as Plankstone, said to be giving good results. It consists of pre-cast concrete planks with a hollow space below, but apparently it will cost more than the ordinary concrete floor, being quoted at about 65c per square foot. It would, however, allow traffic over the bridge much quicker.

To take out the present floor and replace it as shown with extra steel beams on the sidewalk would cost about $9,250.00.

In view of the fact that the floor system has undoubtedly been the reason of the failure of the present concrete floor, we have no hesitation in saying that a permanent job can be made out of it in the manner indicated.

Send Delegation.

The report was first considered by the Committee on Roads and Bridges, and the point was raised that as the Campbellford bridge is a connecting link in the improved highway system in the district, the Provincial Government should be asked to defray part of the cost. Warden Smith, Reeve Wood of Millbrook, and McColl, of Brighton Township, were named a committee to interview the Minister of Highways. Campbellford will be invited to send a delegation of citizens, at its own expense, as the town will be required to bear 25 per cent. of the expense of repairing the structure. Reeve Anderson will be a member of the delegation provided the town pays his expenses to Toronto. The report of the committee was adopted without amendment by the Council.

Deputy Reeve Wilkinson, commissioner of the Wilson Island bridge, was authorized to have that structure painted and repaired in accordance with his suggestion in his report to the Council.

Unemployment is a Menace to the World.

By HENRY WOOD

GENEVA (By mail to United Press)—Unemployment still continues the most serious economic menace threatening the entire world at the present time.

The United States, England and Switzerland, all countries on a sound financial basis now, are virtually the only ones that have succeeded so far this year in seriously overcoming the unemployment situation. In nearly all of the other countries the situation remained virtually the same as last year.

These facts have just been established by world-wide statistics received at the International Labor Bureau and made public today. While some countries show a slight improvement, due to local conditions, others show a slight increase in unemployment so hat save for the three countries mentioned above the world-wide unemployment situation has made very little improvement over that of last year.

In the United St tes the situation has been largely overcome by a steady increase in production, notably in the building trades, but actual labor shortage along certain lines and transportation difficulties have prevented a c mplete adjustment to date.

Better in England

In England the situation has improved as a result of increased production in coal and other mining and in the steel, iron, wool n, carpet, clothing and paper industries.

Switzerland, the only oth r country that has succeeded in materially bettering its situation has reduced by 3,500 the number of totally unemployed.

Canada has played in somewhat bad luck and the number of unemployed especially in the trade unions has increased considerably this year.

Norway, Denmark and Holland all show an increase in unemployment over last year. In France and Belgium the situation remains pretty much unchanged.

Austria, which was undergoing a serious increase in unemployment at the end of last year, has been able to check this.

In Germany, although the percentage of unemployed in the trade unions was only 4.4 per cent at the end of January and which was about normal compared with the pre-war conditions of 1913 this situation has been greatly changed since then by the Ruhr occupation. Agriculture alone in Germany has shown an increased demand for labor.

Nothing in the statistics received by the International Labor Bureau hold out hope for any real immediate improvement in the general world-wide situation.

U. S. MONEY STOPS; REVOLT IS HALTED

Republican Movement in Recent Months Has Been Kept Alive By Boys and Girls.

By CHARLES M. McCANN

DUBLIN, June 23 (United Press).—The civil war just ended in Ireland died of anemia, when Irishmen in the United States ceased to furnish it with money, the lifeblood of revolution.

Ramon De Valera, titular head at least of the rebels, signed the death warrant of the Republican revolt when he recently sought peace negotiations with the Free State authorities.

And the government having refused to negotiate, De Valera wrote the rebellion's epitaph when, a few weeks ago, he ordered unconditional laying down of arms by his followers.

But for weeks previous, the Republican movement had been a head without a body. The "head" itself was much smaller than it had been, with many leaders among the 15,000 Republicans whom the Free Staters had arrested and most of whom are still in prison.

De Valera and a bevy of faithful women had composed the head. The body itself was made up largely of boys and girls, most of them between the ages of 12 and 18.

An indication of the Republican's straits was given in a recent Republican statement, repudiating a letter which, Free State authorities claimed, showed De Valera was not acting in good faith in seeking peace.

Written by a Boy

The letter, purporting to come from a Republican leader, urged maintenance of Republican aims and activities. The Republicans, in giving their version, confessed it was written by a 15-year-old rebel, and stated naively that both he and his mother had written explaining it.

For weeks the sometimes spectacular "attacks," burnings and shootings had been mainly for revenge or gain by ordinary highwaymen and thugs, operating under the Republican banner.

DeValera's followers have repudiated all recent attacks. British soldiers, who during the Anglo-Irish fighting kept themselves awake at night by shooting at cats, would probably accept the truth of the Republicans' explanation of one of them, published after the usual exhaustive investigation:

"On Thursday morning, at 2.45, Free State soldiers at Portobello and Lissonfield barracks were firing their rifles into the air. There was no attack, one of them admitted, 'but we take an odd bang now and then just to show we're alive' "

Those two incidents—the "Republic of Ireland" explaining a letter by a 15-year-old "leader," and the "odd bang" party that was prominently played in Dublin newspapers as an "attack," to what state the rebellion had come.

The many new grave-stones of brave young Irishmen on goth sides will remain as a momento of the earlier stages.

Last Summer's Left-Overs

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, N. Y., June 23 (United Press).—Do you remember when you were a little girl living in the land of "Make-Believe?" We "made believe" we were grown ladies with servants galore and huge estates and when we grew up without the servants and estates, perhaps, we had the business of "make-believe" THRUST upon us. We had to MAKE over our old clothes and BELIEVE they were the latest models out.

The woman who can get away with this little job of make-believe is a wonder.

I want to suggest a few little things that can be done with the left-overs of last summer. First, there is that fringed cape made of black silk crepe, which many of us had. They are completely out of fashion this year and unless we cut off the fringe and add a piece of material placing it on with a tuck so that it makes a straight, long cape with a little gray squirrel collar at the neck, we won't wear it.

A Shopping Gown

I saw the prettiest shopping gown for warm afternoons that could be made out of the old black cape. Of course some new material had to be bought, as the cape formed only the skirt portion.

The long upper bodice was made of white silk crepe with huge squares outlined in black. A narrow strip of black monkey fur finished the joining of the skirt to the bodice and drew the two materials together.

The bodice had a square neck line and very short sleeves which were also finished with monkey fur. This was worn with a tiny black mushroom-shaped hat faced in white chiffon and ornamented with a white waterlily on the front brim with green leaves falling to one side.

Another thing one can use the old cape for—the bathing suit with the long bodice and three tiered skirt and bloomers.

Remodeling Summer Dresses

Perhaps you have a lovely summer dress that is too short for this season. It may be a little organdy with a ruffled skirt, an embroidered skirt or some lovely material that you hate to throw away. Try taking the best of the skirt and making side panels. It matters not if the panel is pieced to give it length, as this can be done in some unnoticeable way. It is very simple then to buy enough material for a plain little underslip of the same shade.

If the frock is faded, wash the new material and place it in the sun until it has lost it's brightness. I have already said in previous articles that skirts may be lengthened by means of pleated flounces. These are very new. Sports skirts may be lengthened by sewing them on a long bodice. They need not extend as high, as the normal waist line as the sweaters hide them anyway.

There's a hat box full of last season's hats. Their brims are somewhat awry and their crowns are bent beyond recognition. Try wetting the crowns and shaping them over an inverted bowl of the required headsize. When dry, paint with a hat dye in an y darker shade. Wire the brim and bind with grograine or velvet ribbon. Ribbon or flower trimming can be used. As a certain Irishman said, "It's not the age of the hat, but the way it is cocked that makes it."

A smart jacquette is made of tapestry cross-stitch in colored wool, done on a large and supple canvas so that the effect is that of a colorful piece of tapestry.

AT DRUGGISTS ONLY

PUBLIC OPINION HAS SWUNG TO MEYERS

Meyers' Undelivered Address To Employees Of Factories He Visited—Special Appeal To Men Who Did Not Know Him Personally

OBSERVANCE of the unwritten rules of an election campaign prevented John W. Meyers from making one address that strongly appealed to himself.

That was to the employees of the factories he visited.

The Liberal candidate has expressed himself as highly pleased at the friendly manner in which he was received on that trip through the shops.

It was a privilege he was glad to accept, for while many of the men were personally known to him, others he did not know. He asked none of them to vote for him, realizing their right to mark their ballots according to their preferences and convictions.

John W. Meyers knew that MANY OF THE MEN HE MET IN THE FACTORIES WERE FOR HIM. Outside, they had told him so, and others have been among his most loyal supporters in the detail work at the Committee rooms after supper, and by other helpful assistance and suggestions that have been gratefully accepted.

And while glad to meet these supporters as his friends, John W. Meyers was also anxious to win the confidence of the other men to whom he presented himself, as it were, for a "close-up" inspection.

And if acts could speak this is what he hoped these men interpreted from his visit to the places where they work:—

"GENTLEMEN, You have heard about me in this campaign. On the platform and in the press I have tried to tell you what I stand for. But I want you to know me personally.

"I want to be something more than a mere name to you when you take up your ballots on Monday. I want you to feel then that you know the MAN, J. W. Meyers, that you can trust him, and I want you to know why he is a candidate.

Fair Dealing To All People Is Record of Liberal Party In Province of Ontario

"I hope you will be impressed then with this promise—that I mean to do my duty, if I am elected, as your representative in the Legislature as conscientiously as I can.

"I ask you to vote for me because I am the Liberal candidate, pledged to the Liberal policies which I believe are as vitally important to you as they are to me and to all the citizens of Ontario. Fair dealing to all the people and the safeguarding of the INTERESTS OF ALL of them has been the record of the Liberal party and Liberal administrations in this province.

"I ask you to vote for me because I believe in the sincerity and the ability of Wellington Hay, the Liberal leader. I have known him all my life. I am proud to call him my friend, and I feel certain the people of Ontario would be proud of him as their Premier. He is a business man who will put the affairs of this province on a business basis.

"I can't say much more than that. The decision rests with you on Monday. I ask you to consider my record as a citizen in Peterboro and also the fact that I was a farmer for thirty-five years. I ask you also to consider the record of Wellington Hay whom I am happy to follow in this election. I thank you for giving me this hearing, and I do hope that you will give me the benefit of your earnest consideration on Monday when you go to the polls."

Howard Ferguson Not Acceptable To Many Conservatives, Clean Politics Demands His Removal From Public Life

THE Independent electors and many Conservatives are disgusted with the Honorable G. Howard Ferguson.

His politician career is strewn with failures and administrative scandals that overshadow the claims of Conservative candidates in this election.

Every vote for a Conservative candidate is likewise a vote for G. Howard Ferguson and an approval of his odious record.

On Monday these electors have their opportunity of bringing in a verdict against G. Howard Ferguson, and clean politics demand that they perform that duty not by remaining at home and declining to vote; that would be the negative way, but by voting against the Conservative candidate.

In West Peterboro this duty is made agreeable for Independents and even for Conservatives by the appealing character and record of THE LIBERAL CANDIDATE, JOHN W. MEYERS, and the Liberal leader, F. Wellington Hay.

BOTH ARE BUSINESS MEN, offering themselves for public duty in the spirit of service. Their reputations inspire the confidence of all citizens even as they have won the allegiance of Liberals.

Ferguson was foisted on the Conservative party, and Conservatives who will not tolerate the kind of man who is a reproach to the memory of their old leader Sir James Whitney, should find it easy to vote for JOHN W. MEYERS.

Meyers Built Up Industry In Peterboro Without Begging Concessions From The People

THE electors of West Peterboro have come to know John W. Meyers during the last three weeks as they never knew him before.

They did know him as the man who had built up a fine industry in Peterboro, creating new business, providing employment for many workers, and increasing the value of property.

More recently they knew him as an Alderman of the city whom the ratepayers honoured by electing him at the head of the polls.

As a producer, as a builder of business, John W. Meyers went quietly along keeping the wheels of his industry running continuously and ASKING NO CONCESSIONS FROM HIS FELLOW CITIZENS. That is something to remember.

More recently every phase of his record and reputation has been exposed to the full light of publicity, and the more closely John W. Meyers became known the higher has he risen in the estimation of the men and women of this riding.

That searching, exacting thing known as public opinion has swung ho him with accumulating evidences during the last ten days as the full force of his personality and character and the wholesomeness of his record were felt and understood.

John W. Meyers has been examined by the electors since nomination day and has been found worthy of their confidence and support.

Peterboro needs men like John W. Meyers working for her.

ELECT MEYERS ON MONDAY.

A PRESENTATION TO R. F. DOWNEY

Male Teachers Eulogize the Retiring Principal of Central School.

On Thursday evening, after school, the male teachers of the local public schools met in the Central School to bid R. F. Downey, goodbye, and wish him well in his new position as Public School Inspector in Victoria County.

M. Clark, for the men, made an eloquent speech in which he eulogized Mr. Downey for his many personal qualities, and for his excellent work in promoting the welfare of the teachers, and of Education, not only in Peterborough, but also in the province. He congratulated Mr. Downey on his new appointment, and wished him every success.

Mr. F. E. Kerr then presented Mr. Downey with a very serviceable stationery set in token of the male teachers' appreciation.

Mr. Downey expressed his pleasure at receipt of the gift, and surveyed some of the work he had attempted to accomplish. He regretted leaving the teaching fraternity of this city, his church, and the various societies and clubs of which he was a member. The most disappointing feature of the new situation was, he said, that it necessitated the breaking up of friendships and associations of 15 years spent in Peterborough.

POLICE RAIDS

Q.—"Did the constable tell you he had the prisoner in the case?"

Witness—"Of course not."

It was later shown that the young lady was not at any time under arrest, she and her companion having left the party to walk home before the battle developed.

Chopped Up Automobile.

The man of the house became angry during the course of the evening, which was wearing on to morning, at what he considered overtures toward his wife by one of the visitors, and chased him with an axe. Failing to catch his man, he vented his fury on the offender's car which was standing at the side of the house. He chopped the tires, ripped the top, and made kindling of part of the woodwork. The party broke up in confusion, and met again in Police Court, when the man who carried the liquor, confronted by the young woman's testimony, was advised by his lawyer to plead guilty. He was sentenced to $200 fine or three months in jail.

Magistrate Langley gave some friendly advice to the girl, who is young enough to leave the company of such men and reform, and delivered a homily on the evils of young girls joining such parties.

A co-offender with this man made his getaway, but further developments are expected in the case. The Provincial police are determined to clean up the drink-running escapades, and have secured five convictions this week.

ROME, June 23. Canadian Press. —The eruption of Mount Etna has entered an erratic stage with periods of increase and decrease in its activity alternating. The flow of lava toward Linguaglossa is continuing, but has slowed down to so great a degree that at the present rate it would be weeks before the town proper was reached.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Dear Sir,—Is wheel riding allowed on the walks close to city. Some time ago there was trouble over wheel riding, resulting in a police court scrape, and it bids fair to occur again if this nuisance is not stopped at once.

DRAGOONS APPRECIATED THE Y.M.C.A. CANTEEN

One feature of the recent camp of the Third Prince of Wales Dragoons held at the Exhibition Grounds was the canteen service rendered the boys. No regimental canteen was provided, so the local branch of the Y.M.C.A. undertook the work, which was in charge of Lieut. Douglas Loomis, M.C.

Soft drinks, as well as many of the odds and ends which are needed for successful camp life, were sold to the men practically at cost.

The service was favourably commented upon by General Elmsley during his tour of inspection.

The "Y" also opened the showers free to the men in uniform, and the kindness was greatly appreciated by the men after a gruelling day on parade.

BALDWIN REPUDIATES ALLEGED STATEMENTS

LONDON, June 23 (United Press) —Premier Baldwin to-day formally denied statements attributed to him and printed in many newspapers touching upon the relations between Great Britain and the United States.

Baldwin was particularly incensed at the following quotation attributed to him:

"Now that Ireland is out of the way and the debt question is settled, Prohibition seems the only thing likely to disturb Anglo-American friendship."

There is no foundation for the foregoing and other remarks, the United Press was officially informed.

HOW TO RESUSCITATE THE DROWNED

The many accidents by drowning lead a subscriber to offer the suggestion that the Examiner give space to the following articles on bathing and the recovery of those who seem to be dead as a result of drowning. These facts are taken from the Royal Humane Society which is one of the greatest in the world. The contributor has had opportunity to test the rules named and can recommend them.

On taking a seemingly drowned person from the water observe the following rules:

Rule 1.—To adjust the Patient's Position.—Place the patient on his back on a flat surface, inclined a little from the feet upwards; raise and support the head and shoulders on a small firm cushion or folded article of dress placed under the shoulder-blades. Remove all tight clothing about the neck and chest.

Rule 2.—To maintain a Free Entrance of Air into the Windpipe.—Cleanse the mouth and nostrils; open the mouth; draw forward the Patient's tongue, and keep it forward; an elastic band over the tongue and under the chin will answer this purpose.

Rule 3.—To imitate the Movements of Breathing.

—Firstly.—Induce Inspiration.—Place yourself at the head of the Patient, grasp his arms, raise them upwards by the sides of his head, stretch them steadily but gently upwards for two seconds. (By this means fresh air is drawn into the lungs by raising the ribs.

Secondly. — Induce Expiration—Immediately turn down the Patient's arms, and press them—or your own hands—gently against the sides of his chest, for two seconds. (By this means foul air is expelled from the lungs by depressing the ribs.

Continue these movements—Repeat these measures alternately, deliberately, and perseveringly, fifteen times in a minute, until a spontaneous effort to respire be perceived. (By these means an exchange of air is produced in the lungs similar to that effected by natural respiration.) When spontaneous effort to respire is perceived cease to imitate the movements of breathing, and proceed to induce circulation and warmth (as below).

Rule 4.—To excite respiration.—During the employment of the above method excite the nostril with snuff or smelling-salts, or tickle the throat with a feather. Rub the chest and face briskly, and dash cold and hot water alternately on them. Friction of the limbs and body with dry flannel or cloths should be had recourse to. When there is proof of returning respiration, the individual may be placed in a warm bath, the movements of the arms above described being continued until respiration is fully restored. Raise the body in twenty seconds to a sitting position, dash cold water against the chest and face, and pass ammonia under the nose. Should a galvanic apparatus be at hand, apply the sponges to the region of diaphragm and heart.

Treatment After Natural Breathing Has Been Restored.

To induce circulation and warmth.—Wrap the patient in dry blankets and rub the limbs upward energetically. Promote the warmth of the body by hot flannels, bottle or bladders of hot water, heated bricks, to the pit of the stomach, the armpits, and to the soles of the feet.

On the restoration of life, when the power of swallowing has returned a teaspoonful of warm water, small quantities of wine, warm brandy and water, or coffee be given. The Patient should be kept in bed and a disposition to sleep encouragegd. During reaction, large mustard plasters to the chest and below the shoulders will greatly relieve the distressed breathing.

Note.—In all cases of prolonged immersion in cold water, when the breathing continues, a warm bath should be employed to restore the temperature.

Important to Bathres.

Avoid bathing within two hours after a meal.

Avoid bathing when exhausted by fatigue or from any other cause.

Avoid bathing when the body is cooling after perspiration.

Avoid bathing altogether in the open air, if after having been a short time in the water, there is a sense of chilliness with numbness of the hands and feet. But—

Bathe when the body is warm, provided no time is lost in getting into the water.

Avoid chilling the body by sitting or standing undressed on the banks or in boats after having been in the water.

Avoid remaining too long in the water—leave the water immediately there is the slightest feeling of chilliness.

The vigorous and strong may bathe early in the morning on an empty stomach.

The young, and those who are weak, had better bathe two or three hours after a meal—the best time for such is from two to three hours after breakfast.

Those who are subject to attacks of giddiness or faintness, and those who suffer from palpitation and other sense of discomfort at the heart, should not bathe without first consulting their Medical Adviser.

To Persons Who Cannot Swim

If you get into water beyond your depth, do not plunge, struggle, or throw your hands and arms out of the water. Tread Water in the erect position by moving the feet up and down, at the same time paddling with the hands, keeping them under water. If any person approaches to rescue you, preserve your presence of mind and do not grasp him; do what he tells you. If any small object is thrown to you, place it under your chest or armpits, and do not struggle to raise yourself out of the water; your head will not go under if you follow these intructions.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Relieved of Nervousness and Other Distressing Ailments by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound four years ago, and am taking it now for the Change of Life and other troubles and I receive great benefit from it. I am willing to let you use my letter as a testimonial because it is the truth. I found your booklet in my letter box and read it carefully, and that is how I came to take the Vegetable Compound myself. It has given me quiet nerves so that I sleep all night, and a better appetite. I have recommended it already to all my friends and relatives."—Mrs. ENGLEMANN, 2032 Palmetto St., Ridgewood, Brooklyn, N. Y.

For the woman suffering from nervous troubles causing sleeplessness, headache, hysteria, "the blues," Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine. For the woman of middle age who is passing through the trials of that period, it can be depended upon to relieve the troubles common at that time.

You should give it a fair trial now.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor of The Examiner.

Peterborough ,23rd June, 1923.

Sir,—In Wednesday's issue of The Examiner I read a letter in the Voice of the People, signed by H. Mann, in which he complains of unfair treatment to him by the Peterborough and District Football Association, in not having been notified to attend a meeting in order to put in his defence, in his recent case. He also states that the Association held two meetings since the offence was committed by him. As these statements are not correct, I wish to have the following brought before the readers of The Examiner.

In the first place I would refer this player, namely H. Mann, to Rule 14, Clause G, paragraph 7, of the constitution of the P. and D. F. A., which reads as follows: "Any player ruled off the field of play must automatically attend the next meeting of the Board of Directors, along with the referee."

Is this not an invitation? A player who has played the game as long as this man claims to have played it, should have the rules at his finger tips.

In the second place, this game was played on Thursday, 14th June, and at the regular meeting of the Association held on 18th June the case was disposed of, and the Association did not hold two meetings.

Further, referee's reports are part of the agenda of the Association's regular weekly meetings, and as the referees are appointed by the directors with every confidence, the Association are bound to deal with any reports made by the appointed official, and as this case was so clear, by several witnessing the player strike the referee, and knowing that this man was guilty of the offence, they were quite justified in their actions.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this valuable space, I remain,

Yours for clean sport,

W. G. Nicholls
Secy.-Treas., P. and D. F. A.

FOUND HUSBAND'S BODY

BROCKVILLE, June 23.—(Canadian Press).— Returning from a shopping trip in the village Mrs. John Ryan, Spencerville, found the lifeless body of her husband a cabinet maker aged 58 lying in the yard where he had apparently been stricken after having cut his lawn. The man had been dead for an hour it was declared by a physician who was called.

WEAK WOMEN

cannot hope ever to become strong and well again unless they have plenty of good, rich, red blood of the kind that organic iron—Nuxated Iron—helps make. Nuxated Iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, while metallic iron is just as it comes from the action of strong acids on iron filings. Nuxated Iron does not injure the teeth nor upset the stomach; it is an entirely different thing from ordinary metallic iron. It quickly helps make rich, red blood, revitalize wornout, exhausted nerves, and give you new strength and energy. Over 4,000,000 people annually are using it. At all druggists. Beware of substitute. The genuine has N.I. stamped on every tablet. Always insist on having the genuine.

THE GUILT OF MRS. SURRATT

Numbered among the many thousand of women to whom the Civil War spelled ruin was Mrs. Mary E. Surratt who had owned a large plantation near Upper Marlborough, Md., laid waste by the troops which passed through it. As a result, Mrs. Surratt was forced to move to Washington, where she supported herself by taking boarders, among them a young clerk in the War Department named Weichman.

Shortly after the widow had changed her residence, her pretty daughter attracted the attention of John Wilkes Booth, who was also a friend of Mrs. Surratt's son, John, who had been a Confederate blockade runner. Late in the afternoon of the Good Friday on which President Lincoln was assassinated, Mrs. Surratt went to Upper Marlborough Courthouse on an errand of her own and delivered a bundle which Booth had entrusted to her care to a tavernkeeper at Surrattville, Md., only a short distance away. This bundle, it was later proved, contained pistol, and a field glass. Upon returning to her home in Washington, Mrs. Surratt was placed under arrest on a charge of having been actively connected with the plot to assassinate Lincoln and Seward and, with the other prisoners, she was subjected to a trial that lasted nearly two months.

At this trial Government witnesses testified that the Surratt house had been a frequent meeting-place for the conspirators, but no evidence was produced to prove that Mrs. Surratt had been aware of this or that she had participated in the plot in any way. Weichman, the clerk who gave the major portion of the evidence against the woman, is said to have confessed that his statements were designed principally to divert suspicion from himself, but the man who claimed to have received this confession was not allowed to testify.

When the famous trial came to a close on June 12, 1865, some of the judges were in favor of acquitting Mrs. Surratt, but the Judge Advocate suggested that she be adjudged guilty together with the others, but that a recommendation for mercy in her case be sent to President Johnson. This recommendation was signed by a majority of the military tribunal, but, after the verdict, President Johnson refused to see Mrs. Surratt's counsel and even went so far as to exercise his official prerogative and suspend a writ of habeas corpus secured by the condemned woman's attorney.

On the morning appointed for Mrs. Surratt's execution the provost marshal sent word to the President that a confession had just been received entirely clearing the prisoner and requesting a temporary reprieve until the matter could be looked into further. Still, the President was unyielding and, with the three other condemned conspirators, Mrs. Surratt was half led and half carried—for she was too ill and weak to walk—to the scaffold, where she paid the extreme penalty for her alleged crimes.

President Johnson later declared that he had never seen the military commission's recommendation for mercy and that he had not received the message from the provost marshal until it was too late for him to act. The question of who had intercepted these remains as much of a mystery as does the actual guilt or innocence of Mrs. Surratt herself.

ONTARIO LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

Toronto, June 14, 1923.

Office of Hon. H. G. Ferguson,
Conservative Leader.

Dear Elector,—The Province of Ontario is confronted with a serious situation. During the past four years there has been such extravagance and waste that the debt has grown enormously and our taxes have mounted rapidly.

Every citizen of Ontario who has the welfare of the country at heart, must view this condition with anxiety.

If the Drury Government is allowed to continue its reckless expenditures and inefficiency soon we must resort to direct taxation.

In this election every voter has the right to declare against this needless exploitation of the people and the province, and by the proper use of the ballot restore responsible business government with truth and honesty in public life.

That you will do this for your own sake and that of the future of Ontario, si my earnest wish.

Yours faithfully,

G. H. FERGUSON.

The Gateway to Opportunity

To-day not all young people are aware of the value of a savings account as the foundation of future security and prosperity.

A savings account not only provides for the proverbial "rainy day," but very often it is the open gate to an opportunity to get into business, to buy a home or to make a lucrative investment.

No other provision for the future is so sure of results in security and contentment as a savings account.

WHO ARE THE 21 MEN

WASHINGTON, June 23 (United Press).—Who are the 21 men—or women—who reported that in 1921 they received incomes of $1,000,000 or more?

Uncle Sam's income tax collectors know, but they won't tell. A preliminary report on 1921 income tax returns, recently given out, just says there were 21 of them.

Henry Ford, the Rockefellers, father and son, Charles M. Schwab, Judge E. H. Gary, of the Steel corporation—these are some of the names that come to mind when $1,000,000 incomes are mentioned. But the identity of the 21 is jealously guarded by federal law.

The report contains many other interesting facts and figures, as, for instance, the showing that 89,634 wives made separate returns from those of their husbands. Also that 115,356 women in the country reported themselves "head of families."

Growth of Income

The growth of income taxation since 1914 is revealed in tables which show that the total number of returns jumped from 357,515 in 1914 to 6,662,176 in 1921.

The figures also show that in most states the average taxable income—hence the average tax, has steadily decreased exemptions. Some instances follow:

In 1916, the average taxable income in California was $10,700! in 1921 it was $3,025. In Colorado it was $12,143 in 1916, and $2,504 in 1921; in Delaware, $42,941 in 1916, and $2,749 in 1921.

In Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan and many other states the average taxable income went down from about $10,000 to $2,500 or $3,000.

In Ohio it dropped from $14,642 to $2,888.

Tune Your Radio for the North Pole

WISCASSET, Me., June 23 (United Press).—Donald B. MacMillan, noted Arctic explorer, is busy fitting out his staunch little schooner, Bowdoin, for another voyage into the silent wastes of the sub-polar lands.

The Bowdoin will immediately head north for the ice-fields. MacMillan plans to winter at Cape Sabine, if the Bowdoin can push her way through the ice that far north, or in Jones Sound, south of Ellesmere Land.

The object of MacMillan's voyage is to establish whether the continent faces another glacial period. The movement of ice within recent years indicates that the glaciers are slowly, almost imbotany.

The expedition will carry a bronze tablet, which will be placed on the rocky face of Cape Sabine, in memory perceptibly moving southward. Even should this indicate the approach of a great wall of ice, such as once crept f—over the North American continent, it will be thousands of years before it reaches civilization.

The Bowdoin is equipped with powerful wireless transmitting equipment, and with the co-operation of the American Radio Relay League, MacMillan will experiment in sending wireless messages from the far north, where some scientists say the aurora borealis will interfere with the radio vaves. Next winter thousands of amateurs, sitting in the warm comfort of homes in great cities of this country and Canada, will strain their ears for a voice from the Bowdoin, icebound near the pole.

Photographs of animals and birds of the Arctic will be made with still and motion picture cameras and MacMillan hopes to add to his knowledge of terrestial magnetism the mysterious electrical influences of the far north, and of the Greely expedition of 1884, when 18 members of the intrepid explorers died of starvation and exposure.

LEARN ETIQUETTE FROM THE MOVIES.

By JACK JUNGMEYER

HOLLYWOOD, June 23.—Raillery much more rapidly than scolding promotes civilization. If you doubt that, watch audiences in the motion picture school of manners. Take the etiquet of eating, for example. The knife as a pie-eating implement survived generations of literary lampooning, but disappeared almost between meals under the kidding of the movies.

How and why films accelerate this influence is brought to mind by two similar scenesin "The abysmal and "Main Street," and their reaction upon audiences.

Both are tab'e scenes. One shows the distress of a backwoods youth in the presence of pol'te diners. The other pictures the gaucheries of small towneer at the festive board. Both provoks strome of laughter, some of it assured, some uneasy, but all testifying to the ptency of movies in standardizing current social usage.

PROGRESS MADE WITH BANK ACT

Some of the Existing Provisions of the Act Were Strongly Criticized in the Senate.

OTTAWA, June 23. — (Canadian Press).—The Senate yesterday made further progress with the Bank Act, and discussed agricultural credrits.

Senator Fowler strongly criticized the auditing system in effect, claiming that it was no protection, and in a great degree it was impossible to secure a satisfactory system.

Senator Pope said the present Banking Act was driving the people from Canada to the United States, and that if we passed this bill we gave the banks the right to rob us to the last possible dollar and stay out of the penitentiary.

Senator Willoughby strongly urged the adoption of some system of agricultural credits. The present bank system, he said, was primarily for commercial and not agricultural needs. What was wanted for the amelioration of the West was long-term credits and lower rates of interest. He suggested to the Government that before the next session they formulate a policy which would give to the Canadian farmer the same financial assistance as it now secured to his American competitor.

There was a debate on an amendment by Sir James Lougheed to permit banks to do hail insurance business. He said that the Weyburn Security Bank was engaged in this business and did a very necessary service to its community.

Senator Laird protested against this and other banks being permitted to compete with thousands of men engaged in hail insurance.

Senator Murphy was opposed to the principle of allowing banks to do a hail insurance.

Senator McLellan felt that this bank should receive every encouragement as he was convinced it was an excellent institution.

Senator Gordon suggested the right of taking hail insurance premiums be not immediately cut off, but a fixed time be allowed for the bank to re-adjust itself to the loss of this business. Senator Beique also urged that this business be left with this institution for some time. The amendment will be further discussed.

The Senate adjourned until three o'clock Monday.

400,000 DIE YEARLY FROM PREVENTABLE DISEASES

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., June 22 (United Press).—"There are over 400,000 deaths in the United States every year from preventable diseases," said Dr. William F. Snow of New York, in addressing the National Tuberculosis Association today. "The death rate from such diseases as tuberculosis, syphillis, gonorrhoea, infantile diarrhoea, typhoid fever and others have declined largely as a result of the application of scientific knowledge and community organization. The next forward step in further life saving in this country must come through more effective coordination of existing health agencies."

Fifty million contributions, totaling $75,000,000, have been made to the national, state and local tuberculosis associations of this country in the last fifteen years through the annual Christmas seal sales. Last December approximately eight million people contributed a total of $3,800,000 in the Christmas seal sale. These statements were made by Philip P. Jacobs, publicity director of the association at today's meeting. The average contribution of the community chests last year was $1.71 and the average contribution in the Christmas seal sale is about 50c.

Signs of tuberculosis infection or activity were found in 1905 or 64 per cent. of 3,000 bodies autopsied in San Francisco hospital by Dr. William Ophuls and his associates, according to a report made today by Doctor Ophuls before the association. The bodies examined by Doctor Ophuls and his associates were for the most part those of laborers skilled and unskilled. The examinations were made at the public hospitals of San Francisco.

"Tuberculosis," says Doctor Ophuls, "is the most frequent disease found in the 3,000 cases. Septic infections are the next in order, but are only about two-thirds as frequent as tuberculosis. Of the 1905 tuberculosis cases discovered in the 3,000 bodies examined, 1,225 or 66 per cent were completely healed and indicated that many of these men and women had recovered from the disease without ever knowing that they had it.

Figures on the results of tuberculosis sanatorium treatment compiled by the National Tuberculosis association show that these institutions are not getting patients early enough, and keeping them long enough to do their best work as curative institutions, according to Miss Jessamine S. Whitney, statistician of that organization.

Reports of 6,680 patients in 59 sanatoria showed that only 23 per cent of them entered the sanatoria in the incipient or curable stage of tuberculosis.

MACKEY'S MADE STRONG FINISH

Came From Behind to Defeat Cognawaga By 11 to 8 Count.

Mackey's Bread came from behind and defeated Cognawaga in an East Peterboro League game at the King Edward School grounds last evening by the score of 11 to 8. Due to the wildness of the Mackey hurlers Cognawaga took an early lead, getting a quartette of runs in the first when Henry failed to locate the plate, and a three base hit by A. Vannest, Kennedy relieved with two out, and farned Shadgett. The new twirler also developed a wild streak, but he managed to weather his way, holding the 'Cogs' to a run a frame for four turns at the bat. Mackeys tied the score in the fourth and won the game in the sixth, when Collins' single, Kennedy's double, a wild pitch, and a sacrifice fly were converted into three runs.

George Close, who heaved for Cognawaga was in hot water throughout the four innings he pitched, good fielding by his teammates holding the score down. He was relieved by P. Vannest in the fifth, who after getting safely through the fifth was reached for enough hits in the sixth to give Mackeys the contest.

A. Davis had his throwing hand badly injured in the fifth and McDonald finished the game.

Lacrosse Players Unruly.

The game was held up in the sixth and seventh, when several lacrosse players persisted in acting unruly by playing lacrosse on the grounds, close to the ball diamond, and sauntering out on the playing field at a critical stage of the game. The scoring summary:

Murray Champion For the Second Time.

MONTREAL, June 23 (Canadian Press). — For the second time, C. E. Murray, professional of the Royal Montreal Club, is Quebec's open golf champion. He maintained the position he won last year yesterday at Beaconsfield, where the Provincial championships are taking place. His score for 36 holes was 151.

The champion had a narrow escape, however, for Karl Keffer, of Ottawa, and A. Ayton, of Senneville, were close on his heels with 152. Keffer and Ayton played off for second place, and Ayton won.

GIBBONS DEMPSEY EVENLY MATCHED

Measurements of Champion and Challenger Are Almost the Same.

SHELBY, Mont., June 23.—(Special).—Recent statistics on Jack Dempsey and Tom Gibbons as they are at this stage of training follows:

Height—Dempsey, 6 feet 1 inch; Gibbons, 6 feet ¾ inch.

Weight—Dempsey, 188 pounds; Gibbons, 184 pounds.

Reach—Dempsey, 73 inches; Gibbons, 74 inches.

Neck—Dempsey, 17 inches; Gibbons, 17 inches.

Waist—Dempsey, 32.5 inches; Gibbons, 35 inches.

Biceps—Dempsey, 15 inches; Gibbons, 14 inches.

Forearm—Dempsey, 12.5 inches; Gibbons, 12.5 inches.

Wrist—Dempsey, 8¼ inches; Gibbons, 9 inches.

Calf—Dempsey, 15 inches; Gibbons, 14.5 inches.

Ankle—Dempsey, 9 inches; Gibbons, 9.5 inches.

Age—Dempsey, 28 years; Gibbons, 29 years.

The above figures speak for themselves.

Dempsey and Gibbons are more evenly matched in weight, height and reach than any two heavyweights who ever fought for the title.

Jim Corbett weighed 187 when he lifted the crown from John L. Sullivan's brow. John L. tipped 210. Corbett was two and one-half inches taller than Sullivan and 23 pounds lighter.

Bob Fitzsimmons weighed but 165 when he beat Corbett for the title. Fitz was one and one-quarter inches shorter than Corbett and 22 pounds lighter.

Jim Jeffries weighed 220 pounds when he defeated Fitz. Jeff was one and three-quarter inches taller than Fitz and 55 pounds heavier.

Jack Johnson scaled 210 and stood six feet and one-half inch. Jeff had it on Johnson in both height and pounds when he lost the title to the black man.

Then came Jess Willard—the whale of them all. When Willard defeated Johnson he weighed 257 pounds and was six feet six.

Dempsey was a little man compared to Willard. His weight was 188 pounds when he made the Pottawatomie farmer sit down and give up.

Now—back to the July Fourth fireworks—

Dempsey will be a quarter of an inch taller than Gibbons.

As to weight Gibbons is trying to keep his present 184 pounds by regulating his training accordingly.

Critics figure that Dempsey is the finest he has ever been. The tape measure bears them out.

Dempsey is smaller around the waist by half an inch than when he last fought. His thigh is thinner and also his calf.

Neither Dempsey or Gibbons got on the scales for the above weight statistics. But for their other measurements they submitted to the tape before newspapermen.

GIBBONS' FRIENDS ARE CONFIDENT

Look to the Boxing Ability of the Challenger to Keep Out of Dempsey's Way.

ST. PAUL, June 23.—(Associated Press)—When Jack Dempsey answers the bell in the prize ring at Shelby, Mont., July 4, to defend his heavyweight title, he will meet a style of opposition somewhat different from what he has faced since he took the crown from Jess Willard.

In Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul, the champion will find a boxer of consummate skill, a man with a "mean punch" not afraid to mix in a toe-to toe exchange. and a ring veteran who has never been knocked off his feet.

Gibbons fans recognize the power of the champion, the danger in his terrific rushes. But they look to Gibbons' boxing ability to go a long way toward offsetting Dempsey's rushing tactics.

These same boxing fans, who have been fighting the Dempsey-Gibbons battle in clubs and other places of congregation ever since the word came that the fight was "on," are not, as a whole, boasting of what Gibbons will do.

It would be an exaggeration to say in any considerable quarter of the challenger's home town is there confidence that he will defeat Dempsey. His own brother, Mike Gibbons, once famed as "The Phantom" in middleweight circles, does not feel that confidence.

But there is always "the chance" and in Gibbons' hands that prospect brightens for many. And if there is not confidence, there is hope, and that alone will attract hundreds from here to the fight. Victory for Gibbons, however, would be a surprise in his home town.

All of which does not detract from the ability of the challenger, for the homefolk hold the view that no one is better qualified to test the merit of the champion, not even excepting Luis Firpo, the South American, who recently has loomed large on the fighting skyline.

BOSTON, June 23 (Canadian Press). — Errors by Fewster and Quinn were prime factors in helping Shawkey to pitch New York to a 4 to 2 victory over Boston yesterday. Meusels hitting and throwing also helped the visitors. Boston's two runs were the result of Flagstead's homer over the left field fence in the seventh, after Harris had opened with a double. Score:

BASSLER REGULAR AFTER FIRST GAME

Star Back-Stop For Detroit Is Rated As Second Only to Ray Schalk.

For quite a few years now Ray Schalk of the Chicago White Sox has been rated as the premier catcher in the American League. And rightly too, for over a stretch of some 10 campaigns, "Little Ray" has displayed brilliant ability behind the bat.

Not far behind Schalk are Cy Perkins of the Athletics, "Hank" Severeid, Browns; Steve O'Neill, Cleveland, and Wally Schang, Yankees. All first-class receivers and real assets to any club.

However, in picking star catchers, don't overlook Johnny Bassler of the Detroit Tigers, who, though he has been in the big show but two seasons is already being heralded as Schalk's most likely successor in back of the plate.

Brought to the Tigers from the Pacific coast by Ty Cobb in 1921, Bassler has showed remarkable improvement during the two years he has been in the majors, and many critics are of the opinion that he will be the circuit's leading catcher within the next two or three seasons. Some are even now acclaiming him as the smartest receiver in the junior loop. And that's saying quite a little.

When Bassler came to Detroit he turned a trick which is not very often put over by big league catchers nowadays. He broke in as the team's first-string receiver the initial day he appeared in a big league uniform.

It is not only behind the plate that Bassler stars. For be it known that Johnny is also a good hitter. In 1922 he led the catchers in this respect, clouting the old apple at a .323 clip. In fielding he ranked fourth, with a percentage of .980 in 117 games.

ECZEMA

Hands Were Raw Would Crack and Bleed

Eczema or Salt Rheum, as it is commonly called, is one of the most agonizing of skin diseases. The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when exposed to heat, are almost unbearable and relief is gladly welcomed.

The pre-eminent success which

has met with in permanently removing a disease of such severity is due to its wonderful blood cleansing and purifying properties.

Mrs. M. R. Willard, Dudswell Jct., Que., writes: "For about three years I had eczema, in a very bad form, on my hands. They were all raw and would crack and bleed so that I could not do my housework. I tried everything I could think of without any results. As last I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and when I had it about all taken I could see it was helping me; by the time I had taken five bottles my hands were all well again and I have not been bothered since. I cannot praise Burdock Blood Bitters enough."

Regina — Wholesale trade holding its own. Retail trade quiet. Collections slow.

Saskatoon — Wholesale trade fair, which is a reflection of the retail conditions. Crop prospects are good. Collections are poor No improvement looked for until the fall.

Calgary. — Wholesale trade just fair, though improvement looked for as the season advances. Retail trade showing a slight improvement. Collections slow to fair.

LISBON HOMES INVADED

LISBON, June 23 (Associated Press). —Nightly bomb explosions which have been terrorizing the residents of this city for more than two months, are still as much of a mystery as ever, although the police have resorted to many drastic expeditions in their efforts to find the "ulprits.

In the small hours of the morning recently, the entire police force, flanked by the Republican Guards, was divided into squads and ordered to search all Lisbon dwellings for explosives. Nothing was immune to the raiders, from the humblest peasant homes to the residence of the Duke of Palmella. One bomb and a rifle, found at the Communist's Union, was the reward of the searchers.

Disease Germs Doomed

Many have lost terrors for the Scientist

The progress of recent years in medical research is little short of marvellous. Daily, science kills germs by the million. Daily, new ones are being discovered, isolated and exterminated by the march of medicine.

Science is winning. What were once regarded as serious diseases are now laughed out of countenance by the doctors. Fearlessly they plunge naked hands into swarms of them, their only precaution being to rinse their hands afterwards with a reliable germicidal preparation. We are witnessing the birth of an era when the world will have little to fear from microbes.

Absorbine Jr., besides being the all-purpose liniment that removes pain and soreness, and hastens healing, is a powerful antiseptic that is death to the microbe world.

Absorbine Jr., is just what is needed in the house in case of accidents and to correct the many little household hurts that constantly occur. $1.25, at your druggist.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

TOO MUCH MILK.

It is surprising how often mothers write me that they are sure their breast milk is not rich enough for the baby just because it looks so blue and thin. This is no criterion.

No one can tell by the appearance of the breast milk if it is rich or not. Mothers' milk does look blue and thin ordinarily.

Surprisingly, too, rich breast milk is a common fault among mothers, especially that class who do not work hard. Much exercise will tend to keep the breast milk from being richer than the baby can digest. Once the mother gets over longing to have her milk look like jersey cream and realize that a too rich breast milk is far from a blessing, she will cease to worry about the baby's starving to death.

A rich milk usually carries some symptoms, though one should never take any symptoms too seriously. Spitting up frequently, little mouthfuls of sour water; or an hour or so after nursing a clot of creamy fluid may indicate that the milk is richer than the baby can stand. Babies who gain rapidly in weight and then suddenly come to an unaccountable standstill and show a deplorable loss of appetite, seeming to be be content with only a short nursing period at long intervals may be thought to be having too rich milk. Many stools a day, very copious—sometimes a mere strain of yellow, are indicative of the same thing in some cases. There are no hard and fast signs but one should think of reducing the cream content if the conditions mentioned are present.

The mother needs more exercise, exercise to the point of perspiration. She need a more rigid diet. Less fats of course. She may have to give the baby water before nursing.

She should nurse the baby less frequently. If he is on a three-hour schedule nurse him but once every four hours. Taking these various things into account and trying them will show an immediate good result.

CHAUFFEURS READ SHAKESPEARE

BERLIN, June 25 (Associated Press). —Even the taxicab drivers in Berlin are Shakespeare fans. An American tourist who recently engaged a taxicab for half a day, noticed that the driver was always reading while his passenger was making calls. The American thought, perhaps, the man was a student, and glanced at the book. It was Shakespeare's complete dramatic works in German, and the man was reading "Othello."

Lace Brim

A wide flaring brim of fragile lace net makes an effective brim for a small hat of metal cloth. This is the sort of thing the Parisian women love to wear in the evening.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Calvin Gray comes to Dallas and rents the most expensive suite in the most exclusive hotel. He becomes friendly with Gus Briskow and meets Ma Briskow, Allegheny, the daughter, and Ozark, the son, nicknamed Red. Gray hires Mallow and two associates to watch the activities in the oil fields of Colonel Henry Nelson, who is his enemy. Gray is in love with Barbara Parker, daughter of Tom Parker. He goes to Nelson's office and warns him that he means to smash him financially. Nelson defies Gray and promises to make the fight a hot one.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

Meanwhile it became evident that the alarming rumor about Desert Scorpion was rapidly spreading, for other investors were climbing the stairs now, and the office was becoming crowded. The later arrivals were in time to witness McWade finally defer to his partner and to hear him announce that a rare stroke of fortune had favored purchasers of this particular issue of stock, for the land which really belonged to the company had turned out to be much better than that which it owned. Certain information from the field had arrived that very day which was bound to send the stock to two dollars.

The refunding of money halted; there was a deal of noisy argument. Some of the disgruntled investors still insisted upon selling out; others decided to hold on; even a few asked to repurchase the stock they had turned in, and this they were reluctantly permitted to do at an advance of fifty per cent.

When the last caller had disappeared, Gray inquired, curiously: "How are you going to make good on your assertion that the stock will rise?"

"Easy!" said Stoner. "I'll change into my old clothes, put four mud chains on my car, and drive up to the exchange in a hurry, then give some gabby guy a tip to grab Desert Scorpion for me at a dollar and a half—all he can get. After that I'll shout out of town on high, with the cut-out open. There will be a string of cars after me inside of half an hour, and the stock will be up before I can get back."

CHAPTER XIII
Mrs. Ring Is Surprised

MA BRISKOW always had been known as a woman without guile, but of late she had developed rare powers of dissimulation. She was, in fact, leading a double life, and neither her husband nor her daughter suspected the extent of her deception.

Yes, Ma had slipped the leash. She was a robber baroness; she dwelt in a rocky "fastness"—whatever that was—surrounded by a crew of outlaws as desperate as any that ever drew cutlass and dagger, and she ruled them not only by native strength of character, but also by the air of other forces, for she was on friendly terms with the more prominent wood sprites, fairies, and the like, and they brought her wisdom.

The Notch Hotel was altogether too rich for Gus Briskow's blood, so he sought a more congenial environment. He found it in the village, in a livery stable; there, amid familiar odors and surroundings both agreeable and economical, he spent most of his time, leaving Ma to amuse herself and Allie to pursue her routine of studies laid down by her tutoress.

Now Ma had not gone wild all at once; her atavism had been gradual—the result of her persistent explorations. Ever deeper into the wilderness she penetrated, but with the sly caution of an old fox returning to its lair, for she was always being followed by wicked people. Having baffled them all, she laughed scornfully, flung deceit to the winds, then hurried straight to the "fastness," and there uttered the tribal call. At the sound her gypsy band came bounding forth to meet her.

Having accepted their homage and heard the details of their latest raids against her enemy, the false Duke of Dallas—he whose treachery had made her what she was—she assumed her throne and held formal court.

The throne was a low, flat rock beside a stream, and usually Ma removed her shoes and stockings and paddled her feet in the water while she gave audience to visiting potentates.

Thus would Ma Briskow spend one morning. Another perhaps she would be an altogether different character, but always she was young and beautiful and full of grace, and only when it came time to go did she assume the disguise of an aged, wrinkled, bent old woman. Sometimes she ran miles and miles at a stretch, darting, springing like a fawn, rushing through the soft, green leaves, leaping rock and rill, her laughter echoing, her bare limbs flashing, her gold hair streaming, her scanty silken draperies whipped to shreds behind her by the very swiftness of her going. Oh, the ecstasy of that! The excitement!

Of course Ma did not actually run. Neither did her bare limbs flash—being incased in flannels. And her hair was not gold. It was gray, what little there was of it. No, she enabled a bit, perhaps, where the grass was short and the ground smooth, then she stood still, closed her eyes, and ran and leaped and swayed and darted—with her arms. Anybody can do it.

Ma Briskow had never dreamed that the world was so clean. She blessed God for making oil to lie in the rocks of the earth, and she prayed that none of "them hotel people" would discover her retreat.

But, of course, somebody did discover it. Mr. Delamater, the dancing instructor, for one, stumbled upon it while Ma Briskow was in the midst of one of her imaginary games, and he reported his discovery to the day clerk.

Doubtfully Mr. Delamater shook his handsome auburn head. "People with good sense don't act like that. She was doing an Isadora Duncan when I saw her. Dancing—if you care to call it that! Anyhow, her hair was hanging, she was flapping her arms and jiggling up and down." Delamater laughed at the memory. "There's a big, awkward bird—sort of a crane or buzzard of some kind—that dances. I never saw one, but she reminded me of it. And she sang! Geel it was fierce!"

"Did she see you?"

"Scarcely. I don't mind being alone with Allie"—Delamater's teeth shone in a smile, then, seeing his reflection in a convenient mirror, he studied it with complacent favor. He tried to smile again, and, getting it to his better satisfaction, concluded—"don't mind it a bit, but a bosky dell with a mad woman is my idea of no place to be."

"Allie!" The clerk lifted his brows. "So—Allie'l Has it gone as far as that, Del?"

"Oh, you know how it is! A lesson every day, soft music, arm around the waist, a kind word. The girl is human. I'm probably different to anything that ever came into her young life. Look at my wardrobe! She's not so bad to take, either, and yet—" The immaculate speaker frowned. "Father smells like a horse, and mother's a nut! Geel It would take some coin to square that."

Allie Briskow was in training, both physical and mental, and the application, the energy she displayed had surprised not only her parents, who could but dimly understand the necessity of self-culture, but also Mrs. Ring, the instructress. Mrs. Ring, a handsome, middle-aged woman whose specialty was the finishing of wealthy young "ladies," had been induced to accept this position partly by reason of the attractive salary mentioned in Calvin Gray's telegram, and partly by reason of the fact that she needed a rest.

Allie possessed character and will power. For some time she had accepted Mrs. Ring's tutorship without comment or question—Calvin Gray had recommended it, therefore she obeyed blindly—but one day, after they had become settled in the mountains, she came out with a forceful declaration.

She knew full well her own shortcomings, so she declared, and she was not content to learn a few things day by day. She demanded intensified training; education under forced draught.

"Very well. Riding is a smart accomplishment. Can you ride a horse?"

"Pshaw! I can carry a horse."

"You'd look well in a habit, and with baths, massage, dancing, and a little diet I dare say you can reduce."

"I'll starve," Allie asserted, fiercely. "But that ain't half enough. You gotta give me more studyin'. I got callouses on my hands and I'm used to work. We'll get up at daylight—"

"Good heavens!" Mrs. Ring exclaimed, faintly.

"How long you allow it will take?" The elder woman shrugged. "Years, perhaps."

"Years!"

"Real culture, social accomplishments, are the results of generations of careful training. I'm not a miracle worker. But why this impatience?"

"I got—"

"I have."

"I have a reason. I can't take a generation; I'd be too late."

"Too late for what?"

But Allie refused to answer. "We'll start in today and we'll work double tower till one of us plays out. What d'you say?"

At first Mrs. Ring took this energetic declaration with some reserve, but before long she realized with consternation that Allie Briskow was in deep earnest and that this was not a soft berth. Instead of obtaining a rest she was being worked as never before. Allie was a thing of iron; she was indefatigable; and her thirst for knowledge was insatiate; it grew daily as she gained fuller understanding of her ignorance. Most things she apprehended readily enough, but when she failed to learn, when mental or physical awkwardness halted progress, then she flew into a fury. Her temper appalled Mrs. Ring.

27 world-wide tests establish proof of Studebaker Light-Six economy

The fuel economy of the Studebaker Light-Six has been positively proved by 27 world-wide tests, which established an average of 26.9 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Light-Six consumption of gasoline and oil is low. Tire mileage runs high. And its low repair cost will be attested to by Studebaker's limited volume of repair parts sales, which in 1922, averaged only $13 per car for all Studebaker automobiles in operation.

When you consider that the cost of the Light-Six is but $1375, and that your purchase will enable you to enjoy the economy, smoothness of operation, and the flexibility of a perfected six-cylinder engine, isn't it sound business to invest in a Studebaker Light-Six—just as thousands of other buyers have done?

CAN MODERN GIRL SAFELY SHATTER THE SOCIAL CODE?

Do present day girls enjoy too much freedom? Has the World War destroyed cherished ideals of family and home? These are questions answered in "Prodigal Daughters" starring Gloria Swanson, which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Miss Swanson plays "Swiftie" Forbes, one of two daughters of a locomotive manufacturer enriched by the world war and who is in Europe. She is ultra-emancipated, and her younger sister tries to emulate her in everything. The mother is engaged in renewing her youthful appearance, and the girls enjoy unlimited freedom.

Forbes comes back and finds his household changed. And the girls defty his parental authority. Swiftie leaves to live her own life. Her sister follows and gets married only to find her romance quickly shattered and returns to the home. But Swiftie becomes entangled with a gambler and finally is placed in a position which spells the end. Finally she returns—a prodigal daughter—to find her father waiting to forgive and take her back and a sweetheart ready to wed her.

It is a swift-moving story. The love element is supplied by a young aviator, played by Ralph Graves who believes in Swiftie even at her worst moments. Theodore Roberts is the father, Vera Reynolds the sister and Louise Dresser the mother.

EAST CITY LEFT UNTIL THE LAST

Oil Wagon Had to Make a Trip to Lakefield First

Another week has departed and still Hunter Street East remains to be oiled for the first time this season.
It is some time now since instructions were issued to have this important thoroughfare oiled, but it looks as though the Board of Works will delay the work until some time in July.
In the meantime every back lane and street has been attended to, including a side trip with the oil waggon to Lakefield, while the residents of East City suffer and want for relief from the dust nuisance.

BILLS CHANGED TO SUIT THE LOCALITY

T. Tooms Removes Names of Labour Men From His Election Bills in Country.

"Why does Mr. Tooms' election posters carry the name of the President and Secretary of the Independent Labour Party in some parts of the Riding and not in others?"
This was one of the questions asked at Ennismore last evening.
Both posters were displayed, one with the names cut off and the other with the names on.
Mr. Duffus, ex-Mayor of Peterborough, was the speaker to whom the posters were presented and who was asked for an explanation.
The speaker said, "Surely this is inexcusable." However, thus far in this campaign, we as Liberal speakers have not engaged in personalities, which do not exceed our Liberal principals, and has not entered into Mr. Meyer's campaign up to the present, and will not enter it now so far as I am concerned.
However, as one who has always had a very high esteem and sympathetic feeling toward the Labour Party, I regard it as an insult to them that anyone would be guilty of pursuing a double course, of this or any other kind.
Mr. Tooms was a party to this, or was aware of such a besieger, he must not fully appreciate that he was nominated and put in the field by the Labour Party who elected him to Parliament at the last election.
No public man should be ashamed of his course or his colleagues in any part of his constituency he represents, and this is a course which should not be pursued by any public man.—Advt.

THE ROTTENEST DEAL PROVINCE HAS SEEN

Replying to Hon. G. Howard Ferguson's charge that an all-important witness had not been called in the Shevlin-Clarke timber investigation, Premier Drury said Friday afternoon near Milton:
"What guff does this man Ferguson expect the province to believe. That the Shevlin-Clarke people, with all their millions and the best legal advice obtainable, would not call this witness. Why did they not call him? Because it would not have helped their cause. This Shevlin-Clarke deal was the rottenest deal that the province has ever seen, it was done for the purpose of helping a political friend. It was done just before an election, it wasn't merely a coincidence."—(Advt.)

AIRCRAFT SCORED HITS

LONDON, June 23.— (United Press).—While the admiralty preserves its traditional secrecy concerning the results of a mock battle in which battleships were "attacked" by aircraft during manoeuvers off Weymouth Bay, it is learned that the airplanes scored hits on three capital ships, including the Repulse and Queen Elizabeth.
It is admitted, however, that if this was the case it means little, the battleships, being at Anchor when attacked and no searchlights were thrown on the attacking planes to blind them.

WET MAJORITY CLIMBS SAYS LATEST REPORTS

WINNIPEG, June 23. Canadian Press. — On the strength of the returns from the rural polls this afternoon it was estimated that the final majority for the Moderation Bill would fall not far short of thirty-five thousand.
The "wet" majority which stood above 30,000 last night, seemed to be climbing slowly, although many districts traditionally "dry" were still to be heard from, and it is possible they may pull down the present figures somewhat.
Few constituencies will report complete figures to-day. Eighty-five per cent. of the registered voters went to he polls.

MANILLA FIRE CAUSES HEAVY LOSS TO C.N.R.

A SECOND FIRE

LINDSAY, June 25. (Special.) — About 2.30 on Saturday afternoon, the C.N.R. station at Manilla was completely destroyed by fire together with the residence, which formed part of the structure. The cause of the fire has not yet been determined. When it was first noticed by the station operator the whole roof was a mass of flames. He immediately wired the Lindsay station that the building was burning, and at once proceeded to save what he could. The building burned like matchwood being a frame structure, and was soon swept away. A work train was quickly despatched from Lindsay, with fire fighters, but there was nothing to do when they arrived but to clear the track of debris. There was no interruption to traffic.

This is the second station that has been destroyed at the village since 1911.

HANDS OFF U. S. LIQUOR POLICY

LONDON, June 25. United Press. —A "hands off" policy urged by Lloyd George yesterday during a speech at the Baptist chapel here, when he referred to the seizure of the liquor aboard British ships in New York, raised a storm of protest to-day.

The ex-Premier declared that Britain should give America a chance to deal with what is probably the greatest curse of modern civilization, and added that "it would be wrong to intervene."

"The incident should be considered from a scientific point of view," he said, "and we don't want to get excited over it. It is possible that America will modify its course of action if it finds it necessary, but do not let us intervene," Lloyd George said. The former Premier found many, including a considerable section of the press, disagreeing with him.

INCREASE GRANT TO THE SHELTER

County Gives Children's Aid Society $800 and $25 to the Poultry Association.

The County Council's original resolution authorizing the construction of a new bridge at Lakefield and appointng a special committee with power to act was not changed at the June sessions. It was suggested as an alternative that certain repairs be made and final action was deferred until Mr. Connor is heard from in regard to Reeve Coughlin's project of Hynes Bridge. It is still possible that the new bridge may be built in accordane with the first resolution, but the whole question is for the present in the air.

The Council increased its grant to the Children's Aid Society from $600 to $800, and also gave $25 to the Poultry Association. The cheque for the Children's Aid Society as issued this morning.

North Monaghan's equalized assessment was finally fixed at $852,000 as compared with $975,535 as recommended by the valuators. The decrease from the valuators' appraisal is $123,535.

PREM. BALDWIN SEES NO CAUSE FOR A PROTEST

America's Seizure of Liquor on British Ships Agitates Both Press and the Nation.

A LEGAL MATTER

LONDON, June 25. (Special.) — Premier Baldwin announced in the House of Commons to-day that he could see no grounds for a British government protest against the breaking of its customs seals in the American territorial waters by officials of the United States.

This statement followed questions by members as to the Government's attitude towards America's confiscation of sealed liquor on British liners.

The seizure of liquor on British liners in New York continues to be the outstanding feature in the press and most of the morning papers comment on the situation at some length. In several of the editorials there is a decided note of anxiety less the controversy lead to serious ill feeling between Great Britain and the United States. These newspapers express the hope that the people here will refrain from intemperant and unfounded criticism of what is said to be a purely legal question.

FRENCH PROTEST.

PARIS, June 25. Canadian Press. —An official French protest against the American seizure of liquors on steamers flying the French Flag will be despatched to Washington if the New York customs authorities go through with their programme of breaking the French seals.

Premier Poincare favors delaying any other action until the next session of the American Congress, in the belief that the law will be changed.

Other officials are talking reprisals, especially strict enforcement of the customs regulations under which American ships could be detained for a month every time that they enter a French port.

WILL QUESTION LORDS.

LONDON, June 25. Canadian Press —The Earl of Birkenhead has given notice of his intention of putting forward a question in the House of Lords to-morrow drawing attention to the seizure of liquor on British ships in the United States waters and asking the government what it proposed to do.

More Wet Liners.

NEW YORK, June 25. — Two more "wet" liners steamed into port to-day, while the United States government officials were preparing to raid six other vessels, which had docked over the weekend with liquor transported over the three mile edict in defiance of the treasury Department's dry ruling. The latest arrivals were the Anchor Liner Tuscania and the French liner Suffren. The stock on the Suffren was under the French government seal.

LOSS A MILLION

BELLEVILLE, June 25.—(Canadian Press.) — Lightning struck a warehouse in connection with the Corby distillery at Corbyville, near here, yesterday afternoon, starting a fire which did nearly a million dollars damage.

The warehouse, containing about 6,000 barrels of denatured alcohol, besides considerable proof spirits, was completely destroyed, together with all its contents. Losses are reported to have been mostly covered by insurance.

Officials of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company, owners of the Corby distillery, stated to-day that their loss would run nearer to a million dollars than a report given out last night that the loss would be $750,000. The warehouse was a great solid brick structure four storeys high, and once the fire started among the barrels of alcohol, a tremendous blaze developed that soon spelled ruin to the building. Belleville birgade went to their assistance and united with local firemen in keeping the fire from spreading. The fermentation building caught fire and one of the vats was destroyed. No person was injured.

It is stated that the company will at once lay plans for rebuilding.

A FAST SERVICE FROM PETERBORO

Flyer Pulled Out This Morning With Its First Load of Passengers.

The fast service from Peterborough to Toronto via Canadian National was inaugurated this morning when the flyer pulled out at 7.10 with its first load of passengers.

The train was hauled by Canadian National engine 1591, the same that brought Sir Henry Thornton to Peterborough a month ago when representations from the City Council and others influenced him to install the new fast train.

The train carries, besides the regular day coach, a parlor buffet coach, the "Okanagana," one of the latest and most comfortably equipped of the Canadian National new coaches. The installation of this coach relieves patrons of the necessity for rising in time to breakfast before taking the train. Breakfast is served en route, and the traveller arrives in Toronto in ample time for lunch.

Another innovation comes into effect tonight, when the sleeper will run for the first time to Montreal.

Services were conducted by Adjt Smith assisted by Rev. W. E. Morrow, pastor of Park street Baptist church. Addresses were made by Adjt. and Mrs. Smith.

DEPUTY SPEAKER HOUSE EXTOLLED

Presides Over Committee on Banking Act With Skill and Fairness.

OTTAWA, June 25.—In referring to strong and influential members of the Canadian parliament, the Montreal Herald says that Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons, Mr. George N. Gordon M.P. for West Peterborough, is presiding over the debates of the Committee of the whole on the Bank Act with a skill and a firmness which calls for the highest commendation on all sides His experience as a practicing attorney at the head of a large office serves him in good stead as interpreter of the rules in the strenuous fight now going on against the country's banking system.

The Bill is 85 pages long. It contains 160 clauses and 9 schedules. Some of its provision are made very contentious by the attacks of the Progressive party. In ordinary circumances, when a bill is short, the session not far advanced and the weather cool, a certain latitude is given the members in the discussion. The rule of relevancy is not strictly applied, and the debaters acquire the bad habit of wandering from the subject before the chair. But when a real fight is determined upon, when any group of members make up their minds that they are going to hold up the Government on any measure, then is proper to apply the screws by insisting on a strict adherence to the rules of debate.

Kept Within Rules

Surprises then may happen. There is a disposition to complain of harsh treatment and it takes the new members sometime to get used to this unusual severity. But a Chairman who is as familiar as Mr. Gordon is with parliamentary procedure never fails to keep them within the rules of relevancy. The Deputy Speaker exercises a great deal of authority over the Committee of the whole. His sturdy appearance, strong voice and good nature are great assets which account for his popularity. There is nothing bitter in his political makeup and every one appreciates his impartiality when he has given a ruling He has only been in parliament for three sessions and yet he is now one of its most prominent members. As Deputy Speaker he sometimes replaces Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux in the chair of the House and he then very successfully discharges the duties of this high position.

Some efforts have been made to induce him to join the Ontario provincial field as leader of the Liberal forces in the place of Mr. Hay who was quiet willing to make room for him, but the federal ministers would not allow him to go, as his presence is required in Ottawa to strengthen the Ontario membership in the Commons. He has yielded to their wish and the sittings of the Committee of the whole on the Bank Act is proof that his services were certainly needed in the House for this session.

Marcil an Authority

Hon. Charles Marcil usually takes the chair in long sittings when Mr. Gordon is absent. The ex-speaker who has been sitting in the House continuously since 1900, is one of authorities on procedure. No member is more highly and more deservedly respected in the Commons. His contribution to the different processes of passing legislation is most valuable. Having been in journalism and public life ever since he was a young man. he possesses some interesting information about almost every topic that comes up in the House. His moderation and good judgment are most useful to the House on the occurrence of complicated and difficult situations.

Another Bulwark

Another man who, though not a minister is a tower of strength to the Government party is Hon. A. K. MacLean, Chairman of the Standing Committee on Banking and Commerce. He has piloted this Bank Act in a very efficient manner. His understanding of the banking system is thorough. As a barrister he stands at the head of his profession and it seems certain that, immediately the session is over, he will become a judge of the Exchequer Court.

He is now sitting at Mr. Fielding's right to help put the Bill through the House and he is always ready to answer the many objections of the Progressives. There is no more lucid speaker in Parliament.

But it is a wonder to everybody that Mr. Fielding can stand the brunt of all this fight and attend sittings until two o'clock in the morning over and above the Cabinet meetings and his regular office work. Yet he goes through it all without any apparent weariness. His is a strong hand. He will never acctpt any radical or advanced legislation; and no doubt our basic industries are safe as long as this wise man controls the Goverament's financial policies.

It is expected that the Bank Act will pass the House and go to the Senate to-day. Prorogation in this case will probably take place at the end of next week.

THE CASE FOR THE FARMER IS WELL PRESENTED

Mr. H. B. Cowan Discusses Agricultural Problems Before Rotary Club Members.

A FINE ADDRESS

The viewpoint of the farmer was very eloquently stated for the benefit of Peterborough Rotarians at the regular weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club to-day by Mr. H. B. Cowan, of Farm and Dairy, a recognized authority, who was able to throw new light on many of the problems in connection with agriculture and on the relations between city and country. His address was thoroughly appreciated.

Mr. Cowan, after first showing that there were many good reasons why the farmers should be prosperous in Ontario because they were of the right calibre, because they were loctaed on splendid land and because so much money had been spent by various governments in educating them in better methods, passed on to prove by a very striking series of figures gleaned from government reports that the farmers as a whole are not prospering as they should be. In this connection he stressed the ever increasing extent of rural depopulation and the steadily growing percentage of tenant farmers not only in Canada, but in the United States, the statistics quoted in reference to this latter feature being a surprise to most of his hearers, who learned for the first time that in some of the best farm states across the line there was a very large percentaage of tenant farmers.

Mr. Cowan then dealt with the causes that led to the development of the farmers' organizations and of the launching of the agrarian political movement. They had realized that there were points on which the city view was totally different from their own, because the man in the big cities did not understand the problems of the farmers and the latter failed to appreciate the situation of the urban dweller. The tariff was another factor in the case. The farmer found that the prices of the product they had to sell were governed by world conditions, while in the case of many of the things they had to buy they believed the price to be enhanced because of the protection of the tariff.

The spread between the price paid the farmer for his product and the price paid by the consumer was another cause of the farmers' awakening to the fact that they must take their problems in their own hands.

The small number of farmer members in the Legislature prior to 1919 hastened the political movement, the progress of which Mr. Cowan traced in an interesting manner and then dealt with the rapid spread of the co-operative movement, with a particular reference to the large number of selling pools organized recently among the farmers in which they bind themselves by rigid agreements to sell their products only through such agencies.

The hearty applause that followed the speaker's peroration showed how interested were the Rotarians in his address.

CONFIRMATION HELD BY BISHOP O'BRIEN

LINDSAY, June 25.—His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, of Peterborough, confirmed 150 children in St. Mary's church yesterday. During the course of His Lordship's discourse to the congregation he deplored the fact that so few marriages had taken place in the parish during the year.

RAILROAD MAN INJURED AND IN SERIOUS STATE

LINDSAY, June 25.— John Hepburn, of Lindsay, who is employed on the bridge gang, Barrie division C.N.R., is in the hospital at Barrie suffering from a fractured skull and a leg broken in two places. He was operating a jigger a few miles out of the town when it left the track, throwing him some distance. His condition is serious.

German Employed By the French is Shot and Killed

DUSSELDORF, June 25, Canadian Press. — A German employed by the French was shot and killed while loading coal at Rheinaut today. The French say that the shot which came from a revolver, was fired by one of a group of Germans, supposedly former members of the security police.

LOCAL MASONS AT ST. JOHN'S

Hear Eloquent Address by Grand Master W. N. Ponton—A Very Inspiring Service.

Members of Corinthian, Peterborough and Royal Arthur Lodges of Free and Accepted Masons, accompanied by visiting brethren from Lakefield, Lindsay and Campbellford — some 200 in all, despite the broiling heat—attended divine worship in St. John's Church yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The occasion was the festival of St. John the Baptist, a patron saint of the Order, and was graced by the presence of the Most Worshipful Bro. W. N. Ponton, of Belleville, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada, in the Province of Ontario, who addressed the brethren from the chancel of the sacred edifice. In charge of Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave, vicar, assisted by Rev. R. B. Grobb, rector of All Saints' Church, and with an exclusively male choir in good voice, the beautiful Anglican service was fittingly impressive. Choirmaster George Chandler of All Saints' Church, very acceptably contributed an expressive tenor solo, entitled "Be Not Afraid," while the hymns selected were peculiarly appropriate and were joined in by the whole gathering with marked unanimity and accord.

In extending the church's welcome to the fraternity, Dr. Blagrave was gratified to see so many present, and remarked that while the church environments and conditions in and under which the Grand Master would address his brethren were different in some respects to those he was accustomed to, yet he (the Doctor) felt quite sure the distinguished visitor would convey a message of brotherly uplift and spiritual craft inspiration. For, concluded the Vicar, Masonc lodges are dedicated to the glory of God and the unlift of humanity, precepts sacred alike to both Free Masonry and the historic old edifice of St. John's.

Masterly Effort.

Grand Master W. N. Ponton's address was a masterly Masonic effort, rhetorically brilliant and intellectually informative, with a touch of retrospection here and there. Passing on from a glowing tribute to those whose names are inscribed on the great war memorial tablet resting beneath the old colors of the 57th Peterborough Rangers, he incidentally stressed the remarkable coincidence that June is a wonderful month of many anniversaries of history-making events upon which hinged the prosperity, freedom and liberty of British subjects. In this connection he mentioned the Battle of Waterloo as having been fought and won under the Duke of Wellington on June 18, 1815; the repulse of the Spanish Armada by the British fleet under Lord Howard of Effingham, Admirals Drake, Hawkins and Frobisher in June, 1588, just 335 years ago; the signing of the Magna Charta at Runnymede on June 15 by King John of England, 708 years since; and coming on down to more modern happenings, June marks the anniversary of such outstanding liberty-defending engagements in the late world war as the Battles of Givenchy and of Sanctuary Wood.

Good Queen Bess.

Once more reverting to June as the anniversary month of the great Armada, the speaker emphasized the fact that while Queen Elizabeth's gallant naval forces were, with the help of God, vanquishing their numerically superior invading foe, her Caxton presses were printing Bibles, a 335 years old copy of which he exhibited to his Masonic brethren.

Then we must not forget, con-

VOTING IN CITY REPORTED SLOW THIS MORNING

In North Perth Indications Point to a Record Vote Being Polled.

DRURY AT HOME

Voting in the city was slow throughout the forenoon, but a considerable number of voters appeared during the dinner hour. Sub-divisions 3 and 3A at Deyell's, corner of Lake and Aylmer, showed a total of 140 at 1.30 out of a possible total of 614. Sub-divisions 4 and 4A on Townsend had polled only 25 out of a possible 598.

Number 7 sub-division was well up in the list with 127 votes polled out of a possible 545. Sub-division 8 on Hunter street had received 25 out of 312.

A medical man at one poll found thit his name was not on the list and a resident of King street, who has known Mr. Felix Brownscombe, returning officer in his division for forty years, found that another man had voted for him.

FERGUSON SANGUINE

OTTAWA, June 25.—(Special)—Speaking with the Canadian Press by morning from Kemptville, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Conservative, leader, expressed himself as satisfied with the way the electors were turning out, and appeared very sanguine of prospects of his party generally.

He expects to leave Kemptville at noon for Toronto, but failing this will remain in Kemptville to receive returns. Voting in Ottawa is proceeding apace, ideal summer weather helping to bring out what promises to be a record vote. All six candidates in West Ottawa are hard at work and each one believes he has an excellent chance of being returned. At noon vote polled was little heavier than in last election.

A RECORD VOTE

STRATFORD, June 25.— Early indications point to record vote being polled in North Perth to-day. The city was astir before seven this morning and many electors cast their vote before going to their work on places of business.

Wellington Hay, Ontario Liberal leader and Liberal Standard bearer in North Perth, is spending the day in his home town at Listowel.

DRURY AT HOME

TORONTO, June 25 — Premier Drury voted at Crown Hill in the riding of Simcoe county in which he resides. It is understood that he will remain at Crown Hill to receive the returns to-night. Most of the other cabinet ministers are in their own constituecies, Hon. Howard Ferguson the Conservative leader is in his constituency of Grenville and will receive the news of the ballot counting at Kemptville, his home town, this evening.

THE WEATHER.

Sunday was a warm day. By two o'clock in the afternoon the temperature had reached 94 degrees in the shade, but thunderstorms in the west and north cooled the heated atmosphere here greatly. The temperature went down to 78 degrees for a time, but rose again later. The warmest day last summer was September 5, with 91 degrees. Another warm day was August 14th, with 90 degrees. It will be remembered that last summer was very cool and heated days were few.—W. P.

Consolidated Schools

COBOURG, June 25.—Motor parties of citizens from Grafton and vicinity motored to Wellington in Prince Edward County, to see the new Consolidated school there in action. Wellington is an incorporated village of about 850 inhabitants on the shore of Lake Ontario, and is surrounded on three sides by the fertile fields of Prince Edward County. The party went by way of Colborne, Brighton, Trenton and then southwest over Murray Canal, by the Carrying Place, Hillyer, Consecon to Wellington. The roads were very good except for a few miles which were under construction near the Carrying Place.

On reaching Wellington they went to the public park which is just across the street from the Consolidated school, and camped. A fire was built on the beach and the kettle was soon boiling and tea was served. The ladies had provided the refreshments for the inner man, which were soon done ample justice to. The party then proceeded to inspect the school. It was 1 p.m. and the principal took them in charge and proceeded to explain all the good points about this most modern school. First they were shown into a beautiful assembly hall which would seat about 250 people, which is complete with piano, stage and dressing rooms on either side. A moving picture machine is to be installed soon. The principal said that there were very few nights last winter that the Assembly Hall was not in use by some portion of the community as it was free for lectures, debates or concerts or any community affairs. The gang had now sounded and the children about 240 in number formed up outside and marched in to their respective rooms.

The first room visited was the Primary. The seats in this room are arranged in the form of a hollow square around the outside of the room and are all adjustable as all the seats in the school are to the child who is to sit in them. The teacher said they were put in a hollow square so that any little tots who became tired from sitting too long could go in the centre and play. They were engaged in modeling some wonderful structures from plastecine while the visit was in progress. Then the party was shown to the other class rooms where school was in progress. There was a room for each class. The High School scholars had had their exams and were gone so the principal was free for the afternoon. Then the Chairman of the Board of Trustees and the Secretary-Treasurer came and took the party in charge and completed the inspection. They were shown through the basement where a large gymnasium the full size of the Assembly Hall is equipped with every device for physical training and games. Then there is the play rooms for boys and one for girls where they may eat their lunch at noon and there is a cafateria where hot dishes may be procured. The heating equipment is complete with two large boilers and a fan system which draws away the foul air from every room and replaces it with warm fresh air. The water system is also in the basement with a pressure tank and a motor which works automatically and starts when the pressure goes down to a certain point and stops when it reaches the desired point.

There were large warm clean lavatories of the most approved fool proof type and shower baths with hot and cold water. Drinking fountains were in evidence all over the building. The party were then taken to the second story where the third and fourth classes were and the High School rooms. There is a Domestic Science room equipped for teaching the ladies the latest accomplishments in the culinary art and another large room with cupboards along one end which is to be used as a science room. The officers and some members of the local Women's Institute gathered in the Domestic Science room and with the teachers served the party with a light lunch and tea. In appreciation of the very courteous welcome the party received, Mr. C. A. Bradley, on behalf of the party, moved a hearty vote of thanks which was seconded by Rev. Mr. Moyer who made a few appropriate remarks. This was replied to by the Chairman of the Board of Trustees, Mr. Morden, and the Principal, Mr. Elliot.

The party then witnessed the departure of the children in five vans which were all loaded and started in seven minutes. There is five acres in the school grounds which are under construction yet. There is simple fire protection in the building and a good water supply four hundred feet from the building and a complete system of septic tanks and drains on the grounds.

Some points the secretary-treasurer wanted to make clear were:

1. There were before Consolidation five school sections and the village school which contained four rooms needing in all, nine teachers who drew in salaries $9,000.00 per annum. After consolidation six teachers were required whose total annual salary together with the salaries of the five van drivers was $9,100.00, an increase of only $100.00. The government paid 30 per cent of the van drivers' salary which was from $900.00 to $1,600.00, according to the distance and the number of children to be drawn and was let by tender for one or three years. One van drew 40 children.

2. The average attendance is from 90 to 94 per cent, and they only missed one-half day of school last winter. The children are warm and comfortable and better cared for than when they had to walk. They are under the teacher's care though the van driver who maintains order from the time they leave home until they return. The vans run on a schedule time and there is no waiting at corners. There were three motor and two team-drawn vans, the drivers furnishing the vans and living mostly at the end of the routes.

3. The school is fitting scholars for Normal or Matriculation and about thirty children are getting the benefit of a High School education while living at home, who would not have been able to afford it otherwise. This is bound to react to the great benefit of the community in time.

4. One man kicked against the scheme because his taxes were $25 more, while he saved three hundred by boarding his child at home while formerly the child went to Picton High School.

need of the service is for physical training and an adequate course in practical seamanship. There is much more need of these things than for insistence on a higher educational standard."

BLACK SATIN.

Black satin is to be very popular this fall and is particularly adapted for the soft draped effects now in vogue.

THE POWER OF SUGGESTION.

A new device for saving passengers trouble has been adopted by the dining car service of the Canadian National Railways. Throughout the coaches on all trains to which dining and cafe cars are attached, little dodgers are now distributed before each meal with several suggestions for a suitable combination of dishes. This gives the patron of the dining car a little time to decide upon what he will order later and eliminates the tiresome necessity of studying a large menu card. If the traveller is accustomed to set a limit of price upon his meals there is no need whatever to exceed it. The prices for a complete menu for Breakfast, Dinner and Supper are most moderate, ranging from 35 cents to $1.25. Having made his choice according to pocket book and appetite, upon entering the dining car the traveller will find himself served as quietly and satisfactorily as he would be in any well appointed home

MAY MOVE CAPITAL

BUCHAREST, June 25 (Associated Press)—Hermannstadt, a city in Transylvania, 160 miles northwest of Bucharest, is being considered as the new capital of Greater Rumania. For a long time many Rumanians have felt that the enormously increased frontiers of the country demanded a capital nearer the Western States of Europe than Bucharest. They want to make of Hermannstadt, which in Rumania is called Sibiiu, a sort of executive Washington.

Hermannstadt was founded in the twelfth century, and has been spendidly developed by the Austrians. It is thoroughly modern and has a series of fine public squares, parks, schools, churches, libraries and theatres. It is much cleaner than any of the cities of Old Rumania, and has a much more healthful climate.

MARINE OFFICERS OVEREAT

LONDON, June 25 (Associated Press)—Captain Selwyn Day is one of the best known of the mercantile marine officers and an A. D. C. to the king. He has been all through the mill at sea, and he says that the trouble with the officers on the big Atlantic steamers nowadays, from captains down, is that they eat more than is good for them.

"Apprentices and junior officers in the passenger ships of today," he asserts, "all eat too rich food, too often, and in too large quantities. Consequently, as they have no real physical labor to perform, at least 40 percent. of them are physically unfit. The great

PREMIER SMUTS SEEKS GREATER FIELD OF TRADE

TOO LIMITED.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, June 25, Canadian Press cable — In the Union house of Assembly on Saturday Premier Smuts initiated a discussion regarding the agenda of the Imperial Economic Conference to be held in October. He declared that imperial preference up to the present had been largely to the advantage of the British rather than the Dominions' producers and he felt sure the question of the Imperial Conference would be raised.

The position which South Africa would adopt, he said, would be to welcome any assistance which the British people could give in the way of preference to South Africa's products and also any widening of the field of tariff preference which could be given to her producers. Premier Smuts pointed out that owing to the British fiscal policy the field of preference was most limited and that was where the issue would arise. Australia and New Zealand were going to press very strongly for a very much stronger measure of preference for their products by Great Britain.

The Premier foreshadowed substantial exports of dried fruits from South Africa which would have to meet competition from the continent in the British market and he emphasized what tremendous assistance it would be to them if the scope of the British preference were extended so as to cover articles not of prime necessity. This would probably help more than anything else in the immediate development of South African trade. South Africa, said the Premier, was not going to press the British government to change their fiscal policy which was a question which must be settled by the people of Great Britain but would point out, from the point of view of the Dominions the large advantages that would accrue to the Empire if there were alterations in this direction as regards the preference. BRITISH PAPERS HAVE SATIRE AND SARCASM FOR U.S. PROHIBITION

U. S. Prohibition Laws Are Termed Ridiculous and British Government Criticized For Indifferent Attitude.

SEEDS OF DISCORD.

LONDON, June 25.— (Canadian Press.)—No subject in recent days has occupied more of the attention of the British newspapers or given the public a better topic for animated discussion that the liquor seizures in New York. The London newspapers seldom before have printed so many despatches under United States date lines, and the great majority of these relate to the liquor confiscations.

Its items are various captioned: "Dry Comedy in the United States"; "Meddling With Our Ships," "The Prohibition Farce," "The Wet Liner Absurdity," "Making the Atlantic Dry," and "America's Dilemma."

The week-end editorials are couched in a sarcastic vein. Some of them manifest resentment and others are severely critcal. All of them are eager to know what will be gained by a "test" case, and whether the seizures will continue.

Some of the writers take the British Government sharply to task for what is characterized as its passive attitude and its apparent intention to make the steamship companies fight out the issues with the United States Government.

Some of the papers take a stronger view of the issue and say the situation may lead to grave international complications unless the United States relaxes its "ridiculous laws." The Sunday Times declares:

"The indifferent attitude on the part of the British Government is not the way to win over the American Government to respect for the recognized rights of friendly nations. The American people, or a great majority of them, are on our side in this matter. Prohibition has been forced upon them, but they have no desire to force it upon others.

"Still the less do they wish to see Washington ridiculously embroiled with other governments through an attempt to give world-wide scope to a purely domestic regulation. The whole of the commonsense people of America is against ramming the sumptuary laws of their country down the throats of other people.

"If the British Government does nothing, then we practically invite Washington to trample upon British rights and the amities of civilized existence. In a few years the Americans may ban tobacco or diaphanous blouses or some other target of the reformers' wrath; but if the Americans try to force prohibitions that happen to appeal to their taste or morals upon foreigners, whose habits and predilections run in the opposite direction, then they deliberately are sowing the seeds of international discord."

The Sunday Pictorial, champions the cause of the "Many Britons who pride themselves as living in the freest and most democratic country in the world and who resent America's action as an invasion of their liberty."

"We are a tolerant people," says this publication, "and we dislike being told by other nations what we shall drink. In our damp, misty land alcohol is vital. We don't think prohibition shall be forced upon us, either in our ships or in our homes. On the other hand, the use of pernicious drugs and dope among the British has never attained the extraordinary prevalence it has in America."

Meantime it appears to be the intention of all the big British liners to carry a moderate quantity of liquor for use up to three mile limit, as well as a liberal stock under seal for consumption on the eastbound voyage, if it is not seized by the American officials. The Homeric, Belgenland, Laconia, Empress of Scotland and several other trans-atlantic liners are to sail this week, and their captains evidently intend to run the risk of having their wet stores confiscated.

Shipping corporations are bringing renewed pressure to bear on the British Government, and it is considered likely the Foreign Office will make further representations to Washington on the liquor situation.

VERDICT THIS WEEK IN TRIAL REV. DELORME

Evidence of Sister of the Accused Priest and Gunsmith Who Sold Revolver Heard on Saturday.

CLOSE ON WEDNESDAY

MONTREAL, June 25. —(Canadian Press.)—That there would be long sessions this week in the trial of Rev. Faather Delorme, charged with the murder of his half-brother, was the announcement of Chief Justice Sir Francis Lemieux at the hearing of the case on Saturday. R. L. Calder, K.C., Crown Prosecutor, also stated that the Crown hoped to end its case by Wednesday next. A verdict is expected at the end of the week. The evidence of Lily Delorme, half-sister of the abbe, was subjected to severe questioning by Mr. Calder. She repeatedly swore that she had stayed in the house at 190 St. Hubert street, the whole afternoon of January 6, 1922, on the night of which day Raoul came by his death. The crown prosecutor asked her if she had not told a different story to the detectives when they visited the Delorme house on January 7. She persistently denied this.

The evidence of Oscar Haynes, the gunsmith who sold an automatic revolver to Father Delorme, brought out the fact that the latter had not come purposely to buy a new revolver, but to fetch an old type weapon which he had left at the shop to be repaired. Haynes stated Father Delorme had come to his shop on December 27, 1921, and had agreed to buy the more modern weapon after he had seen it tested and actually had tested it himself in Haynes' shooting gallery.

In the evidence of Lily Delorme stress was laid by the prosecution on the question of times. To test the witness' ability, Mr. Calder unstrapped his own wrist watch and asked her to read the time from it.

After some hesitation she replied: "11:15." At that time the clock in the court showed that it was 10:45. The witness was, however, very nervous and shortly broke down and cried bitterly.

DRILL DISPLAY BY KNIGHTS ON CHURCH PARADE

Brilliant Manoeuvres Marked Parade Ancient Order Foresters to the Murray Street Baptist Church — Visitors Came From Many Miles' Radius

"MAN'S CORONATION"

Brilliant manoeuvres marked the progress to Murray street Church yesterday of the Hamilton Conclave, Knights of Sherwood Forest, which led the combined lodges of District 5, Ancient Order of Foresters in a church parade. In their picturesque featherd hats and shining accoutrements the Knights performed intricate marches and evolutions which told of long training and high efficiency. Some of the figures carried out on the march were St. Andrew's Cross, Latin cross, diamond and eschelon formations. Peterborough Melody Band was in attendance and the visitors, numbering about 400, came from Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton, Bowmanville, Brantford, Port Hope, Campbellford, Trenton, Belleville, Oshawa and Cobourg, besides a contingent of local members. During their stay in the city many of the visitors made a trip to the Lift Lock, and all who were spoken to expressed the highest opinion of the beauty of Peterborough and the surrounding country, although the thermometers along George street registered between 94 and 95 at 12.30 in the afternoon.

The centre of the Murray street Church was filled by the Foresters, and very few seats were vacant in the sides of the church Many who gathered to see the parade remained under the trees in Central Park where a vagrant breeze brought temporary relief from the sweltering heat. Rev. C. W. Rose invited the gentlemen to remove their coats, and the service was shortened as far as possible.

"Man's Coronation."

Mr. Rose chose as his subject "Man's Coronation," and in an eloquent and appropriate address urged upon his hearers the nobility of man's common parentage and the necessity for assisting one another in the difficulties of life.

There is nothing so important today as the establishment of man's confidence in mankind, he said. "The mind of God is full to overflowing with thoughts of mankind. The importance of man in the universe is indicated by the place which he has in the Word of God." The world was made for man, the rivers flow for man, and the oceans rise and fall for his benefit. Man's past can be traced by history, science and by God's Word. History shows that man was always man, with the attributes that are peculiarly his. Science states that from nothing, nothing comes. God is sufficient explanation for everything in the universe and everything in the way of spiritual growth and intellectual power. Controversy on the subject of man's creation is waste of energy, for in the beginning God made man and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life. If we reach the conclusion that we are only part of the animal kingdom we will not make any endeavours for the good of mankind, but will be satisfied to eat, drink and be merry, with only the thought of death on the morrow.

Everything in the universe moves in accordance with a fixed law except man, who can do as he wills. God appreciates much more the service that is voluntarily given than he does the obedience of the heavenly bodies that move in accordance with his will.

Obligation to Serve.

"We are under and obligation to serve" the speaker said. "If we did not have this God-given freedom we would not have a responsibility. The present day is characterized by freedom and the opportunity to serve, and this opportunity lasts only for a short time."

Man's future is largely determined by his short life here. "We feel by the thing that God has implanted within us that we shall live forever" Mr. Ross declared. "Though we die yet shall we live."

Speaking of the duty which man owes to God and to his fellow man the speaker urged the necessity of following the gospel of brotherly love. "I entreat you in view of your responsibility to improve every power with which God has endowed you for the good of mankind," he said. "You are not only members of this fraternal society, but members of the world society. There is blue blood in every man's veins by virtue of his being a child of God. We can not base our benevolence on whether a man has paid his dues. Freedom becomes freedom indeed when God has smitten the shackles from every soul."

In closing, the reverend speaker pointed out the need for individual effort for the advancement of the Kingdom of God.

Soprano and tenor solos were acceptably rendered by Miss T. Pearson and Dr. J. Graham respectively under the direction of Miss M. Bridge, organist.

Two Boys Drowned Near Cowan's Bridge.

EAST EMILY, June 25.—Two children, Albert and Melville Clarke, the oldest but nine years old, were drowned Saturday afternoon at Wilbert See's Landing, near Cowan's Bridge on Pidgeon River. Nothing was known of the tragedy until the bodies were discovered about 2.30 yesterday afternoon by a party of young men who went in swimming at the scene of the fatality and discovered the bodies. The actual discovery was made by Lawrence McGauthey of Lindsay, who brought the bodies ashore and notified the father of the children.

The actual circumstances of the accident are not known but it is thought that the children were playing in an old boat and fell overboard. The children had been away from home since some time Saturday but no concern was felt for them as they have spent the night away on former occasions. Their mother is in the West and the father away at work so there was no one to be concerned over their absence.

STORM FLATTENS CROPS IN ONTARIO

Barns, Silos and Fences Also Levelled Yesterday By Terrific Hurricane.

TORONTO, June 25. — (Canadian Press.)—Barns, silos and fences were blown down, cattle killed in the fields, trees uprooted and crops flattened by a furious wind storm which swept parts of Ontario and York counties yesterday afternoon. In two sections north of Queensville in York and around Greenwood in Ontario, the storm reached cyclonic proportions, accompanied by a tremendous downpour of rain. The two sections are nearly 300 miles apart and little damage was reported in the intervening terrtiory.

The hurricane lasted but few minutes, but it wrought terrible havoc in its brief course. Motorists could scarcely make headway against the terrific blasts, and several had narrow escapes when trees crashed across the roads. Motoring from Newcastle to Greenwood, after the wind had died down, one man had to stop and remove 17 trees from the roadway.

Snapped Wires.

Falling trees snapped the telephone wires and as a result it was difficult to obtain information from the storm centres. Bell Telephone officials stated last night that only two lines were working to Montreal, wires being down in the vicinity of Pickering and 10 miles west of Peterborough. The little villages of Aubly and Greenwood were the centres of the storm in the East. Roofs were blown from barns, silos toppled over ,orchards dismantled. On the fourth concession of Pickering trees littered the roadway. Nearly every farmer in the vicinity reported damage to his orchard. The veiocity of the winds was estimated at around 60 miles an hour.

Two miles east of Goodwood no damage was done. Motorists travelling westward stated that they came suddenly on the storm area. There was almost a line of demarkation between standing crops and crops flattended.

At Salem fences were blown into the road, the Methodist church was completely wrecked and roofs carried off barns. At Brougham, a short distance away ,no damage was reported. Claremont people scarcely realized that there had been a storm, yet Claremont is only 6 miles distant from Greenwood.

Town in Darkness.

Trees in Whitby suffered severe damage ,and the streets were strewn with branches and fallen trunks. Power wires were broken by the trees, and as a result the town was in darkness for several hours last night.

LLOYD GEORGE THINKS U.S. IS WITHIN RIGHTS

Says U. S. Is Trying a Difficult Experiment in Prohibition and Should Be Allowed a Fair Trial.

MAY NOT SUCCEED.

LONDON, June 25.— (Canadian Press.)—Addressing a large congregation in the Welsh Baptist Chapel here yesterday, former Premier Lloyd George made some interesting observations regarding the prohibition situation in the United States. During his discourse he made it apparent that he did not share the views of certain of the British newspapers concerning the lack of right of the United States' authorities to seize liquor stores aboard British ships.

"I hope we won't get excited over the seizure of liquor in New York harbor," said Mr. Lloyd George. "It is not only that America seems to be well within her rights, but I think we ought to extend a certain measure of sympathy to her in her difficulties.

America is making a very bold experiment to deal with probably the greatest curse of modern civilization.

"It is all very well for us to say that all this liquor is merely for our own sailors aboardship. I don't say this with regard to any particular ship. It may not be so, but speaking generally, there is no doubt fortunes have been made by smuggling liquor into the United States in defiance of a law which was passed by a greater majority than almost any other great law in any country.

"Give it a fair trial. I don't say the experiment will succeed. It is just possible that America may have to modify it. They are a great, practical, resolute and courageous people, and if they find it necessary to change the law, they will do it. But don't let us intefere with them. They are a people of more than 100,000,000, highly educated and progressive. Therefore, it is in the interests of civilization that they be allowed full time to test this effort to solve a problem which is just as much ours as theirs."

FRANCE READY TO REQUISITION GERMAN COAL

General Degoutte Declares Germany Has Violated the Versailles Treaty and Issues Statement.

STRICT CONDITIONS.

DUSSELDORF, June 25.—(Canadian Press).—General Degoutte yesterday issued an order of the day declaring that the Inter-Allied Commissios of Control in the Ruhr has the power to requisition for account of the occupying powers all stocks of coal in mines, factories and other industries in the Ruhr in order to insure deliveries for the reparations account due the Allies, as well as to insure the payment of coal taxes due from the exploitation of the mines.

The order was based on part VIII of the Versailles Treaty. It declares Germany violated this part of the treaty by voluntarily reducing the production of coal for the reparations account. The order says that from the date of a decision by the President of the Inter-Allied Control Commission to requisition any given stocks of coal, the coal may not be touched by anyone except through special authorization of the Control Commission.

This authorization can be given by the president of the Control Commission to factories and mines. The requests for authorization must be addressed to the Control Commission by a director of the concern seeking it, who must state what use is to be made of the coal it is desired to remove.

The written authorization must state the amount of the coal allowed to be removed, as well as its use and mode of transportation.

In case of total or partial removal of requisitioned stocks, or in case of alteration in quality without special authorization; or in the event of any hampering of the occupying forces in making any use of the stocks they may set fit, or any attempt on the part of the owners to hinder the occupying forces in their surveillance of the stocks, the director of the factory or mine will be liable to a fine of twice the value of the entire stock requisitioned, with a minimum limit of 100,000,000 marks, and imprisonment for five years, or both. The order will take effect immediately.

WARSAW VILLAGE AND THE DISTRICT

Dwelling Quickly Destroyed By Fire—Car Topples Down an Embankment.

WARSAW, June 25.—On Wednesday afternoon, a little after 2 o'clock, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Matthews was burned to the ground. The building is supposed to have caught fire from the chimney, as Mrs. Matthews saw the whole roof in flames, and inside of fifteen minutes there was nothing but a burning heap of debris.

Mr. Matthews was at the factory when the alarm was raised, and although many were away at a picnic, a few minutes after the alarm about 30 men were at the scene. Mrs. Matthews saved one bed and a few chairs, but nothing else is left but the clothes the family wore. A visiting grandson ran upstairs for some clothes and papers, but the stairs, taking fire, he left his goods and jumped from an upstairs window.

Mrs. Matthews' mother had lived in the house from early childhood until she was married, and many old family treasures were lost. There were no casualties.

The house and contents were insured, but not very heavily.

Large pieces of burning shingles were blown onto a shed belonging to Walter Carveth, which caught fire, but the flames were quickly extinguished.

An Accident.

When returning from the picnic grounds at Indian River, a motor-car, in turning aside to pass a buggy, containing three men, toppled over on to its side, down a rather steep embankment concealed by long grass. The car's top was slightly damaged, but none of its occupants injured.

What Men Use
To get those glistening teeth

Note how many men and women show white teeth nowadays.

They are proud to show them when they smile—because they are attractive.

There is a new way of teeth cleaning which millions now employ. It means whiter, safer, cleaner teeth.

Men who want good teeth should use it. Make this free test and see just what it does.

It removes film

You can feel on your teeth a viscous film. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Food stains, etc., discolor it. Then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

That's why teeth look cloudy.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it, and they cause many troubles.

That's how teeth are ruined.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

You must do this

Old ways of brushing do not end that film. Some always remains to threaten serious damage night and day.

So dental science sought a film combatant, and two methods were discovered. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it.

Experts proved those ways effective. Then dentists everywhere began to advise their use.

A new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. Those two great film combatants were embodied in it, for daily application.

Fights acid too

Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

Pepsodent multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Those are Nature's great tooth-protecting agents in the mouth. Every use of Pepsodent gives them manifold effect.

The new-day way

Pepsodent is the tooth paste of today. Millions already use it. All careful people will adopt it when they know its benefits.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Then you will realise what this method means to you, now and in the future. Cut out the coupon now.

Most Urgent Wants

There's a world of interest in the Want Ads. They reflect the urgent desires of various businesses, households and individuals.

The Wants tell what is most needed. If the cook has left, if a worker is needed in the office or factory, if an article of value is lost or found, if there is urgent necessity to sell a piece of property, secure tenants, roomers or boarders—all such conditions are expressed and met in the Want Columns.

The Wants are close to the heart interests of the people. It is interesting to watch them carefully.

THE ELECTION RETURNS.

The Examiner has made arrangements for a very complete telegraphic service in connection with the returns of the Ontario Provincial elections this evening and hopes to be able to supply quick and accurate news of the results, not only in the local ridings, but throughout the Province.

The service can function with full efficiency only with the co-operation of the citizens, and the Examiner craves the assistance of the public in this respect.

Telephone enquiries will be cheerfully answered, but it must be remembered that thousands of calls will be received by the Examiner this evening and that people who ask a series of questions about any particular constituency, such as "What was the majority there last election?" or "How did Mr. Blank come out?" will be tieing up the service and making it difficult to give the public the returns as speedily as desired.

When you call the Examner tonight please remember that you are only one of many and confine your request for information to essentials. Ordinarily there would be no objection to going into details as to the political history of any particular locality, but on the night of a general election it is necessary, if the service is to be complete, to limit the questions.

FIRST AID METHODS.

The fact that three Peterborough youngsters happened to know the principles of resuscitation and were able to give such efficient first aid to a comrade rescued from the canal that his life was saved is a convincing argument in favour of more general instruction in this most vital subject.

The modern method of resusatation is so simple that it could quite easily be taught in the schools, and the Examiner believes that instruction of this kind could be given a place in the curriculum without interfering to any great extent with the work now carried on.

If every pupil in the schools of Ontario were to learn at least the rudiments of first aid methods the knowledge would be of the greatest benefit to them and to the community generally.

Many an accident has had a fatal termination simply because the services of a doctor were not quickly obtainable and because those on the scene either did nothing or did the wrong thing since no one knew anything about first aid work.

For school instruction no elaborate scheme of first aid methods would be necessary, but the children at least could be taught a few of the vital features and given a chance perhaps to minimize the effects of an accident.

The railways of Canada have for some time realized the value of instruction of this kind. There is no reason why their example should not be followed by other institutions.

RESPECT FOR THE FLAG.

People in Canada, if other sections of the Dominion are as careless as are many Peterborough citizens in their treatment of the national flag, could learn much from a list of instructions issued by the American Legion for use in the schools of the United States.

The object is to instil a proper respect for the flag and to ensure that it shall not be misused or debased.

Many of the things that the legion warns against are unfortunately all too common here in Peterborough.

Here are some of them, and Examiner readers will doubtless notice that all of these "don'ts" are frequently violated by our own people on the wrong use of the Union Jack.

"Don't sew the flag into a sofa pillow.

"Don't use the flag as a silk handkerchief.

"Don't use the flag in any form of advertising.

"Don't wear the flag as a costume.

"Don't arrange the flag in fantastic designs or use it as bunting.

"Don't let the flag drag in the dust or touch the ground (even at unveilings).

"Don't use the flag as a tablecloth.

"Don't drape the flag below the seats of a platform or below a person sitting."

The flag that "braved a thousand years the battle and the breeze" is worthy of every respect from the citizens of Canada, but it is a sad commentary on our regard for the Union Jack that it is often used in one of the ways listed by the American Legion as unfit for the Stars and Stripes.

COURAGE AND THE FUTURE.

Mr. Robert Forke spoke a much disregarded truth when he told the University Club of Ottawa that native born Canadians did not fully appreciate the privileges, opportunities and greatness of their country, says the Ottawa Journal. That realization is left to those who have tasted of the bitterness the injustices and the inequalities of other lands.

Nor is the truth less potent because we have had depressing days. For it is with nations as with individuals: The struggler alone knows how long is the battle; how often the bitterness of despair is his portion. "He who never ate his bread in tears," says Goethe, "knows ye not, ye heavenly powers." But in the hard fierce effort is the making of the nation or the man, as Lessing knew when he said that between the struggle and the crown he would choose the struggle.

"Forth, beast, forth, out of thy stall!" wrote rugged old Chaucer. "Look up, thank God for all! Hold the high way and let the spirit lead thee, and the truth shall deliver thee; have no fear!"

There is always inspiration in the talk of a big man who after many trials has succeeded. Every engineer has known the heartbreak of a collapse of some careful plan he worked out. He did his own part well; some detail necessarily left to a subordinate went wrong. The weak man like the weak nation gives up and goes under. The strong man like the strong nation moves up and goes on.

Canada has had and will have bad moments. But of all the nations of the world none has less cause for pessimism. Financial burdens may crowd upon her, taxation, emigration and agricultural stagnation may temporarily depress her, but through it all she has but to remember her past achievements, and the demonstrated courage, enterprise and intelligence of her people, to know that her future is assured.

ROTARIANS AT ST. LOUIS.

What region of the earth isn't full of the labor of the Rotary International? Delegates from twenty-two foreign nations are at the fourteenth annual convention, which began in St. Louis last week, and of our native enthusiasts there is no end, says the New York times. Some adjuncts of political conventions may have been more richly in evidence at the Edinburgh meeting, but St. Louis is thought not to be without means of imparting at least a gentle and general rotation to visitors whom it loves to honor. Besides, the Rotarians are devoted to higher and better things than the politicians. They are sure of a pleasant and prosperous session. They deserve it. They stand for the humanities, as well as for business done on an ethical basis, and through a salesmanship which, as an illustrious spokesman of this great Order of the Wheel—the swift, harmonious wheel of altruism and progress—has said, must be founded on "telling the truth."

Whether they are working for the public health, endowing beds in hospitals, subscribing for the physical and mental training of boys, giving Edwin Booth's portrait to the Stratford-on-Avon Memorial Gallery, they are always doing something for the community. They began as an obscure little luncheon club. They have become a considerable and growing power for civic, economic and social improvement. If there are persons cold to "prosperity billboards" and cynical novelists apt to sneer at the unceasing and multiform Rotarian activities, the value and essentially unselfish intention of most of these can't be denied except by "the spirit that denies." Long-headed and yet sometimes a little naive, eager, bustling, gregarious, hopeful and free-handed, our Rotarians are a characteristic expression of the composite, migratory, trustful and boyish nation of their origin.

They love to talk and to be talked to; they love to advertise and to help; they are men who must be "doing things;" and they succeed, with an ample humor, gayety, blowing of the trumpet and sincerity, in achieving, to the extent of their power, beneficial and humane purposes.

THE MANITOBA RESULT.

Attempts to account for the result of the voting in Manitoba on the Moderation League's proposals by pointing out the large foreign population in the Province do not get down to the real explanation.

The foreign population was there when prohibition was adopted, and the fact that the relaxation of the temperance regulations has been approved by a large majority shows conclusively that many of those who had previously voted for the prohibitory measure have on occasions supported the plan advocated by the Moderation League.

It is for friends of temperance to investigate the reasons why this should be the case and to endeavour to fit the Manitoba result into the Ontario situation.

Thousands of people who a short time time showed that they were in no way connected with the liquor interests by voting for prohibition have changed their attitude.

They were conscientious in their support of strict measures when the first vote was taken just as they were conscientious on Friday in favoring a less rigid system.

Why did all these voters arrive at a decision that the best interests of the Province require a change?

Was it because seven years' trial of practically total prohibition had convinced them that the results they had been led to expect had not been obtained?

In other words, had they reason to feel that the prohibition system had broken down?

These are questions that suggest themselves as a result of the somewhat remarkable change in sentiment, not only in the cities and towns of Manitoba, but to a considerable extent in the rural districts as well.

There is no disguising the fact that prohibition has received a decided set-back by the verdict of the Prairie Province, and the vote should b inspected critically by temperance leaders in Ontario.

Something went wrong with the Manitoba system.

Was it something that can be avoided in Ontario, or is the shift in Western opinion to be followed by a similar change in the sentiment in this Province?

That is a matter prohibitionists should be concerning themselves with at this moment.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It must be admitted that the weatherman saw to it that the finish of the campaign was hot, even if the parties failed to do so.

Some people seem to think that the harvesters' excursions to Manitoba will be unusually popular this summer.

One of the mysteries of the campaign has been the small amount of publicity Andy Hicks succeeded in getting.

It would be a tragedy for the Toronto Telegram if some of those "pros" and "antis" happened to get transposed.

A lot of people to-night will be able to claim that they did not lose their vote simply because they didn't take the trouble to vote at all.

Over 180 candidates will arrive at the conclusion sometime between 6 and 9 o'clock this evening that a very large number of Ontario people are liars.

What a cheery thought it is these days of high temperatures to remember that in a few short months Canadians will be wondering how they are going to obtain enough coal to keep them from freezing to death.

The Globe points a moral that should not be overlooked in the statement that the countryside is beautiful, except in some spots where city motorists have been picknicking.

Above all says the Ottawa Journal, we should thank God for the hot days, for without them we could not live and thrive.

APSLEY VILLAGE AND THE DISTRICT

St. George's Annual Picnic a Huge Success—Other Social Functions.

APSLEY, June 25.—Ideal weather, a jolly crowd and a generous supply of eatables provided by adherents and friends of St. George's Church, all combined to make the annual picnic held on Thursday, the 21st June, a splendid success. With the thermometer at 87 degrees in the shade, the football match was tabooed, though tennis and sports were indulged in. Some of the events of the latter resulted as follows:

100 yards, for ladies—1st, Barbara Cooke; 2nd, Betty Cooke.

The prizes for the heaviest lady and heaviest gentleman on the grounds went to Mrs. W. Earnshaw and J. Stuart of Peterborough, respectively, both of whom tipped the scales well over 200 lbs.

The oldest person on the grounds proved to be Mrs. A. Smith, and the youngest, Earl Tanner, while Mr. and Mrs. Hubert James captured the prize for the largest family present. The longest married couple prize went to Mr. and Mrs. T .Tanner, who claimed 33 years of married bliss, a daughter, Edith, being adjudged the winner of the prize offered for the most effectively arranged wild flower bouquet.

The proceeds of the day amounted to nearly $110. The Rev. C. Spence desires to thank most cordially all those who contributed to the success of the picnic by their attendance, personal labor and gifts of provisions, and acknowledges also very gratefully prizes donated by the following Peterborough sympathizers: Messrs. W. Conway, R. Denne, G. A. Gillespie, C. Coleman and E. L. Payne; also S. Windsor and D. Brown, Apsley, whose gifts were much appreciated by him as well as the fortunate winners.

Parish Room Re-Opened.

The opening of the newly painted and decorated St. George's parish room and institute took place on the evening of the picnic, with a concert by the Apsley Community Choral Society, which showed the result of a season's painstaking training and practice under the Rev. C. A. G. Spence. A large crowd attended and expressed admiration at the transformation of the interior of the hall. Besides being painted throughout, the walls were decorated with residential, landscape and lake scenes, painted by Mrs. Spence, covering a space of about 500 sq. feet, and having the effect of being viewed between the pillars of a verandah. A large number of Japanese lanterns made a finishing touch to the whole scheme. All the work was done solely by Mr. and Mrs. Spence, Mr. E. L. Spence kindly providing the greater part of the material used. The Rev. C. Spence, in a brief speech, said that it was Mrs. Spence's idea to make the parish room as attractive as possible and a benefit to the community, to be used as a reading, recreation and rest-room, as well as for special functions. The result was seen in the present changed appearance of the room, the work of which he assured them had been a labor of love. He called upon his brother, who had materially assisted in the idea to formally declare the hall open, which he did in a few well-chosen words, hoping that it would prove a benefit to the community.

The choral society then rendered the following programme, every item being well received:

"O Canada"

Chorus—"O Who Will O'er the Downs."

Song—Mrs. F. Tanner.

Song and chorus—Mrs. Staples.

Song—Rev. C. Spence.

Pleasant Event.

A pleasant event took place on Wednesday evening at Lasswade when Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Davis celebrated their silver wedding. A large number of friends assembled to wish them continued happiness and prosperity, and a happy time was spent. Mr. and Mrs. Davis were the recipients of many presents from their well-wishers and friends.

PREMIER SMUTS

ence to the fiscal policy in general, South Africa would adopt the same line as Canada has done.

The Premier emphasized that the development of South Africa would require the widest expansion of her markets all over the world and whatever arrangements they might make at the conference would not be of an exclusive character. They had the British preference and to reciprocating policy for the Dominions and one tariff for the world, but it might be that in years to come South Africa would have to reshape her policy on different fiscal lines.

Dealing with Shipping and communications, Premier Smuts pointed out that faster communications were needed within the Empire, but owing to the difficulty of dealing with the question of shipping they must await proposals the British government would make at the conference.

Referring to the need of organization and economic intelligence the Premier paid tribute to the work of the trade commission and the commissioner for commerce. He foreshadowed the appointment of a commissioner for Canada and the United States.

As regards overseas settlement the Premier observed that owing to the composition of her population South Africa did not afford such a field for Empire migration as the other Dominions. The settlers South Africa required were people of independence and some means, he said.

CAMPBELLFORD TOWN INVADED BY A PARTY OF JOVIAL ENGINEERS

Inspected Hydro - Power Plant at Raney Falls, and Then Engaged in Happy Sports and Pastimes Amid Congenial Surroundings.

BANQUET OF SONGS

CAMPBELLFORD, June 25. — The members of the Peterboro branch of the Engineers' Institute of Canada, as jovial a crowd of young men as ever took part in an outing, held their annual excursion to Campbellford on Saturday, coming gby auto, and some of them on the noon train. They were met here by a reception committee, A. E. Caddy, Fred A. Buagar and Archie J. Wood, local members of the craft, and the party then proceeded in a body ti inspe·t the Hydro power plant at Raney Falls, a building that is known all over the province as a model of its kind. Nearly every member of he visiting party had had a part in preparing the plans for this structure, so that they could study the finished produce, and every phase of the operation with a special interest. The plant is the first of three simila rones which the Hydro Commission is preparin gto build in the district, plans for the construction of both having been completed and tenders of the first to be put up being now in the hands of the Commission. Campbellford is almost certain to become the leading power centre in the eastern part of the province.

The party, their tour of inspection completed, were photographed in front of the power house by F. C. Bonnycastle.

The Ball Game.

The most strenuous event of the outing was the ball game, started at 4 o'clock, between teams, one headed by Ross L. Dobbin, chairman, and the other by E. R. Shirley, vice-chairman of the Institute.

The following was the line-up:

Mr. Dobbin's team — Killaly's c; Henderson ss; Wood p; Hay 1b; Gifford 2b; Dobbin cf; Felton 3b; Coutts lf; Hawthorne rf.

Mr. Shirley's team — Gates c; Rose p; McLeish ss; McLaren 3b; Collins 2b; Burgess 3b; Cruthers cf, Salamis rf; Millen lf.

Subs — Manning ,Roseborough, Mackenzie, Crowe and any other willing to volunteer. F. A. Burgar acted as umpire and there were no protests.

A. E. Caddy had laid out a diamond with the mathematical precision of a trained engineer on Government land situated midway between the lawn bowling green and the tennis court, with two stakes painted like barber poles indicating the foul lines.

The lineup given above indicates the order in which the teams started but as the game progressed there wtre frequent shifts in the positions, perhaps with a view to strengthening weak parts or it may be that the managers acted on the principle that a change was as good as a rest for their perspiring men. Early in the contest, Manager Dobbin promoted himself from centre field to the pitcher's box after Archie Wood had forfeited his opportunity to make good. Near the end of the game Dob bin made the star play of the afternoon when he sent the soft ball that was in use asross the public highway and through two fences with a Shirley team fielder in hot pursuit. Man and ball came to a stop just shoret of the river bank. The throw in was perfect but Ross made the circuit. A charitable construstion of the playing rules credits him with a home man. Although some cynical observer of the play declare that at the most it, was only a three bagger. The ball when thrown in by the fielder dropped onto the middle of the diamond and the entire infield gathered in a bunch that looked like a picture of a Rugby scrimmage to reclaim it and let it drop among them while the base winner made his way home from thirn amid the plaud its of the spectators.

Killaly finished the game behind the bat. Even friends who have known him for years were amazed at the variety of the vocabulary used by Mr. Killaly to express his fields on the many different occassions when the ball liquidated in one direction while he was lying in wait or it in another.

Pete Nancarrow who plays short for the Northumberland League team finished the game with the Chairman's nine and covered himself with glory. Burgess at first base, dragegd down many a skyscraper by the simple expedient of standing on his toes, natural having provided him with the extra height necessary for such feats. The use of a soft ball o appealed to those in the crowd who had never tried it out before, the game was so strenuous, good-natured and uproarious that there is already a move started to organize a soft ball league here.

The final score was 13 to 5 in fav of or Manager Shirley's team.

Banquet at Longs

After the game the players and their friends repaired to Long's restaurant where a banquet was served Chairman Dobbin presiding in which position he shines as brilliantly as when bossing a ball team. After the most of those present had been fed up on the long political orations of the past few weeks it was refreshing to take part in a gathering wher oratory is at a discount and where if a member presumes to exceed the time limit of three minutes he is promptly put out of business by his associates bursting into song. The speeches were brief. A. E. Caddy, in the absence of Mayor Meyers, who found it impossible to be present, welcomed the visiting engineers to Campbellford.

When Vice-Chairman Shirley was asked to say a word on behalf of his winning team, he replied that that was not necessary, as the players had spoken eloquently for themselves by their work on the diamond.

T. A. Humphries then asked every member of the two teams to stand up. He then presented each with a prize of equal value and utility, a tin auto, warranted to go when propulsion was furnished from some outside source.

Another prize presented by Mr. Humphries was a wax doll to F. A. Burgar, the only man in the crowd who had become a benedict since the outing a year ago.

When R. B. Roger was asked, as one of the veterans in the profession, to speak, his proudest boast was that he had for ten years lived in Campbellford, an honor which dwarfs even the credit of that masterly engineering feat, the building of the famous Lift Lock of Peterboro.

Those Present.

Those who sat down to the banquet were: B. I. Burgess, W. Canning, I. J. McLeish, J. H. Johnson, C. S. MacLean, P. H. Darling, J. W. Milne, D. W. Roseburgh, M. B. Wyman, C. H. Crowe, J. W. Bateman, J. M. Perrin, R. I. Mackenzie, J. W. Collins, W. G. Henderson, B. Ottewell, I. Stephenson, R. W. Scott, A. B. Gates, George Hawthorne, D. L. McLaren, B. C. Salamis, Hugh E. Rose, W. H. Barry, J. Manning, W. E. Ross, W. M. Cowthers, R. C. Flitton, A. L. Killaly, E. R. Shirley, A. J. Wood, A. E. Caddy, R. I. Dobbin, I. A. Humphries, R. B. Rogers, W. G. Cowell, A. L. Dickinson, G. Coutts, J. Mackintosh, Thos. A. Lang, P. C. Denyes, P. Snedmor, C. H. Munro, F. A. Burgar.

W. H. Barry played the piano accompaniments for the choruses that were so heartily sung.

The officers of the Peterborough branch of the Engineers' Institute of Canada are: Ross L. Dobbin, chairman; E. R. Shirley, vice-chairman; A. B. Gates, treasurer; R. C. Flitton, secretary.

TERRIFIC STORM DESTROYED BARNS

Horses, Pigs and Implements Lost When Lightning Struck a Norwood Barn.

NORWOOD, June 25.—A terrific electric storm, accompanied by wind, hail and rain, passed over this section on Sunday afternoon. About two o'clock the sky became cloudy and shortly after there was a regular downpour of rain. During the storm a barn on Mr. Wm. Brooks' farm in Asphodel, about two miles west of the village was struck by lightning and it, with three horses, twenty pigs, all of the farm implements, buggy and harness, were burned.

Mr. Brooks had maple, oak and cherry lumber all ready for flooring and woodwork for two new houses, also the cove siding stored in the drive shed and this was also a complete loss.

And the barn on the fourth line of Asphodel, belonging to Mr. Sloan, about five miles west of the village, was also burned. Willing hands were ready to do all they could to help, but were prevented by the high wind and the storm.

At latest reports the village was threatened with destruction. One of the most serious fires is now situated in heavily timbered and very dry forest areas to the south west of the Miramichi river.

KAWARTHA LAKES A BEAUTY SPOT

Visiting Delegates From Detroit Ticket Sellers' Association Were Greatly Impressed With Natural Beauties of the Lakes.

A large delegation from the Detroit Passengers' Association, composed of ticket sellers and passenger agents from all parts of the State of Michigan, was more than favorably impressed by the scenic beauties of the Kawartha Lakes yesterday. The delegates, one and all, were unanimous in their opinion that the Kawartha Lakes district furnished one of the greatest fields for summer tourist traffic on the continent, and expressed surprise that the stories of its beauties had not been broadcasted from coast to coast.

The party, numbering 127, arrived in Peterborough in the morning and spent the hour between 9 and 10 o'clock, in a tour of the city as the guests of the Motor League. They were particularly impressed by the Lift Lock, as an unusual and interesting engineering feat. After viewing the city the entire party left for Young's Point by auto, and there took the steamer Empress for a tour of the lakes.

The wonders of the lakes, forming as they do a continuous panorama of beauty, greatly impressed them.

The first stop was made at Jacob's Island, where an excellent dinner was served. From there the boat was again taken and the trip continued to Bobcaygeon. Two storms which arose during the afternoon, one of which blew them completely off their course, only added to the thrills of the trip. Bobcaygeon was reached at about 6.30 o'clock, and supper was served at the Rockland House. At 8.30 a special train was taken for the journey home.

This was the first trip for these men through this district, and the wonderful scenic attractions, together with the ease with which these beauties of nature can be visited, have undoubtedly made an impression that will bear good fruit in the future.

Election News

TORONTO, June 25.—(Canadian Press.)—With clear, hot weather in most aprts of the province, the electors of Ontario started out early this morning to select their sixteenth legislature. First reports to-day indicate fairly heavy voting in rural and most of the urban constituencies. Exceptions to this are noted in cities where daylight saving is in force; in these constituencies the nine o'clockers did not have their usual opportunity to vote on the way to business, polls opening on standard time. Campaign has been strenuous in these cities, however, and the party canvassers will make a tremendous effort to get out the vote later in the day.

It is generally reported that the result of to-day's voting will be close, as the outcome of what is practically a three-cornered contest throughout the province. In most of the ridings there are candidates for Goevrnment, United Farmers-Labor and Conservative and Liberal oppositions, respectively. Theer are 111 seats in the Legislature, two of which have already been filled by acclamations in Keenora, Peter Heenan, Labor, and in Kingston W. F. Nickle, Conservative, making the score to date of one Government and one Opposition supporter elected.

Watched Abroad.

The election in Ontario to-day is being watched with great interest from all parts of Canada and beyond, as being the test of coalition, group or "occupational" government, as against the old straight line Liberal or Conservative party system. Ontario's present farmer government was the first Agrarian administration in Canada or the United States, Provincial, State or Federal. At dissolution the of last Legislature the Farmer government of Hon. E. C. Drury hed power with the aid of the Labor members, by a majority of one over the combined Conservative and Liberal opposition, not to mention three Independents and a vacant seat. The standing at dissolution was a s follows:

United Farmers	45
Labor	9
Conservatives	25
Liberals	28
Independent	3
Vacant "Cons"	1
Total	111

Opposition Charges.

The campaigning of both Liberal and Conservative oppositions has been largely directed to charges against the government of poor enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act and other indictments of maladministration, particularly of extravagance in the management of the affairs of the province and disposition of its natural resources. To these charges the premier and his cabinet ministers have made vigorous defence.

Two eleventh hour statements from United Farmer sources are creating considerable interest throughout the Province to-day. J. J. Morrison, secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario, the man who could have been Premier of Ontario after the election but declined, is quoted as stating that in his opinion if no group has a fair majority over all in the next legislature as the result of to-day's election, the leader of the next largest group should be Premier. If either Hon. Mr. Ferguson or Mr. Wellington Hay leads the largest following in the next house, said Mr. Morrison, Mr. Drury should resign at once. This is interpreted to mean that Mr. Morrison will not approve of further coalitions involving the United Farmers, to secure a majority of the next largest group.

"However, Tanlac gave me back my strength, and I've enjoyed perfect health ever since, I gained nearly ten pounds in weight, have a wonderful appetite and sleep eight or ten hours every night and feel so well life is a pleasure. Tanlac was a God-send to me. No medicine in the world can equal it."

RUHR INVASION INCREASED LIVING COST WORLD OVER

Currency Slump Is Followed By Jump in Wholesale Prices, and Retail Prices Quickly Follow — Prices in Engand.

(By Henry Wood).

GENEVA, June 23 (United Press) —That the occupation of the Ruhr has had a most serious effect in increasing wholesale prices, and as a consequence, in increasing the cost of living the entire world over, has just been demonstrated by world-wide statistics gathered by the International Labour Bureau.

While naturally France, Germany, and Belgium, the countries most directly affected by the occupation of the Ruhr, were the first to show the repercussion on the cost of living, this latter has now extended not only to all other European countries, but to Canada, Australia, China, and Japan.

Since the close of the war and the organisation of the International Labour Bureau, the latter has been able to establish one fixed law governing prices in all countries of fluctuating currency and exchange. This law demonstrates that every serious fluctuation in the value of the currency or exchange of any country is first reflected in wholesale prices. If the currency goes down, wholesale prices immediately go up. This increase is then quickly extended to retail prices and the whole cost of living is quickly affected.

Currency Value Slumped.

The working out of this law constitutes the first element in the increase in the cost of living that has resulted from the occupation of the Ruhr, German, French, and Belgian currency all suffered immediately a heavy slump came. This then extended to wholesale prices, then to retail prices and finally to the cost of living generally in those countries.

However, exchange is more or less of an international barometer, and the depreciation of German, French, and Belgian currency carried down with it the exchange of Italy and other countries that were not directly involved in the occupation of the Ruhr. All of these countries quickly suffered an increase in the cost of living.

The second element that then entered into the general world-wide increase in wholesale prices and the consequent increase in the cost of living, was the disturbance of production caused by the occupation of the Ruhr. The cutting down there of the normal production of coal minerals and other product, naturally caused an increased demand in Britain, the United States, and other producing countries when this naturally caused an increase in prices with an additional repression on the cost of living.

Prices in England.

The general index number on the wholesale prices in England shows an increase of 2 per cent., but that of minerals alone shows an advance of 8 per cent.

In France the index number of wholesale prices shows an increase of 38 per cent. over that for the beginning of 1922 and 17 per cent. over that of the first of the present year.

The index figures from the United States show an advance of 16 per cent. for coal and from 10 to 13 per cent for iron, copper, tin and minerals generally.

The index numbers of the Scandinavian countries, Switzerland, Canada, Australia, China, and Japan all show increases on the wholesale prices.

When Mr. Clarke went to his room he asked McMann to telephone for the doctor. While McMann stood telephoning he heard report of a revolver. He opened the front door to the street and met H. Henry, Broadview avenue, who also hearing the sound of the weapon being discharged, hurried to the house and ran to the upstairs front room with McMann. Here they found Clarke lying outstretched on the floor. Blood was pouring from bullet wound behind the right ear.

IRELAND IS TO HAVE REAL ELECTION SOON

Party Representing the Free State Expected to Win, But Labor Will Be Strong.

By CHARLES M. McCANN.

DUBLIN, June 25 (By Mail).—Ireland, mother of politicians, is to have her first real election within the next four or five months.

Some time between September and November, candidates of four political parties will meet their fate at the polls.

On the result of the election may depend the future of the Free State.

The National party—the government party—has at present a strong majority and claims, apparently modestly, the sympathy of most of the electors.

The Labor party has a strong group in the Dail and with the return of Jim Larkin is expected to gain strength.

The Farmers' party is being organized in preparation for the election, and will have candidates for the Dail in many agricultural districts, pledged mainly to work for the farmers.

The Rebel Party.

The fourth party will be that of the de Valeristas—the rebels. No one knows yet what they intend to do. It is expected that they will put candidates in the field who, if elected, will refuse to take the oath of loyalty to the King and consequently will not sit in the Dail.

It looks now as if the parties will run in the order mentioned above—the National party obtaining a strong working majority, the Labor party gaining, the Farmers' party electing a small number and the de Valeristas returning, if any, a few non-sitting members.

Though the date of the election has not been set, the campaign is well under way. Cabinet Ministers and ordinary members of the Dail are addressing week-end meetings. Incidentally it was when the first were held, during the latter part of May, without any stray shots being fired or bricks thrown, that both government and people, through the newspapers, headlined the end of the revolution.

Jim Larkin has stepped right into the centre of the arena. He is a hero to the ordinary working-man. And for the time being at least he has shed his coat of red for the mantle of peace. In all of his speeches—all of them cheered to the echo—he has urged peace and hard work.

Larkin a Big Figure.

He will undoubtedly be one of the two or three biggest figures in the next Dail—he is sure to be elected to it—and despite some current friction with the present Labor party, headed by Tom Johnson, is destined to be the future leader of Irish workingmen.

A fifth group in the Dail will be the former Unionists. They hardly form a party. But though they represent those who opposed separation from England, they have been of tremendous assistance to the government. Most of them are experienced legislators, and have saved the comparatively inexperienced government from several blunders by well-placed motions.

It is expected that at least one of them will be in the Cabinet after the election.

If Irishmen run true to their American form as politicians, the campaign is going to be heated. But it will be the heat of words and of ordinary sociable fights.

Irish citizens are beginning to apologize for the recent rebellion. They are ashamed of it and thoroughly fed up with it and its leaders.

Rebels Lose Sympathy.

Three months ago when a rebel was executed the man in the street spoke of the "poor boy." Two farmers' sons, members of the rebel "army," were executed a few days ago—after the rebellion had ended—for holding up a bank. The comment in the street was an unsympathetic "serve them right," and the incident had no more effect than an execution has in any state of the Union.

The rebellion has died, unhonored and unwept. If there is any singing about it, it will be by the de Valeristas. It is being forgotten already in the excitement of the campaign, which is becoming a house-warming celebration for the new Ireland.

Liver Trouble

ITALIAN LIRE DROPS.

ROME, June 25.—(United Press.)—The value of the Italian lire is again slowly but steadily dropping. During the past two weeks the dollar rose from slightly over 22 lire to 22 1-2. An ominous phase of the situation is that food prices are rising while the currency falls.

$1-A-YEAR MEN IN NEW GERMANY NOW

(By Carl D Groat.)

BERLIN, June 25. (United Press.)—Germany is developing in Peace times a new army of "dollar-a-year" men.

They are the owners of big apartment houses, who before the war were comfortably situated. Now under the socialistic dwelling law where by renters have their apartments virtually free except for certain taxes to the city, the income to the house-owners averages not over $1 a year.

The landlord nowadays feels himself fortunate if the tenants obey the law and have repairs made at their own cost.

While the landlord starves, however, a class of profiteers letting part of their dwellings at prices comparable to American rents is waxing wealthy in marks.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Golden Rule Lodge A.F. & A. M. Attend Divine Worship—Popular Man Leaving Town.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 25. — Members of Golden Rule Lodge, No. 126, A.F. & A.M., over fifty strong, marshaled by F. C. Bonnycastle, paraded to Christ Church, where Bro. Rev. Rural Dean Clarke preached the annual sermon. A fine musical programme was rendered by the choir. Mr. Clarke chose as the topic of his discourse, "Architecture of the Past and Present," and applied it to the building of a temple as represented by the body and character of man, a temple which should be an abiding place for the divine presence.

Architecture, the preacher said, followed civilization. The art shown by the architects of the old days found no parallel in modern times. Some of the ancient temples stand alone as objects of beauty and harmony. To-day we put up public buildings, houses of Parliament, Hydro plants and a Union depot in Toronto, which we do not use after it is finished but some of these are mere piles of stones. No temples like those of old are erected in this age.

The temple of the body should be built like the ancient place of worship with an eye to beauty and harmony, just as were the edifices constructed in the past, when all the lines of beauty were in harmony.

On behalf of himself and the management of the church, Mr. Clarke welcomed the visitors, and thanked them for the honor they had conferred upon the congregation by consenting to worship with them.

The Fateful Day.

To-day will tell the story. Everything is set for the battle of the ballots; both Conservatives and Progressives are well organized, and if the weather is favorable it is expected that a heavy vote will be polled in the election to-day. Both committees will receive telegraphic reports of the returns from all over the Province.

Goes to Young's Point.

Archie J. Wood, who has been one of the valued employees on the staff of the Trent Canal here for the past three years, has been transferred to Young's Point, where he will hold the position of instrument man. Mr. Wood leaves at once for his new position, and will take up his residence in Lakefield. His departure is regretted by a host of friends whom he has made since coming to Campbellford. He has been prominent in all social functions, an ardent lover of sport, and has built up a reputation as one of the best amateur actors among the many that this town has produced.

WORK SWITHOUT PAY TO CLEAR CITY DEBT

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., June 23 (Associated Press).—A few years ago the city of Jacksonville was "broke." It was so crippled financially its credit wasn't good for a 60-cent telegram its then chief executive attempted to send. Today it has a credit of many thousand times 60 cents.

The change has been brought about, it is said, by an efficient business administration given by a mayor and a city commission who do not draw a cent of salary for their work for the city.

Elected three times without giving away so much as a nickel cigar or making a single public political speech, Mayor Edward Crabtree is now in the midst of his third term with the aim to make Jacksonville one of the best business cities in the state. Mr. Crabtree says he never gave a dollar to a campaign fund and never asked for a single vote.

When he returned to Jacksonville after two years of work in liberty bond drives during the war, the citizens of the city urged him to run for mayor. He promised to do so on the sole condition that he be paid no salary and that several of those boosting him for the position run with him for council positions on the same platform.

Jacksonville has a population of 16,000 and a total taxable property worth of $12,000,000. It was the first city in Illinois to go "bone dry" and was one of the first to adopt the commission form of city government.

LININGS MATCH COSTUME.

One of the smartest things you can do this season is to line your cape or coat with the same material as the frock over which you will wear it. This is particularly effective if the gown is of figured silk.

LAY CORNER STONE ENNISMORE CHURCH

With appropriate ceremonial, in the presence of between 500 and 600 people from the parish and surrounding district, who sat and stood under a sweltering sun, the cornerstone of the new St. Martin's Roman Cathoiic Church at Ennismore was laid yesterday afternoon by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, assisted by the clergy of the parish, including Rt. Rev. Monsignor McColl, Rev. P. McGuire, Rev. J. J. O'Brien, Rev. P. Costello of Peterborough, Rev. P. Galvin of Downeyville, Rev. K. Corkery of Cobourg, and Rev. J. McAuley of Ennismore.

Rev. N. Roche, of St. Michael's College, Toronto, Provincial of the Congregation of St. Basil, preached the sermon, an impressive address, which was made brief on account of the torrid atmosphere. Students at St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto, Mr. V. Corkery of Peterborough, and Mr. J. F. McGuire of Ennismore, acted as acolytes. The choir of the church, with Miss Ella McBrady at the organ, provided sacred music for the occasion.

Impressive Sermon.

Father Roche preached from the text: "This is the house of the Lord, well builded and founded upon a strong rock."

His address was an exhortation to fervour in the rearing of "the home of God upon earth. Your forefathers made sacrifices for the church. They have gone, but today they rejoice that they made sacrifices for the privilege of helping to rear the temple of Christ on earth. On this St. Martin's hill, for nearly a hundred years, there has gone up the sweet smoke of sacifice to the living God. You have always had access here. The holiest saint or the lowliest sinner has always been sure of a welcome in this holy house. God has been a Neighbour among you a Friend to whom you could turn at any moment.

Show me, if you can, anyone who has ever failed or been pinched because of sacrifice that he made for God. On the contrary, I have seen God's blessing fall upon those who made the sacrifice most generously. I can guarantee to you, in God's name, His blessing on yourselves, on your families, and on your fields, because of the help you have given in the rearing of His temple on earth. When you are going down the hill towards the sunset that ends in the grave, you will be able to look back with happy hearts and say, 'I helped to rear that temple to God.' It will be your pride and joy when you are going to your heavenly home that you were willing to make a sacrifice for the love of Christ."

The Bishop's Address.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien spoke a few words, encouraging his audience to sacrifice and steadfastness in the effort to bring the work to a completion as speedily as possible, that they might be earnest in an endeavour to rear a fitting home to Him upon earth. "I pray that God's blessing may be upon the workmen and all who help in the work of building a church wherein is taught the faith of Jesus Christ, the fear of God, and brotherly love, that it may stand for and be everything that God's church should be on earth."

Formation of Church.

The new church, reared on the spot where the old St. Martin's stood for so many years, will be a handsome structure. The foundation has been laid, about two feet higher than that of the old building, and the brickwork is well on its way. The future form of the edifice is apparent already; a building 120 feet long by 41 1-2 feet wide, the foundation of Roman stone, the construction of white brick, with a V-point. Facing to the north, the sanctuary at the southern end is semi-circular in shape. Three altars will be placed there. At the south-western corner, there is a small entrance hall, giving access to the body of the church, the vestry, and the basement. The altar circle is 12 feet by 24 feet, the ceilings will be 16 1-2 feet high, spring to a semi-circular central arch. The front of the church will be trimmed with stone, with three windows above the main entrance, and stone arch above the tower entrance to the gallery and west side of the tower.

The corner-stone, simply inscribed, "St. Martin's Church, June 24, 1923," was placed in the extreme north-western corner of the tower.

Let Them Protect You

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

SUMMER AILMENTS.

Every attack of loose bowels during the summer months of either the infant or child, should be given prompt attention. It is not teeth, as so many mothers think, but an infection which causes it. The infection may be so slight that the child with the right care will get over it shortly, it may be a more dangerous infection and to ignore it is to court real danger.

The infection is caused by harmful bacteria which grow and thrive on the food in the intestines. It is easy enough to see then that the first measure is not to add any more food to make supplies for the enemy, but to clear out the intestines.

Let the stomach rest. Give the child plenty of boiled water and also a mild physic. Paraffine oil will do and one may use castor oil This is one of the times when castor oil is acceptable.

If the baby is in severe pain and the bowel movements very frequent and odorous, lose no time in summoning the doctor. The mother can do her best work by carrying out his instructions.

One can not make a mistake in giving quantities of water by both enema and mouth. In severe diarrhoea the intestines and stomach are soon drained of their fluids, and so that an extra amount of liquid is essential. A child can lose a lot of weight in even a short siege of diarrhoea, due to this loss of fluid from the system. Also prostration seems out of all proportion to the cause.

It is never safe to give patent medicines for colic or cramps at a time like this. Follow the four rules which revery mother can remember:

First rule—Give no food.

Second rule—Give plenty of boiled water to drink.

Third rule—Clean out the bowel tract.

Fourth rule—Send for the doctor.

Want Ad Tips

by John T. Bartlett

A FAMILY LEAVING FOR SASKATOON

Old hands at Want Ads witness it happen repeatedly. An advertiser makes seemngly a minor change in his copy—there is a instant and pronounced increase in inquiries. It was so with a family which by reason of the husband's promotion in a nation wide organization. was leaving the city at once. Before leaving, these people were making an effort to sell all their household goods, a used automobile, and their home.

Their Want Ads gave 'phone number and address only. Sales did not materialize fast enough to meet the emergency. Finally, the advertiser phoned the Want Ad department, and put the situation up to it. What should he do?

"I'd put my name and business in the Want Ad" the newspaper employee advised. "I'd say I was leaving for Saskatoon—tell when and why. I'd explain that I must sell all these things in the next few days."

The changes were made in the Want Ad. Instead of an unknown of offering 'must-sell-at-once' goods, R. D. Haywood, formerly manager of the local Wood agency, promoted and now leaving for Saskatoon. selling everything, became the advertiser.

Inquiries picked up at once—of of course. The emergency was met.

Now, there is a big lesson and this is it: Don't hesitate, when it will interest people in your offering, to reveal your personal affairs. If you are selling a car because you have been out of work, sick, for several months, say so—it will help you to sell. If your cow won a blue ribbon at the county fair, say so. If you have numerous customers for your product. give the names of some of them, by permission.

Intimate personal statements hallmark general assertions with truth. Nearly everyone will believe your declaration concerning bargains if with personal information you give plausible reasons for the bargains—as the family leaving for Saskatoon did.

SMUTS FEARS ANOTHER WAR

CAPETOWN, South Africa, June 25 (Associated Press).—General Smuts, speaking recently at the Union of South Africa government, defined the British Empire as a grouping of free states held together by their common allegiance on terms of freedom and equality, and operating on a basis of consultation.

The famous South African leader said it was quite possible that another great European calamity might arise, and he therefore urged that the position of the British Empire be defined. The European war, he said, arose from the fact that the position of some of the great powers was not clearly defined.

BOYS ARE NATION'S GREATEST ASSETS, ROTARIANS ARE TOLD

ST. LOUIS, June 25 (Associated Press).—Conserving the nation's greatest natural resource—the boy—to the end that he will grow up with the idea that "he profits most who serves best," is the idea underlying the boys work of Rotary International as outlined by Chairman Everett Hill of the Internation Boys Work Committee, during session of the Rotary International Convention here today.

Rotarian Frank D. Slutz of Dayton, Ohio, and Eddie Guestk the newspaper-poet of Detroit, also spoke.

The supreme challenge of each generation is the next generation, Mr. Slutz told the convention. The supreme challenge of Rotary—an organization of men—is the boys, he said.

"Boys are history and civilization at the source," Mr. Slutz continued. "A fraction of the time spent upon the influencing of adults—of men—if spent upon boys will establish boys, their loyalties and their ideals. Every consideration of business efficiency demands that Rotary train boys in the new ideals.

"Rotary can teach the boys of the world that service must be above self, if the game of living is to be played in a man's way. With service above self, public responsibility will be placed before business smugness and satisfaction. Wealth will be regarded as an opportunity for service.

"The boys can be taught that human personality is the most sacred creation of the universe. Not property, but persons must be first in the eyes of the law.

"Truth must be honored above opinion. Let every man have his opinion where the facts cannot be obtained. Let every man be tolerant of every man's opinion. Let every man label his opinion as an opinion and not as a truth. Men can understand one another in terms of truth. They fightn each other over opinions.

"The boys can be taught how to build a world of peace. Nobody but boys can ever do this.

"How can we do these things? By example! Every Rotarian must believe and practice these things himself; by cooperation with the organization now existing for boys; by arranging international conventions of boys and by a Rotary school for leadership."

Calvin Gray, stopping in Dallas, in the most expensive suite in the most exclusive hotel, is the enemy of Colonel Henry Nelson, son of Bell Nelson, banker. Gray becomes friendly with the Briskow family, who have struck oil. Besides Gus and Ma Briskow there is a daughter, Allegheny, and a son called Bud. Pa Briskow takes Ma and Allie to the mountains, where they stay at an expensive hotel. Allie has a tutor named Mrs. Ring. Bud is sent away to school. Gray is in love with Barbara Parker, known as Bob, who buys land for Colonel Henry Nelson.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

At such times Allie was more than disagreeable. Hate flamed in her eyes, she beat herself with her fists, she kicked the furniture, and she broke things. Once she even butted her head against the wall, uttering language meanwhile that all but caused her companion to swoon.

Mrs. Ring resigned after this final exhibition, but, lacking the courage to face Allie in a mood like that, she went to Gus Briskow.

"It is simply impossible to remain," she told him. "Already I'm a physical wreck, for I never get a moment's rest. The salary is attractive, but Allegheny is too much for me."

"You're kinda worked up, Mis' Ring. Mebbe I can make it pleasanter for you."

"In what way, may I ask?"

"Well, by payin' you more."

"You are generous. The salary we agreed upon isn't low."

"Try it, ma'am, for a little while. Mebbe it won't bother you so much after you get used to it. Allie likes you."

"And I—I am interested in her. She is progressing, too; in fact, I have never seen anyone learn more rapidly. But—she is so unusual. Still, perhaps I am the one—perhaps it is my duty, under the circumstances—"

With this disposition to compromise the father had little difficulty in dealing, so the daily routine was continued.

Allie was sitting alone in her room one evening, fagged out from a hard day. Some people were talking on the veranda outside her window, and she heard one say:

"The girl can look really stunning."

"Exactly. I don't understand where she gets her looks, for her parents are—impossible. Wouldn't you know what they were?"

Allie heeded no clearer indication of who was under discussion.

"She's a glorious rider," the first speaker was saying. "She passed me the other day, going like sin, with her face blazing and that big, lively chestnut running flat. The way she took that curve about the Devil's Slide brought my heart into my mouth."

The breathless eavesdropper felt a hot wave of delight pour over her, her very flesh seemed to ripple like the fur of a cat when it is stroked.

"Oh, she's a picture, mounted! Seems to have complete confidence in herself; and the strength of a giantess, too. But—my God! when she's on her feet! And have you heard her talk?" Evidently the other speaker had, for there came the sound of low laughter, a sound that stabbed Allie Briskow like a bayonet and left her white and furious.

She was unusually silent and somber for the next three or four days; she went through her exercises without vim; at her studies she was both stupid and sullen. When Mrs. Ring's patience was exhausted and her frayed nerves finally gave out, Allie rounded upon her with a violence unparalleled.

In a panic Mrs. Ring sought out Gus Briskow and again resigned. By this time, however, the novelty of her resignation had largely worn off, for seldom did more than two weeks elapse without a hysterical threat to quit. Gus decided, after some consideration, to wire Calvin Gray and offer to pay his traveling expenses if he would come to Burlington Notch for a few days.

CHAPTER XIV

Allie Shows Her Teeth

ONE accomplishment that Allegheny mastered with gratifying ease was dancing. It came naturally to her, for both she and Buddy were full of music.

Having schooled her in the simpler forms of ballroom dancing, Delamater suggested a course in the deeper intricacies of fancy dancing.

"You're getting on," he told her, one day. "That last was splendid—top hole—absolutely."

It was on that afternoon that Delamater had told the clerk of discovering Ma Briskow alone in the woods.

A MAN WAS BEING THRUST FORTH FROM ONE OF THE HOTEL WINDOWS.

There was an open golf tournament at the Notch, prominent amateurs and professionals were competing, and the hotel was crowded to its capacity with players, fashionable followers of the game and a small army of society reporters and sport writers.

Delamater was especially agreeable today, more than usually flattering. Not for some time did his scholar become conscious of the subtle change in his demeanor.

They had become well acquainted by now and were on a basis of easy familiarity, nevertheless it came as a shock to Allie to be called by her first name—such a shock that she missed a step and trod on Delamater's foot. They came to a pause.

The dancing master was tall and slim, his face was on a level with hers, and now he smiled into it, saying, "My mistake, my dear."

"I—reckon it was." The girl's eyes were glowing queerly, and the man was amused at her evident agitation. Her first word had thrown the poor thing into a flurry.

They began to dance again, and, after a moment, with a gently rising inflection, Delamater murmured, "You heard what I called you?" He approved of the sachet that Allie used, and he became acutely conscious of the jewels resting in the palm of his left hand. "You don't care?" he said, with his lips close to her ear.

"Humph! I'm not caring for anything or anybody today."

It is the lot of any man in the heat of his desire to make mistakes, and Delamater erred gravely at this moment. He kissed Allie. Without warning he kissed her full and fair upon her red, half-open lips.

For the briefest instant of amazement the two stood motionless in the middle of the polished floor while the phonograph brayed on; then Allie shook herself free of her partner, and in the same movement she smote him a mighty slap that sent him reeling.

With a cry he scrambled to his feet. "What the hell—I" he growled, savagely.

Allie's face was chalky. Breathlessly, curiously, she inquired, "What'd you do that for?"

"What did I do it for? Say! You ought to be complimented—tickled to death." Delamater rubbed his cheek and glared at her. "By God! I wish you were a man. Oh, don't worry, I won't touch you again! Who the hell would, after that?" Allie opened her lips to speak, but he ran on more angrily as the pain bit into him. "Thought I meant it, eh? Why, you lumbering ox—"

"Then you ain't—in love with me or—or anything?"

"Love!" The speaker uttered an unpleasant sound indicative of scorn. "Wake up, sister! What d'you take me for? Why, your mother talks bird talk, and your dad lives in a box stall and eats oats with his knife! Here I kid you along a little bit—slip you a kiss, as I would any girl, and you—you—" Delamater stuttered impotently. "Love? I guess I'm the first regular fellow that ever gave you a chance."

Delamater was surprised when his pupil turned her back upon him, strode to the nearest window, and flung it open as if for air; his surprise deepened when she faced him again and moved in his direction. Her expression caused him to utter a profane warning, but she continued to bear down upon him, and when she reached out to seize him he struck at her as he would have struck at a man.

To those who are familiar with Burlington Notch, it will be remembered that the hotel is pitched upon a slope and that the rooms on the first floor of the east wing are raised a considerable distance above the lawn. The windows of these east rooms overlook the eighteenth green, and during tournaments they are favorite vantage points of golf widows and enthusiasts who are too old to follow the competitors around the course. Today they were filled, for an international title was at issue and Herring, prince of amateurs, was playing off the final round of his match with the dour Scotch professional, McLeod.

A highly enthusiastic "gallery" accompanied the pair, a crowd composed not only of spectators, but also of officials, defeated players, newspaper writers, camera men, caddies, and the like.

Out of the air overhead came the sound of a disturbance, and every face turned. A most amazing thing was in the way of happening, a phenomenon unique in the history of tournaments, for a man was being thrust forth from one of the hotel windows, perhaps twenty-five feet above the ground—a writhing, struggling, kicking man with fawn-colored spats. He was being ejected painlessly but firmly, and by a girl —a grim-faced young woman of splendid proportions. For a moment she allowed him to dangle; then she dropped him into a handsome Dorothy Perkins rosebush. He landed with a shriek. Briefly the amazon remained framed in the casement, staring with dark defiance down into the upturned faces; her deep bosom was heaving, her smoky hair was slightly disarranged; she allowed her eyes to rest upon the figure entangled among the thorns beneath her, then she closed the window.

Mrs. Ring was waiting on the veranda for Gus Briskow when he returned to the hotel about dark. He had learned to dread the sight of her on that veranda, for it was her favorite resigning place—what Gus called her "quitting spot," and it was evident tonight that she was in a quitting mood, a mood more hysterical than ever before. It was some time before he could get at the facts, and even then he could not fully appreciate the enormity of the disgrace that had overwhelmed Allie's instructress.

BASEBALL COMMENT

The first section of the Big Four race is due to wind up a week from today and yet the struggle is so tight that any one of the four outfits has still a chance to win. Saturday's game left Belleville and the Petes tied for the leadership with five wins and four losses while Cobourg and Kingston are also on even terms one game behind the leaders.

The Petes have three fixtures left to play in the first half, one in Belleville on Wednesday and home battles with Belleville here Saturday and Cobourg on July 2, the latter being a postponed game. By winning all three games the Solomon crew could not be headed off from the first half championship and if they win two out of three they would be sure of a tie for first place.

The standing today is as follows:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Peterboro	5	4	.556
Belleville	5	4	.556
Cobourg	4	5	.444
Kingston	4	5	.444

Cobourg play in Kingston on Wednesday with the return game in Cobourg on Saturday.

The mighty Batstone could not hit the ball out of the infield Saturday. He fanned twice and had the only error of the game.

The grandstand managers do not appreciate the bunting form of attack, even while its success is being demonstrated before their eyes.

Saturday's victory was the fifth time the Petes have beaten Gallagher in the last two seasons out of seven starts.

Punch Derry after three losses in a row succeeded in breaking into the win column Saturday by beating Belleville. Incidentally Jack Oulette dropped his third game of the season, the Lindsay right-hander's record being the same as Derry's, one win in four starts.

Heckman's strikeout victims were Daley three times, Batstone and Cherry twice, Twigg, Evans, Rice

PACKERS DOWNED BY THE BANKERS

Cairns Allowed One Hit and Fanned Eleven in Five Innings of Play.

The Bankers took undisputed possession of second place in the Mercantile League race by defeating the C.P.C. nine by a score of 5 to 0 in a game played at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon immediately after the Central League fixture. The defeat sends the Packers into a tie with the Examiner and Westclox for the cellar position.

Cairns was sent to the mound for the Money Changers and proved to be a dark horse of no uncertain calibre. The game went but five innings but in that time he fanned eleven of his opponents including eight in a row, and allowed but one hit. Larmar went the whole way for the Packers but got into difficulties in the final frame when four runs were scored.

The players were:

C.P.R. Footballers Represent Quebec.

MONTREAL, June 25.— (Canadian Press.)—Canadian Pacific Railway football team qualified to enter the inter-provincial finals for the Connaught Cup, emblematic of the soccer championship of Canada, when they defeated Grenadier Guards here Saturday afternoon by a score of 1 to 0. C.P.R. established a record, as this is the third time on which the railway team has entered the inter-provincial finals.

Under a tentative scheme submitted by the Dominion Football Association authorities in Winnipeg, C. P.R. will meet the Ontario representatives in Montreal July 21 and in Toronto on July 28. The winners of this series will play the representatives of New Ontario at Fort William to decide the championship of the east. The eastern and western representatives would then meet in the big final at Winnipeg, August 4. There is a possibility, however, that for financial reasons the finals may be played in the east.

Caddie Killed When Struck By Lightning.

PITTSBURGH, June 25 (Canadian Press).—John Pearcik, a caddie at Castle Shannon Golf Links, was instantly killed during an electrical storm on Saturday. The boy, with a bag of clubs over his shoulder, was struck on the head while crossing the course. His skull was fractured.

Four men in the vicinity were knocked down but escaped injury.

ST. LOUIS, June 25 (Canadian Press). — Fred Toney voluntarily left the game in the second inning of Saturday's Chicago-St. Louis contest, and announced he was quitting baseball. He said his action was due to unjust jeering of spectators when he remanded Shortstop Toporcer for not following his signal to play close to third base while Heathcote was at bat.

GREAT PITCHERS' DUEL ENDS IN 1-0 VICTORY PETES OVER PONIES

Heckman, Back in Form, Holds Kingston Scoreless and Is Given Flawless Support By Team Mates.

BEST GAME OF SEASON

A passed ball by Catcher Rice of Kingston after the Petes had filled the bases in their half of the fourth enabled Manager Solomon's crew to nose out the Kingston Ponies by 1 run to 0 in Saturday's Big Four fixture at Riverside Park after the closest and best played game of the season. The lapse on the part of the Kingston backstop decided a brilliant pitchers' duel between Al Heckman and Ted Gallagher the Ponies' veteran left-hander that was as clever an exhibition of twirling on both sides as has been seen on the local lot in many a moon.

The Petes' right-hander who troubled with is arm for two weeks previous to Saturday's battle showed that the whip was thoroughly back in shape by turning loose a brand of smoke that had the hard hitting visitors baffled completely. Only in three out of the nine frames did he have to pitch to more than three batters and the Ponies were held to six hits while only one of the visitors got as far as third base. In but two frames, the first when Kingston had men on first and second with only one out, and the fifth when enemy runners were on second and third with one out and had the bases full with two down was Heckman in any danger and he pitched himself out of the tight corner in both instances in clever style. He had twelve strike outs to his credit, getting every visiting batter at least once except Somerville.

Because of Gallagher's great performance against the Petes in Kingston on Wednesday, Batstone called upon the left-hander to go right back at the Solomon outfit and his judgment was sound for the big southpaw turned in a game that was almost a replica of his mid-week feat. Although he was in trouble more often than Heckman, the Petes having the bases loaded twice with only one out he was air-tight in the pinches and would not have been scored upon had not Rice let a low toss get away from him, permitting the only marker of the game to be hung up.

The effectiveness of both pitchers is shown by the fact that only nine of the Petes and seven of the visitors reached first base and out of the sixteen visits to the paths only one unearned run eventuated.

Behind this superb pitching both teams played an almost perfect defensive game. The Petes went through the engagement without anything that looked like an error and the only boot registered against the visitors was Batstone's fumble of a sacrifice bunt. With this one exception both infields were airtight while Collins and Legon in the Petes outfield and Nicholson and Cherry of the visitors' outer patrol all had sparkling catches to their credit. The palm went to Cherry whose sensational capture of Comolli's mighty smash in the second inning cut the Petes' first baseman out of a triple and the homesters out of a run. Cherry turned with the crack of the bat and running far out and towards centre speared the drive on the run. He went down in a heap but came up holding tightly to the ball.

Knowing that the Petes had been unable to hit Gallagher with any success at all in Wednesday's game Manager Solomon switched his tactics after the first couple of innings Saturday and fell back to his favorite strategy, the bunting game. The change turned the trick for after Swanston had opened the fourth with a single it was successful bunts by Comolli and Wolfe that placed the Petes in a position to score the only run when Rice gummed the works for Gallagher by letting a pitched ball slide over his glove. Again in the sixth a perfect bunt by Wolfe enabled the homesters to fill the bases only to have Gallagher pitch himself out cleverly.

An incident occurred in the seventh that calls for an explanation. Evans the Kingston shortstop who has a bad leg singled with one out for a runner. Following the usual custom, Manager Solomon went over to the Kingston bench and selected Moore one of the Ponies' twirling staff to take Evans' place on the paths. The visitors, however, refused to accept the choice of the Petes' pilot and allowed Evans to do his own running, leaving the impression that their request for a substitute had been refused. As it turned out no runner was needed for Evans stood at first and watched Heckman fan the next two batters.

The Ponies got two hits in the first but could not score. Nicholson got a handle single on the first ball pitched, dropping a Texas Leaguer over short. Daley fanned. Twigg cut a single past Helson, but Heckman struck out Batstone and Somerville forced Twigg at second, Ansaldo to Johnston.

The Petes went out in order, Ansaldo on strikes, Johnston on a fly ball to Daley in right and Swanston being tossed out by Batstone.

In Kingston's second, Cherry and Evans whiffed and Rice rolled to Johnston.

The Petes lost a good chance. After Cherry had robbed Comolli of a triple by a circus catch in deep left Heckman singled to right. Wolfe struck out but Helson beat out a tap towards third. Legon grounded to Batstone and Heckman was forced at the difficult corner.

Gallagher started Kingston's third frame by hoisting one to Ansaldo. Nicholson and Daley missed three.

For the homesters, Collins rolled to Twigg, Gallagher camped under Ansaldo's fly and Johnston was thrown out at first by Daley on an apparent clean hit to right.

The Ponies did no better in the fourth. Twigg struck out. Batstone's drive was handled nicely by Johnston and Collins made a pretty running catch of Somerville's smash to right.

The Petes won the game in their half. Swanston started the excitement by a single over second. He was hurt sliding into first and Lowe ran for him. Comolli bunted for a sacrifice but Batstone fumbled and both runners were safe. Heckman fanned. Wolfe beat out a bunt filling the bases. With Helson up a passed ball scored Lowe with the only counter of the game. It was a costly mishap for Kingston as both Helson and Legon struck out afterward.

Kingston made a big effort to get the marker back in the fifth and nearly succeeded Cherry opened the inning with a clean single to centre and moved to second on Evans' sacrifice. Rice singled to centre, Wolfe's throw home kept Cherry at third but Rice raced to second the heave to the plate. Gallagher flied out to Legon in short left, Cherry holding third. Nicholson walked filling the bases. It was up to Daley but Heckman worked on the right fielder and struck him out to retire the side.

For the home crew Collins boomed a high one to Cherry in left, Ansaldo rolled to Evans and Johnston's bounder to Gallagher extinguished him at first.

Twigg tried to bunt opening the sixth session for the Ponies and Swanston made a fast play to snare the foul fly that resulted. Batstone struck out for the second time in a row. Somerville doubled to centre, Wolfe misjudging the drive but the batter tried to stretch it into a triple and was nipped at third, Wolfe to Johnston to Helson.

The Petes had another good chance in their half but the necessary hit was not forthcoming. Swanston opened the proceedings by singling to right, Comolli bunted and Gallagher's swift peg to Twigg nailed Swanston at second. Heckman ripped a single over third. Wolfe swung a bunt past Gallagher, catching the big pitcher flat footed and the bases were loaded. Helson's best was a fly to Daley, too close in for an attempt to soccer after the catch and Legon hoisted to Somerville.

Cherry first up for Kingston in the seventh struck out. Evans singled over second but Rice and Gallagher both fanned

In the local end of the inning Collins flied to Nicholson, a nice catch in right centre, Ansaldo was tossed out by Gallagher and Johnston's liner to left centre was gathered in by Nicholson.

Nicholson started Kingston's eighth by cracking a long fly to deep left on which Legon made a pretty catch. Daley hoisted on to Ansaldo and Twigg rolled to Comolli for the third out.

For the Petes Swanston flied out to Cherry, Comolli walked. Heckman fouled out to Somerville and Wolfe died on strikes.

Kingston expired in order in the final frame. Batston's high foul was taken by Comolli, Somerville was thrown out by Ansaldo and Johnston went back of second and gathered in Cherry's lofty fly to wind up the struggle.

Football

On Tuesday evening, the Vets and Quakers will play a league game at the Oval. Kick off at 6.15

Richmond, the Scots centre forward had the hat trick Saturday afternoon and now is leading the league as goal-scorer.

The Vets got their first defeat on Saturday afternoon. The Thistles have not lost a league game yet, but have had a good few draws.

A meeting of the P. and D.F.A. will be held on Monday evening in the Chamber of Commerce at 8 o'clock.

WAR VETS MET FIRST DEFEAT

Thistles Won League Fixture at the Oval on Saturday Afternoon By a Score of 4 to 0.

The War Veterans met their first defeat on the football field this season when they went down before the Thistles Saturday afternoon by a score of 4 to 0. While both teams played good football the Vets were weakened by the loss of some of their regular players and the Scots were able to pile up a lead of three goals in the first period. Another was added in the second half.

Florets won the toss and decided to take advantage of the sun on their backs. Both teams were at full strength which resulted in beautiful football. The Scots were most aggressive in the opening stages, with Hutton and Williams playing nice combination, Williams tricked Crowe in front of the goal and lifted the ball into the far corner, out of Griffin's reach. The Vets came back in great style to worry Hardie and Ralston, who responded to the occasion. The Vets left wing was dangerous and made nice crosses in front of goal. Ralston punted up the field in front of the Vets' goal. Richmond trapped the ball and shot hard but Peel blocked. The ball landed back to the Thistles' centre forward, who drove along the ground to beat Griffine all the way. Midfield play was now indulged in. At this point Sharman retired with his nose bleeding but returned shortly after. Raid after raid was made on the respective goals with the forwards playing a splendid game. Wade centre forward, beat the Scots' defence and Stott ran out of the goal to compel him to miss by inches. At the other end Hutton crossed to Richmond, who brought the Vets' goalie to his knees to save a ground shot. A foul against Stott caused great excitement in the Scots' area but Burrows shot high over the bar. A solo run by Burgess left Burrows and Crowe standing and the Scots left winger centred to Richmond. Peel tackled him but he gained the ball and increased the score just before half time. Thistles 3; G.W.V.A., 0.

The second half opened up at a fast pace. Thistles were first to test Griffine who clearly nicely. Quick as a flash the Vets' forwards worked combination into the Scots' defence. Ralston mis-kicked and the Vets inside left man tackled and gained possession. Stott jumped up for the ball and sent it back to the Vets' player who lifted the ball across to the far post to be cleared by McMillan. Nice playing by McMillan let Richmond go to an empty goal, but his final shot went up in the air. The Vets' outside right was making splendid openings but there was nobody there to accept the chances. Scots tested Griffin twice within the next few minutes. The Vets' goalie picked up a beautiful shot from the foot of Williams. Jack Peel was tackling and clearing many dangerous raid from the Scots' forwards. Again Shewan crossed for Richmond to lift the ball into Griffine's hands. Williams with an open goal lifted over the bar and a great one-handed save save by Griffine gave a fruitless corner. Erratic shooting by the Scots' forwards spoiled many good plays. A few minutes before the final Hutton bewildered the defence, slipped the ball to the centre, who made it four clear goals.

SPORT NEWS, COBOURG

COBOURG, June 25.—One of the best games in the Town of Cobourg Baseball League was played at Victoria Park here between the Matting-Felt Factory team and the Cobourg Dying Company. It resolved itself into a battle between the pitchers and up to the 7th inning was a neck and neck stretch. Piper and Jones pitched for the Matting-Felt and Campbell and Campbell for the Dyeing Company. Neither team scored until the 7th inning and it began to look as if was a scoreless game. Ed Campbell and Douglas Piper put up an exciting pitchers' battle with about even honors. The score by innings follows:

Dyeing Company	000 000 4
Matting-Felt	000 000 1

St. Andrews Game.

The local baseball executive has arranged with the St. Andrew's baseball team of Toronto to play an exhibition game here on July 4. A treat for local fans is promised.

Won From Harwood.

The Matting-Felt factory ball team, one of the most active aggregations of the Cobourg Town Baseball League, with Mr. W. E. Barrett as manager, went out to Harwood for an exhibition game on Saturday and defeated the Harwood nine, securing the long end of a 11-1 score.

New Golf Champ. For Province of Quebec.

MONTREAL, June 25.— (Canadian Press.)—A new provincial amateur golf champion reigns in Quebec to-day as a result of the Quebec tournament Saturday, when Redvers Mackenzie country club, Montreal, turned in the low score for the thirty-six holes played. He did the 2 rounds of eighteen holes each in 80 and 75, giving him a total of 155 par for the course in 72. Mr. Mackenzie is a young player and is a golf writer on a local paper. He has been steadily approaching the seats of the mighty for two years. Last year he was leading amateur in the Canadian open championship. Friday he tied for leading place among the amateurs in the Quebec open championship. Mr. Mackenzie's morning round was a decidedly shaky performance, but in the afternoon he straightened away and played steadily with the exception of one hole, the twelfth, when he took a six. Par is four. This weakness was soon checked and from then on he was the master of his clubs.

LEASIDE WON IN AN EXTRA INNING

Dainty Was on the Mound For Oshawa in Central League Fixture at Oshawa.

OSHAWA, June 25.—(Special)—Oshawa split even in the double baseball bill here Saturday afternoon. In the Durham and Ontario League Game, Oshawa Motors won from Jack Gunns' express gang of Bowmanville, by ten to four. The local crew bunching their runs when they chased four over in the first and six in the third. Murray on the slab kept Bowmanville's hits well scattered and with good support behind him moved up into second place in the standing.

The Central Ontario League fixture went to Leaside by five to four in ten innings. Dainty who received his card this week made his first start and for six frames he blanked the Toronto Suburbanites, but in the seventh Manager Henderson changed tactics and with a bunting game, Murray the first man up bunted and was safe Lennon came through with the same stuff and both advanced on a passed ball. Hamilton hopped to first, Jones hit scoring Murray. Hoose came through with a good one for three bases and chased two in, and then Hoose scored on a squeeze play tying up the score. The winning man was put over in the tenth, when Mahoney worked Dainty for a walk and scored on a wallop by Curzon.

The largest crowd of the season was out to see the struggle, no doubt Dainty getting his card had much to do with same.

COBOURG TOO MUCH FOR BELLEVILLE

Winners Piled Up a Big Lead in the Early Innings and Won By 7 to 4.

COBOURG June 25.—(Special to the Examiner)—In a game in which there was lots of hitting and brilliant fielding here Saturday Cobourg defeated Belleville 7 to 4. Both Derry for Cobourg and Oulette for Belleville were hit hard but Derry was much the best in the pinches. The Belleville team was without the services of the Mills brothers, Brownscombe catching the first innings and Hagerman after that. Peeney Mills will be out for a month at least.

Cobourg scored two in the first on Turpins hit, a walk and J. Kenney's hit to centre. Three more came in the second, Jackson's infield fly fell safe, Derry's bunt, Thompson's grounder to third and Meagher's error on K. Kenny's grounder. Turpin's hit to short, Thompson's double to centre and Skitch's drive to centre scored Cobourg's last two in the fourth.

Belleville got one one in the first on Ross's hit, Weir's sacrifice, Brownscombe's hit and Meagher's bunt. One in the third on Ross' triple and Weir's double. Two in the seventh on Geroux's hit through third, Oulette's sacrifice, a fielder's choice and Weir's double. Oulette fanned nine and Derry seven. Oulette walked 3 and Derry none.

Three fast double plays by the Cobourg team, Skitch and T. Kenney figuring in all three, while Drennan shone at short with a circus catch off Hagerman's bat in the fourth.

PROTECT THE POOR IS THE BERLIN PLAN

Anti-Profiteering Laws Do Not Worry About the Newly Rich — Fix Meat Profits Every Day.

By CARL D. GROAT

BERLIN, June 25 (United Press).—Germany's anti-profiteering law and its army of enforcement are concerned chiefly with shielding the man with the overalls and his frau. It doesn't work much about the bloated newly-rich, living luxuriously on Kurfuerstendamm.

"We aim to protect the workingman and his family," said Regierungsrat Hinkel to the United Press. "I don't worry so much about the bejewelled woman who sends her cook down to the market to buy early strawberries at a few thousand marks a piece. I'm more concerned with seeing that profiteering dealers don't try to charge the millworker's frau a few hundred marks extra for her scanty piece of meat which she can afford to have only once a week or once every two weeks."

The Wucher police—profiteer police—center much of their attention on the morning before the slaughtering starts, a special board deliberates as to the percentage of profit which may legally be charged. The police watchers then ascertain whether the day's regulations are being followed. If not, the dealer gets a very heavy fine—or in some of the more flagrant cases, a prison sentence.

"We have found it very effective, sometimes, to give a jail term. For instance, coal dealers sometimes tell their customers they have no more coal. These men are simply waiting for the government to make one of its periodic increases in the official coal price, since thereafter they can sell old coal as well as new at the higher rate. With these men, we apply the law which takes away for a period of three months their selling licenses. That makes a dealer watch his step."

The profiteering police have regulations intended to limit the number of traders. Each trader must have a license to do either wholesale or retail business, as the case may be. One old woman at the open-air market ran foul of the wholesale license law because she sold, unknowingly, to a retailer thirty eggs. The court held that nobody nowadays could afford to buy so many eggs all at once, hence she should have known she was doing business with a retailer. She got only a nominal fine, as her business associates said she was always an honest trader.

DECORATION DAY

Arrangements have been completed to hold the annual decoration day Sundays for the G.W.V.A. on July 8, when the veterans will decorate the graves of their comrades, in Little Lake Cemetery, and on July 15, when they will visit St. Peter's Cemetery. Through the columns of the Examiner all returned soldiers, regardless of creed or religion affiliation are urged to turn out for both occasions to do honour to those who fought by their sides. Uniforms and medals should be worn. The men will march in a body to the cemeteries from the G. W. V. A. Hall, where they will fall in at 10.30.

GRANTS FEATURED THE LAST SESSION

United Counties of Northumberland and Durham Vote $300 For the Blind.

COBOURG, June 25.—At the closing session of the Counties Council of Northumberland and Durham, the report of the finance committee went through committee of the whole without change. The county rate, as stated yesterday, will be eight mills, one mill less than last year.

A grant of $200 was made to the Cobourg hospital and $300 to the Institute for the Blind.

The committee complemented Col. N. F. MacNachtan, clerk-treasurer of the united counties, for the able manner in which he is handling the many financial problems which arise.

Maintenance of Schools

The following grants, based on the attendance for the past three years were made to High and Continuation schools: Brighton High School, $4,189.98, Trenton High School, $2,348.12; Millbrook Continuation School, $2,489.11; Warkworth Continuation School, $2,442.05; Franksford Continuation School, $1,274.12; Norwood High School, $941.89. Reports from the other High and Continuations schools in the two counties were sent back for correction.

Warkworth Fair Leads

The big end of the increase of $500 made to the Fair boards will go to Warkworth. The grant is distributed according to the amount offered in prizes last year and Warksworth in this regard holds the lead for the two counties. Of the $1,000 grant allowed up to this year Warksworth got $177, so that the board's share of the increase will be over $80.

Dinner Called Off

The session came to a close at 12.30 Friday. So many of the members were anxious to return home that the dinner which Warden Smith proposed to tender his colleagues Friday night, in the new Durham House, was called off.

LOCAL MASONS

tinued Grand Master Ponton, that June also ushers in the birthday of the King—God bless him—to whom all Masons are loyal; and on this St. John's birthday he could not conceive of a more fitting place for British Masons to meet in one loyal mind and accord than in St. John's Church of England.

Precepts of Masonry.

Turning to the tenets and precepts of Free Masonry, he adjured his hearers to practice moral and social virtue and inculcate such Masonic characteristics as brotherly love, relief and truth in Biblical authority for which he cited from the Scriptures the command to "do justice, love mercy and humbly walk with thy God." A Mason's duty, he urged, is to honor all men, love the brotherhood, fear the Lord and honor the King; in fact, love and truth are the fundamental principles of Masonry.

Character Preferred.

Declaring that a true Mason loves both God and man, whatsoever things are lovely and whatsoever is of good report, he held that character is much preferable to reputation—a character erected on honesty, wisdom, strength and purity. Speaking of the need for absolute and impartial justice, he asserted that we cannot have perfect peace and equitable liberty unless justice is practiced in the real sense of the word. These days, he regretted, some people take too much liberty with liberty, and the nation should see that wise laws are strictly enforced with equal justice to all in the land. The 99,300 Masons in Ontario, he declared, should let our public men understand that we stand for something higher than ordinary materialism: we are defenders of the faith and of our liberties; the definition of a Mason is like that of a gentleman—one who puts in a little more than he takes out; and that we aim to do justly by our fellow-man by ourselves and by our families.

But, best of all, the Grand Master concluded, let Masons honor all men, for there is more love than vinegar in the veins of the average man.

MOTHERS' CLUB AT PARK.

The Mothers' Club and the Cradle Roll of George Street Methodist Church held their final meeting for the summer, as is their custom, at Inverlea Park, on Thursday afternoon last.

There was a good attendance of mothers and children, and an interesting meeting, when Mrs. E. E. Harvey gave an instructive address on Cradle Roll work. Supper was enjoyed under the trees of the park.

BRITISH LABOUR LOSING STRENGTH

Loss of More Than a Million Members in 1922.

LONDON, June 25. — (United Press.)—The loss of more than one million members by the British Labor party in 1922 reflects increasingly worse economic conditions during the year. It does not, however, mean a lessening of the political influence of the party. Membership figures are based almost entirely on the trade unions which were formerly affiliated with the Labor party and paid dues into its coffers.

Owing to unemployment and the inability to pay dues, members have dropped out of these unions. There is, therefore, an automatic decrease in the number of members of the Labor party.

Thousands of persons, however, who do not officially belong to the party either because they do not belong to unions or do not desire to pay party dues, but those of their own pickets, vote for the Labor candidates. This was shown in the last general election, when the Labor party polled 4,102,425 votes.

FRENCH SENTRY SHOT AND KILLED 2 OFFICERS

BERLIN, June 25.— (United Press)—A French sentry at Herne shot and killed two of his superior officers who failed to halt when he challenged them, according to reports to Berlin to-day.

French troops are reported to have arrived at Keopoldshafen and to be preparing quarters there.

PROPAGANDA WAR IS TO RAGE IN IRELAND

Republicans Lay Down Arms, But Keep Their Mimeographing Machines—Irish Tired of War

By CHARLES M. McCANN

DUBLIN, June 25 (United Press).—An arm-chair revolution is to follow the civil war in Ireland—provided that American Irishmen furnish the arm-chair.

Eamon de Velara, "president of the Irish Republic," and his following—largely boys, women and girls—are down, but not out.

They are expected to carry on the revolution from Dublin offices, under the protection of Free State policemen, from funds furnished by the remainder of those Irish-Americans who financed both the war that won the Free State constitution and the rebellion that followed.

Though the Republicans have surrendered to the extent of ordering an unconditional laying down of arms, they have not laid down the prolific mimeographing machine. The rebel "Daily Bulletin," optimistically headed "Eighth Year of the Republic," still reaches newspaper offices, both in Ireland and England, nightly.

Simultaneously with the order to quit fighting and lay down arms, de Valera issued a proclamation in which he said that "other means must be sought to safeguard the nation's right." He added:

Need a Rest

"Seven years of intense effort have exhausted our people. Their sacrifices and their sorrows have been many. If they have turned aside and have not given you the active support which alone could bring you victory in this last year, it is because they saw overwhelming forces against them, and they are weary and need a rest.

"A little time and you will see them recover and rally again to the standard. They will then quickly discover who have been selfless and who selfish—who have spoken truth and who falsehood.

"When they are ready, you will be, and your place will be again as of old with the vanguard."

The "other means" than fighting which de Valera mentioned will be propaganda intended to lead the Irish people up to "Rallying again to the standard."

There is little belief here that the "rally" will be soon. It is impossible to escape the impression that the Irish people, not a faction or a portion but the people as a whole, are fed up with war of any sort.

The Terror by Night

During the last seven years, there has hardly been a time when an Irishman could be sure that during the night he would not be wakened and told that he would be arrested, murdered, or that his house was to be burned. That applied to everyone, those in politics or engaged in fighting, or the many ordinary citizens taking a purely sentimental interest in proceedings. Any one of them might be mistaken for the intended victim. There was one case during the Anglo-Irish war in which two men were shot in their beds by mistake for a third one of the same name, who never was caught.

Now the disorders in Ireland are those of ordinary murderers or robbers, masquerading as "patriots."

No one here, except boys, girls, women and the few remaining active Republican men, wants anything but quiet.

Free State Efficient

The Free State government is surprising its critics, and perhaps its friends, by its efficiency. There is to be an election in the autumn, sometime between September and November. It will be the first real election the country has ever had. And when it is over, they hope that they can begin rebuilding what has been destroyed.

They expect the Republicans to carry on their fight—from armchairs—and will go on Sunday afternoons to listen to their speeches. Anyone who thinks he knows the Irish temperament can speculate as to when the next "rallying to the standard" will be.

HUNGARY AWAITS HER BOY RULER

People Are Determined That Ten-Year-Old Otta Shall Be King.

By WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS

BUDAPEST, June 25.—A little 10-year-old boy is waiting over in Spain to be king of Hungary.

Here, on the Buda side of the Danube, triple-locked in a chrome steel vault and guarded night and day by stalwart Magyar soldiers, is the thousand-year-old crown of St. Stephen, in keeping against the day when the little boy—or shall it be another?—will come to claim it.

The little boy is Otto, a Hapsburg of the ill-fated Austrian line, son of the unfortunate late King Charles who died in exile after an unsuccessful attempt to remount his throne.

His mother is Queen Zita, ambitious and clever.

Here in Hungary the people are patiently waiting to have a king. It is not a question of will they have a king but of when they may have one for have one they will.

The failure of Charles to win back to Budapest from his exile in Switzerland, was not due to his not being wanted. It was merely that his return at this time was not opportune. The government here knew that with a Hapsburg king back on the throne, trouble would descend upon already sorely beset Hungary in a flood.

Crown Is Ruler

It is claimed here that Hungary's neighbors had already mobilized on the frontier, ready to invade the country if Charles' coup succeeded.

Hungary is not thinking of electing a king just now. She is trying to keep body and soul together. So, having declared herself a constitutional monarchy, and installed a regent to "protect" the kingdom until they can name a king in peace, the people are just waiting.

Meantime the Crown of St. Stephen is the real ruler in Hungary. It is more than an ordinary crown to the Hungarians. It was handed down from the first king of Hungary a thousand years ago, from St. Stephen, the apostolic, so crowned by the Pope of Rome.

Whoever wears the crown is regarded by many as the real and lawful ruler of Hungary, just because he has worn the crown. He may not deserve it. He may not be the people's choice. But the magical crown has rested on his head. So the proper ruler of the Hungarians he must be.

King Charles once wore the crown of St. Stephen. He was a Hapsburg and the Hapsburgs for centuries oppressed the Magyars and persecuted them. During all this time the princes of Transylvania, stronghold of the Hungarians, were their leaders and defenders.

So Otto, the blue-eyed golden-haired boy of 10, is today regarded as the legitimate successor to the crown of St. Stephen because his father, Charles, once wore it.

Palace Awaits King

A retainer of King Charles showed me through the magnificent royal palace on the hill dominating Buda and the Danube. Bunch of jangling keys in hand, the old man opened door after door leading into shuttered and silent salons where 1500 guests might dance without crowding, into darkened halls of ambassadors, the throne room, the apartments of Empress Elizabeth and Emperor Franz-Josef; into secret vast expanses of exquisite waxed marquetried floors and under-chandeliers of burnished gold and silver, and domes lofty as a cathedral's. Suddenly he paused before a life-size painting of a little boy in national Hungarian costume, resting on the floor and leaning against the wall. We were in the "Hapsburg Room."

"Otto," said the old man. "He'l be king one day"

And we moved on.

King Is Certain

But it is not certain. To be eligible for king of Hungary, one must be 18 years old. Otto lacks eight years of that. Much can happen in eight years in a country like Hungary in a continent like Europe.

Some say Admiral Nicholas von Horthy, regent, would like to wear the crown of St. Stephen. If he would, he is behaving most tactfully about it, for he even refuses to occupy the vacant royal quarters, let alone appropriate the crown. Others say a Hungarian, one of the Transylvanian line, not a Hapsburg and not a mere admiral, should be elected.

Time and events, however, will bring a king to Hungary.

DEMPSEY WAS POOR PROSPECT WHEN HE FIRST ENTERED RING

NEW YORK, June 25 (Associated Press).—Jack Dempsey, world heavyweight boxing champion, who defends his title in a 15-round match with Tom Gibbons, of St. Paul at Shelby, Montana, July 4, was one of the most crude and unpromising fighters of his class when he made his New York bow in 1915 in a no-decision contest with John Lester Johnson, negro.

Then in his infancy as a fighter and under the managerial wing of John the Barber, Dempsey appeared a sorry prospect for the championship. Johnson, also in fighting babyhood, had just recovered from a knockout from Sam Langford. So they were evenly matched in size and skill and the bout went the limit of ten rounds.

Each claimed the unofficial decision. The negro's blows, however, were most effective, for a pair of Dempsey's ribs were damaged by body blows. Dempsey at that time proved to be a one-handed battler. His defence was poor and he swung his right instead of shooting it straight.

Among other engagements in his first New York visit Dempsey met Wild Bert Kenny, Andre Anderson and Dan Ketchell. Kenny and Anderson stayed the limit of ten rounds each but Kenny fell in the fifth round. Early in 1917, after a series of exploits by no means brilliant, Dempsey was knocked out in one round by Jim Flynn, the Pueblo Fireman. Various reports were circulated about that fight and later Dempsey redeemed himself by disposing of Flynn in less than a round.

While Dempsey's early performances were mediocre and suggestive of anything but future greatness, he developed into one of the greatest heavyweights in ring history. He severed relations with John the Barber and joined in a business deal with Jack Kearns, his present manager.

Dempsey then began to improve his hitting style. Previously he had punched only with his right, using the left solely for defense.

It was with staggering left hooks to the face that Dempsey sent Jess Willard to the floor in the first round of their championship engagement at Toledo, July 4, 1919. Willard went to the floor seven times in that round. It was a terrific left hook to the stomach that finished Fred Fulton, the Rochester, Minn., plasterer at Harrison, N. J., in the first round, and it was a left hook to the body that started Georges Carpentier to the floor in the great 1921 spectacle at Jersey City.

A left to face or body is Dempsey's most frequent blow, yet his right to jaw and ribs is unusually effective. He shoots straight to the mark. His blows well-timed, travel only a short distance, the tremendous power of the shoulders being employed in every launching.

GREAT LAKES SHIPPING BREAKS MAY RECORD

DULUTH, Minn., June 25 (Associated Press).—The Great Lakes shipping business, held to a late start due to the delayed opening of navigation, is booming. Vesselmen point to the total coal and iron ore tonnage handled during May as evidence of the increased shipping activity over last year.

The coal receipts for May, the first month of the 1923 navigation season, totaled approximately 1,600,000 tons. This is one of the largest monthly receipts total on record, marine men said.

The total ore tonnage shipped from the head of the lakes exclusive of Escanaba, Mich., was 5,741,791 tons. This is four times the tonnage handled during May, 1922.

The difference in the ore and coal tonnage for the opening month gives an idea of the percentage of boats travelling "light" from lower lake ports to the head of the lakes, according to vesselmen. One of the few months to pass the coal receipts mark set during May was October, 1922, when every available craft was pushed into service to bring 1,771k535 tons to the local docks.

AMERICAN RIGHT TO BREAK SEALS IS QUESTIONED

Viscount Curzon Will Ask What Action Government Contemplates Regarding Liquor Seizure

LONDON, June 25, United Press. —House of Commomas will ask the British government for a statement of its attitude on the seizure of liquor on the White Star and Cunard liners in New York, when Parliament reassembles this afternoon.

Viscount Curzon has a question ready for Premier Baldwin as to whether the Berengaria and the Olympic carried liquor in store rooms sealed with the governments approval and consent, and also whether the government will take cognizance of the breaking of His Majesty's seals.

Unsolved Mysteries

Acclaimed as the handsomest man in Europe, Ludwig of Bavaria ascended his throne at the age of 18 as one of the most popular of rulers Instead of militaristic tendencies, his aims were principally in the direction of the spread of music, painting and architecture. He it was who had offered the imperial crown to Wilhelm of Prussia and who had promised peace in place of the almost continual warfare which had devastated central Europe for generations past.

But Ludwig's reign had advanced only a short time before evidences of hereditary insanity began to make their appearance. At first these manifested themselves in the form of the most extravagant expenditures, huge sums being borrowed from Queen Isabella of Spain, the Khedive of Egypt and all other rulers who were willing to advance the money which Ludwig desired. With this the young King surrounded himself with luxuries that almost surpass description. His bed was made of solid gold and the apartment was cooled by an artificial waterfall. Outside the door to his private suite was a palm-tree, eight feet high, fashioned from silver, with a huge golden dragon crouching at its base. During the night the castle of Neuschwannstein, Ludwig's official residence, was lighted by 10-000 candles, kept burning at a nightly cost of more than $1,000.

But the chief mania of the King of Bavaria was that he was the reincarnation of Louis XIV. of France. On the anniversary of the birth of the Grand Monarque, Ludwig would dress in the costume of the French king and would insist on staging a "court dinner," to which no guests were invited, but all food was offered to him by servants who were forced to remain upon their knees. At other times he would conceal himself within the recesses of his private theater, in which operas and dramatic productions were given, with the King as the sole audience. Once he became quite mad on the subject of "Lohengrin," and sailed about the royal lake, costumed as that Wagnerian character and, upon the occasion of an official call by a number of members of the diplomatic corps, the King of Bavaria was found, with his crown over one ear, playing blind man's buff with a number of the stable boys.

Finally, early in 1886, the madness of the monarch had become so noticeable and was causing so much comment throughout Europe that his ministers came to the conclusion that it was necessary to depose him and place him in charge of Dr. Gudden, one of the court physicians. Castle Berg, on Starnberg Lake, was selected as the private retreat for His Majesty and there he was taken, with instructions to his attendants to humor his every whim.

On the evening of June 13, 1886, Ludwig's attendants were horrified to find the bodies of the King and Dr. Gudden floating in different parts of Starnberg Lake. Both of them were dead, but without any marks upon their bodies and the mystery surrounding the matter is one upon which no light has ever been thrown.

After supper, prizes were presenaed to winners in the contest. One of the pleasing features of the afternoon was the presentation by Mr. O. M. THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

When Henry Wadsworth Longfellow wrote a sentimental poem of eight stanzas called "The Village Blacksmith," he probably thought that he had said all there was to say about the smithy and the smith. But since then movies have been invented and Mr. Longfellow, if he is aware of what is going on to-day, must be spiritistically startled to realize that his little piece, like the chestnut tree, has a remarkable spreading capacity, for with certain additions and interpolations, it now covers some seven reels of film exposed in the Fox studio and exhibited at the Royal Theatre.

The picture tells the story of a morally and physically sturdy blacksmith, with two sons and a daughter, whose family is opposed in the plot to a mean-spirited village squire and his rascally son. Trials and tribulations are heaped upon the smithy and his family but they bear up bravely and in the end are triumphant.

Most of the story however is told in the second half of the film. The first part is in the main a series of illustrations fitting lines in the poem, and they have a genuine, simple quality that is pleasing. William Walling, as the smith, is upstanding and rugged, looking well at a forge, and the children used are spontaneously expressive, especially Gordon Griffith and Pat Moore as his sons. There are school room, swimming and other scenes which are natural and amusing.

In the latter half of the picture when the heavy melodrama comes in there isn't much to suggest Longfellow's poem but Mr. Walling, Virginia Valli, George Hackathorne, Tully Marshall, Caroline Rankin and several others make the scenes intense and interesting. And Mack Sennett's Eddie Gribbon is there as a village gossip and quite the most refreshing person present.

The picture was directed by Jack Ford from a scenario by Paul H Sloane.

FLOWER SUNDAY WAS A COLORFUL OCCASION

Flower Sunday at George street Methodist church yesterday was a very lovely and colorful occasion. About five hundred of the junior members of the Sunday School class es attended the morning service, bearing floral offerings which were used in the carrying out of a design, formed of two fans joined by an arch. The pulpit also was banked with the fragrant blooms. The church's main floor and galleries were filled with adult and child members of the congregation. The Sunday-school orchestra led in the singing of the hymns and the musical service and Kenneth McCannon sang in excellent voice the solo "The Children's Home." The entire service was presided over by the Sunday school superintendent, Mr. George Robertson

Rev. Mr. Young gave a story-book talk to the children at the morning service, and in the evening, when the congregation was again a large one, he spoke on Jesus' text; "Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow." Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park sang at the night service.

WEDDING BELLS

A quiet wedding was solemnized this morning at 7.30 at George street Methodist church, by Rev. W. Harold Young, when Vivian Avis, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Waram, was united in marriage to Mr. Harold Hamblin, of this city.

The bride was attended by her sister, Hazel, while Mr. W. K. McGee supported the bridegroom. The wedding march was played by Mr. J. H. Renwick, organist of the church.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Hamblin left for a short honeymoon in Rochester, Niagara Falls and other points.

WILLSHAW—HATCHER.

A very pretty wedding was solemnised at St. John's Church on Saturday afternoon, 23rd June, at three o'clock, by the Rev. Dr. Blagrave, when Mae Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Willshaw, of Detroit, and Walter Francis, son of Mr and Mrs James Hatcher, of Peterborough, were united in the holy bands of matrimony.

Th bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. Robert Willshaw, was charmingly attired in a gown of white satin, with an overdress of lace and sequin. She wore the conventional veil, with orange blossoms, and carried Ophelia roses. She also wore the groom's gift, a lovely rope of pearls.

Mrs. Harold Dodson, of Detroit, sister of the bride, acted as matron of honour, and Miss Jean Hatcher, of Peterborough, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid. Mrs. Dodson looked lovely in a lavender gown. She wore a wreath and carried white peonies. Miss Hatcher looked sweet in a gown of pink, with wreath, and carried pink peonies.

Little Celia Shier, of Oakville, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore white silk, and carried a basket of roses and carnations. The groom was assisted by his brother Mr Edgar Hatcher, of Peterborough.

After the ceremony the guests, numbering about fifty, repaired to the home of Mr. Robert Willshaw, Munro Avenue, where a buffet luncheon was served and an enjoyable time spent. The happy couple will reside in Detroit.

THREE INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Two Men Pinned Beneath the Wreckage—Five Occupants Escaped Hurt

HAMILTON, June 25 (Canadian Press). — Three men were badly injured this morning in front of the Provincial Quarry at Rockton, when the automobile of J. E. Seagram, of Waterloo, and an automobile driven by John Simpson, Superintendent of Roads for the Provincial Highway Department, collided.

Stanley Stockdale, chauffeur of the Seagram car, and Stanley Gould, both of Waterloo, were pinned under the wreckage when both cars turned over, but the five other occupants of the Seagram car were thrown clear of the wreckage, and were not hurt.

Stockdale suffered a broken collar bone, and Gould a bad shaking up.

BLAMES PLIGHT ON EVIL WRAITH.

Says Spirit From Other World Returns to Wreak Vengeance.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 25.—Would, or could, a spirit from the other world return to wreak its vengeance upon a human being?

Mrs. Helen M. Robertson McAlpine, convicted forger here, says they do.

She blames her present predicament on evil wraiths come back from beyond the grave.

"They forced me to write the checks They held my hand" she told the court. But the judge, not convinced, sentenced her to prison.

Now, preparing to serve out the long years, she continues in her denunciation of the evil spirits.

Spiritualism occupied a goodly part of the trial. It developed that Mrs. McAlpine, six years ago, wrote a volume of letters "dictated by a spirit." The handwriting, police say, is that of the same "ghost" that signed the spurious checks.

"Wraiths Chuckle"

In the letters, Mrs. McAlpine, then Mrs. Robertson, told how Elbert Hubbard had "arrived in almost perfect spirituality." She explained that unhappy spirits hung mournfully over their earthly graves while "initiated wraiths chuckled over their sorrow."

The letters, say theosophists, reveal an astounding knowledge of psychic pehnomena.

But back of the web of spiritism around which the forgery defense was made, lies a very material motive.

In court, Mrs. McAlpine revealed how she had forsaken her first husband who loved her, for another. The second man was a railroad laborer and did not earn a large wage.

"I wanted to buy things," she testified. "I couldn't quit spending. But my hand only held the pen. The invisible spirit, the unknown power, wrote the checks. The message from the spirit world said, 'write and all will be well.'"

Punish Both

Authorities arrested her mother-in-law at the same time they took Mrs. McAlpine into custody. Mrs. Catherine McAlpine, 56, pleaded with the court to be permitted to serve the younger woman's sentence.

"I am to blame for it all. Do not separate my daughter-in-law from her children."

But the court said no. Both must be punished.

And so the two, who blamed souls of dead people for their crimes, found they were living in an age when law takes into consideration the possible survival of the human personality.

Modern justivce deals only with flesh and blood. Cold testimony. Things that can be seen.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — | New York Stock Exchange — And Curb Prices —

To-Day's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, N.Y., June 25.—Unsettlement in the early dealings on the stock exchange to-day was probably traceable to the announcement over the week end of the failure of an inactive stock exchange house.

Steel Common dropped 3-4 to 93, while losses averaging a point took place in American Can, Studebaker and other industrial leaders. Rails also were heavy. Stocks continued under pressure in the first hour with the principal selling concentrated on the Motors. Chandler broke to a new low at 48 3-4 and Studebaker was within a fraction at distance of 1923 low at 103 5-8. Floor brokers reported that the offerings in the group were mostly for the accounts of traders. Professional sentiment has been bearish on the outlook for the Motor Industrial for some time and stocks of this class have been freely supplied on all rallies. American held its own despite the irregularity of the general list and the fact that the stock only pays a five dollar dividend, the general opinion is that either a stock or a cash dividend will be declared before the end of 1923. Continued unsettlement in the Motor group greeted further circulation in the general list towards noon. In addition to rumors of price cuts, Studebaker was affected by reports that the company had many unsold models of 1922 on its hands. Inquiry at the Detroit office elicited the information that few 1922 models which were carried over were marketed in the early spring, the demand for Studebaker cars is still equal to production and the company was never in a stronger financial position.

A Chandler director denied that the six dollar dividend on that stock was in danger, saying that the company has earned nine dollars a share thus far in 1923 and the indications points to earnings of from twelve to fifteen dollars for the full year. Opening prices: Sinclair 25 1-2, up 3-8; Bethlehem Steel 51 3-4, up 7-8, American Can. 92 7-8, off 1-2. Cal. Petroleum 22 3-8, off 1-4, N.Y.C. 101 1-2, off 11-4, Studebaker 105 1-4, U. S. Steel 93 1-2, off 1-2, U.S. Rubber 46 1-4, off 1-4, Corn Products 128, off 3-8, Reading 73 1-2, up 1-4, Consolidated Gas 59 3-8, Maryland 39 5-8, off 3-8; Baltimore and Ohio 49 1-4, off 1-4; Pan American 96 1-8, up 1-8.

MODERN GIRL ENJOYS FREEDOM.

Has More Liberty Than Her Sisters of the Past Decades.

(By MARIAN HALE)

NEW YORK, June 25.—Flapper she may be, serious thoughts she may lack,—but the modern girl has this superiority over her sister of the past: She's more free and democratic.

This is the contention of Miss Josephine Little, director of eight girls' camps conducted by the national board of the Y. W. C. A. Her observation of the girls at these camps has brought her to this conclusion.

"The modern girl no longer looks forward to a summer vacation composed of conquests and summer proposals," in the way Miss Little compares them with our mothers when they were young.

"Now," she explains, "she wants to go to camp like her brother. She rebels if she faces the prospect of a vacation with headquarters on the summer hotel veranda and activities limited to dancing and flirting."

All Girls Equal

The absolute democracy of the girls' camp is its biggest appeal, Miss Little believes.

"Colored kid slippers, tissue-weight stockings, skeleton frocks and floppy hats give way to middies and bloomers, stout shoes and wool stockings," she continues.

"When every girl is dressed like every other girl, equality in looks immediately eliminates class distinction or competition in dress.

"With the freedom from skirts and the absence of high heels and fripperies, girls begin to develop self-reliance and the more substantial virtues.

"They gain self-confidence finding their way about in the woods or in the water. They develop new interests and enthusiasm that completely overshadow what they shall wear or how they shall look.

"Regular hours and out-door life give them such clear complexions that beauty lotions and lip sticks are forgotten. A love of nature is invariably fostered by camp studies, and the spirit of helpfulness is bound to prevail."

The phenomenal growth of popularity in the camps is a proof that the young girl of today is not so bad as she is painted, Miss Little believes.

"The camp movement is equally popular with parents," she concludes. "They approve of the health, wholesome development and the initiative the camps give their daughters. Living with others on equal terms, away from family protection, is the best way to cultivate a respect for the rights of the whole family group."

ARE SPEEDING UP ON THE DELORME CASE

MONTREAL, June 25.— (Canadian Press).—When Father Delorme entered the dock this morning, he bore traces of feeling the effects of his long sieges in the stifling court room, where he is being tried on a charge of murdering his half-brother Raoel.

Evidence is being streamed into record at a fast pace. Speed is being eagerly sought both by Judge and Counsel in the case, who hope to lay final testimony before the jury this week.

R. L. Calder K.C. examined all witnesses for prosecution this morning, while cros-examination for defence was conducted by Allen Laschierau, K.C., council for Father Delorme.

SCHOOLS CLOSE EARLIER ACCOUNT OF HEAT WAVE

TORONTO, June 25.—(Canadian Press).—A sub committee appointed by the Board of Education to consider schoo closing decided this morning that the schools would close on Wednesday afternoon of this week instead of on Friday, June 29, which is the regular date for closing.

This is a matter which came up for consideration in view of the recent heat wave at the last meeting of the board, and the decision of the committee will no doubt be received with joy by Toronto kiddies.

COMMUNISTS ARE NOT ADMITTED TO RANKS OF BRITISH LABOUR

Application for Admission to Laborites' Organization Turned Down at Conference by a Huge Majority.

VOTED BY UNIONS

LONDON, June 26. — (United Press).—Application of the Communist party for membership was defeated at the British Labor Party Conference here to-day. The vote was 2,880,000 to 366,000. The conference voted by unions each delegate balloting the whole membership of his union.

There were nearly one thousand delegates present when Sidney Webb M.P., called the meeting to order Arthur Henderson, Labor leader, and Ramsey MacDonald leader of the opposition in the House of Commons were on the platform. Webb in his opening speech said that if Labor were in power in Great Britain this country would tell France that further co-operation with her is impossible, France he charged is pursuing what seems to be a fatal policy of aggression.

Cancel War Debts

A Labor Government, he said, would urge universal cancellation of inter-war debts and Progressive limitation of armaments. He recommended withdrawal of the extravagant reparations demands which have been made upon Germany and acceptance of the German offer to do everything possible to repair material damage to French and Belgian Mines and Buildings, and to compensate civilian victims of bombs and torpedoes.

GERMANS WANT USE OF FORCE

BERLIN, June 26. — (United Press.)—"No government can cancel the passive resistance policy born in the hearts of the men and women of the Rhineland and the Ruhr," Chancellor Cuno declared Monday at Koenigsberg. He stated that Premier Poincare is still unwilling to negotiate and he urged a firm front in Germany against "the enemy's maliciousness." "We are not only ready to promise to pay," he said, "but we are also ready to pay. We have got the world to thinking of our case."

His speech vouched the German belief that the latest offer is a sincere endeavour to pay as much as Germany immediately is able on reparations, and to lay a firm foundation for the full payment of thirty billion gold marks. Meanwhile the drop in the mark, the rising food prices and the delay and anxiety over reparations are causing sporadic outbursts throughout Germany. Adolph Hittler's "Fascisti are active in Munich, a group of them having attacked Socialists on Monday, slightly wounding four.

There is an increasing demand for an end to the passive resistance policy and for the use of force.

RAIL SHOPMEN WANT INCREASE

Ask a Raise of 10 Cents an Hour for All Grades of Workers.

MONTREAL, June 26. —(Canadian Press.)—The Railway Association of Canada received this morning the wage and working conditions proposals of the Rail Shopmen on Canadian lines, negotiations on which open shortly.

The shopmen ask an increase of ten cents an hour for all grades, making a proposed rate for mechanics of eighty cents an hour, for freight carmen of 73 cents, and a minimum rate for helpers of 57 cents an hour. The present rates are: Mechanics 70 cents, freight carmen 63 cents, and the minimum rate for helpers 47 cents.

FALSE FIRE ALARM

Some misguided individual rang in an alarm from box 52, corner of Burnham and James, but when the fire apparatus arrived there, no fire was in evidence.

The fire chief points out again that there is a very severe penalty attached to practical jokes of this character and no court is likely to treat with leniency a person convicted of the offense. In last night's alarm particularly was the disregard for life evident the speeding apparatus being called through the throngs of people on George street who were crowding the streets to hear election results.

ROUNDING UP OF CROOKS BY PARIS POLICE

French Authorities Determined to Protect Visitors From Activities of International Thieves.

MATCHING OF WITS

(By John O'Brien).

PARIS, June 26 (United Press). —Organised international outlawry is engaged in the battle of its life against the constituted authorities of civilisation, represented by the French police.

Fourteen men and women, the keenest minds in thievedom, are temporarily reposing in the antechamber of the penitentiary, while all the astuteness and limitless resources of the Paris police are employed to make their stay permanent.

It isn't an easy job, this of trying to prove to the satisfaction of a jury that a certain man, although his police record in several countries would amply justify the conclusion, was actually guilty of taking two, or three, or ten thousand dollars away from a confiding gentleman from Indiana or a couple of thousand pounds sterling from a visitor from the Australian bush, on the assumption that the said money was to be placed on an enigmatical horse who couldn't possibly lose, or to be distributed among the poverty-stricken refugees of an earthquake rocked region in South America or Central Asia.

Is William Warren, sleek and suave, well groomed and prosperous, owner of automobiles, race horses, and villas, spending his winters on the Riviera and his summers at Deauville, identical with William Warren, known as "Bludger Bill," sentenced in 1901 at Sydney, N.S.W., to eighteen months' imprisonment at hard labour for robbery with violence and the unwilling guest thereafter on half a dozen occasions of the prison guardians of England, Belgium, Germany, and America?

Banknotes Under Seat.

When this question is answered, the problem of the French police will be much simpler. For William Warren is supposed to be the head, the brains, the directing genius of the greatest band of international crooks that has ever been pulled in by one sling of the police dragnet. They got him, with his wife, a friend and a woman who is supposed to be the wife of one of his chief lieutenants, as his luxurious automobile was entering Paris after a trip from Nice. Under the cushions of the car the police found French, Spanish, and British banknotes amounting to about two hundred thousand dollars, while in front of Milady Warren reposed a pair of prize puppies valued at two or three thousand dollars.

Warren protested that he was simply "a wealthy tourist," enjoying life as he saw fit, but the reason of the arrest was that the Paris police authorities had reason to suspect that he was the leader of a gang of malefactors, eleven of whom had been captured a few days previously in half a dozen of the most select hotels of the city. Of their record there was no doubt. Their photographs and finger prints at the prefecture on the Quia des Orfevres could not be gainsaid.

There was Dan Norton, the "Man with the Cauliofiwer Ear," known to crime hunters from Pekin to Paraguay; O'Brien, whose specialty was "knocking down" Americans of Celtic ancestry; Jimmy Ford, a prison pal of "Bludger Bill" from Australia; Jack Donovan, from Russell Square and Soho; Hollway, an American who once was physical instructor at a Pacific Coast University—he has since been released on bail; Harry Evans, "a good mixer" in the bars frequented by American visitors in Paris, the wives of Evans and Donovan, and half a dozen lesser lights in the "Come On Stock Company."

Suckers Their Prey.

They had nothing new, these exploiters of gullibility. They merely proved that Barnum's dictum which probably hit the mark in the United States a generation ago, still goes for Americans when they come to Europe. The old "con game"; the "sure tip"; the gentleman who remembers that he has forgotten his pocketbook when the "sucker" is cashing a fat cheque; the man who has a friend in the telegraph office to tip him off before the result of the race is known—these were the weapons used by the band. Every body in the American and English colonies in Paris knew them by sight They always looked prosperous. They lived at the best hotels and ate the best fare. They inspired "confidence."

Their methods are simple. They dealt with simple folk. Therefore the traces of their crimes are hard to find. When the victim wakes up to find that his roll has disappeared, that the "sure winner" never ran, or that the man who was going to see the Pope about the charity bequest couldn't tell a church from a synagogue, usually goes home and says nothing about it to the neighbours. Therefore Warren and his gang were comparatively safe.

Enouh evidence has been adduced to enable the Paris police to detain "Bludger Bill" (or Warren) and his company while the examining magistrate probes their histories. But there are few specific crimes which can be imputed to any of them. Practically all of the men and women arrested have criminal records, but the most that they can fear now is expulsion from France.

Warren declares he never heard of "Bludger Bill" until the police mentioned that sobriquet. The English police have proved that "Bludger Bill's" real name was William Warren, and that his history coincides with that of the man detained here, but Warren calmly asserts that that is nothing but coincidence.

WILL HAND OVER REINS AS QUICKLY AS POSSIBLE

Premier Arrives in Toronto and Arranges For Meeting With Lieut-Governor—Says a Little Knock Like That of Yesterday Doesn't Hurt Him.

TORONTO, June 26 (Canadian Press). — Premier Drury arrived at Queen's Park at noon to-day

"A little bump like that don't hurt me any," he said, smiling, when questioned about the election results.

The Premier stated that he would immediately meet the Lieutenant-Governor with a view to handing over the reins of power as soon as possible.

A conference, with the Premier, the Hon. W. E. Raney, and Provincial Treasurer Peter Smith attending, was held soon after Mr. Drury arrived. And it is expected that there will be a meeting of the Cabinet Council this afternoon, when the Hon. Manning Doherty, Hon. R. S. Grant, Hon. Walter Rollo, Hon. D. Carmichael, and Hon. H. C. Nixon will attend.

Raney's Views.

"The people have expressed themselves," said Attorney-General W. E. Raney, "and the expression is in terms that leave no doubt as to what they mean. Responsibility will go with the honour. I am not frantic about the result." He declined to discuss his plans for the future.

Hon. F. C. Biggs.

"I hope whoever takes over this Department will pursue a good, aggressive road policy for the entire Province, as I have tried to do," said the Hon F. C. Biggs. "I have no regrets. The Department is in good shape."

Hon. Peter Smith.

Hon. Peter Smith attributed his defeat to over-confidence on the part of U.F.O. supporters. He expressed the opinion that the Hon. Howard Ferguson had no easy task ahead of him. "I would not step into his shoes for $10,000," he said.

G. N. GORDON SEES HOPE FOR OLD LINE PARTIES

Declares it is a Good Thing the New Government Will Have Working Majority.

OTTAWA, June 26.—(Special). —Mr. G. N. Gordon in an interview this morning regarding the election of yesterday said that Mr. Bradburn the member elect had the advantage of being born and brought up in the city and was well known by his many years in municipal life. The Liberal candidate J. W. Meyers was a splendid type of citizen and a good candidate and would be Peterboro's member yet. The Drury candidate injured the Liberals' chances by drawing support which would have gone Liberal, Mr. Gordon said that Mr. Howard Ferguson's slashing attacks on the Drury Government for the last two years made the impression that he was the strongest leader it was a good thing the new government would have a good working majority for what we needed now was stable government by experienced men according to the returns Mr. Gordon intimated that many old time politicians have come back and would be of value in the new House.

STORM WRECKS MANY BUILDINGS

Roaring Along Its Path of Destruction Hurricane Also Carries Away Barns.

BUFFALO, June 26 (Canadian Press). — Telegraph and telephone lines were brought to the ground, trees were felled, streets were flooded, fires were started, and belated travellers terrorised by one of the most severe summer electrical storms in recent years in the early hours of this morning.

Communication in the Buffalo district has been interrupted, and in some cases entirely cut off.

Telegraph officials reported that lines to Canada were completely severed during the storm.

The storm struck before midnight, and continued until the morning hours.

WRECKED BUILDINGS

TORONTO, June 26 (Canadian Press) — At midnight the service with Oakville and Milton, either by telephone or telegraph had not been re-established.

Roaring along its path of destruction last night's hurricane wrecked brick buildings, carried barns from their foundations, whirled roofs from buildings and dropped them on top of other buildings.

Damage in Peel County was roughly estimated at $100,000.

Equally great was the damage in Halton County.

It was easily the most disastrous storm that has ever carried destruction through Peel County.

Brampton, Port Credit, and Cooksville suffered severely.

It is reported that one-third of the orchards around Cooksville were destroyed.

The fruit districts of Clarkson and Oakville are said to have suffered even more heavily.

WOULD EMPLOY SEWER FOREMAN ON FULL TIME

Efficiency of John Thirnbeck Appreciated by Ald. Stocker and Members of Board of Works

INSPECTOR CONTINUES

John Thirnbeck, who has been employed by the Board of Works department as foreman of sewer work under the City Enginetr.

"We never appreciate the value of good men until they are gone from us." said Ald. Stocker. "I know that Mr. Thirnbeck is a very good man and we'll wake up some of these days and find that he's gone to some one else."

Ald. Maher and other members were equally positive in their recommendation of Mr. Thirnbeck, and the fact that his weekly wage may be affected by the weather, and in some weeks has been quite small on that account, brought protests from members of the Board that the foreman should be treated better than that. It was proposed that he be put on the regular pay roll drawing a salary rain or shine, providing the amount he was willing to accept proved satisfactory to the committee

In the meantime the paving on George street continuing with William Lytle, the inspector of the city. He was appointed by City Engineer Parsons at a salary of $48 and although the Board of Works reduced the remuneration to $35 a week it approved the City Engineer's appointment.

LLOYD GEORGE TO ADDRESS TORONTO

Six Speeches in U. S. and Three in Canada in October.

LONDON, June 26 (United Press). — To date Lloyd-George has not accepted any invitations to deliver addresses in the United States or Canada during the fall, it was announced to-day at the former Premier's office at 18 Abindon Street.

Lloyd-George is frankly hopeful that he will be able to arrange his affairs so as to visit North America in October, and remain about six weeks.

If he does go, he will make the visit entirely as a personal matter, and under the auspices of no organisation. He has received several hundred invitations to speak, and would like to accept them all, because of his very real interest in America and Canada, but the necessities of his trip will compel him to hold his schedule down to about six addresses in the United States and three in Canada.

Should he determine to go to the Coast, he will probably enlarge his speaking schedule to include a speech at San Francisco, Portland, and Vancouver.

Other points where he expects to make addresses in response to invitations already received are New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Chicago, Montreal, Toronto, and possibly Denver. A short trip to Buffalo and Niagara Falls is also a possibility.

Commissioners Will Be Asked to Wind Up Their Activities Without Any Delay.

A LATER SUMMARY

TORONTO, June 26.—(Canadian Press.)—Hon. E. C. Drury will, it is expected, place the resignations of himself and the members of has cabinet in the hands of the Lieutenant-Governor this week, as the result of the decisive defeat of the Farmer-Labor Government in the elections for the Provincial Legislature yesterday Mr. Drury and his colleagues in the Government, many of whom were defeated in their own constituencies in the Conservative sweep, are returning to the Provincial capital to-day for final cabinet meetings to wind up their administration.

Hon. Howard Ferguson, the Conservative leader, who is assured of the backing of at least 75 members in the Legislature of 111 seats, is in the city, and this morning received numerous messages of congratulation from near and far on the return of his party to power in this province, after nearly four years in Opposition. Mr. Ferguson met a number of leading Conservatives of Toronto and other cities to-day and is said to have pretty well made up his mind as to the composition of the new Conservative Government which he will be called upon to form. It is considered certain that W. F. Nickle, K.C., of Kingston, will have the important post of Attorney-General, who has the direction of much of the enforcement of the much discussed Ontario Temperance Act. Hon. F. G. McDiarmid, elected in West Elgin, was a member of a former Conservative government, and is practically sure of a place in the new cabinet. Hon. G. S. Henry, who redeemed East York for the Conservatives, was Minister of Agriculture in the Hearst Conservative government and will probably receive the same portfolio in the new administration.

Hon. Thomas Crawford, who was former Sepaker of the House and is member in one of the Torontos, will probably have that honor again. As for the rest of the cabinet, Premier-Elect Ferguson is reported to have said that he has so much timber "that he will have difficulty in making a choice."

A New Leader

For the Liberal opposition a new leader must be appointed. Wellington Hay leader, in the last house. Hartley Dewart, the Toronto lawyer who managed to hold one of the seats in "Tory Toronto" for two legislatures and Major J. C. Tolmie the popular army chaplain, member from Windsor, were all swept out of their seats in the elections yesterday W. E. Sinclair, member for Ontario county south and J. H. Fisher, the Liberal from Ottawa west, are both mentioned as possibilities for Liberal leadership.

With the personal defeat of Premier Drury, the United Farmers, who will have the third group in the Legislature will also have a new leader. Hon. W. E. Raney, Hon. Manning Doherty and Hon. S. C. Biggs who survived the elections yesterday will probably have first choice of the position.

There will be one Independent and three Labor men to comprise other minorities in the new Legislature.

Majorities Cut

Major J. C. Tolmie was defeated in Windsor. Hartley Dewart's huge vote of 1919 in Southwest Toronto melted away before J. A. McCausland Conservative. Of the Liberal front bench Sam Clarke the veteran from West Northumberland; W.

In Recognition of Your Kindness

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE RIDING, WEST PETERBOROUGH:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Any man should be proud to receive the approval of his fellow citizens, both men and women.

To have been given the distinguished mark of approval and confidence that the Electorate of the Riding has displayed towards myself, brings to me the proudest moment of my life.

All else that has been tendered before in the course of my municipal service, though warmly appreciated, has been dwarfed by the magnificent majority with which you have approved my candidature.

I shall ever be grateful: To the friends who worked so unceasingly towards my success. To the women who so loyally and enthusiastically rose to the appeal of the situation and largely helped to carry the day. To the many supporters and well-wishers who loaned and drove cars, enabling our friends to bring to the polls the hundreds that made and enhanced the majority.

To the members of our organization, who with skill and wise experience to build on, did so much yeoman service, a tangible help that was as efficient as spontaneously offered.

My endeavours will ever be at your call and service.

Very respectfully,

W. F. Bradburn

A PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

THE EQUALIZED ASSESSMENT AS ADOPTED BY COUNTY COUNCIL

In their final revision of the equalized assessment the County Council deducted $297,378 from the total appraisal of the county which the valuators determined. Of that reduction, $123,535 was from the assessment which had been proposed for North Monaghan, and $93,961 was pruned off Otonabee's figures.

When the matter came up for final consideration, Reeve Eason of Otonabee suggested a compromise with a view to satisfying all the municipalities and avoiding appeals.

Deputy-Reeve Anderson and Reeve Rye asked for a reduction in favor of Otonabee and North Monaghan, and Reeve Middleton suggested that a reasonable reduction to some municipalities should settle the whole matter.

Mr. Eason moved that Otonabee's assessment be reduced to $2,285,961, and Mr. Rye urged that North Monaghan's be placed at $800,000.

Reeve Parker of Harvey moved, seconded by Reeve Jones of Havelock, that the report of the valuators be adopted.

Reeve Eason moved in amendment, seconded by Reeve Rye, that the following values be the equalized assessment values for the year 1924, and the amendment carried.

The valuators' assessment and the adjustment by the Council which was adopted are shown in the following statement:

OTONABEE AGAIN IN LEGISLATURE

Young War Veteran Restores the Township to Its Political Prominence

With the election of Lieut. Colonel T. Dalton Johnston in East Peterboro, the township Otonabee is once more represented in the legislature by one of it own sons. Years ago Otonabee provided the members for both houses, provincial and federal, in the days of John Lang and Thomas Blezzard, both of them Reformers. In latter years the balance of power as it were seemed to swing to the extreme east of the riding, and John Sexsmith of Preneveau in Belmont township, and Jim Thompson of Havelock and Toronto, divided the parliamentary honours and both were Conservatives.

With the rural revolution the old line politics were completely disrupted and the acting members have been both United Farmers, E. M. McDonald in the Legislature and Arthur Brethen at Ottawa. They reside at about the geographical centre of the southern section of East Peterboro one in Dummer and Mr. Brethen in Asphodel on the fringe of Norwood. Yesterday Mr. MacDonald was swept out with the Drury Government, and his defeat was one of the big surprises of the campaign in this district although it ceased to be a phenomenon when subsequent reports from the province echoed the crash of the Drury structure in all parts of Ontario.

But Otonabee's young veteran of the war, and the scion of a military family, restores Otonabee to, its place of political prominence.

CANADA HOLDS GRAIN EXPORTS OF WAR PERIOD

United States is Rapidly Losing Increase in Flour Trade That Was Gained During the War.

CANADA INCREASING.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—(Canadian Press.)—While both the United States and Canada increased their exportations of flour during the war, the Canadian grain has been well maintained since the war, with the United States tending to lose the increase, it is shown by investigation conducted by the Commerce Department. The inquiry is one phase of the investigation ordered by the last Congress to be made into the world trade situation with respect to foodstuffs and agricultural produce.

If the Canadian pre-war exports of flour are considered as 100, the Department reports, its average export total between 1921 and 1923 can be considered as 207. Comparatively, pre-war exports of the United States being rated at 100, its present exports is at the rate of 147. This indicates that Canada has more than doubled her export trade in flour, while the United States has increased its trade by 47 per cent.

Before the war the United States exported on the average 10,678,000 barrels of flour a year, while Canada exported 3,832,000 barrels. At present Canada's exports averaged 7,884,000 barrels a year while exports from the United States are averaging 15,007,000 barrels.

During the war the United States exported as much as 16,381,000 barrels in a year, while Canada's war exports were not as great as those she is now making.

BRANCH LINES OF C.N.R. CAME BEFORE HOUSE

Considerable Discussion Regarding Construction Estimates For the Next Three Years.

SECOND READING.

OTTAWA, June 26. Canadian Press. — There was a wide ranging discussion of railways affairs in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon upon the bill to provide for the construction of branch lines of the Canadian National Railways. The schedule of the bill provides for the construction during a period of three years of a thousand miles of branch lines at a cost of approximately $28,000,000. The bill authorizes the guarantee of bonds for these lines which are part of the National system, while the others are to become part of the government lines (now chiefly the Intercolonial and the Transcontinental) and are to be constructed directed by the government.

Discussion began on the motion of Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways, for the second reading of the bill, with a criticism by Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Opposition ,of the principles of voting the total cost covering a period of years. He was not opposed to the construction of the lines but he thought that the expenditures should be voted annually, so that parliament would retain control . The government wished to avoid coming before the House in a regular way and asking for appropriations or guarantees. The nation should know by complete and clear statements what the annual committments were. He protested against a measure introduced to enable the legislature to appear to be diminishing of contracting estimates when they were not doing so. If the bill passed a large portion of the government expenditure for the coming year would be hidden away beneath this legislation. The estimate sshould show what it was intended to provide in cash and what in guarantees. In conclusion Mr. Meighen intimated that he had no objection to the constructional scheme itself.

Hon. G. P. Graham replied that the government had stated the entire estimated cost for three years. When railway estimates came up everything done or left undone could be brought up for discussion.

Hon. J. B. M. Baxter (Con. St. John City) said that he understood that guaranteed bonds of railway companies always brought less price on the market than if they were the direct issue of the government itself. He saw no reason why they should sell in a lower market if they could get a higher market by making the bonds the direct obligation of the country.

Sir Henry Drayton expressed the view that if the programme under discussion was for a three year period, the government ought to say how much of it was for this year. How much was to be dangled in front of constituencies and not proceeded with?

There was not a single word in the programme regarding the Toronto viaduct, continued Sir Henry. It was now, he said, something like ten years since the contract had been signed to construct this viaduct.

Speaking from recollection, the city of Toronto, on the strength of the agreement, had spent upwards of $26,000,000. The government today was bound to take upon itself the obligation which had come to it with the Grand Trunk railway.

The Government made no such contract, interposed Hon. Mr. Fielding.

Sir Henry said he wanted to know whether the government was going to regard its obligations as scrap-paper.

Hon. Chas. Marcil (Liberal, Bonaventure), and J. F. Johnston (Progressive, Last Mountain) expressed the hope that the bill would not embrace the government's plans for all of three years to come, in view of the railroad requirements in Gaspe and in Saskatchewan.

The second reading was then carried and in committee on the bill Hon. R. J. Manion, (Con. Fort William) asked the government to give the most careful consideration to the matter before diverting the route of the fast daily passenger train from Winnipeg to Toronto. This train now served the towns of Port Arthur, Fort William, Fort Francis and Rainy River, and the territory served comprised within it some 100,000 people.

IMMIGRATION PROBLEMS.

HOBART, Tasmania, June 26.—(Canadian Press).—The British emigration delegation, under the presidency of Sir William Windham, which is investigating conditions of settlement in Australia, when replying to speeches of welcome here yesterday, expressed recognition of the claim that the selection was the most important and most difficult part of immigration.

CONSERVATIVES SWEPT ONTARIO PROVINCE FROM THE OTTAWA RIVER TO WINDSOR CITY GEORGE HOWARD FERGUSON NEXT PREMIER

Twenty-Fifth of June Proved Nothing But an Utter Rout for the Druryites—The Conservative Victory of 1905 Duplicated.

A HARD BLOW FOR THE LIBERAL PARTY

The United Farmers' Political Revolution of 1919 Completely Reversed by the Electorate With a Verdict Which is Astoundingly Decisive.

TORONTO, June 26. — Canadian Press. — There was a veritable landslide yesterday in Ontario when the Conservative party under the leadership of G. Howard Ferguson, former Minister of the Crown in the late Hearst Government, practically swept the boards in the Provincial elections.

The Drury government, born out of the success of the United Farmers in 1919, went down to defeat to such an extent that even the Premier himself, Hon. E. C. Drury, and five of his Ministers, failed to win seats.

Though returns were not complete even yet this morning on acount of the havoc wrought last night by a terrific storm which swept over the country breaking down telegraph and telephone poles, yet enough reports are in to show that the Conservatives have 77 seats, Liberals 16, United Farmers 13, Labor 3 and Independents 1.

There are 111 seats in the Ontario Legislature, so that the Conservative party will have a clear working majority over all other parties.

Howard Ferguson will be the new Premier. He is member for Grenville and lives at the village of Kemptville.

In the last general election in the province, the United Farmers secured 44 seats, Liberals 29, Conservatives 25, and Labor 11, with three or four soldiers and Independents.

The defeat of the Government is attributed by observers to three or four principal causes.

Extravagance in administration was generally charged against the Government, the provincial debt having increased rapidly under its regime. Dissatisfaction was widespread against too rigid enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act, and the Conservative party held out the hope that if returned to power the people would be given a chance to secure some amendments to the act. In the third place a feeling has been abroad that it would be better if a return were made to the two party system of government ensuing greater stability and less erratic legislation.

Features of the returns include the defeat of Premier Drury; Hon. Peter Smith, Provincial Treasurer; Hon. Dougall Carmichael Minister without Portfolio; Hon. Walter Rollo, Minister of Labor; Hon. R. H. Grant, Minister of Education; Hon. Harry Mills Minister of Mines.

Sir Adam Beck, chairman of Hydro Electric Power Commission and former minister in the late Hearst Government, was elected in London with a majority of 3,952 over his three opponents in that city. He is popularly known as "the member for Hydro." Toronto and the ridings immediately surrounding it went solidly Conservative, the majorities in the city being very large. Even H. H. Dewart, former Liberal leader and Capt. Jack Ramsden who had over 4,000 signatures on his nomination papers, went down to defeat as Liberal candidates. In North Perth riding, F. Wellington Hay, present leader of the Liberal party was defeated also by Dr. Monteith, by a majority of 800. Major Tommie of Windsor, who was a close second in the choice two or three years ago for Liberal leader, was counted out and W. E. N. Sinclair, also one of the leading Liberals in the province and chief critic in the late legislature of the Government had his majority over 3,425 cut down 3,000.

In many quarters the result of election is heralded as a victory by the "wets" though it was declared by all three leaders in the campaign that the temperance question was not an issue. It was, however one of the constant subjects of discussion throughout the province and on almost every platform reference was made to it in some way or other.It is predicted now that the new government to be formed by Hon. Mr. Ferguson will submit some form of referendum to the people in the near future asking what they desire in the way of a change.

Premier Drury issued a statement to the people of the province, when it was seen last night that he was defeated and that the Conservatives would have a working majority of at least thirty:

"My duty will be," said Mr. Drury "to at once advise His Honor the Lieutenant Governor to call on the leader of the majority party to form a government. I will be prepared to vacate my office as soon as my successors are ready to take over the government."

Commenting on the campaign which had resulted in the defeat of the Government, he said: "During all the discussions of the campaign, I and my folowers have endeavored to treat the issues in a fair and educative way. Now that the campaign is over, I have no regrets whatever. I am going back to private life," he concluded.

Hon. E. C. Drury, the Premier, suffered defeat in the constituency of Halton in which he essayed to run again. Incomplete returns, owing to wire trouble, report George Hillmer, Conservative, leading in Halton by 700.

Hon. Peter Smith, Provincial Treasurer, was rejected by the electors of South Perth by a majority of 300 in a two-candidate battle with the Conservative standard-bearer.

Hon. R. H. Grant, Minister of Education, experienced a smashing defeat in his home riding of Carleton, the majority against him being 2,329 in a straight fight with a Conservative opponent.

Hon. D. Carmichael, Minister without portfolio, and Government representative on the Hydro-Electric Commission, was removed from office by his constituents in Centre Grey by a majority of 50.

Hon. Walter Rollo, Minister of Labor, lost the traditionally Labor seat of East Hamilton, a riding which had steadfastly returned a Labor representative since the days of the late Allan Studholme.

Hon. Harry Mills, Minister of Mines, sustained a severe reverse in Fort William, where he was defeated by 782, and went down with other Minister colleagues.

The final figures for the constituency of London, are: Sir Adam Beck 9097; Dr. H. A. Stevenson 2106; Miss Isobel Armstrong 1768; J. M. Donohue 1271.

Majority for Sir Adam Beck 6991. Majority for Sir Adam Beck over combined vote of all three opponents 3952.

"DOWN WITH O.T.A."

BROCKVILLE, June 26. Canadian Press. — Dr. H. A. Clarke, Conservative, yesterday in the Provincial elections, defeated Dr. Donald McAlpine, Liberal, former member, by a majority of about 1100. Four polls have not reported.

The Conservative victory was celebrated by a procession headed by the local band, and the victorious candidate made a short address thanking his supporters.

At a late hour last night crowds were still parading the streets cheering Ferguson and crying "Down with the O.T.A."

HOODLUMS MET BY E.C. DRURY AT FARM GATE

WERE ORDERED OFF

BARRIE, June 26. (Special.) — An unrivalled bit of hoodlooism occurred here last night as the aftermath the election when a gang of some fifteen or twenty young men, apparently under the influence of liquor, paid a surprise visit to Hon. E. C. Drury's home.

The Drury family had gone to bed when just after midnight the telephone rang. A voice asked "Is Premier Drury at home?"

"Yes," said the Premier. "This is Mr. Drury speaking."

No answer came over the telephone and when Mr. Drury asked the operator who had been calling him, she said "the office of Mr. Boys." Mr. W. A. Boys is the Conservative member for the district in the Federal House. The next disturbance was half an hour later when several automobiles drew up in front of the Drury farm, and a crowd of fifteen to twenty young men piled out yelling and singing and beating on tin pans.

After the first inquiry as to whether he was at home, Mr. Drury had received another telephone call from a friend in Barrie that a bunch of young men were intending to serenade him on his defeat. He was prepared to meet them when they arrived. Singing and cursing and swearing the young men piled out of the cars with a great noise, and formed in a procession to march up the lane to the house. They were a very surprised bunch of young men when the premier met them before they had gone very far and ordered them off the place.

"There is a woman here and I am not going to have her annoyed or frightened by you," said Mr. Drury. Although a couple of unruly members were in favour of staying they were led off by the comrades and the bunch of young men contented themselves with beating on tin pans and singing and yelling on the roadside in front of the Drury house. When the Examiner reporter arrived on the scene the truck load of young men had just left the place, while a touring car was standing in front of the house with a noisy group around. One of these staggered out on to the road in a drunken manner and yelled something unintelligible as the car came up. This same truck load of young men had been parading up and down the main street in Barrie earlier in the night singing and yelling "Hurrah for the Tories" and "Down with the U.F.O." After they had been out and got Mr. Drury and his family out of bed and wakened the neighbors they came back into Barrie and gave a few more rounds of applause for the Conservatives.

A COMPARISON OF RESULTS

A comparison of the figures of the 1919 election with those of yesterday might be interesting. In 1919 the Conservative party in the West Peterboro' riding occupied the bottom rung of the ladder. The comparison is made with the figures for yesterday complete with the exception of the northern townships of Galway, Cavendish and Harvey. These returns cannot effect the ultimate results of the election:

West Peterboro'

1919

Tooms, Labor-U.F.O.	4100
Gillespie, Liberal	3083
Soden, Conservative	2174

1923

Bradburn, Conservative	4078
Meyers, Liberal	3322
Tooms, Labor-U.F.O.	1904

East Peterboro'

MacDonald, U.F.O.	1772

1919

Thompson, Conservative	1055

1923

Johnston, Conservative
MacDonald, U.F.O.

Joy reigned in the W. H. Bradburn committee rooms last evening. The first poll to report was No. 18, which sent a majority for Bradburn and was heralded with cheers as an omen of what was to come. As report after report continued to come in each sending the successful candidate a little further to the front the exuberance of the Bradburn followers threatened to exceed all bounds and finally when the election had been conceded and it was announced that the band was out in front the smiling candidate was raised on the shoulders of his followers and carried in triumph to lead the procession through the city streets.

Though the polls did not close till six o'clock the crowd had already started to gather at that hour and when the first returns were announced at 6:13 there was a large number on hand. By 6.30 the returns were coming in fast and the committee rooms were crowded to capacity. In spite of the sweltering heat men and women crowded forward eager to learn the results. Coats and collars were discarded by the perspiring workers but in the elation of victory heat and discomfort were forgotten and every effort was strained to learn the news as fast as possible.

A large bulletin board had been erected and the returns were posted where all could read as fast as they were received. When the first edition of The Examiner extra was sent on the streets the figures in the committee rooms were compared and checked with those of the newspaper and the Examiner bulletins read aloud to the crowd were received again and again with cheers. So noisy did the demonstrations become at times that it was difficult for the workers to hear the returns which were being telephoned in from the outlying districts.

When the election had been conceded Mr. Bradburn spoke briefly to his followers. While highly elated with his success he said that he realized and realized fully that this success was the result of the untiring efforts of his workers and supporters. His campaign had been conducted, he pointed out, almost entirely by volunteer workers, men and women who had given their best efforts for the best interests of the province. With regard to the future he said he would play four-square with all and to forward the interests of the west riding of Peterboro'. He would hold himself ready, he said, to hear any person from the riding who wished to see him on any matter connected with the public business.

Owing to the heat it was decided not to hold the rally in the Opera House as was planned for the winning candidate. A short street parade was held and the speeches made from the balcony of the Empress hotel, the crowd gathering in the market square. When Mr. Bradburn made his appearance on the balcony he was greeted vociferously and it was several minutes before he could make himself heard. Mr. Bradburn, Roland Dennie, Mrs. Fallis and Charles P. Lloyd were the speakers for the occasion and their talks though brief were in keeping with the circumstances. Fire works and a brass band competed with the speakers and after a round of cheers the meeting broke up to return to the committee rooms where the returns from all over the province were announced amidst scenes of rejoicing.

WAS DEFEATED

EX-PREMIER E. C. DRURY, Whose defeat at the polls yesterday was an unexpected feature of the election.

PREMIER DRURY QUITE SURPRISED

Thought His Government Had Been Getting the Better of Opponents on Hustings

TORONTO, June 26 (Canadian Press). — "The Government have endeavoured during the campaign to carry on a clean, educative discussion of the public questions before the people. After having done so, if the people do not agree with the Government's policies I accept their verdict most cheerfully."

So said Premier Drury last night when spoken to over the long distance telephone at Crown Hill.

Asked if the returns announced came as a surprise to him Mr. Drury replied:

"The result came as somewhat of a surprise to me, because, in my opinion we had been getting the better of our opponents in public discussions."

AID FROM CANADA FOR IMMIGRANTS

House of Commons Told of Assistance Being Rendered to New Settlers in the Dominions.

LONDON, June 26 (Canadian Press Cable). — The House of Commons continues to show interest in information regarding the flow of migration to the Dominions.

A question was put yesterday afternoon in the House concerning the conditions under which the Hebrideans, who recently emigrated, had settled in Canada, and an apparently satisfactory reply was given on behalf of the Government by Col. Buckley, secretary to the Overseas Trade Department.

Col Buckley also mentioned that the voluntary bodies interested in migration, which were receiving Government assistance in respect of schemes under the Empire Settlement Act, were the Salvation Army, the British Dominions Emigration Society, the Society for the Overseas Settlement of British Women, and Craigielinn Farm of Paisley.

The Canadian Government paid approved societies $8000 in respect of each boy between eight and seventeen years and each girl between eight and fifteen years who are approved by the superintendent of immigration for Canada during the current financial year.

Col. Buckley added that assistance is given by the Overseas Settlement Committee only in a limited number of cases on account of outfit. Altogether 19,170 persons, said the minister, had migrated under the Empire Settlement Act to the end of May. No complete record was kept of the parts of the country from which the emigrants had come.

Changes Were Made in Empire Exhibition.

LONDON, June 26 (Canadian Press Cable). — The present position of former general manager Wintour in connection with the Empire Exhibition was the subject of questions asked in the House of Commons yesterday.

Col. Buckley, Secretary to the Overseas Trade Department, replied that the new board of management were of the opinion that the exclusive powers granted to Wintour as general manager from the start to the finish of the Exhibition under his agreement were inconsistent with the new system of organisation.

Wintour's agreement, therefore, had been cancelled, and he would receive £14,730.

Wintour, said Col. Buckley, had been appointed consultant to the board at a salary of £1,000 annually.

Several questions were put embodying criticism of these arrangements.

TREATMENT OF BRITISH TO BE INVESTIGATED

U.S. Official Will Be Consulted Regarding Treatment of British Subjects at Ellis Island.

PLACED IN CAGE.

LONDON, June 26. — (Canadian Press).—Andrew W. Mellon, United States Secretary of the Treasury, will probably be consulted by British officials upon his arrival here with regard to alleged indignities forced upon British subjects landing at Ellis Island, the House of Commons was informed yesterday by Ronald McNeill, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

The subject was brought up by Captain Viscount Curzon, Conservative member for the south division of Battersea, who called attention to the case of an unnamed British ship captain, who, he said, was made to land at Ellis Island, April 26 last, placed in a wire cage with 30 foreigners, and afterwards forced to strip for examination, although his passport was in perfect order and he had been told by the United States Consul that there would be no difficulty.

Under-Secretary McNeill, replying to the member, said he would gladly receive the captain at the Foreign Office if the latter desired to tell of his case. He thought there was apparently ground for representations to the United States Government, provided the captain allowed his name to be used.

Mr. McNeill added that in the absence of any guarantee that innocent travellers would not be subjected to these indignities, he could only repeat that the real remedy was for British subjects to refrain from going to the United States.

Viscount Curzon suggested that the Government get in touch with Secretary Mellon upon his arrival to see if it was possible to arrange to avoid such treatment, and Mr. McNeill said that probably would be done.

THE LOCAL RESULT.

Ex-Mayor W. H. Bradburn is West Peterborough's representative in the next Ontario Legislature as a result of his substantial victory at the polls yesterday over Ald. J. W. Meyers, Liberal, and Thos. Tooms, carrying the Government endorsation.

The general feeling regardless of politics is that Mr. Bradburn, by reason of his municipal service and his business training, should prove an excellent representative for West Peterborough at Queen's Park.

His success yesterday was not only a political but also a personal victory, inasmuch as his own popularity and the esteem in which he is regarded in the community won for him support from many who ordinarily would have been found voting under a different banner.

Not only did Mr. Bradburn poll a very large vote in the city, as was expected, but he also captured North Monaghan, and made an excellent showing in other townships in the riding.

Ald Meyers, his closest opponent, fought a clean and hard fight, and has the satisfaction of knowing that his candidature was endorsed by over three thousand electors, giving him a wide margin over the Government candidate, Mr. Tooms.

To the latter the result must have been an unpleasant shock, inasmuch as his 1919 total of 4,100 votes shrank yesterday to less than half that figure.

Mr. Tooms always resented a statement made by The Examiner that he was hurled into office four years ago through a combination of unusual circumstances most unlikely to arise again, but yesterday's returns indicate that that diagnosis was correct.

Mr. Tooms, in that he showed little partisanship in his relations to his constituents, and was always ready to do what he could in Toronto for the citizens who requested his assistance, was in several respects a good representative, but he not only suffered from the unpopularity of the Government, but also from the fact that some of the views he promulgated in his circulars were not looked upon with favour. As a result, he was a very bad third, making a poor showing in the urban polling sub-divisions and failing to show the strength in the rural districts that his supporters confidently expected for him.

The election was cleanly fought, and nothing occurred to leave a bad taste in the mouth of the electors.

But everybody is glad that it is over.

EAST PETERBOROUGH.

Not the least of the series of political surprises yesterday was the victory of Major T. D. Johnston, the Conservative nominee in East Peterborough, over E. N. McDonald, the former U.F.O. representative.

Major Johnston, a young returned soldier, with no experience in politics, in a straight pull against a Farmer standard-bearer, triumphed over opposition that, in view of the Agrarian success in the last Provincial fight and in the Federal election, seemed to be invincible.

East Peterborough was regarded, because of its preponderance of rural voters, as a Farmer stronghold.

The U.F.O. forces were very strongly organised throughout the greater part of the riding, and Mr. McDonald, with the prestige that goes to the sitting member, and in the light of the record of East Peterborough in the last two campaigns, was regarded by political observers, both in and out of the riding, as a sure winner.

On the contrary, Major Johnston not only captured the villages, but made such a good showing in the countryside that victory perched upon his banners.

YESTERDAY'S DEBACLE.

Almost as surprising in its completeness as was the rout of the Conservative Government in 1919 is the downfall of the Drury Administration as the result of yesterday's landslide at the polls.

Although an electrical storm seriously interfered with communication in the ridings of Western Ontario, and at the time this article was written the returns from that section of the Province were by no means complete it is certain that the Conservative Party, under the leadership of Hon. G. H. Ferguson, has swept Ontario, and that the U.F.O.-Labour Government, after four years in office, has been almost annihilated—it has vanished in one day as suddenly as it flashed on the political firmament in 1919.

That the Drury forces were overwhelmed in the urban and semi-urban constituencies is not, of course, a matter for surprise, but that in its own stamping grounds, in ridings almost totally rural, its standard-bearers were routed is a development of the campaign that was not looked for even by the most bitter opponents of the U.F.O-Labour administration.

The Farmers and Labour have gone down to defeat together, and both wings of the Government are so badly shattered that their representation in the House will be almost negligible.

Minister after minister was among the slain on the Government side, and the Liberals, although they fared better than the U.F.O. group, also suffered heavy losses, their casualties including their leader, F. Wellington Hay, the former Provincial chieftain, Hartley Dewart, Rev. Mr. Tolmie of Windsor.

It is difficult to hastily analyse the results and arrive at a definite conclusion as to the reason for this tremendous shift of popular opinion to the Conservative allegiance.

Primarily, of course, the extravagance of this Government, its failure to live up to its promises as to economy, its transference of its responsibility to Commissions, the feeling that many of its ministers were unfitted for their positions, and its questionable attitude towards the Hydro-Electric scheme, can account, to a considerable extent for the debacle.

The people of Ontario decided that the Farmer Government must go, and it was then for them to choose between the Liberal and Conservative Parties.

The Liberal Party lacked colour. Its cause suffered, first, because candidates were not entered in every riding, secondly, because of the feeling that many Liberals were quite willing to affiliate with the U.F.O., and lastly, and perhaps more important than all, because much of the Government's business was put through with Liberal assistance, and the responsibility of opposition was left largely to the Conservative Party.

Naturally, then, when a successor to the Farmer administration was to be chosen, the electors turned to the Party which had stood out against that administration.

To what extent the temperance question entered into the result it is difficult to say. Mr. Drury, however, has no logical ground to complain that the "wet" vote supported Mr. Ferguson, because if such was the case, no one has done more than Mr. Drury and his chief lieutenant, the ex-Attorney-General, to make that condition inevitable.

They have consistently and persistently attempted to prove that the Ferguson attitude towards the Ontario Temperance Act was dubious, and if because of that attempt votes were made for the Conservative cause, the last persons in the Province to protest against such a consummation should be Messrs. Drury and Raney.

Hon. G. H. Ferguson will be called upon to form a Government, and he will have a large majority in the House.

The opportunity is his to give Ontario an efficient business administration, for he will not have to worry about possible upsets in the Legislature or fear a combination of the Opposition against him.

He has a large amount of excellent material from which to select a Cabinet, for it is agreed that the election just over attracted an unusually capable crop of candidates.

He comes into office after four years of unparalleled expenditure, and succeeds an administration that has been condemned as inefficient and unfit.

The conditions, therefore, are ripe for the establishment of a stable, responsible, efficiently functioning Government.

Mr. Ferguson has his chance—his future and that of his Party is his to adorn or mar.

No Premier has assumed office under more favourable auspices.

It is up to G. Howard Ferguson!

THE GREAT OBLIGATION.

It is said there is a common feeling among the soldiers that their grievances and difficulties are too little considered. This may or may not be so. There are always demagogues who are eager to exploit the soldiers for their own personal or political advantage, and too often demands are made which cannot be recognized. A sound view is that we should always give the veterans the benefit of the doubt and that we can better afford to yield to a doubtful demand than to refuse a just demand.

All over the United States in inscriptions and monuments, in village cemeteries, in State and national observances, one finds evidences of lasting reverence for the soldiers of the Civil War who offered their lives for the Union. For years in other countries it was counted a reproach to the United States that the expenditure for pensions was not reduced and that consideration for the veterans extended to the second and third generation. Often perhaps there was a political motive and an element of partisan competition in the controversies over pensions. But when all is said there was more of honor than of discredit to the American people in their attitude towards the Civil War veterans, and we can afford to follow the example. All countries in time of peace too easily forget the sacrifices of their soldiers and sailors. We glorify the uniform when men are putting it on, but become careless and neglectful when they put it off. As Kipling said:

It's Tommy this and Tommy that and Tommy ow's yer soul?
But it's thin red line of 'eroes when the drums begin to roll—
The drums begin to roll, my boys, the drums begin to roll—
O, it's thin red line of 'eroes when the drums begin to roll.

The sacrifices of Canadian soldiers in the war were very great and in too many cases they continue. Young men came back from Europe whose school courses had been interrupted, with education incomplete and with resources diminished. Thousands of others came back to businesses which had been ruined or through various causes less fitted for their old positions. To all these the years since the Armistice have been full of anxiety and struggle. They are burdened with obligations beyond their resources. The future is uncertain and unpromising. For the situation in which they find themselves we all have a responsibility that cannot be evaded. It may not be possible to set considerations of fitness absolutely aside, but in so far as it is practicable the veterans should have a preference in private employment and in public appointments. To the widows and orphans, to the maimed and disabled, the national obligation is absolute and must be met without hesitation or reservation. Whether or not we in Canada have done all that we should have done for the soldiers, at least we have done as well as any other country, and the disposition of Parliament and the people is to leave nothing undone which duty or gratitude demands.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

One thing is certain about yesterday's election—the people had had more than enough of the Farmers' Government.

The storm that struck Western Ontario last evening was nothing like the cyclone that hit the U.F.O.-Labour Government.

The Agrarian movement may not have broadened out, but it certainly looks as if it has petered out.

Hon. F. C. Biggs was re-elected, but somebody else will have to build the roads he started.

Both Peterboroughs returned to the Conservative column after a lapse of one term in the case of the East and two in the West Riding.

Yesterday's results should considerably check the rural depopulation, inasmuch as they will send a lot of ex-members of the Legislature back to the farms.

For the second time in its history West Peterborough has sent a Bradburn to the Legislature.

Major Dalton Johnston, who had been over the top in France, seemed to have no particular difficulty in winning his objective in East Peterborough yesterday against a position that was considered impregnable.

The other day Scotland Yard notified him it had been recovered in a first-class carriage on a train operating between London and Colchester. TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, June 26.—There was rather a heavy run of cattle in yesterday, nearly all off grass. Average quality was not quite up to recent averages, and trading was not so keen as a week agot Buyers, however, found it not so easy to get lower as they had anticipated, particularly for the nice, handy butcher cattle. After considerable naggling, they succeeded in lowering the market about 25c on an average, a little more on some of the big, coarser grass cattle, and a little less on the real choice butcher stuff.

The export trade was moderately active, prices running a little easier, except for a few selected odd cattle.

Fat cows followed the general trend of the market, and were a little easier.

Lambs and calves about 50c easier, calves at $8.50 to $9.50, tops, and lambs, 15c to 15½c; light sheep steady to firm.

Hog market steady at $7.75 f.o.b. local bid price. A little higher for a few hogs outside.

Deceased was born in Cavan Township, County of Durham, and lived there and in Millbrook until about two years ago when the family moved to Peterboro. He was for ten years township clerk and trustee of the Millbrook school.

What were you paying, Madam, for FLOUR ?

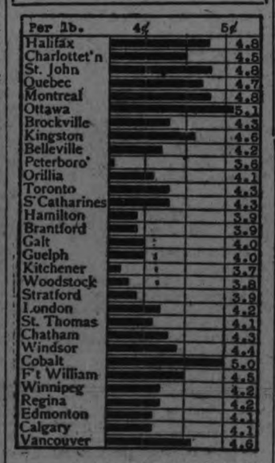
The Department of Labor at Ottawa says these were the average prices for May.



How do prices in your locality compare with other cities? Are you paying more or less than average? These prices are for average good quality "delivered" goods. Watch for the change in this chart next month.

Wherever You Meet Difficulty in the Dark

THE uses for an Eveready Flashlight are innumerable. One of the times you will most appreciate its handiness is when backing a car on a narrow road after dark, or in fixing a tire, or locating engine troubles.

For the motorist the Eveready Spotlight is the most suitable style. It focuses; gives a 300-ft. beam or a wide circle of light for illuminating objects near at hand. A twist of the end cap makes the change.

—and remember to insist upon Eveready Batteries. They give brighter lights and last longer. The new Eveready Unit Cells make it more convenient to keep refills on hand. Made in two sizes only—one or other fits every tubular flashlight.

BOILS

Made Him Sick and Miserable

Mr. Richard Zaienzoski, McLean, Sask., writes:—"I had been suffering continuously, with boils, for three years, and during that time I tried many different remedies without any success whatever. In spite of all my efforts I was compelled to go to the hospital. This was in the Fall of the year, and right in the busiest time of the season. Upon my return home it just took about two weeks until my neck and arms were again occupied by the boils which made me feel very sick and miserable.

One day one of my friends advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and after I had used less than two bottles I was very much surprised at the result.

It is now over two years since I got in touch with B.B.B., and I have had no bother with boils since. I will recommend it to all persons suffering from any defect in the blood."

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Annual Garden Party, St. John's, Ida, Was a Big Success—Personal Mention.

MILLBROOK, June 26.— The well known hospitality of the ladies of St. John's church, Ida, coupled with the fine weather and the good programme provided, made the annual garden party held under the auspices of the church on Friday evening, a most successful event. From about five-thirty p.m cars kept constantly arriving until all available parking space was taken up and when the rector, Rev. Canon Allen, announced that the evening's entertainment was about to begin, everyone's appetite having been abundantly satisfied at the well-laden tea-tables, there was not a vacant seat anywhere within hearing distance in the church grounds. The amusing play, "Bashful Mr. Bobbs" given by the young people of Christ church, Bailieboro, was the main feature of the programme, the problem of lighting the platform which had been erected being satisfactorily solved by the use of spot-light and headlights through the kindness of obliging motor owners.

The play proved to be most entertaining, the fact that it has been given on two previous occasions apparently only adding to the actors' confidence and their popularity with the audience. All acquitted themselves in a very creditable manner, the humorous element being well sustained throughout and the plot lacking nothing in interest until the final clearing up of the whole situation.

The vocal solos of Mr. Percy Preston, of Manvers, between the acts, with the reading by Canon Allen and the brief address of Rev. Mr. Williams, who has recently come to the parish as assistant to the rector, all added to the evening's enjoyment. A well furnished booth on the grounds was constantly patronised during the evening, while the gaily colored balloons floating in all directions showed that the younger element appreciated this feature as an added attraction to the event for them.

The singing of the National Anthem brought the gathering to a close after the usual votes of thanks had been passed, special mention being made by Canon Allen of the kindness of Mr. J. Benson who had kept the people entertained with selections on the victrola while waiting for the final tables to be served before the play could begin. The financial receipts were unusually satisfactory.

The girls of the Wide Awakes C. G.I.T. group gave the programme on review Sunday afternoon in the Methodist Sunday School, June 24, when a "Rainbow Bible Drill" was presented by seventeen of the members. Each girl wore a sash of one of the colors of the rainbow, or a series of the same according to the character represented, and each held a streamer matching her sash in hue all radiating from the open Bible on the desk above the pulpit platform. Over the Bible a large gold star, representing the "Star of Bethlehem" was suspended, rays of light from the five points reaching down to the Bible beneath. The various divisions of the Bible were represented by each grl in turn until every book had been named, and many of the most precious promises, included in the "I Ams" of Christ, had been repeated. Verses illustrating Bible Arithmetic were also given, and suitable musical numbers interspersed the recitation throughout. Those taking part were:

DALTON JOHNSTON IS ELECTED IN THE EAST BY A LARGE MAJORITY

East Peterboro Candidate Is 500 Ahead With Several Polls Yet To Hear From.

STILL GAINING

The first five polls heard from in East Peterborough gave Col. T. Dalton Johnston, the Conservative, majority of 271 over E. N. McDonald, standard-bearer of the United Farmer-Progressives.

The villages were predominantly Conservative, as follows: Majority for Johnston in Havelock, 261; in Lakefield the standing was: (1) Johnston 127, McDonald 53; (2) Johnston 164, McDonald 68, or a total majority in Lakefield of 170.

The Norwood vote was: (1) Johnston, 119, McDonald 53; and at (2) Johnston 132, McDonald 52. Johnston's majority was 135 in Norwood.

The villages were regarded as Col. Johnston's stronghold. He emerged from them with a majority of 596, and going into the country received a majority of 36 at Howson's in Asphodel. Douro was next heard from with 48 for Johnston and 82 for McDonald.

Dummer For Johnston.

Dummer township gave Johnston a majority of 115 votes He had majorities at four of the six sub-divisions. It almost counter-balanced Otonabee's assistance to McDonald.

The first poll from Douro went strong for the U.F.O.-man with 113 to 20, a majority of 93 votes which cut down Johnston's margin to 423.

Twenty-five of the forty-two polls in East Peterboro gave Johnston a majority of 513. Places in Asphodel, Belmont, Burleigh, Chandos and Douro weer still unheard from.

Otonabe township gave McDonald a majority of 197 which reduced Johnstons margin to 401. The results in the Conservative candidate's own municipality were somewhat a surprise from the fact that he cut deeply into the U.F.O. strength. The totals were Johnston 406 and McDonald 633 for the whole township.

CONDITIONS OF CROPS IN WEST ARE EXCELLENT

Fine Growing Weather Last Week Is Responsible For Good Outlook For the Season.

PLENTY MOISTURE.

WINNIPEG, June 26.—(Canadian Press.)— Western provinces have been favored with fine weather during the past week, moisture and sunshine combined have produced excellent growth and the crop outlook is decidedly bright, according to the crop report issued yesterday by the agricultural department, Canadian Pacific Railway.

There is ample supply of winter feed and pastures are in excellent shape. The season has been remarkable so far in that there is little injury to crops by insects.

Manitoba has had excellent crop weather with plenty of moisture. Reports of damage by recent storms indicate crops were only affected at a few points.

Growth has been good, Saskatchewan on all crops seeded in proper season that grain has got well ahead of weeds in districts where these were bad. Grass and pastures are in good condition in the province for this time of year. Gardens and potato crops are looking exceptionally well.

Conditions continue uniformly favorable over the province of Alberta. Crops are making good progress assisted by warm weather and timely rains. Ten per cent. of wheat seeded is in shot blade and the balance is coming to that stage.

On the Edmonton-Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway rain has fallen throughout the entire district and the moisture supply is ample for present needs. An increased acreage over last year is under crop, and wheat acreage is exceeding all previous years.

British Columbia has had ideal weather during the past seven days, the report states and crops are in excellent condition.

Public Now Prefers Vegetable Laxative

Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin affords prompt relief in a natural way

THE public is constantly becoming more discriminating in its choice of things. Those subject to constipation try to learn what makes them constipated, and then avoid it. If constipation persists in spite of all their efforts they take the mildest, most easily tolerated laxative obtainable, and not a drastic physic that upsets them for days afterwards. As over 10 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin are sold a year, a large proportion of the people must believe that this mild vegetable compound is the proper remedy for them, and so it is. No need to take salt waters and powders that dry up the blood; coal-tar drugs in candy form that produce skin eruptions, or calomel that salivates. These drugs are "heroic measures", over-effective, weakening and griping.

The best constipation remedy is the one that moves the bowels without shock to your system, and such a one is Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin. It is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, and has been satisfactorily sold for 30 years. Unlike the harsher physics it does not produce a habit, and increased doses are not required; in fact, it so trains the stomach muscles that in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with.

Many take a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin once a week as a health safeguard. Others use it only when required, as, for example, Mrs. Jack Turtle of Cherry Valley, Ont., who finds it equally valuable for herself and the children, and Mr. H. S. McLaren of Montreal, Que., who uses it regularly. Try Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin in constipation, biliousness, piles, headaches, sallow complexion, and to break up fevers and colds. A generous-size bottle can be had at any drug store, and it costs less than a cent a dose!

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try my Laxative Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 23 Caldwell Building, Toronto, Ont. Do it now!

BRADBURN ELECTED IN WEST PETERBORO BY LARGE MAJORITY

Conservative Candidate Has Majority of 1149 With 4 Polls To Hear From. Trip To Opera House

THE RESULTS

The first poll received by The Examiner shower Bradburn in the lead. It was from Polling Division 17 and gave the following figures: Bradburn 73, Meyers 47, Tooms 41; and the second immediately after was from 11a, another Bradburn lead as follows: Bradburn 99, Meyers 75, and Tooms 16.

The third polling subdivision heard from, No. 8, showed another Tooms' slump, and a Bradburn majority, as follows: Bradburn 64, Meyers 47, Tooms 14.

The first poll to show Meyers in front was the sixth to be heard from, 21a, with results as follows: Bradburn 49, Meyers 73, Tooms 36.

The first out-of-the-city poll to be heard from was 38, Holden's store, which gave Bradburn 75, Meyers 54 ,Tooms 55.

The first seven polls gave the following totals: Bradburn 446, Meyers 418, Tooms 240.

Eleven polls showed Bradburn 788, Meyers 674, Tooms 284, and indicated that Tooms had little chance to win.

The first return was from Brooks store at 332 McDonnel street giving Bradburn a majority of 26 over Meyers and 31 over Tooms. This first break into the column of figures set the pace that was closely followed from the next half dozen polls, all giving Bradburn a lead that began to open out decisively in so far as the count from the city was concerned.

Half-Way Standing.

With twenty-four polls heard from Bradburn showed a total of 1820, 1592 for Meyers and 652 for Tooms.

The complete figures for Ashburnham were as follows:

Bradburn 318
Meyers..... 361
Tooms 221

Bradburn captured three of the subdivisions across the river, and Meyers had the plurality in two of them. One of the polls at Northcote's shop and the single poll at Kylie's store produced slight margins in favor of Meyers. At Kylie's the vote was Bradburn 104, Meyers 128 and Tooms 109.

Bradburn Forging Ahead.

Thirty-one polls had clocked in by seven o'clock, with Bradburn 2,377, Meyers 1,963 and Tooms 989.

Several of the rural sections were included in that standing. Milburn's house in Smith gave Bradburn 60, Meyers 47 and Tooms 124. Up at Higgin's house the return was much the same, with the Drury entry coming out with the big end, while Bradburn was a close second.

Meyers' Committee Rooms.

The first return came through at 6.15, giving at Poll No. 19A, Bradburn 93, Meyers 84 and Tooms 35. With 5 polls heard from, Meyers, it was figured, stood 53 majority up. With 20 polls heard from Meyers stood 175 down, but the committee felt that the worst divisions, so far as their candidate was concerned, had been passed. But at a quarter to 7, with Meyers 656 behind and 33 polls heard from, the committee had given up hope of victory.

The crowd here are taking their departure with perfect good nature, and seemingly find comfort in the thought that the U.F.O.-Labor candidate has apparently met his Waterloo, hoping that the Tooms' crowd will be administered the same trimming all over the province as that accorded the West Peterborough government candidate.

Considering the apparent Liberal and Government landside in the Province, Meyers is congratulated by his workers upon having done exceedingly well by keeping Bradburn's plurarilty down to where it stands.

At 8.45 the workers from Ennismore put in an appearance and were accorded three cheers and a tiger for their part in rolling up Meyers' majority in their own division.

Regarding Ennismore, the opinion is freely expressed that Liberals in that section of the riding simply have not voted commensurate with their strength, although Mr. Meyers scored a majority in that division.

It is figured here that East City gave Meyers a plurality over Bradburn of about 33.

At 8.50 Candidate Meyers entered the Men's Liberal Comite rooms to the accompaniment of hearty hurrahs from his supporters and expressions of party loyalty despite his defeat at the olls today. Thanking his workers from the bottom of his heart for their earnest endeavors in his behalf during the campaign; he attributed his defeat to the roorback circulated Saturday and yesterday that should the Conservatives be elected a return to wet conditions would result. And agains such a handicap in West Peterborough he believed his party and he had done exceedingly well at the polls today. "We must, he concluded take our defat like men and continue to play the game like true Liberals. (Cheers)

In Ennismore, only 282 votes were cast out of an enrollment of 500.

Discussing the unfavorable situation, the opinion was expressed that the liquor vote had proven Candidate Meyers' election downfall, to say nothing of the whispering campaign. At 7.05 it was conceded here that Bradburn was leading by about 450 plurality, with Meyers running second and Tooms third.

With the next series of seven polls Bradburn's majority crossed the one thousand mark He took the whole seven in a row. At the corner of Lock and Lansdowne street the three candidates ran close together in one of the polls, Bradburn getting 68, Meyers 60 and Tooms 57. This was one of the closest brushes in the whole riding.

At Ward's store, corner of Park and Sherbrooke streets, Bradburn scored heavily with 128 to 65 for Meyers and 30 for Tooms. Mrs. Lyle's house on Pearl avenue, clocked in a little earlier than usual, bearing a toll of Bradburn votes. The vote here at 12A was: Bradburn 116, Meyers 92 and Tooms 27.

It was reported that Mr. Tooms was not to be found at either his headquarters in Mayor Taylor's offices or at the Labour Hall.

National Council of Women in Convention.

HALIFAX, N.S., June 26.—(Canadian Press.)— Such keen interest was displayed in the various resolutions and reports discussed at yesterday morning's sessions of the National Council of Women that the president, Miss C. E. Carmichael, was repeatedly forced to remind the gathering of the necessity of observing the time limit on all arguments. The afternoon session was carried out with great despatch and satisfaction, and two reports were presented, that on public health by Mrs. Ninian Smillie, Ottawa, and on mental hygiene by Mrs. Samuel Stead, Halifax. Mrs. Smillie presented a resolution that child welfare work be inaugurated in nineteen twenty-four, which carried without dissent, a resolution presented by Mrs. Stead to the effect that local councils be asked to urge the advisability of having women on boards of all institutions relating to mental hygiene passed with some controversy. Another resolution put forward by Mrs. Stead met with such obstruction that it was withdrawn. It was to the effect that the National Council of Mental Hygeine be called upon to give the national council of women a summary of all the laws in all the provinces relating to the feeble minded.

FLYING COURTS MAKE FOR SPEEDY JUSTICE

Sharp, Quick Action Carries Terror to Evil-doers, and There Are No Delays of the Law.

By CARL D. GROAT

BERLIN, June 26 (United Press).—Taking a leaf out of the history of the middle ages, Germany has introduced the socalled "flying market court" as an aid in its battle against profiteers.

Just as in the days of the knights, these courts are set up at the public marts, the offender is haled before them, and his case is quickly disposed.

These flying courts are striking fear to the hearts of the greedy.

Operating chiefly in the workers' districts, they are proving a distinct aid in rooting out overcharging, short-weighing, failure to mark goods in plain figures and the like.

Regierungsrat Hinkel, chief of the so-called "Wucherabteilung," or profiteering department, o f the police, explained to the writer that these flying courts are intended to supplement the already existing Wucher courts, which deal with larger cases—though more slowly.

"My agents go to the markets daily, and observe what the dealers are charging, whether they have their prices marked plainly, whether they are tricky with their weights and measures," says Hinkel. "If a police agent finds anything wrong, the dealer goes upstairs in the market hall—or out on the corner, if it is an open-air market—to the judge. The judge decides hurriedly. It may be a fine. It may be jail.

"Furthermore, the public can complain and get justice quickly.

"A customer, who hitherto has hesitated about the profiteering courts, because of their slowness, can now hale a dealer into the flying court and have the case tried inside a half hour. Sometimes there is some injustice, but by and large these courts are very fair—and very effective. The dealer who, knows that a court is sitting every day in the permanent market halls—or that one swoops down every little while on the open-air market—is going to be careful about what he charges a customer and how he treats him."

Among many African races there are no words to indicate time.

DEFENDS JAZZ AGAINST ART

One of the Strongholds of the Old School — Book Luncheons.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Jazz, conqueror of the modern era, may give up the notion of gaining complete sway over the populace.

For so long as there is art and literature, there will remain many of the old school even in wicked New York who care more for these than for cocktails and trombones.

One of the strongholds of this old school is Miss Anne Parker Miner's unique book and handicraft salon.

This is a fast growing club with artistic, social and commercial ambitions. Its headquarters is Miss Miner's charming, roomy apartment, right off Fifth avenue in the most fashionable section of New York.

Book Luncheons

"Obviously an author cannot go out in the highways and byways and urge people to read his books. But he should have a chance to be heard, we think," Miss Miner explained to me.

"So we have weekly book review luncheons to which we invite a publisher to send us one of his best authors for a talk. We also ask the publisher to send a consignment of his books so the members may purchase them afterward if they wish. People are always more interested in an author after they have heard him talk."

But this is not all. From literature it is a mere step to handicrafts. Those who make beautiful things with their hands should be able to put them before those who will appreciate them.

"So artists are encouraged to bring their pictures, needleworkers their handwork and culinary artists their choicest jams and cakes," she continued.

Novelties Only

"Naturally we accept only the exceptional, for there would be no object in promoting those things already sold in other shops. We take orders for table linens, lingerie and all things needed for the home."

Children are not overlooked at the salon. They have a special corner in one room piled with attractively bound books, and every Saturday morning entertainments are provided for them showing national costumes, songs, games and folklore of other lands.

Another service offered is a guide to art lectures. Men and women qualified to instruct escort groups to the museums and private collections, where they hear lectures on painting and sculpture.

"We hope to make the salon a center for those interested in any art," Miss Miner concluded. "Our aim to fill a social, intellectual and cultured need."

CUT IN DEATH RATE OF THE WHITE PLAGUE

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., June 26 (United Press).—"The decline in the tuberculosis death rate of the last two decades from over 200 per 100,000 population to less than 100 in the registration area of the United States is in large measure to be credited to the organized campaign against tuberculosis which has been carried on by the official and non-official agencies during this period," said Dr. Louis I. Dublin of New York before the National Tuberculosis Association here at to-day's meeting.

Dr. Dublin maintained that the larger part in the decline of the tuberculosis death rate was due directly to factors under man's control and that with the development of these factors through the anti-tuberculosis and other social agencies, the amount of control over tuberculosis will be greatly increased and the death rate will be subsequently very much lower.

"Not all, but a large part, of the credit for the declining tuberculosis death rate can be assigned to the anti-tuberculosis movement," said Dr. Dublin. "With the continued rise in the level of general intelligence and economic wellbeing, the amount of control over tuberculosis will be increased. What may happen in the future is indicated by the phenomenal drop in the tuberculosis death rate during very recent years when the standard of living among wage earners rose sharply. Better homes, higher real wages, more time for rest and recreation, and intelligence to utilize to the full these helps to better health, have reduced the tuberculosis death rate of the wage-working population after the war. The anti-tuberculosis campaign itself is an index of the higher intelligence and the social conscience which characterizes an advanced civilization."

Mullins For Test

Application of scientific management to public health work was advocated by John A. Kingsbury of New York, who also announced that the Milbank Fund of which he is the director is completing plans to spend between $300,000 and $500,000 annually for the next five years in New York State in co-operation with the health authorities in an effort to reduce the death rate for all causes.

Cattaraugus County has been selected as typical rural and urban area, and Syracuse as a typical city area in which intensive demonstration will be carried on. A district of 200,000 population will also soon be selected in New York City. In these three areas of 500,000 population, the Milbank Fund will carry on the largest and broadest health demonstration ever attempted in the United States. Commenting upon the plans for the demonstration, Kingsbury said:

"In the course of the next five or ten years, in these typical American communities, we shall endeavor to determine the extent to which the general death rate can be further reduced and which diseases must readily yield to the intensive efforts which will be exerted; we shall try to determine whether or not it is possible to practically eliminate certain of these diseases, such as diphtheria and typhoid, and to further substantially reduce the extent of tuberculosis; we shall endeavor to determine what it will cost these typical communities to do a hundred per cent health job. We shall attempt to apply scientific management to public health work."

MEXICANS WORK ON OHIO FARMS

FINDLAY, Ohio, June 24 (Associated Press).—Mexican laborers brought here under contract from Houston, Texas, are being used to cultivate the sugar beet crop of Northwestern Ohio.

The Mexicans were brought in when it appeared impossible to obtain Americans for the work. Approximately three hundred of them are under contract to work in the Ohio and Michigan fields. They will be taken back to their homes in the fall.

MANY FARMS IDLE

HARRISBURG, June 24 (Associated Press).—More than 300,000 acres of farm land remain idle in Pennsylvania this summer, largely as a result of the shortage of farm hands. This total is about ten percent of the total agricultural acreage of the state.

WHY SUGAR MAY COST HOUSEWIFE LITTLE MORE

Acute Situation is Due to Shortage of Raw Material

REDUCED CONSUMPTION NECESSARY TO MEET CASE

Housewives in Montreal, and in fact in any part of Canada, may make up their minds that they are not going to get their sugar supplies this year at any cheaper prices than now prevail, and it may be said that they will probably be paying a little more before the summer rolls by.

The sugar situation is in an acute stage as shown by official statistics, because of the pronounced shortage of the raw material. It is pointed out that at the beginning of the year the world's available supply of sugar was 1,200,000 tons less than at the corresponding time in 1922.

In the face of a world shortage of Sugar and the resulting high prices, LILY WHITE CORN SYRUP comes to the rescue of the housewives of Canada at preserving time.

For LILY WHITE CORN SYRUP means better preserves as well as cheaper preserves. Half sugar and half LILY WHITE CORN SYRUP makes a preserving syrup of the right consistency; that will not "sugar" (or crystallize).

The addition of LILY WHITE brings out the fresh fruit flavours; and gives a better flavour to jams, jellies and preserves. Everything, put up this way, will keep.

It is a sound economy to put up your regular quantity of preserves this year, if you use half sugar and half LILY WHITE CORN SYRUP.

Sold by all grocers in 2, 5, and 10 pound tins.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Calvin Gray, sworn enemy of Colonel Henry Nelson, is living in Dallas at the most expensive hotel. Gray falls in love with Barbara Parker, who buys land for Nelson. The Briskow family, friends of Gray, goes to the mountains, where Allis, the daughter, has a tutor and a dancing master. Attracted by her money and her physical charms the dancing teacher kisses Allis. Enraged at his advances the girl throws the professor out of a window. He lands in a bed of thorns. Mrs. Ring, the tutor, resolves to resign. Allis is in love with Gray.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

"She chucked the dancin' teacher out of a winder?" he repeated, blankly. "What for?"

"Goodness knows, Mr. Briskow! Something he said, or did—I couldn't make out precisely. I found her in a dreadful state, and I tried to comfort her, I did really, but—oh! If you could have heard her! Where she learned such language I don't know. My ears burn! But that isn't the worst; you should hear what—"

"He must of said something pretty low down." Briskow spoke quietly; his bright blue eyes were hard. "I reckon she'll tell me."

"You don't understand," chattered the woman. "She flung the man bodily out of the window and into a bed of thorns. It nearly killed him; he was painfully lacerated and bruised and— Right in the middle of a golf game! It did something dreadful—I don't know what—just as the world's champion caught the ball, or something."

"If he's crippled I'll get him that much easier," said Briskow, and at the purposeful expression upon his weather-beaten face Mrs. Ring uttered a faint bleat of terror. She pawed at him as he undertook to pass her.

"Oh, my heavens! What are you going to do?"

"Depends on what he said to Allis."

The woman wrung her hands. "What people! What—savages! You're going to shoot him, I suppose, just because—"

"I'se'm!" the father nodded. "You got it right, motif an' all. 'Just because'!"

"But it's murder! You—you can't mean it." Moans issued from the speaker. "What ever possessed me to accept this position? It's unendurable, and I'll be involved—"

"I've saw your last raise, Mis' Ring."

"Do you think I'd stay, after this? It's bad enough to be made ridiculous—the whole hotel is in laughter; laughter at me, I dare say, as much as at her. Imagine! Hurling a full-grown man from a window—"

"I don't hear nobody laughing." Briskow swung his head slowly from side to side.

Going directly to the desk, he asked for the manager, then stood aside, hat in hand, until the latter made his appearance. The manager began a hasty and rather mixed apology on behalf of the hotel for what had occurred in the dancing room, but his tone of arrogance was an accusation in itself.

"Very—unfortunate," he lamented. "We haven't heard the last of it, by any means."

"Prob'ly so," the father agreed. "An' I got something to say about it, too. Get that dancin' perfessor off the place quick or I'l kill him."

The manager recoiled; his startled eyes searched Briskow's face incredulously. "I—beg pardon!"

"I 'ain't heard my kid's side of the story yet, but I'm goin' to see her now, so you better get word to that jumpin' jack in a hurry. That is, if you want to save him."

"He is discharged, of course, for we tolerate no rudeness on the part of our employes—or our guests, for that matter; but I believe he is suffering some effects from the shock. I couldn't well ask him to go before—"

"It'll take me prob'ly twenty minutes, talkin' to my girl. That'll give him time, if he moves fast. But I may get through in fifteen."

At the door to his suite Gus Briskow paused to wipe his countenance clean of the expression it had worn for the last few minutes, and when he entered it was with his usual friendly smile. Allie and her mother were waiting; they were white and silent. Gus kissed his daughter before saying:

"Don't worry, honey; he won't bother you no more."

Allie averted her face. Mrs. Briskow inquired, "Did you see the skunk?"

"No. I give him a few minutes to clear out."

"Hadn't we better leave, too?" ventured Allie.

"Oh-h!" In Ma's eyes was such bleak dismay, such a piteous appeal, that Gus shook his head.

"What for? We got nice quarters and your ma likes it here—"

"DUNNO'S I WANT TO STAY AT ALL," GUS MURMURED, ANGRILY.

"They're laughing at me. I heard 'em hollering."

Allie related her experience with Professor Delamater; she told it all up to the burst of shouting that followed her through the lobby. "You should of heard 'em yelling, clapping their hands—I I"—she choked, her voice failed her, miserably she concluded—"I wish to God we'd never struck oil!"

"You're just wore out, dearie," her mother said, comfortingly, and Briskow agreed. He assured her that all would be well.

All was not well, however. The next morning when Gus Briskow was about to leave the hotel as usual—Professor Delamater having departed hurriedly the evening before with fully four minutes of his twenty to spare—he was stopped by the manager, who requested him to give up his rooms. The Texan was bewildered; he could not understand the reason for such a request.

"'Ain't I paid my bills?" he queried.

The manager assured him that he had; he was profoundly regretful, as a matter of fact, but it so happened that the Briskow suite had been reserved early in the season, and the party who made the reservation had just wired that he was arriving that day. He was a gentleman of importance—it was indeed unfortunate—the management appreciated Mr. Briskow's patronage—they hoped he and his family would return to the Notch sometime.

"Mebbe you got some other rooms that would do us," Gus ventured.

It was too bad, but the hotel was overcrowded. Later, perhaps—

Now at that very moment the lobby was filled with tournament golfers who were leaving on the morning train, and Briskow knew it. He studied the speaker with an expression that caused the latter extreme discomfort; it was much the same expression he had worn the night before when he had served warning upon Delamater.

It was with a heavy heart and a heavy tread that Briskow returned to his room. Ma took the announcement like a death blow, for it meant the end of all her dreams, all her joyous games of "pretend." Her mountains—those clean, green, friendly mountains that she loved with a passion so intense that she fairly ached—those and her caves, her waterfalls, her gypsy band, were to be taken from her. She was to be banished, exiled.

As for Allis, she told herself that this was the end. She had tried to make something of herself and had failed. She had crucified herself; she had bled her body and scourged her soul only to gain ridicule and disgrace. There was no use of trying further; Gray had been mistaken in her, and her misery, her shame at the realization was intolerable. There was no facing him, after this. Allie decided to do away with herself.

CHAPTER XV
A Friend in Need

GUS BRISKOW was waiting at the cashier's desk for his bill when the bustle of incoming guests told him that the morning train had arrived. Probably it had brought that "gentleman of importance" to whom the manager had referred.

Briskow's chain of thought was broken by a slap on the back that nearly drove him through the easier's window; then by a loud, cheery greeting. The next moment he found himself actually embraced by—Gus could not believe his eyes—by Calvin Gray!

"Gus! You precious pirate! My, but I'm glad to see you! Ma and Allie are well, I know; they couldn't be other wise here. Great place, isn't it? Nothing in this country or Europe that compares with it, and I've sent dozens of my friends here. I came north on business and couldn't bear to go back without seeing you. Come! Give me a welcome, for I've traveled across three states to get here."

The two stood hand in hand. Gray beamed approvingly. Gus, too, was smiling, but earnestly he said, "I'm right glad to see you, Mr. Gray, for we're in trouble."

In greater detail Briskow made known the facts. When he had finished his halting recital Calvin Gray's face was flushed with anger, there was a dark frown between his eyes.

"We'll see!" he muttered. "Wait here—or go back and tell Ma to commence unpacking." Then he was gone.

For perhaps ten minutes Gus waited nervously; he was amazed finally to see Gray approaching arm in arm with the manager; both were laughing, the hotel man's face was radiant with good humor. To the departing guest he said, genially:

"You are not going to leave us, after all, Mr. Briskow. On the contrary, we are going to keep you at the Notch as long as you'll stay. Stupid misunderstanding on my part, and I apologise. I'm going to ask you to move, but into a better suite—the very best one we have. And the rate will be the same. Come! What do you say?"

"Dunno's I want to stay at all," Gus murmured, angrily. "We ain't no better 'n we was a half hour ago."

"To be sure, but I've made you better known," said Gray. "You are too shy; you didn't afford my friend here the pleasure of making your acquaintance, and I had to tell him the sort of person you really are. Serves you right, Gus, for being so exclusive. Gad! I think I'll give you a few lessons in democracy. Now then, come along! I'm dying to see Ma."

As the father trotted down the hall beside his swiftly striding deliverer, he gasped, "How'd you do it?"

A Little of Everything

PENALTY

There'll be 30 murders committed in the United States today—if today is just an average day without the periodical flare-up of killing. Ten thousand or more a year Fear of the electric chair and hangman's noose should act as brakes on murder, but they don't seem to. Probably because all murders are committed in insane moments.

Sixteen of our states—one out of three—do not have capital punishment. More important than the wrangle about capital punishment is the promiscuous sale of pistols, especially by mail order. That's the place to strike, to check murders. Disarm the criminal. Let householders have rifles and sawed-off shot-guns. These cannot be carried concealed through the streets by thugs.

HEART

A cure for the dread heart disease, angina pectoris, seems to be in sight. Dr. K. F. Wenckebach of the medical clinic in Vienna tells about it—much research work, two successful operations.

Heart surgery is the newest thing in medicine. Who knows but what future generations will have defective hearts repaired as the mechanic now overhauls the auto motor?

Most wonderful, possibly, of all things on earth is the human heart. Most of us abuse it—overspeed our engine. Good plan to lie down for 20 minutes occasionally, especially after exertion. When you stand, the heart pumps blood upward the full length of your body. Lying down, the blood lift is slight, like water flowing through pipes.

MILLIONAIRES

Business is getting more profitable in most lines. The rich man is having another inning. He has them often. A better showing this year than in 1921, when only 21 individuals and corporations had an income of a million dollars or more.

The tax man makes a big hole in the million-dollar income. (Most of us would be glad to be able to have to pay it.)

Out of every 1000 Americans, only 63 pay income tax. How many should pay, but dodge? Conservative estimate, 100.

EDISON

Thomas A. Edison's youngest son, Theodore, graduates from Boston 'Tech.' He doesn't care for radio. Mind runs to mathematics and applied science. Never tried to invent anything except a war device for cutting a wide swath through barbed wire entanglements.

However, his pa—greatest living inventor—did enough creative work for the whole family for 10,000 years to come. Heredity is queer, isn't it—things we inherit and things we don't?

MOY BOCK HAN

Richest Chinese in America, Moy Bock Han of Portland, Ore., is traveling around the country raising money to start schools in China. He is phenomenally unlike the average "raiser," in that he chips in $150,000 himself.

Mr. Moy looks quite a bit like the elder John D. Rockefeller did before he lost his hair. We would pay $10 admission to see the two match wits in a business deal.

WINE

You may have noticed that not as many cellars are lighted up, late at night, as last year or the one before. Less home-brew is being made. "Too much fuss and nuisance, not worth the bother." The wine crop, vintage of 1923, will be scant.

Prohibition is "getting" us gradually, all right. It'll take time—20 to 30 years, we believe, was the "bone-dry" estimate of some goverment experts when prohibition was written into the national law. By the way, have you been keeping an eye on some of the old soaks who, too wise to drink bootleg poison, have crawled on the wagon?

ADVICE TO MOTORISTS

WASHINGTON, June 26 (United Press).—Motor tourists were warned today by the National Motorists' Association to be on guard this summer against more than usually strict enforcement of road laws by local authorities.

Fred Caley, executive secretary of the association who has just completed a tour of a number of states, warned that motorists must expect to meet with petty injustices from minor officials unless they scrupulously avoid the slightest infraction of traffic laws.

"Make sure you have your operators' certificate with you; that your headlight lenses conform with the law, and that your speedometers are accurate," Caley advised.

Connecticut, Caley reports, will be particularly strict this year in enforcing the law against motorists who do not take out a state license within the time allowed by law.

Massachusetts is strictly enforcing the law regarding taillights, which are required to conform to certain denite regulations.

The practice of "shaking down" motorists who through ignorance fail to comply with some state law will continue, Caley warned today, as long as present lack of uniformity in automobile laws continues. A model highway law covering all the main features of traffic control, including speed, weight of vehicles, tires, etc., will be sought by the association.

Where White Men Go Slowly Mad From "Liver Trouble"

-By William Ashley Anderson
ILLUSTRATED BY WILL CRAWFORD

Mad Tragedy Jostles Farce in Spicy Bazaars of Zanzibar —Islands Like Jade On Sky-Blue Velvet —Blood-Crazed Sepoys.

Adventures being to the adventurous, Mr. Anderson finds shivers and laughter, greys and purples, in the Rome of Africa, in his third article. Next week "trek" with him through the land of Rider Haggard's "She."

THE life of the bazaar is a peculiar thing. To the philosopher it is mostly very broad human comedy; but occasionally there is presented some tragic circumstance, violent and inexplicable, that leaves a lingering memory of color and flame and troubled questioning. The inexplicable fascinates but never satisfies.

For instance, two sepoys, coming away from Beyt-el-Ajaib, the palace of the Sultan of Zanzibar, struck by a sudden madness turned into the bazaar. At the shop of Damoder Jerab they found the inoffensive Khoja manager sitting on a stool, calm and contented. One of the sepoys calmly raised his rifle and shot the unsuspecting man in his fat stomach. . . .

Instantly the bazaar was in a quivering panic. Shutters went up with a clatter; the brass-studded doors closed with muffled bangs; and all in the alleys scampered to shelter like frightened rabbits. A wet Banian—brother of beasts and bugs, who would have thought is as great a crime to kill a rat as his own grandmother—trying to slip unseen down a dark, moist, alleyway, palpitating with terror, was discovered by the sardonic gaze of the sepoy, and a second bullet flew. It struck the Banian in the chest, and knocked him with a faint whisper into a muddied drain.

Killing Madness

THERE were stirrings, whisperings, choked cries, tinkle of silver and rattle of brasses behind the dark walls. In an instant the narrow, wet alleyways were deserted save for a few old men and women, too stunned to move quickly, and some children, lost in the swift panic. Four women, coming to an upper window to look down into the stirring bazaar, made a pretty, colorful picture under a Byzantine arch with a drab background. They were terrified with anxiety for their children; but one of the sepoys' bullets scattered them all like bits of bright plumage.

Ali Bhanji, who was of course at hand, saw his child in the street and rushed out to draw him to safety just as another small boy, seeing all doors closing about him, flung himself against Dharsey's great brass-studded portal, crying out:

"Mohammed Ali Dharsey, open the door! Open the door, Mohammed Ali Dharsey! Help me! Open the door! . . ."

While the little fellow beat frantically at the black, carved door, behind which the merchants wrung their hands helplessly, the sepoy turned with a flashing smile and shot him.

Kept Bullet Apiece

WHEN the two sepoys had expended their ammunition, except for a bullet apiece, they went on a short distance, conversing calmly together, till they came to a convenient barasa at the door of a shop kept by an old woman. They told her to shut her door, and when she had done this and the street was clear, sitting down a short distance apart, they raised their rifles and fired simultaneously at each other, both falling mortally wounded . . . So these two hillmen, born and reared in some remote hamlet perhaps on the snowy slopes of the Himalayas, when the blood madness came upon them, found their deaths in the streaming bazaars of Zanzibar . . .

"Phew," said Ali, mopping his brow as he finished giving me his version. "How very near you not can able make business to-day! Suppose I deaded! No broker, no shauri! Eh, bwana? . . ."

Zanzibar Town is the great metropolis of the East Coast. It is Rome to the dusky pilgrim; it is Paris to the reckless wanderers, from the Bantu folk of Cape Delgado to the sons of the corsairs of Oman. Its clubs; its coffee shops, its cinemas; its dark, arched rooms, where dusky belles from India, Arabia, the Somali Coast and Zanzibar giggle and shrill and dance monotonous dances; its spreading mango trees under whose shelter the torches burn and the tom-toms beat the measure of night-long ngomas; its shops tumbling with riches of roughly carved ivory and ebony, or hammered Cingalese silver and gems! its bazaars, gaudy with cheap cloth—kikoys, hodrunks, kanzas, bright with prints of flags and ships and emblems of royalty; the great ships lying in its roads, pouring into the lap of black Africa the increasing luxuries of Europe; the dhows bearing commerce from the Persian Gulf, the Seychelles, and Madagascar—all, all and more, contribute to the renown and lure of Zanzibar.

Metropolis of the East Coast

WHETHER it is a Hindu wedding glistening with tinsel, colored lights, and mock armor, with frightened boy bridegrooms and smug, patronizing sire, or a visit to the great Mahometan club in a grove of mangoes by a beach on the outskirts of town, where adolescent Hindus ape the manners of Eton and Harrow on the cricket pitch,—"Oah, well played, sare! Bowled! Bowled, sare!"—or an expedition with Mahomet, darting in and out among the stately dhows from Muscat looking over likely bargains in teakwood tonnage, or some adventurous guest down dark, whispering alleys at night with a companion still rolling on his sea legs—each page contained a new story for me. But always the moral was the same, and the moral was Ixion's:

"Adventures are to the Adventurous."

Steaming into Zanzibar harbor, we came on deck for a glimpse of the town, congested, inchoate, tumbled like a lot of concrete blocks on the dazzling coral beach and into the lime-like waters. The Sultan's palace, as ugly as a Saratoga hotel, obtruded itself near the centre, while dirty little alleyways ran down to the beach, where they emptied their filth into the sparkling waters among a flotsam of tatter-sail dhows coasting from village to village with cargoes of berities, makanda mats, cloves, coral blocks, and copra. A few broad-verandaed piles hung over the sands, while right and left a skyline of palms, thrust above a solid dark green base, indicated the rich, tropical verdure that is characteristic of this isle of spice and romance.

Zanzibar's Beauty

TO seaward some tiny islands were scattered like bits of polished jade upon a tray of ruffled, stained, sky-blue velvet; while in the offing the skeleton of a wreck bleaching on its rack of jagged coral gave the lie to the music of the waves whispering and licking about it.

I looked quizzically at my companion.

"No fear," he said wearily. "I'm fed up with niggers. I want to see nothing between here and Durban. My soul is satisfied with what it's seen of black Africa. Besides," he added plaintively, "there's nothing here but spice and pestilence."

With this ringing in my ears I went overboard and sought the shore alone, since no one had come to meet me.

Aden, from which I had but recently departed, is a man grown gaunt and rugged in honest strife; but Zanzibar is a courtesan whimsical, gay, sullen, presenting many aspects. Warm, rich, beautiful, concealing with dissembling art its sinister spots, it lavishes its charms, intoxicates with its beauty, smothers with its opulence; or, suddenly, after a smoldering silence, it rends itself with rage. The screaming tornado rips its garments of verdure to tatters, bony-fingered pestilence goes leering down its dark alleyways, fever shakes the life out of its victims. And afterwards, the bright sun sparkles upon the rain-washed foliage, and the island smiles again with the innocent radiance of a maiden.

I cleared the customs, pushing my way through a polyglot collection of Oriental and East Coast natives; and, followed by my dazed Lamu boy shouldering my bag, I plunged straight into the maze of narrow, slimy, steamy alleyways that form the thoroughfares of Zanzibar Town.

Air Heavy With Spices

THE great concrete piles of ancient Arab structures bulked overhead, closing together in places to form clumsy arches. Fronds of palms, ambitious shoots, luxuriant creepers, dripping with moisture, struggled upward to the light. The air was heavy with the rich, sweet smell of copra and the spicy tang of cloves. In and out of the huge carved doors and along the stone-paved alleys, bland Khojas, wet-looking Hindus, and Parsis, carrying umbrellas and lifting their flimsy trousers or draggling hodrunks from the slime, made their way from office to office on strange errands. Hamal carts, pushed and banged and bullied along by half-naked, sweating, singing, swearing Swahilis, filled the air with noise and confusion. Bicycle bells jangled as irritable Goanese rounded unsuspected corners; birds whistled and shrieked from the housetops; and the muffled rattle of typewriters added a staccato to the concert. Amid this confusion I came to a black, richly carved door set in a vast moldy wall pierced with iron-barred rifle ports, and recognized in this my factory and my castle.

A solemn black doorkeeper, in white kanza and red tarbush, arose at my approach and pushed open the door; and I ascended a long, dark flight of stairs through an atmosphere stifling with the odor of spices. Half way up, these stairs gave access to my future offices, and higher still to the spacious living quarters overhanging the coral beach and looking out upon the harbor.

"Ali's sister presented a lovely picture."

It was a busy day.

The Spice Trade

FROM dark, hidden chambers underneath came the sound of rushing feet, bursts of shrill laughter, and uproar of tumbling reed sacks of cloves and copra, the singsong chant of the tally-clerks, panting songs; from the beach, shouts of the boatmen swinging their barges close to the shore; and from the open bay the distant rattle of winches as the gluttonous ships gorged themselves with spices. The office presented a flurried aspect of scattered invoices and bills of lading, perspiring Parsis, and harried Banian clerks bending desperately over typewriters; while the factor, a bland little Cockney, hopped about with innocuous energy, playing the role of Director of the Universe.

I gave him my salaams, told him my intentions, and left him to revel in his monopoly of the American spice trade, while I retired to the seclusion of the spacious veranda overlooking the "most costly roof in East Africa," and with a woven palm basket of juicy fruit by my side, stretched myself blissfully in a long Indian chair, and smiled at the recollection of parched Aden.

"Forty Goes of Fever"

BUSINESS did not immediately engross me. Certain events had transpired to fill me with a passing cynicism. But I delighted in watching the ambitious little factor outdoing himself for my edification.

He snatched control of the clove market; he reeked of copra; he purchased a small fleet of dhows for the navigation of Victoria Nyanza; he conjured tonnage out of empty seas; he went so far as to imagine himself into a fortune based on the sale of beche-de-mer to the Chinese epicures of New York and Frisco; and, at last, he disappeared mysteriously in a small boat for the mainland, swamp and jungle. I ran across him a year later, twittering over new plans, despite his black-water fever.

He was disappointed at the lack of interest shown in his dramatic departure; but this momentary cloud faded rapidly behind a flash of new interest.

"Had forty goes of fever! They expect me to die, you know!"

I didn't expect him to die. I knew he wouldn't. I hope to hear of him some day cornering the oyster crop to foster the walrus industry of Baffin's Bay. . . . .

The humorous element in his departure, I must say, had been aggravated at the time by a good deal of irritation at the position in which I was left; for I was obliged to fill in nearly all my time with work, worry, and gusts of giddiness. Ships ceased calling; the "most costly roof in East Africa" converted itself into a sieve; and the little rains came on in great floods, soaking through the roof as though through sugar, and pouring in upon ten thousand bales of precious spices; while a plague of rats gnawed gaping holes in every carefully weighed sack; and I began to wake to ghostly silences at night, and hear whispers in the chamber, and the waves sneering malevolently on the beach, and the stiff palm fronds cracking their knuckles, and little gusts of rain pattering over the corrugated-iron roofs and spitting in my face.

All Bhanji, The Stevedore

THIS was not good for me. One of my predecessors had gone through something similar, and he ended by wincing with physical pain every time a wave broke on the beach, and at every step forward imagined that the earth was caving in before him. Neuralgia succeeded insomnia, and insomnia succeeded neuralgia; so eventually they had to send him touring all over the world to find a place where he could sleep.

Suddenly I was tickled with a sense of the ridiculous, and the world grinned back. So I proceeded to become acquainted with my assistants and hamals.

The clove broker was a black-bearded Khoja, soft in speech, courteous in manner, and very clever in his dealings. He wore a long black coat, soft, floppy white linen trousers, sandals, and an umbrella; and he took a fatherly interest in my welfare, dragging me forth to peer in darksome godowns where pungent cloves were heaped in hillocks twenty-five feet high. Breathing mysterious trade secrets and exuding cloves from every seam and fold of his voluminous garments, he drifted into the office like a dark, brooding cloud touched with bits of sunshine, and never came unwanted nor stayed too long . . .

Ali Bhanji, who scoured the steaming bazaars in the interests of Manchester looms, was also a Khoja, but of a different sort. Ali was bumptious. Ambition boiled within him. Dumpy and Napoleonic (save that he chewed alternately a stained moustache and betel nut packed in lime), he cluttered up and down the stairs twenty times a day, every time presenting a different countenance. Frenzied with some petty anxiety, bursting with pride over some clever stroke, silly silent over a maturing plan, chuckling at the latest bon mot of the cloth bazaar, breathing a forbidden rumor with nervous dread and delight, he filled each passing day with novelty and inspiration. Claiming me as his property, he dragged me into the bazaars to smoke sweet cigarets with Banians; tell fabulous yarns to Khojas, sip coffee with Arabs, and pass the time of day with almost every chance—met Zanzibari. Beaming benevolently, his pock-marked face radiating good will, he would say persuasively:

Seething Slave Market

"AH, here is the house of Jan Hansraj! Oh, how many times Jan Hansraj, he say, 'You come my house!' What you think, bwana?" And in another moment I would find myself steered into the presence of young Jan Hansraj, squatting over coffee and exchanging compliments and yarns with him.

Now here was romance that most folk would have passed, unknowing, by; for Jan Hansraj's father financed Tipoo Tib; and Tipoo Tib was the great Zanzibar Arab who fought over and conquered, in his search for ivory (white and black), all that vast territory which stretches from the head waters of the Congo and the Nile to the waters of the Indian Ocean between Cape Delgado and Mogadishe. This Tipoo Tib was the chief support and guide of Stanley in his perambulations about Central Africa; and prime factor in the rescue of Emin Pasha, who was reluctantly obliged to abdicate from the inner Soudan when Gordon was waiting with cynical amusement the fate that engulfed him at Khartoum.

So the tales I heard nonchalantly spoke, between weaving wreaths of cigaret smoke and over cardamom-flavored coffee, of white ivory and black, of piratical dhows and sinister court intrigues, of the seething slave market around the corner and the great safaris that gathered at Bagamoyo on the mainland across the way, and vanished into the heart of the Black continent for twelve and fourteen years at a stretch—these tales were such as you hear over narghilehs amid the babble of the bazaar, but can never, never remember to repeat in prose.

I saw much of the tangled, slimy, tawdry, teeming bazaar in Ali's company. He was a good tutor, omitting nothing, as might a finicky Parsi, anxious not to offend a sahib's nice taste or corrupt his own. He jibbered, and grunted, and nodded his head solemnly or grinned maliciously, and initiated me in all the mysteries. Once he even took me to look at his sister, though I promised to pretend I saw nothing. Down an alley in the tin bazaar we passed a certain shop.

"There, bwana, look! It is she!"

Beauty and Mire

SQUATTING on the floor near the door of the shop, with a nearly naked baby, tubby and tattered with tinsel and baubles, tumbling about her, Ali's sister presented a lovely picture. Her complexion was warm and delicately glowing; her hair, black and smooth, seemed to glisten with life; while her large eyes gazed with abstraction down the tempting thoroughfare. There was about her an air of pensive melancholy, of unrest, of suppressed fire, that was tempered and rendered beautiful by the cold cameo fineness of her features, the undisturbed tranquillity of her pose.

Ali twitched nervously at my elbow, no doubt regretting his indiscretion, and I passed on, wondering at the destiny that left such genuine beauty to grow up in darkness in the back alley of a bazaar—to rear brown brats whose whole object in life would be to sell shoddy cloth, bits of tins and sweetmeats, and to haggle shrilly over pice.

Never was there a tedious moment from the hour of singing dawn when I awakened to the greeting of the dusky damsels who brought the water for my bath, their broad splayed feet flip-flopping on the stone floor, their eyes rolling under the dripping vessels poised on their kinky heads, the great red and yellow buttons in their stretched ears gleaming against vast expanses of brown skin, their colored bodrunks drawn tight about their swaying bodies, and their betel-stained gums showing in broad grins as each called in turn:

"Jambo, bwana! Peace, master! Jambo! Jambo! Jambo!"

The 7,000 Rupee Fish

ONE day I saw a small fish, which a fisherman had sold for seven pice, retailed for seven thousand rupees because it was discovered that Allah had inscribed its scales with a sacred phrase from the Koran! On the edge of the town broad, palm-fringed football fields are littered with youths in many-colored garbs like chips upon a green baize table; and under the protection of a grove of palms there rises a canvas temple reared for the great god of Mirth.

Every night within this temple—where gather wrinkled Arab sailors from Muscat or Madagascar or red-faced, burly English sailors from where the Severn flows; black askaris from the Ulogoro hills; bearded sepoys from the Punjab; hilarious Tommies from Battersea; precise Parsis in linen-dusters, with round varnished hats; squatting, half-naked Hanians with loin-cloths tucked between their knees; Genoese dressed like mid-Victorians and speaking Portuguese; Swahilis in red tarbushes and white kanzas and immeasureable grins across their black faces; natives of Seychelles; aboriginal Wahadimu; Khojas; and Japanese; old, young, and middle-aged, their children, all, all wait with the same emotions the coming of the god. And the high priest, standing on a chair, waves for silence.

He is sightless in one eye, his cratered face indicating that smallpox was to blame. Old blue-and-white striped pantaloons and well-worn sandals, a discarded tweed waistcoat, a dirty, badly rolled turban, set him off and lend dignity to the impressively raised hands as he makes his announcements in a cracked voice in four languages, ending with Kis-swahili and English:

"Juma-na-moja, watu wote watacuja hopa! Shahli Shaplin! Cheka-cheka-cheka! Satterday night, Larf-larf-larf-larf!"

And the babble of languages suddenly becomes harmony. Each understands all; and all understand to the depths the great roar that shakes the temple walls when a figure—mainly boots, a stick, a little bowler hat, a moustache, and a vitalizing spark—suddenly appears on the wall, trips, and lands on its chin amid Californian scenery.

This is the common meeting ground for all the world.

The man I most liked was Hadji Mahomet bin Ali, a pure-blooded Arab from the Yeman. There was no compromise about the Hadji; he had a solid, downright character, bluff, direct manner, formed his opinions after brief consideration, and acted with decision. He was an hamal contractor, engaged in supplying stevedores, hamals, and women to sort and clean cloves and copra, drag the stuff in carts from end to end of the town, load it in barges, and stow it in the holds of the big ships swinging in the roads. To carry on this work successfully, he had to have keen perception, initiative, and a profound knowledge of the native laborer.

Often at night when the "most costly roof in East Africa" suddenly became porous under a beating rain, threatening the destruction of thousands of sacks of cloves, I would send a messenger—old, black, bear-eyed Belalli, in a nightgown, sandals and red tarbush, Belalli, a pensioner, and once about the best ivory expert on the Black Continent—I would send him searching for Mahomet bin Ali, scurrying through the drenching downpour as anxious over the cloves as a parvenu over a string of pearls. Presently into the darkness of my room would come the Hadji, silent and grave, his black beard dripping moisture, his smouldering eyes steady under the sopping turban, the hilt of his dagger gleaming with the wet.

"Maharabah!" he would greet me. "What is the trouble now, effendi?" And within twenty minutes the big godowns would be reverberating with the shout and songs of coolies struggling in the glow of huge blazing lights to clear the threatened cloves.

Tales of Old Bagdad

WHENEVER I ran into the Hadji at the clove market, I spent many pleasant moments with him discussing the world and its people. Looking through the overflowing godowns out to the open bay where the great three-masted teakwood dhows congregated from every corner of the Indian Ocean, and the rusted iron steamships, worn with trafficking, tugged wearily at their chains, and the small battered fishermen's craft and outriggers from the mainland drifted about like chance-blown autumn leaves, we swung our heels under a hamal's cart and let the world pass in review.

We both knew Arab and Jewish traders in Aden and along the Somali coast, and had dealings with Parsi merchants of Bombay. Mahomet had been a veritable Sinbad, and told his tales as the story-tellers of old Bagdad told theirs:

"There lived in the Hedjas a merchant who was my uncle; and when I was a boy, my father sent me to him to undertake a trip to Mogadishe. This voyage we carried camels to trade with the Somalis for goats, hides, bullocks, gum copal, kart, or whatever else might offer a profit in Aden or Medina.

"You have not been to Muscat? I myself went there on my fourth trip, to purchase dates and rugs.

"Ah, effendi, I thought I had traveled. But you, you who are half my age, have seen twice as much."

The Old Days are Passing

I SUGGEST deprecatingly: "One may travel far and see nothing; while another, sitting in his shop door, sees all the world pass before him. To travel does not always mean to learn, Hadji."

"By Allah, that is true. Look!"

And he indicates a little, weary, home-sick group, squatting by the shelter of a wall, gazing out to sea, or stealing curious glaces at the all-important Indians and the black Swahilis shuffling and lounging past. They are Arabs from Oman, three youths and a girl. She is unveiled and has the wild, clean-featured beauty of the desert, with large, liquid eyes, and a skin that is warm and fresh; while the youths, comely and lithe, are plainly anxious to be off again. One glance tells us they have come in a dhow from the Persian Gulf, picking their way among the stars across the waste of the Indian Ocean, trusting to Allah and every chance wind that blew.

Envy rises in me. I, too, should like to sail those seas, master of my dhow, and a plaything of the winds—to take my chance with Kismet on the open seas, while my heart leaped with life, and my togue sang songs as old as Hafiz:

"By Allah! wild with love I flame; And he who loves is ne'er to blame!

Drink, mahabubie, drink!"

I suggest this to the Hadji, and he smites his thigh: "Allah! Allah! We will do this, effendi! You and I, we will."

Prosaic Modern Times

OH, the nights of Zanzibar—wild nights, weird nights, nights full of charm and harmony!

The old days are passing when an adventure in the dark bazaars ended often in the "hough!" of a dagger struck home, the thud of a falling body, the broken sigh of a defeated soul. It may still end so; but the intriguing mind finds other distractions, and long-cloaked figures crowned in high red tarbushes keep the law within radius of the glow of archlights. Besides there are sufficient diversions beyond the certain walls and the divans of the gamblers—the coffee stalls sell pink and yellow sodawater, bottled by Hindus; electric lights make bright spots about the sukhs where farmer and fishermen swinging to their oars, the call of bugles across the waters, a banging of doors and bolts, and little bursts of shrill laughter from the women in the godown below; and Ali, apologetic because of his big foot, bearing a tray of pineapples, oranges, bananas, and mangoes, still cool with the dew of night—all indicate dawn, and another day.

CAMPBELLFORD ELECTORS HAD A REAL SHOCK

Major J. F. B. Belford Had No Trouble Winning His Seat in East Northumberland.

HOW VOTE WENT

CAMPBELLFORD, June 26.—When the returns were received from the four polling places in Campbellford, showing that the Conservative majority of four years ago had been reduced from 608 to 253, the Progressives were almost certain that their candidate, Wesley Montgomery, was elected. Later reports from the townships, however, revived the hopes of the supporters of Major Belford and at eight o'clock, Mr. Montgomery, from his home in Brighton, conceded the election of his opponent by a majority of at least 300. At the headquarters of the Conservative party the Major's mapority was estimated at over 600.

The vote in Campbellford was as follows:

	Belford.	Montgomery.
Ward 1	195	179
Ward 2	153	114
Ward 3	213	137
Ward 4	184	62
	745	492

Majority for Belford, 253.

In Seymour Township.

The majorities in the eight polling sub-divisions in the Township of Seymour were as follows:

	Belford.	Montgomery.
Seymour West .	—	27
Conley's.	15	—
English Line . .	14	—
Merrie.	2	—
Pethrick's	—	31
Forks	39	—
Meyersburg . . .	7	—
Trent Bridge . .	53	—
	130	58

Majority for Belford, 72.

In the election of 1919, Alex. Hume, the Conservative candidate, whose home is in Seymour, led Wesley Montgomery in that township by 152 votes. Montgomery's majority in the riding four years ago was 87.

Getting in the Returns.

The returns from the province were received by all three parties, although the Liberals did not have a candidate in the field. The final bulletin at 11 o'clock gave the results in 88 of the 111 constituencies: 65 seats for the Conservatives, 7 for the Government, 14 for the Liberals and 2 Independents.

The results were probably as much of a surprise to the Conservatives as to the Progressives, the most sanguine member of the former party not looking for such a landslide.

Secret Negotiations For Rhineland State.

LONDON, June 26. — (Canadian Press).—Premier Baldwin, answering a question by Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor Opposition, said in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon that his attention has been called to a report of secret negotiations between the French High Commissioner in the Rhineland and German citizens regarding attempts to create a separate Rhineland State, but the Government had no knowledge as to the authenticity of the report. It did not intend to make representations to France on the subject, he added.

Lord Astor Charges U.S. is Misrepresented.

LONDON, June 26. — (Canadian Press).—Lord Astor, speaking yesterday before a charity association on the subject of prohibition, said that ever since the United States had inaugurated its great experiment, the British liquor trade had been carrying on propaganda against the United States.

He objected to the deliberate attempts to misrepresent everything associated with the United States. It was a tragic thing that while anti-British propaganda in the United States had ceased, people were working in Great Britain to misrepresent the attitude and actions of the United States.

Lord Astor charged that the liquor trade in Great Britain had a powerful political organization which was determined to turn Lady Astor out of public life.

Mexico Allows U.S. Special Privileges.

LONDON, June 26.— (Canadian Press.)—The statement was made in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon by one of the members that United States citizens were allowed to enter Mexico without passports, and the same privilege was asked for Britons. Ronald McNeill, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, replied that he had no official information on the subject, but believed that such local arrangements between the United States and Mexico existed. The British Government, however, was not prepared to ask for a similar concession, as that would lead to a demand for reciprocity, which could not be accorded.

BONAR LAW IMPROVING.

7 WERE KILLED AS ELEVATED CARS CRASHED

Left Tracks and Crashed to the Street at Brooklyn's Busiest Traffic Intersection.

SIGNALS CHANGED.

NEW YORK, June 26 (Canadian Press).—Seven persons were killed and 45 injured yesterday when two wooden cars plunged from a Brooklyn elevated structure into the Borough's busiest traffic intersection. The two-car train, well filled with an early afternoon crowd of women, children and a few men, jumped the rails, ripped through rotted guard beams, tottered on the edge of the structure while hundreds of passersby stood spellbound in terror, and pancaked on its side to the pavement, a mass of splintered debris.

Carrying with it a mesh of electric trolley wires, the train hurtled to the pavement amid spurts of blue flame and crackling wire. As screams of the pinioned passengers, many of them transfixed by jagged sections of broken wood, rose above the crash, flames shot from underneath the cars and drove back the pedestrians who ran to the scene.

The driver of a delivery truck, the radiator of which had been caught under the falling train, rose white and trembling from his seat, burst into tears and staggered away. Two women, shaking as if with palsy, their faces bleeding from cuts, climbed out of the wreck and walked after him.

Within a few minutes a dozen pieces of fire apparatus and police patrols had broken their way through a cordon of several hundred bystanders. A score of ambulances arrived as the firemen fought to choke off the flames, the work interrupted intermittently by fear of injuring screaming women begging to be extricated.

Policemen, ambulance internes and employes of the railway, wielding axes feverishly, extricated one after another of the victims. Two hours of continuous hacking at the smoking, jagged mass of splintered boards which has been railway cars, were required to clear the wreckage of the bodies of the living and dead.

Edward Parcell, motorman of the train, who escaped without a scratch, was arrested, charged with homicide, after he had been questioned for more than an hour by Police Inspector Coughlin.

While hundreds of employes with fifty wreckage cars removed the debris which was stretched for fifty square yards on the pavement, Mayor Hylan, District Attorney Dodd, Gerhardt Dahl Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Company, which operated the train, and the police, started inquiries into the cause of the accident.

The Mayor and District Attorney, after inspecting 25 yards of ties which had been ripped to splinters by the crash, announced their opinion that the loss of life had been caused by faulty construction.

"I am convinced," said the Mayor, "that the accident was caused by a defective truck leaving the tracks and crashing through a rotten guard-rail which, if good, should have prevented the fall to the pavement. The present guard rails are 30 years old. The cars are from 35 to 40 years old."

Mr. Dodd declared that the guard rails were nothing but a mass of matchwood and had long outlived their usefulness. All the officials agreed that the accident had had its inception at a switch, fifty feet beyond which the train had plunged to the street.

Although Parcell, the motorman, asserted that he had seen the switch turn to green, giving him right of way, the switch was turned to red after the accident. The Mayor openly charged that it had been tampered with after the crash.

The accident took place shortly after two o'clock. The train, of the Fifth Avenue Line, carrying for the most part women shoppers to the center of the city, was coasting along the straight piece of track to the station at the Long Island Railway Station, the busiest traffic intersection in Brooklyn.

Scores of pedestrians were walking under the elevated structure and two motor cars were underneath. Passersby declared they saw the first car "skip," topple, hang over the edge for a few seconds, then both cars turned on their sides and crashed to the street. Two passengers in a motor car were buried uuder the falling cars and killed instantly.

Parcell, the motorman, declared that about 20 feet before he reached a trailing switch controlling a connection between East and Westbound tracks, he felt a sag and bump.

"I was coasting at the time," he said, "I put on the emergency brake and it did not hold. The switch had been green and had given me a clear headway so I looked back to discover what was the matter.

"Then, suddenly, I heard the ties and guard rails splinter and the car went over the side of the structure in a nose dive. A few feet from the tracks I felt it catch and then both cars went over on their sides, that saved me. They pulled me out of my box."

Other witnesses declared that another train had passed the switch safely four minutes before the crash.

Within a short time after the accident several thousand people had gathered and had to be held in check by police reserves.

A panic was narrowly avoided when an oxyacetelyne gas tank used by the workers exploded and shot more than 50 feet into the air, landing near a group of watchers.

KNEW CONDITIONS OF UNION BANK

Hon. W. S. Fielding Compliments Officials on the Action Taken to Avert Trouble—Now on Sound Footing.

OTTAWA, June 26 (Canadian Press). —The debate on the situation revealed by the Union Bank statement which took place in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, was limited to speeches by Robert Forke, Progressive leader, and Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance. Both complimented the officers of the Union Bank on the courage they had shown, Mr. Forke saying that he did not desire to "cast any shadow of doubt on the soundness" of the bank, and Mr. Fielding stated that he had "no reason to doubt that the bank is in a sound position."

Mr. Forke compared the situation in regard to the Union Bank with that which developed when the Merchants Bank, as he put it, "capitulated into the Bank of Montreal in which it was swallowed up."

He remarked on the impossibility that another merger had just been avoided, and emphasized the danger of the concentration of the control of credit in a few hands. He asked whether the government had had knowledge of the position of the Union Bank and urged that steps should be taken to prevent a recurrence of similar trouble.

He anticipated the reply that men could not be made honest by preventative measures, and added that "that does not make for stability or public confidence, and I claim that something ought certainly to be done to ensure the public against any disastrous happenings in connection with the banks, at least with the authority of any directors."

Mr. Fielding replied that he had known of the position of the Union Bank since the April statement of the bank was filed in the month of May. At that time the auditor of the bank, E. S. Read, had come as a special messenger from the president, W. R. Allen, and told him that the bank had had losses and Mr. Read had asked his advice. He had advised thorough investigation, followed by a frank statement, and had been told that that was the intention of the president and directors of the bank. Later, in June, he had received a letter from the president, recapitulating what the auditor had said and announcing that the statement of the bank would be ready in ten days or two weeks.

As to Mr. Forke's request for assurances that the same thing might not be repeated, Mr. Fielding was not optimistic. "I can tell him," said the minister, "that we have no assurance, and as long as human nature is as it is, we cannot have any assurances that misfortunes may not occur to any bank. We cannot guarantee the banking skill or the moral character of any banking official."

Mr. Fielding added that even at this eleventh hour that he would welcome any suggestions that might be made as amendments to the banking bill.

THE POWER OF SUGGESTION.

Traveling is becoming more and more of a fine art. Formerly it was regarded simply as a process of getting from one place to another — most tiresome but unavoidable. Now it is looked upon as a joyful undertaking, a delightful interlude in the regular routine of life, especially when the journey is over the lines of the Canadian National Railways. The keynote of the Canadian National Railways is Service. That service aims to make the passenger as comfortable as possible and to save him every bit of unnecessary effort. Thinking is a mental effort. Patrons of the Dining Car Service will now find themselves saved that trouble, by a casual glance at the little dodger that is distributed throughout the coaches on all trains to which Dining or Cafe Cars are attached. Upon that dodger, which is printed in both English and French, are several suggestions for a suitable combination of dishes for the coming meal. Prices for a complete menu for Breakfast, Dinner and Supper range from 35 cents to $1.25. The traveller merely needs to decide what he wishes to pay, and upon entering the Dining Car he will find himself served as quietly and satisfactorily as he would in any well-appointed home.

In 1920 France, Italy and Belgium imported 304,000 tons of beef.

Blackheads Go Quick By This Simple Method

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of peroxine powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them large and unsightly—while the simple application of peroxine powder and the water dissolve them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition.

KNOCKED DOWN BY AUTO AND SLIGHTLY INJURED

While a crowd of some hundreds was gathered around the bulletin boards at the Examiner office last night, a car driven by a local man struck Walter Coombs, of Millbrook, throwing him under the wheels.

The car was proceeding slowly south on George street when Coombs stepped in front of it. His head was injured and required six stitches, but it was not necessary to remove him to the hospital.

TROPICAL CANADA, ARCTIC FOODS, INCREASING DISEASE.

Canadians sympathize with inhabitants of the tropics without realizing that Canadian summer is as hot as the tropics. This lack of realization leads us to serious errors in summer diet. We feed ourselves, for the most part, as if we lived in the arctic, upon "heating" meats, fats, starches and sweets, while our summer foods consist of non-startchy whole grains, milk, eggs, leafy vegetables, nuts, fruits, etc. Fats, meats, sweets, starches like white flour, refined cereals, polished rice are called "Excess Acid" foods. Acid foods "heat the blood" or make it acid. Whole grains, milk, leafy vegetables, fruits, etc., are "Excess Alkali" foods and "cool the blood" by keeping it naturally alkaline, or non-acid. Acid blood is the forerunner or cause of much disease. Alkaline blood is Nature's immunizer against diseases.

Roman Meal is the only alkaline cereal, alkaline enough to correct the acids of starchy white flour, other cereals, white sugar, fats, and meats. It keeps the blood alkaline or "cool," thus invigorates the body in hot weather and defends it against disease in Nature's own way. It keeps civilized users well in the same way that savage races keep well, by using only the unrefined, alkaline foods of nature. Roman Meal hot porridge or baked products are more 'cooling' than any cold, refined acid cereal can be, but the new icy-cold BROSE-O, CHOCOLO-O, JELLE-E, with milk, cream, whipped cream, honey, preserved or fresh fruits, are unequalled, "cooling" hot-days treats. Roman Meal prevents indigestion, positively relieves constipation. At grocers.

Want Ad Tips by John T. Bartlett

FOR WANT AD. BUYERS

Here are some hints for most profitable use of the want ad. pages.

Have a pencil handy as you glance through the want ads. Mark those which especially interest you. This will save you time in referring to the page later, and will prevent you possibly overlooking an important want ad.

Still another good plan is, have an old safety razor blade near, with it cutting out valuable want ads. Should you lose copy of the paper containing one or more advertisements you wish to look into, 'phone the want ad. department. An employee will give quick service in reading off to you the want ads. you are interested in.

Good buying dictates that you investigate everything, if necessary, in the desired line that is advertised. Use the telephone freely. A 'phone call to several advertisers will often pick out the one, unfailingly, with whom you will do business. Compare offerings.

Want advertisers in this newspaper are reliable, and it is the intent of the management that none other shall gain entrance to these colums. If you meet with treatment not honorable, report the facts at once to the advertising manager.

Many classified advertisers run leader want ads. Real estate firms do. Their advertised listings are simply "samples." If you do not find advertised what you wish, call on several firms.

The important facts about payment are these: If you pay cash, you will probably buy somewhat lower of most want advertisers. If you are not in a position to pay cash, propose terms, giving references. Very likely you will be able to obtain favorable terms.

IT'S VERY LIKE PULLING TEETH

May Be Tough at the Time, But a Mighty Calm Follows, Says Defeated Premier.

BARRIE, June 26 (Special to The Examiner). — "It's like pulling a tooth—it may be tough at the time, but there is a mighty peace afterwards," was the comment the Hon. E. C. Drury made to The Examiner reporter last night after he read the news that the Government had been overwhelmingly defeated.

Mr. Drury took the results of the elections in the best of spirit, although naturally sorry for the way the voting had gone. He did not express a word of bitterness either in the defeat of the Government as a whole or the defeat of himself in Halton County.

No matter what Mr. Drury's own sentiments are, his five children are frankly and unfeignedly glad that he is no longer to be Premier of Ontario. They are happy that they are going to have their daddy home some of the time now.

Mrs. Drury, too, said: "Personally I am glad that my husband is out of it."

Back to the Farm.

"I am going back to private life," said Mr. Drury in his official statement to the people of Ontario.

He declined to discuss what action would be taken as to who would be the leader in the Legislature of the U.F.O section, nor would he speak on the matter of whether a seat would be found for him in some riding.

Mr Drury is going to Toronto this morning, where he will meet the Hon. W. E. Raney and other members of his Cabinet. He expects to see the Lieutenant-Governor at once, and advise him to call on the leader of the majority party to form a Government.

ATHLETES IN ITALY TRAINING ACTIVELY FOR NEXT OLYMPIAD

ROME, June 26. (Associzted Press). —Italy will be a factor to be reckoned with in the 1924 Olympics at Paris, if the preparations of the Italian Olympic committee are an indication. Italy, since the war, has taken an enormous brace in athletics, and in many branches of sport is developing material certain to compete strongly against the older sport nations. Each city and village has its own sports organization, and every vacant lot is being commandeered by aspiring athletes for their incipient training. Football is especially popular.

In the field and track events a large number of strong athletes have come to the front. Zucca does the 100 meter run in 10 4-5. Giorgio can make the 200 meters in 22 4-5. Cominotto is Italy's 800-meter man, doing the distance in 1[54[. The Marathon is done by Speroni and Benedetti. Frigerio, winner of both walking features in the last Olympics, is now Italy's sporting hero, having recently beaten the Olympic record. The best pentathlon man is Contoli.

Swimming will have strong Italian representation. Many of the Italian water men already have established records in Europe. Among the foremost are Bacicalupo, Sachner, Massa, Costa Malito and Sebastiani. For the weights, Bottini, Antwerp winner in the heavyweight class, will again represent Italy. A strong team also will put up a battle in tennis. It is probable that Colombo, present Italian champion, Count Bonacossa, Sabbadini and Serventi will compose the team.

The army and navy also are interested in several events and will probably send rifle and fencing teams while in boxing there is a wide variety of amateur material available for the 1924 Paris classic. Lanzi is a good fly-weight possibility, Petrarca shapes up for the bantamweight, Lecis for the featherweight, Cavenaghi for the lightweight, Ravizza for the welterweight, Colaccio for the middleweight, and Serraudi for the light heavyweight, while there are one or two possibilities for the heavyweight class.

DANISH FARMERS WELCOME PLANS FOR RUSSIAN TRADE

COPENHAGEN, June 26 (Associated Press).—Plans for a direct steamship line from Scandinavian ports to Petrograd have been made by Norwegian, British and Danish capitalists, to be opened this summer. The new line is being established as a result of the preliminary Russian-Danish trade agreement which was signed in Moscow recently.

The Danish farmers are particularly interested in the new agreement as it is looked upon as providing a market for their surplus produce.

MAGNESIA FINE FOR DYSPEPTICS

Neutralizes Dangerous Stomach Acids Which Cause Indigestion.

The almost universal use of Magnesia by physicians and stomach specialists is due to the fact that it instantly neutralizes the dangerous stomach acids which cause nearly all digestive stomach trouble. With acid gone and stomach sweet, easy and painless digestion invariably follows.

Old dyspeptics, whom Indigestion and sour, weak and sickly stomach, have made miserable for years, find quick and lasting relief in this simple remedy, and are again able to eat what they please. A glass of hot Magnesia water after meals prevents all trouble.

Prepare Magnesia water at home by dropping one teaspoonful or four tablets of pure Bisurated Magnesia in a glass of hot water. Any reliable druggist can sell you the genuine Bisurated Magnesia and stomach sufferers and dyspeptics who follow this plan and avoid the use of pepsin, charcoal, soda mints, drugs and stomach medicines will soon find that the stomach, relieved of irritating acid and gas, soon resumes its normal tone, and will do its work alone without the aid of artificial digestents.

GERMAN RUM-RUNNER SUCCUMBS TO STRATEGY

BERGEN, Norway, June 26 (Associated Press).—Strategy plays its part now and then in Norway in the taking of rum-runners, and the recent capture of the 200-ton German yacht Elizabeth is a case in point.

Standing off the Norwegian coast the Elizabeth was in need of coal, and sent in a motor boat and 17 men to get a supply. The boat was seized, and the men replaced by 17 armed police and customs officers. Approaching the Elizabeth, the police signalled for three men to come off in a row-boat to help with the unloading of the coal supposed to be aboard. When they reached the motor boat they were overpowered and handcuffed. The police then drew alongside the Elizabeth and boarded her.

The Germans still on board the yacht made a desperate resistance and one of them loosed the ship's dog, a gigantic Great Dane, who leaped at the throat of one of the police, but was shot dead. Eventually the smugglers were overpowered and put in irons.

HOW TO SLEEP 3-IN-A-BED

YES, it CAN be done—but not like this.

The trouble is, most people go to bed with "something" on the mind—or ON THE STOMACH!

The answer is, no matter what the day has brought forth to upset your mind and digestive organs, take Beecham's Pills when you retire.

Though in no sense a "sleeping potion," this 80-years-famous household medicine so harmonizes the system that you can sleep in quiet and perfect rest, even in two feet of bed space.

Beecham's Pills are as efficient and harmless for children as for adults—sweetening the stomach, invigorating digestion and stirring liver and bowels to natural activity.

HISTORY REPEATS FOR NORTH PERTH

STRATFORD, Ont., June 26. — History repeats itself. A. Hay and A. Monteith battled at the polls in North Perth twenty-five years ago. Mr. Hay went down to defeat. They were the respective fathers of F. Wellington Hay, Liberal leader, and Dr. J. D. Monteith who yesterday were the North Perth candidates of the two old parties. Again a Monteith was triumphant.

NEW MEMBER SEATED.

LONDON, June 26. — (Canadian Press).—Robert Smillie, the former miners' leader, took his seat in the House of Commons yesterday as representative for Morpeth. He was greeted by the Laborites, who wore red flowers in their buttonholes — roses, carnations, gladiolas.

The Conservatives protested against bringing such quantities of flowers into the Chamber, but the Speaker said he was powerless to intervene. There were noisy scenes for a considerable period and angry words between the Conservatives and Laborites.

MRS. MISENER'S ACHES AND PAINS

Vanished After Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"Branchton, Ont. — "When I wrote to you for help my action was mostly prompted by curiosity. I wondered if I, too, would benefit by your medicine. It was the most profitable action I have ever taken, I heartily assure you, for through its results I am relieved of most of my sufferings. I have taken six boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, and I can honestly say I have never been so well before. I had suffered from pains and other troubles since I was fifteen years old, and during the 'Great War' I worked on munitions, and, in the heavy lifting which my work called for, I strained myself, causing inflammation from which I suffered untold agony, and I often had to give up and go to bed. I had doctored for years without getting permanent relief, when I started to take your medicines." — Mrs. GOLDWIN MISENER, Branchton, Ont.

Sick and ailing women everywhere in the Dominion should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before they give up hope of recovery. C

Unsolved Mysteries

THE ORIGIN OF THB STARS AND STRIPES

The recurrence of "Flag Day"—the anniversary of the day on which Congress adopted the first official flag of the United States—naturally brings up the question as to why the Stars and Stripes was adopted, one that has never been answered in spite of the almost continuous attempts of historians and others to throw the light of undisputed fact upon the matter.

When the Revolution broke out, most of the States adopted flags of their own and, in October, 1775, Washington wrote to two officers who were about to take command of vessels of war: "Please fix on some flag by which our vessels may know each other." The first "striped" flag is said to have been flung to the breeze at Cambridge, Mass., Washington's headquarters, in January, 1776. This had 13 stripes, alternate red and white, but the statement that it was the "first American flag is disputed by those who claim that the original "Flag of America" was hoisted by John Paul Jones on his own vessel, the Alfred, some time before this. No exact date has ever been discovered for this occurrence, but it was undoubtedly before the official adoption of a flag by the Continental Congress on June 14, 1777—although even here there is considerable speculation as to whether this was the actual date of the adoption of the Star Spangled Banner as the flag of the United States.

According to the records of that day, Congress adopted a resolution on June 14, 1777, which read: "Resolved: That the flag of the 13 United States shall be 13 stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be 13 stars, white on a blue field, representing a new constellation." There is not a particle of evidence to show who introduced this resolution or whether any discussion was evoked by it, while the resolution comes down in history as having been "adopted" on the day now celebrated as "Flag Day," it was not officially promulgated by the Secretary until September 3, 1777.

There are several answers to the question "What suggested the Stars and Stripes?" Some authorities maintain that Washington found in his own coat of arms the hint from which he designed the flag—a design of two red bars on a white ground, with three gold stripes above the top bars. This is not mentioned by Washington himself, in spite of the fact that his diaries furnish ample evidence of all other leading events in his career.

It is probable that none of the points in doubt regarding the first American flag will ever be satisfactorily settled, for the matters of its suggestion, its manufacture and its unfurling must still be classed among the mysteries of American history.

THE DANGER FROM VOLCANO PASSED

Streams of Lava Registered a Temperature of 940 Degrees.

CATALANIA, United Press).—June 26.—The boiling streams of white hot lava still pouring from Etna's crater have a temperature of 940 degrees. Prof. Defoir ascertained their temperature by means of an electric thermometer which he brought to the edge of the flow after a terrific up-hill battle through smoke and cinders to reach the crater. About the crater's furnace edge huge streams of lava leaped into the air spreading over like branches of a pine tree, a thick-reddish smoke surrounded them.

Danger to the valley villages is, however, past.

REMARKABLE HOPE FOR T. B. RESULTS

LONDON, June 26. — The Medical Research Council has just issued an extraordinary hopeful statement on Professor Dreyer's new treatment of tuberculosis. The new vaccine is called "antigen" and the council states that after experience in three London hospitals results have been favorable almost without exception. No final opinion can yet be passed regarding the effects on the lungs or other internal organs which have become tubercular but in cases of discased glands and skin the new treatment surpasses all other methods known.

A PERFECT DAY WITH FORESTERS DOWN OTONABEE

Independent Order Spent a Jolly Afternoon at Wallace's Point—Splendid Program of Sports.

(By FRANK RUSSELL

The week just past seems to have heralded in two events, viz., the advent of summer for on Thursday last was the popularly called "longest day," while on Saturday was inaugurated the opening of the summer river steamer season.

The inauguration trip was that carried out by the Independent Order of Foresters, Court Chemong Lodge No. 530, of which brotherhood Brother E. C. Styles is the chief Ranger. Associated with him on the trip were Bros. Jno. F. Millard, Vice-Chief Ranger and J. W. Burgess, the Recording Secretary.

DAY WAS PERFECT

A glorious sun shone with a cloudless sky and while on shore not much breeze was abhorrent, there was a pleasant circulation of air on the water. Punctually at 1.30 p.m. the steamer "Stoney Lake" in the able charge of our well-known friend, Captain Scollard, cast off her mooring lines at the George Street wharf. "We must be punctual," said Recording Secretary Burgess, who is himself a railway man, an official of the C. P. R. I believe.

TRIP DOWN RIVER

The Peterborough lock was safely negotiated, and a call made at the Street Railway wharf, where more passengers were embarked, until a total of between 150 and 200 souls were on board; just enough for comfort, leaving plenty of room to move around. They were all there, men, women, children, the matron and the maid, the young man and the elderly bachelor. And all were determined to enjoy the outing, to have a real good time of it.

And it was quite evident before long that they were having "a good time of it." Even before the boat cast off her mooring ropes, Tucker's orchestra was "on the job," music for dancing being started and dancers were not loath to start dancing too, and so it continued all the afternoon and evening; everybody happy, there being not a single contretemps to marr the universal happiness.

OBJECTIVE TRIP

The objective of the trip was a sail down the river Otonabee to Rice Lake. This goal reached "bout ship" was the order of the day and the steamer "Stoney Lake" steamed back to Wallace's Point where a stay of two hours was the order of the day for picnic supper and the running off of certain events.

The run down and back was simply delightful. It was quite refreshing after the long and dreary winter we had all experienced, to see the lovely fresh green foliage in every variety of tint. Of the many really pretty beauty spots to be seen down this waterway I have often descanted. Sufficient, therefore, now to say that on Saturday as on previous occasions one could not fail to notice pretty little scenes which seemed to be fresh to me.

AT WALLACE'S POINT

Everybody armed with their picnic baskets debarked and made up their little parties on the pretty green sward. The Recording Secretary invited this writer to join his party and a right merry pleasant time, and a good meal we had, enlivened by the presence of some charming, well-dressed young ladies. The meal finished, ample justice having been done to the appetising food provided, a few races were run off. Prior to this a prize of a large package of best tea was awarded to Mrs. H. Chandler for selling the largest number of advance tickets. This lady was similarly successful last year.

THE PROGRAMME

The first item was Ladies' race: 1s Miss W. Jacobs; 2nd, Mrs. H. Gilbert. Prize 1 lb. tea.

Kiddies' race (handicap): 1st, Hilda Thompson; 2nd, Lillie Dicks; 3rd, Bessie Chandler. Prizes, an order on the Refreshment booth for ice cream soft drinks, etc., etc. as per choice of winnter. Similar prizes were awarded to

The bigger girls race: 1st, Marion Armstrong; 2nd, Dorothy Custance; 3rd, Laurien Dickens.

Bigger boys' race: 1st, C. Pearson; 2nd, S. Jones; 3rd, H. Sowden.

The prizes of tea for the ladies' race and the sale of tickets were donated by Mr. J. Johns.

The refreshment booth was under the management of Brother E. C. Styles (Chief Ranger), assisted by Bros. J. Cooper and H. Chandler, and a thriving business was apparently done.

THE RETURN HOME

At 8 o'clock, punctually, the start on the return journey was made. The upward trip was enlivened throughout by dancing and singing.

Bro. H. C. Connolly presented the prizes, Bro. Burgess was starter for the races, while Bro. A. Rutter acted as referee.

About 9 o'clock Street Railway wharf was reached where a considerable number of the guests went on shore in order to secure seats on the Radial railway cars. The others were brought up to the George Street wharf punctually at 9.30 p.m., the proceedings being terminated by the National anthem, "God Save the King," heartily joined in by all present.

It is needless to say that Captain Scollard and his able crew were unremitting in their efforts to add to the comfort in every way of the delighted holiday makers.

SPEAKER AGAIN EMPLOYS SHIFT IN BATTING ORDER

CLEVELAND, June 24 (Associated Press).—Manager Tris Speaker, of the American Leaguers has again resorted to the shift in his batting order that he used when he won the pennant and world's championship in 1920. The shift, which is not uncommon in baseball, had been discarded this year by Speaker. It is the changing of players to meet right or left handed pitchers.

With a southpaw working, Speaker will use Louis Guisto at first, O'Neill behind the plate and Joe Connolly, a recruit obtained from Little Rock, in right field.

When a pitcher is working the right arm, Frank Brower, acquired in a trade with Washington will be on the initial sack, Myatt will catch and Homer Summa will play right field. When Uhle is pitching, however, O'Neill will catch regardless of whether the opposing stabsman is right or left handed. Speaker considers Uhle more effective when O'Neill is catching.

With a right handed pitcher working against the Indians, Speaker will be able to send eight left handed hitters to the plate, providing Shaute, Edwards or Smith is pitching for Cleve-

DOCTOR GIVES HIS EVIDENCE DELORME CASE

Blood Stained Garments Draped on Dressmakers' Dummy—Expert Testimony by Autopsist.

MANY CLASHES

MONTREAL, June 26. — (Canadian Press). — Draped around a dressmaker's dummy, the blood-stained garments of Raoul Delorme, the slain college student, were exhibited to the jury when Father Delorme was recalled to continue his trial on the charge of having murdered his half-brother.

The gruesome effigy used at Delorme's first trial seemed to have lost its effect both upon the prisoner priest and the spectators in the court-room, its presence not even arousing more than passing interest.

Step by step Dr. W. J. Derome, Provincial autopsist, developed his observations upon the body, which was handed over to him at the morgue.

Dr. Derome, who had been looked upon as the star witness for the Crown, provided the initial sensation by swearing that the slain boy's body, while cold, was not frozen stiff when he examined it. The defence stressed this point in its cross-examination with the view to establishing that the body had only lain exposed a few hours by the roadside, a fact which would alibit the priest, whose actions have been accounted for from at least two o'clock in the morning.

Dr. Derome's testimony, which was largely of an analytical nature, provoked incessant clashes between the Crown and the defence, the latter insisting that the autopsist was merely giving his opinions and observance and not direct admissible evidence.

MUSICAL STAR ON HAPPINESS

Declares Theory That Woman's Place is in the Home is Absurd.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Marriage is just like everything else in life—you get out of it what you put in, and no more, according to Frances Alda.

She is one of the leading sopranos of the Metropolitan Opera and the wife of Giulio Gatti-Casazza, the famous impresario. Her artistic career and that of her husband have never clashed, and their home life has been most happy and harmonious.

"If any phase of the marriage relation is not on the 50-50 basis, causing one to carry more than his share of the burden while the other shirks or holds back, there cannot be real happiness, and the break will come, whether it destroys the home entirely or allows the shell to remain without the soul," she explains.

She believes that the growing economic independence of women has changed for the better, their attitude toward marriage placing them in a position to command the respect and consideration which should always have been theirs, but unfortunately was not.

Woman's Place

"But to say a woman's place is in the home is absurd," she goes on. "Her place is anywhere that provides her with the greatest opportunity for self-expression.

"It is so ridiculous to assume that because a woman has a career outside, she is incapable of home-making. I have always had time to oversee my home and enjoy it in spite of a very busy life. In fact, I could not have been happy or contented, or I believe successful, if I had not had it."

Any woman who marries with the idea she is making a sacrifice is on the road to matrimonial failure, she believes, and reformations are more apt to take place before than after marriage.

Jealousy an Evil

"The occupation of either party in the marriage contract should have nothing to do with the success of it," she said, "and if a man and his wife are partners in business or are in the same profession, there is no logical reason for antagonism. But I know of cases where jealousy, and only professional jealousy, has devoured romance."

Mme. Alda considers early marriage an important factor contributing to domestic success.

"When people are in that flexible state of mind that goes with youth," she concludes, "they adjust themselves more readily to new conditions and the mutual give and take so necessary to happiness."

Drug addicts in America are estimated to number 1,298,600.

DRECO HELPS WHOLE FAMILY

The MacLachlan Family of 68 Regent Avenue, Toronto — Husband, Wife and Son — Find Dreco a wonderful aid to better health.

"I feel better than I have for months," says Mrs. J. MacLachlan. "The first of this year I was attacked by what I took for rheumatism, the pains were so severe all through my limbs, making it impossible for me to get up and down stairs. My knees were terribly swollen. I could not get my proper rest and would feel all tired in the mornings. My food would not digest. It felt like lead in my stomach and gas would form and press my heart, causing shortness of breath.

"But I'm simply feeling like a new person again and can move around and get up and down stairs as easy as ever before. I get up in the mornings feeling fine and have lots of energy. My food digests properly and my bowels are delightfully regular.

"I can heartily recommend Dreco not only for the benefits I have obtained but also on account of what it did for my son. Since his return from overseas he had not known a day free from gastritis. His entire system was run down and he was unable to get nourishment from his food. Regardless of how careful he was he suffered agonies. We tried several remedies for him without result until finally we had him take Dreco. Now he can sit down to the table and eat with great enjoyment. Everything agrees with him and he is beginning to feel his natural self agan.

"Mr. MacLachlan has also started to take Dreco and is beginning to notice benefit so much so that he is continuing to take the treatment."

Dreco is a reliable, household remedy for its success is relieving all disorders of the digestive system. Compound of herbs, roots, bark and leaves, it acts on stomach, liver and bowels and benefits the health generally. It contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs, and may therefore be taken with perfect assurance.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterboro by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sold in Lakefield by E. H. Northey, and by a good druggist everywhere.

YOUR VACATION

Take a vacation, no matter how hard it may be to find time for one, this summer. Change is absolutely necessary to rest the nerve centers. And the city person should make it a point to take his vacation in the country, while the farmer and those who spend their lives on farms or in small towns should come to the city and enjoy city life for a short time.

This excellent advice comes from Health Commissioner Mahoney of Boston.

Most of us are suffering in varying degrees, from "nerves," a malady created by the hustle and rush of civilization—and it is increasing in frequency and intensity as we become more "civilized," whatever that means.

We of the cities are keyed up highly. We work under great nervous pressure, speeded up to the last ounce of energy. And we get the clock wound so tightly that we remain keyed up when away from work.

We rush about the streets as if going to a fire.

We gulp our meals.

We sit down at home after dinner and immediately become restless—begin drumming our fingers, wanting to "start something."

Maybe we go to a theater or movie. Impatient to get past the people in line ahead of us. So restless that we can't keep our seats until the final curtain drops or the picture ends. That's why musical shows come to an abrupt ending. They have to. No one would be left in the house if the show ended peacefully and artistically.

All this is "nerves." Its imprint is on our strained faces, in our keyed-up walking or auto driving, in our general impatience.

When a person has a nervous breakdown, the first thing the physician recommends is "a change." The best kind of a change is a complete one. So Mahoney is right. The city man should vacation in the country. The farmer and small-town resident should vacation in the city.

Contrast is a nerve restorative. It is informative, broadens our vision, restores our balance, gives us the proper perspective. What does you most good on a vacation is the "change," rather than the air or rest or recreation. And, the more complete the change, the more recuperative.

The brain worker, for the same reason, will do best by spending his holidays where he'll have physical labor to do—preferably camping chores. And the man who works with his muscles can get the greatest vacational benefits by giving his muscles a rest and exercising his brain, reading, thinking.

A good rule, is Mahoney's, and it can be applied in everyday life as well as during vacations. By complete "change"—doing the opposite to your routine—you can get at least an hour's vacation every day.

MILLION DOLLARS WORTH OF DAMAGE

TORONTO, June 26 (Canadian Press). — A million dollars worth of damage, perhaps more, resulted from the cloudburst, thunderstorm, and hurricane which passed over portions of Western Ontario last night, and wrought havoc in the counties of York, Peel, Wellington, and Ontario.

It was feared that lives were lost in the Guelph and Niagara districts, but lack of communication owing to the dismantled wire systems prevented the obtaining of authentic details.

Toronto was just on the eastern edge of the storm belt, but even here trees were torn from their roots on many streets.

The velocity of the wind was officially recorded in Toronto at 60 miles an hour.

At Port Credit it was reported to be 75 miles an hour.

For a time, Toronto was completely isolated.

The gale here destroyed telephone and telegraph communication east and west and north of the city, and for nearly an hour not a message was received.

This damage was soon repaired, and partial service with outside points established. But a breakdown caused delay in handling election information and more serious trouble to the west of the city greatly handicapped the collection of the returns.

Faint Heart in the Ring - - - - - By ED. HUGHES

Has Fred Ful[illegible] erved the stigma of [illegible]ghting man That he has in [illegible] there is no doubt. But wholly?

A stupid query, perhaps in the light of some of the puzzling Rochester giant's duck-hearted capitulations in the Queensberry arena. Yet not altogether such when you picture lofty Fred in happier moments —battering formidable Sam Langford to the quitting point, knocking out dangerous Frank Moran, clever Charlie Weinert, burly John Lester Johnson and sticking grimly to his guns in the fiercest mixups with lusty young Floyd Johnson.

How Ketchel "Got Courage"

Fulton's case is one for the psychologist. Courage is one of the most mysterious, baffling subjects these learned folk tamper with. For my part I'll commit mayhem on one of Pope's famous lines and wash my hands of the subject: "Courageous and cowardly every man must be, few in the extreme, but all in the degree." Pope had it 'virtuous and vicious."

Perhaps courage can be acquired. More than likely it blooms through some mystic impulse of its own in the soil of beneficial circumstances. Stanley Ketchel is listed as one of the immortal lion hearts of the ring. Yet Stanley often recalled sis novice days when he was "scared to death" of his foe "I got courage," the bold one explained, "by saying to myself 'Keep at 'im, he's more scared than you.' " So even courageous Ketchel had his moment of qualms.

Kid Carter, a famous Brooklyn middleweight before Ketchel's time, was fanned for his fearlessness He fight and often whipped the best heavyweights of his day Gus Huhlin Peter Maher and many others. He was one of the few men always eager to fight the dreaded Joe Walcott, famous "Barbados Demon," a colored welter weight whom even Tom Sharkey passed up. Carter twice knocked out the redoubtable negro. Yet as a beginner Carter lacked nerve, and was ready to crawl through the ropes on sight provocation.

West The Pessimist

Tommy West, a famous fighter of two decades ago, noted for his unwavering courage, was a pessimistic philosopher on the subject of ring courage. He maintained stoutly that the gamest of fighters would quit if the situation became discouraging enough. West's own career belied this doeful theory, however. He and Tommy Ryan, then middleweight champion, fought one of the bloodiest battles on record. The affair was halted in the seventeenth. Both of West's eyes were tightly closed. He was groping his way in, pushing the eyelids up with his gloves in order to see Ryan when it was stopped. The club ripped up the blood-mottled canvas and hung it in its hall as a souvenir of the goriest bout ever staged in Kentucky. But West still maintained that any fighter would quit if pressed hard enough.

The name of Jim Jeffries is a synonym of ring courage. It is well known, though, that he made all sorts of excuses to postpone the last Coney Island bout with the sailor Sharkey. Jeff claimed he had an infected elbow, when there was really nothing the matter with it. The champion managed to postpone the meeting but ultimately Billy Brady did force him into the ring with Sharkey. Jeff won after a terrific battle, but there was no disguising the act that he secretly feared Sharkey.

BELMONTS WIN OVER KIWANIANS

Connors Beats Opening Strike - Out Record By Fanning Nineteen.

11 TO 8 VICTORY.

Joe Batten uncovered another strikeout heaver in the Belmont-Kiwanis game at Prince of Wales school grounds, when "Lefty" Connors a southpaw, pitching for Belmonts fanned nineteen batsmen. Belmonts won the contest by the score of 11 to 8. Connors performance was one better than that of "Lefty" Guiry who struck out eighteen batters in the Rotary-Kiwanis game last Thursday evening. Connors whiffed the side in the first and second innings, when he was forced to pitch to eight batters, because of dropped third strikes by the catcher Beavis went behind the bat in the second innings and gave the pitcher fine support. He also clouted out a clean triple in the sixth.

Lewis twirled for Kiwanis for four innings and turned in another good exhibition, holding Belmonts to a pair of single hits, a base on balls and three errors being largely responsible for the four runs scored against him. Wild throwing with runners on the bases got Morphet in trouble when he went to the mound in the fifth. Belmonts tallied four runs in this frame and added three more in the seventh, when Morphet weakened. McDuffy finished the game with one out in the seventh.

Kiwanis came from behind in the fourth when two passes, a double by Lewis and two errors, gave "Doc" Craig's youngsters a quartette of runs. They got three more in the fifth on Morpehts single, a pass to Marshall, Dick's single, a pass to Jennings and a wild pitch a passed ball after Spencer had walked and made his way to third gave Kiwanis another run in the seventh.

THIRD MAN IN THE RING AT SHELBY

Jim Dougherty Will Be the Referee For Gibbons-Dempsey Championship Battle.

SHELBY, Mont., June 26.—Referees for championship fights have almost as important jobs as the fighters themselves.

Results depend on their efficiency.

Some championship fights could be refereed by a school boy. Others require expert knowledge.

In selecting Jim Dougherty— the Baron of Leiperville—the promoters of the Dempsey-Gibbons battle there July Fourth have a man in whom both principals have confidence.

Dougherty has worked in two of Dempsey's battles.

He was the third man in the ring when Dempsey beat Battling Levinsky at Philadelphia and again at Benton Harbor when Billy Miske was handed the curling iron.

His work has never been questioned. Dougherty is the kind of a man who would give a decision against his own mother if the other fellow was leading.

While most of Dempsey's fights have been decided by knockouts, the one looming just around the Shelby corner may go the limit.

If it should extend over the entire route of fifteen rounds it may call for expert judgment to name the winner.

The concensus of opinion among the critics is that if Gibbons is on his feet at the end of the battle he will be ahead of the champion.

Some of the betting now being done is that Gibbons will win every round he is on his feet.

The Gibbons SPEED is as much of an argument for the challenge as the GIBBONS SOCK.

If Gibbons hits Dempsey twice to the champion's one and the fight goes the full distance, it will be the St. Paul man's fight.

However there is always this element which decides heavyweight matches.

It is this: The first hard blow, whether delivered by Gibbons or Dempsey, will decide the outcome.

Blows which big men rattle off do unreparable damage.

Harry Ertle refereed the Dempsey-Carpentier fight. Ollie Pecord officiated at the Dempsey-Willard battle.

Ertle had nothing to confuse him. Dempsey won with a kayo. Pecord had a rather story time of it.

Dougherty is qualified to handle any situation fairly that may arise.

And Dougherty is to receive $5,000—the highest fee a referee ever received.

Jack Welch refereed the Johnson-Willard battle at Havana in 1915 when the black man was knocked out in the 26th round.

When Johnson beat Jeffries for the title at Reno, Nev., in 1910, Tex Rickard was the third man in the ring.

Being selected to referee a title match is a big honor.

Dougherty is a tall red-headed fellow who wears a perpetual smile.

Dean Snyder, Publicity.

RAIN SPOILED THE BIG TENNIS CLASSIC

Only One of the Four Feature Matches Scheduled at Wimbledon Was Played Yesterday.

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 26. — (Canadian Press.)—The long heralded opening of the world's tennis championships on the tennis courts of Wimbledon yesterday was pretty much of a washout. From the scheduled starting time at 2 o'clock this afternoon until somewhat after five o'clock there was a constant and chilly mist or drizzle, so that when finally the pale green tarpaulin was peeled off the darker green court within the great stadium there was only enough of daylight left to last throughout of the four feature matches which had been placed on the card for the opening day.

Two British players won over South Americans, members of the Argentine Davis Cup team. A. J. Villegas, was beaten by Commander J. M. Hillyard, Secretary of the Wimbledon Club, 6-3, 6-2, 7-5. The other Argentine, W. Robison, fell down before S. M. Jacob, captain of the British-India Davis Cup team, 6-0, 6-1, 6-2.

L. A. Godfree, Great Britain, won from Nicholas Mishu, the Rumanian star, on the closely cropped centre court by a score of 1-6, 6-4, 0-6, 6-2, 9-7. Mishu amused the crowds with some of his freak shots and his customary antics, but, aside from his efforts and Godfree's good play in winning, it was a sad and soggy afternoon for the thousands of tennis fans who attended the opening.

Most of the spectators remained to the end, nursing their hopes. A majority of them spent their time in the queues and other places where thirsts might be quenched.

DOES NOT FAVOR SELLING AGENCY

Co-operative Grain Marketing Does Not Find Favor in the Eyes of Julius Barnes.

WINNIPEG, June 26 (Canadian Press). — "In my opinion, a single selling agency for wheat is not the logical or best method," declared Julius Barnes, former head of the United States Grain Corporation, in an interview here yesterday.

"The single judgment of an individual," stated Mr. Barnes, "cannot be compared with the aggregate judgment of 100,000 or dealers whose concern it is to market the crop at the highest possible figure."

In some commodities co-operative marketing was the ideal method, but selling and handling could not run contrary to the ordinary laws of supply and demand, he said. There might be merit in co-operative grain marketing, but to be successful there must, in this plan, be reserved to the grower the right of his individual judgment as to the time to sell and the price he obtained for his product. Standardisation of marketing and even of production would be helpful. If certain sections would agree to raise only one variety of wheat, such as Marquis(it would simplify marketing and storage problems, and so aid in solving some of the farmers' problems.

The real help for the farmer, Mr. Barnes declared, is exact and accurate information to guide his judgment; ready credit so that that judgment is not of necessity forced, and the cheapest transportation.

GIBBONS EXPLAINS A KNOCKOUT BLOW

No Glass in Tommy's Chin Because His Jaw is Difficult to Dislocate.

SHELBY, Mont., June 26. — (Special)—Tom Gibbons figures knockout punches like pulling plugs out of a switchboard.

" A knockout punch to the point of the chin dislocates the jaw temporarily," says Gibbons.

"Blood circuation to the brain stops and the brain sleeps.

"There is such a thing as blocking your own knockout blow—that is, keeping it from taking effect.

"One time I had a fellow started for the floor. But I spoiled it.

"I hit him with a right to the chin. His left jaw was sprung slightly out. He was hesitating on his legs.

"Instead of htting him with another right to the same spot I crossed with my left. That drove his jaw back to its normal position and he came back to his senses."

"A knockout is like pulling plugs out of a switchboard. Restoring them from the knockout is like putting the plug back in the switchboard socket.

"That is what happened in the above case.

"Even when you sleep they say the jaw slightly drops out of place, separating the flow of consciousness from the brain.

"I never was on the brink of a knockout that I can remember but once.

"That was a long time ago in 1914. It was the second year I had been fighting.

"My brother Mike was in my corner. I was biffing with Buck Crouse at Hudson, Wisconsin.

"Buck hit me right on the whiskers in the second round. I was hurt.

"When I went back to my corner I told Mike that I would have to go out the next round and sock that baby out or he was going to nail me.

"I went out in the third set to knock over a barn.

"My original plans had been to give Crouse a boxing lesson.

"When I changed my style to slugging it got the results.

"Before the end of that third Crouse was on the floor.

"That fight came the nearest to being curtains for me that I have ever had.

"Why can't they knock me out? I don't know but I guess I have one of those tough chins. My jaw bones don't disconnect easily.

"I know fighters that the least little tap on the chin puts their jaw out. They call such fighters glass-chin fellows.

"So far there has been no china in mine."

Football Teams Must Be on Time in Future.

At the regular meeting of the P.D. & D.F.A. held last evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms considerable discussion arose about teams not being on the field in time to get the game away on schedule. As a result the various representatives were recommended to instruct their teams that they will have to be on time in the future.

A letter was read from the Canadian Woollens to the effect that that team wished to withdraw from the Charity Cup games. After some discussion the matter was held in abeyance till a further report can be made.

The association has taken steps to have the medals for the winners of the local District football league here at an early date.

JESS WILLARD IS IN GOOD CONDITION

Former Champion Was Given a Special Physical Examination By New Jersey Boxing Commission.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., June 26. — (Canadian Press.)—The New Jersey Boxing Commission yesterday put its official stamp of approval upon the heavyweight watch on July 12, between Jess Willard, former champion, and Luis Angel Firpo, giant from the Argentine, after Willard had passed a special physcal examnation to determine his fitness as an opponent for the South American.

Three physicians engaged by the Boxing Commission subjected the big Kansan to a searching examination that lasted 45 minutes, after which they signed a brief statement declaring him to be "free from any physical defects." The commission was represented by Thomas C. Kilduff, Hudson County Inspector.

Willard was characterized as a "remarkable physical specimen," in every respect, by Dr. T. H. Lemmerz, at whose office the examination was conducted in the presence of several dozen newspapermen and photographers.

The former champion looked to be in excellent condition. He topped the scales at 246 pounds, two pounds less than when he knocked out Floyd Johnson, the young Iowan, at the Yankee Stadium six weeks ago.

"I expect a tough fight with Firpo," declared Willard, when asked about his coming match.

Willard has been training daily for the past week at his quarters in Yonkers, N.Y.

Firpo will establish training camp to-day at Long Branch, N.J. He is down to fighting weight now, tipping the beam around 218.

E. N. Sinclair the financial critic from South Ontario, and A. P. Mewhinney of West Bruce, were all returned with reduced majorities. Nothing could be obtained from Lincoln this morning as to the fate of Thomas Marshall, the Liberal Whip.

Robert Cooper of Welland, J. M. Govenlock of Centre Huron, Dr. McAlpine of Brockville, J. McLeod of Stormont, R. R. Hall of Parry Sound are other Liberals, who fell before the Conservative onslaught. Capt. Ramsden and Col. Cooper both Liberals from Toronto in the last house, are among those at the light end of the ballot.

In nearly every case Hydro candidates were successful. Sir Adam Beck polled a magnificent vote in London where he had more than 7.500 majority, a complete vindication of his campaign in 1919, when he was about 1,900 in the minority. One Hydro supporter defeated was Mayor Mussen of Niagara, who ran as Liberal against E. C. Groves, Conservative in the St. Catharines constituency. Hon. Mr. Ferguson who will be premier anounced last night that the Gregory Commission would be asked to wind up its activities without any delay.

Three Sands, near the centre of Tonkawa Pool, is a tropical Oklahoma oil town. It's one of the sort that sprang up almost over night. SHIP OWNER'S ESTATE

Mr. Frank Bibby, of Hardwicke Grange, Shrewsbury, shipowner, chairman of the Bibby Steamship Company, Limited, and a steward of the National Hunt Committee, and formerly Master of the Shropshire Hounds, who died in London on February 12, aged 66 years, left property in his own disposition valued for probate at 1,229,482, with net personalty 867,411. The duties on the property at this valuation will amount to about 380,000.

In his will, a document of 292 folios, he nominated as special trustees and executors for his shipping interest his son, Captain Frank Brian Frederic Bibby, and his cousin, Mr. Arthur Wilson Bibby.

He left $2,000 to his wife, with a recommendation (but without creating any trust in the matter) to provide thereout plain mourning for, and to distribute the balance amongst, such in or outdoor servants as she may think fit.

He left to his wife his racehorses and other animals (not being farm stock, or racehorses or stock held in partnership with his son Frank), motor cars, consumable stores, linen, jewellery, and personal effects, 10,000, premises 1, The Avenue, Newmarket, and Rose Hall, North End Stud, and Lanwade Farm, and all other lands and houses in the counties of Suffolk and Cambridge, his household effects there, and live and dead stock thereon, a life annuity of 15,000, and the use of either Hardwicke Grange or Sansaw, as she may select, if making it her principal residence, together with a selection of his household effects.

He left to his son Frank his interest in the farming and breeding undertakings carried on in partnership with his said son, together with all the live and dead farming stock on or for the Home Farms.

He left all his shipping interests upon trust for sale and conversion, the proceeds to follow the settled estate shares (but to be brought into account in computing the amount of the "younger children's fund"). In the event of any difference of opinion amongst his special trustees, the decision of his son Frank is to be final.

He empowered his trustees to continue, or make, allowances to former servants as they may think fit.

New York Stock Exchange — And Curb Prices

To-Day's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, June 26. (Special.)—The bears played around without restraint in the stock market in the forenoon to-day and sent prices crashing still further. At start another sharp drive was launched against the industrial list. After opening fractionally higher, Studebaker was depressed to a new 1923 low at 100½, and new lows on the move were reached by Baldwin, U. S. Steel and other speculative favorites.

There was nothing mysterious about the renewed declines. A group of professionals have been ranged on the bear side for several months and they had everything their own way when banking support which had been expected, failed to materialize. Heavy selling of Studebaker, Steel and Baldwin in the early dealings, evidently was a professional manoeuvre designed to facilitate covering in other sections of the market. The pressure lifted before the end of the first half hour and a sharp rally ensued in the industrial list.

Studebaker recovered 1 5-8 to 102 1-8, Steel a full point to 91 7-8; and Baldwin a point to 122½. Professional pressure was concentrated on Baldwin in the late morning. This stock broke to a new low for the year at 119½ and other industrials lost the recovery scored. Around 11 o'clock bear operations were aided by a pessimistic letter sent out by an analytical service, which had been bullish up to a few weeks ago. This circular caused some liquidation on investment rails like Union Pacific, Chicago and North western and Northern Pacific. This selling proved discouraging to speculative sentiment, but an important steadying factor was the impressive support which came to Studebaker fractionally above 101.

Opening prices: Studebaker 101 up 1-8, Southern Ry., 34 7-8; N.Y.C. 101 1-4 up 3-8, Anaconda 40½ off 3-4; United Retail 77½, American Smelting 56 5-8 off 3-8; B and O 49, off ½, Cons Gas 58 1-2 off ¼, Baldwin 121 1-2 off 3-8; U. Steel 91 1-8 off 3-8; North American 29 3-8 up ¼; Beth Steel 49 7-8 un 3-8; Chandler 49 ¼ up 3-4; Penn 43 7-8; Reading 71 3-4 off 1-4; American Can 89 3-4 off 5-8; Pan Amer Pet 66 off 3-4; Corn Prods 125 1-8 off ½.

THRILLS AND PATHOS IN FOX PHOTOPLAY

"The Village Blacksmith" Experiences Tribulations that Stimulate the Tear Glands.

PICTURE BASED ON POEM

Willam Walling, Tully Marshall, George Hackathorne and Virginia Valli in Cast.

If you think you are thrill-proof or think your tear-well has gone prohibition just take a trip up to the Royal Theatre and sit through a showing of "The Village Blacksmith," the latest William Fox melo drama.

In presenting "The Village Blacksmith" the manager is giving the moviegoers just about everything in the way of pathos and human touches than can be crowded into an hour and a half.

Will Walling as the smithy, is a big strong, husky lad with a strong manly chest. He'd have to be to stand all the misfortune that drapes itself about his manly shoulders. No frail weakling could live through all the terror of the first half of the first reel. But the smithy stands his punishment like the heroic figure the film makes him and along toward the end he reaps his just reward of happiness.

There is a railroad wreck, his young son is crippled for life by falling from a tree, he thinks his daughter goes wrong, his eldest son is almost killed, his daughter is struck by lighting, his wife dies and then his daughter is accused of stealing a church fund. Aside from that the smithy has an easy time of it doing the work about his shop.

Tully Marshall gives a good and mean performance as the squire. Virginia Valli is good as the daughter. Ralph Yeardsley is sufficiently cowardly as the squire's son, but the best bit of acting in the picture is done by George Hackathorne as the cripple. Francis Ford, who used to be a dashing hero is very good as a half-witted country lout who causes much of the trouble.

Yes if you are in need of good entertainment by all means see "The Village Blacksmith."

Capitol Entertainment

Gloria Swanson in "Prodigal Daughters," at the Capitol Theatre, now has a part that suits her to perfection. As "Swiftie," the modern girl, who goes her own way and "lets the world go fling," she gives a splendid impersonation of the reckless flapper who has a craze for excitement, defies home and parents in support of her own independent views and flaunts her will in the face of the world and its conventions. When her parents remonstrate about her extravagant ways, she leaves home immediately, and thereupon falls among those dwellers in the middle world, who prey on youth and virtue. With the usual convenient manner of the screen, she comes unscathed from many turbulent situations, and emerges to triumph and a safe return home. Another "prodigal daughter" is her younger sister, who marries a poet and finds that rhymes are very unsatisfactory fare, and also stages a repentant come-back to the parental roof. "The grand old man" of the screen, Theodore Roberts, plays the part of the father in this swift-moving, fascinating delineation of the spirit of the youth of our time.

The comedy is interesting, an uproarious affair depicting the adventures of an industrious photographer with a mysterious cap, who gets into all sorts of trouble with various passers-by. The short reels are the usual entertaining Capitol bits.

APPROVES APPEAL

MOSCOW, June 26. United Press. The Supreme Court has approved the appeal of the Metropolitan Tikhon for his freedom following his public repudiation of anti-government activities.

Tikhon was arrested on a charge of conspiring against the government and plotting to restore the monarchy. In a recent public statement he abjured these facts and said that he had been mislead by Chartists.

Before his arrest Tikhon was one of the leading orthodox Churchmen of Russia.

MRS. WILLIAM A. DUFFUS

(Contributed.)

On Friday, June 22nd, death claimed one of Peterboro's most highly respected ladies in the person of Margaret Loretta Doran, beloved wife of William Duffus, 526 Murray street.

The deceased had been ill but one week and great hopes had been held out for her recovery up to a few hours before passing away.

Being of a very bright and cheerful disposition, she had endeared herself to every one with whom she came in contact and her death has cast a very deep sorrow over the entire city and surrounding country.

Mrs. Duffus was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Doran of Emily, and was married to her now bereaved husband on September 22, 1914, their happy union being blessed with four children, Joseph, aged 8 years, Charles, 6 years, Patricia 3 years, and an infant son who predeceased her but one week.

Besides her immediate family there are left to mourn her loss, her brothers and sisters, Mr. Austin Doran, of Emily; Mrs. Primeau, of this city, also Leo, Teresa, Halman and Carman, residing with their father and mother in Emily.

A true member of the Christian Mothers of St. Peter's Cathedral, and always found ready and willing to help along the good work of charity, and having taken an active interest in the welfare of the church she had endeared herself to the many whom she met on such occasions as was evidenced by the numerous spiritual and floral offerings that surrounded the casket.

The deepest of sympathy goes out to the bereaved husband and young family as was evidenced by the numerous telegrams received.

The funeral, which was the largest in the city for many years, left the family residence on Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, to St. Peter's Cathedral, where the last rites of the Catholic Church were rendered, by the Rev. Father Galvin, assisted by the Rev. Father Costello. Thence he cortege proceeded to St. Peter's cemetery and her remains were laid to rest in the family plot.

The pall bearers were her four cousins, Cecil, Herman, Clair and Herbert Wolff, Mr. Austin Doran, and Herbert J. Duffus.

Among those from a distance noticed at the funeral were Mr. Wolff of Belleville, J. J. Carley, Toronto, Michael Egan of Lindsay, and Mrs. M. Rooney of Tweed.

Most Urgent Wants

There's a world of interest in the Want Ads. They reflect the urgent desires of various businesses, households and individuals.

The Wants tell what is most needed. If the cook has left, if a worker is needed in the office or factory, if an article of value is lost or found, if there is urgent necessity to sell a piece of property, secure tenants, roomers or boarders—all such conditions are expressed and met in the Want Columns.

The Wants are close to the heart interests of the people. It is interesting to watch them carefully.

J. W. MEYERS' THANKS

TO THE ELECTORS OF WEST PETERBOROUGH:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN,

Although not successful at the Polls in my candidature for election to the Ontario Legislature, I take this opportunity of extending my heartfelt thanks to all those who co-operated with me in the election campaign in the Liberal interests, as well as to no inconsiderable portion of the Electorate who marked their ballots in my favour.

Especially do I emphasize my warmest appreciation of the untiring efforts of the Liberal Committees and workers of both sexes, to whom I wish to convey the thought that we have nothing to be ashamed of in our defeat in West Peterborough Riding, where our Party fared infinitely better than in the vast majority of Liberal Constituencies adversely affected by Monday's voting.

With best wishes to all, no matter of what Party affiliation, for health, wealth, and prosperity,

Believe me to remain,

Yours very sincerely,

J. W. MEYERS.

A SWIFT BLAZE TRAPS BATHERS NEW YORK CITY

Fourteen Are Injured as Bath House, Old Pier and Two Ships Are Burned.

FIREMAN MISSING

NEW YORK, June 27.—One of the shortest but most spectacular fires of recent years in lower Manhattan started at the extreme west end of Pier 2 at the foot of Battery Place. Feeding on the rotting wood of the condemned pier and fanned by a strong in-shore wind, the blaze leaped shoreward with almost explosive speed. Half an hour later the pier, the Battery Park Baths alongside, a barge and a tug boat had been destroyed; a steamship and several smaller vessels had been badly damaged, and at least fourteen persons had been injured. A fireman on one of the tugs is missing and it is feared he was burned. The damage to property was estimated at $200,000.

The injured, with the exception of five firemen, were patrons of the baths and were caught by the fire in all stages of undress. None of them, however, was seriously injured.

The fire was discovered almost simultaneously by Deputy Fire Chief Worth, in charge of the Marine Division, as he was proceeding down the river in the launch Velox, and by William Fairclough, the keeper of the baths. Chief Worth hurriedly called the fireboat John Purroy Mitchel, tied up at the Battery, and Fairclough ran to the Marine Division, where he gave the alarm. But before the first apparatus could make the run, the pier had become a mass of flames.

Steamship Was Unloading.

The hot and cold water baths were in the superstructure of an old barge tied alongsde Pier 2. Nearer the end of the pier the tug Cornelius, owned by the Clifton Towing Company of Stapleton, S. I., had been tied up for the night. At Pier 1, just to the south, the steamship La Betta, a Shipping Board vessel, operated by the Hunson Line, was unloading its cargo of 800 tons of linseed oil, consigned to the Spencer Kellogg Linseed Company of Staten Island, onto barges. About ten small craft were tied to the north side of Pier 2.

The wind was blowing from the river. It caught the flames at the pier's end and swept them steadily nearer the shore. Almost as soon as the pier was fired the tug Cornelius caught. Its captain and crew with the exception of the fireman, whose name could not be learned, had departed for the night. The fireman was not seen to leave the burning vessel, and it is feared he was burned to death.

Before the arrival of the apparatus the flames had gorged themselves on the pier and had reached the bath house barge. Had the fire occurred earlier in the afternoon there would have been many more injured, but only about twelve women and half a dozen men were in the bath house at the time.

The speed with which the flames spread gave them no time to dress and they were forced to flee in some cases without clothing. Patrolman McAuliffe of Old Slip Station was one of the first to reach the blazing baths. One woman, without clothing, was making frantic efforts to make her way from the structure through a doorway, but found her escape cut off by flames. As the patrolman arrived, she fainted. McAuliffe groped his way through the fire and smoke and carried her to the street. She was taken away in an automobile before he could learn her name.

On the top floor of the baths was William Fairclough, Jr., and his mother. The Fairclough family with Thomas Tregellis, Mrs. Fairclough's brother, have their living quarters there. The first warning of fire came with the smoke as it poured into the room. William, who is 14 years old, threw open the door only to find a mass of flames. He broke a small skylight in the roof and after clamboring through, dragged his mother up after him. On the roof, with flames spurting all about them, the boy attempted to lower his mother to the dock. Her weight proved to be too heavy, however, and she slipped from his grasp, injuring her shoulder and abdomen. Before firemen could reach the boy, he jumped to the dock with a resulting sprained ankle.

Deputy Fire Chief Helm on his arrival sent in a second alarm; then a third and a fourth in quick succession. Pier 2 is directly opposite the Whitehall Building and about 400 feet away. Between them the space has been filled in with cinders in preparation for laying a street. When the apparatus attempted to cross it sank into the cinders up to the hubs and stalled.

Firemen brought ladders and hose across the ground and succeeded in getting the few remaining persons from the bath house. As the flames spread the heat became intense and the firemen were driven back for a time for the space of a city block.

Soon after the tug Cornelius caught fire, it broke away from the pier and drifted toward the La Betta. Before the fireboats could prevent it the barges William G. Porter and Jacob Siegel, of the Inland Towing Company, which were unloading the steamer, were caught by the flames. They in turn set fire to the superstructure of the La Betta.

Two Shipping Board tugs with the aid of the fireboat New Yorker, pulled the La Betta out into the river, where the crew of the fireboat boarded her and put out the blaze. The extent of her damage is not known. She was anchored off Governors Island for the night. The Cornelius burned to the water's edge. The barge Charles J. O'Neil, tied up on the north side of Pier 2, was also destroyed. The lighter E. J. McCormack, near-by, was badly damaged.

German Civilians Slain by Belgians in Ruhr District

DUSSELDORF, June 27. — (Canadian Press).—Three German civilians were killed yesterday in the Belgian occupied area of the Ruhr, according to information received in German quarters here.

At Buer a German was reported to have entered into an altercation with a Belgian officer, the latter drawing his revolver and killing him.

A French sergeant and corporal were wounded with revolver bullets near Witton last evening. Their wounding resulted from an attack made upon four French soldiers by three Germans and one woman.

WANTS DIVORCE FROM R. G. COLT

Ethel Barrymore, Well Known Actress, Sues for Separation From Her Husband.

PROVIDENCE, June 27. — Ethel Barrymore, wife of Russell G. Colt, of this city, son of the late Colonel Samuel P. Colt, is going to seek a divorce. Papers in the suit have been filed in the Superior Court of Rhode Island, and the case is set down for a hearing next week.

While Mr. Colt was not to be found, it is believed that he will not contest the action.

Miss Barrymore's action is a surprise to her friends, although it was known to them that the actress had more than once threatened to seek a separation from her husband. Even as early as 1911, a little more than two years after her marriage in March, 1909, in the rectory of the Church of the Precious Blood at Hyde Park, Mass., it was reported that she would divorce him. There were subsequent reports, too, but always it is said her Catholic faith and he devotion to her three children prevented her from taking the step.

The action here has been brought through Miss Barrymore's attorneys, Gardner, Moss & Haslam, of this city, who, it is said, arranged for the serving of the writ on Mr. Colt. The writ was served, it was reported, on April 28, when a deputy sheriff met Mr. Colt in the Biltmore Hotel here. This report could not be confirmed.

As one of the heirs to the estate of Colonel Colt of this city, president of the United States Rubber Company, Miss Barrymore on his death two years ago received $25,000 in cash and a joint share in Colonel Colt's estate at Mamaroneck, N.Y., where she now lives. In addition, $50,000 was left to each of her three children. Her husband, besides receiving $100,000 outright, also received one-sixth of the residuary estate and full rights to Linden Place, the Colt summer home at Britsol, R. I., as a home for himself and his family.

The three children, Samuel Pomeroy, John Drew and Ethel Colt, are living with their mother.

SALIENT FEATURES OF THE ELECTION

The Conservatives have a total of 75 seats, according to the latest reports against 25 at the dissolution of the Legislature—a gain of 50 seats.

The Liberal representation is cut in half. At dissolution they had 28 in the House; they have now 14.

The Government had 45 U.F.O. seats at dissolution; to-day they have but 17—a loss of 28.

Labour suffered the heaviest proportional loss. At dissolution they had nine seats; to-day they have but four.

Premier Drury and F. Wellington Hay, Liberal leader, were both defeated in their own ridings.

Hartley Dewart, for a time leader of the Liberal party, who was originally rejected by the Liberals, but subsequently received the nomination, was defeated.

The largest majority turned over was that of G. G. Halcrow, Labor member for Hamilton East. In the election of 1919 he had a majority of 7588. T is was overcome and his Conservative opponent elected by a majority of several hundreds.

Hon. W. E. Raney in East Wellington, has been elected, but his majority has been reduced.

Manning Doherty and F. C. Biggs, were the only other two former Cabinet ministers to be returned.

WILL EXAMINE DELORME BODY

Permission Received Today by Counsel for the Defence.

MONTREAL, June 27—(Canadian Press).—Announcement was made this morning by R. L. Calder, K.C., Crown prosecutor, that application had been made to the Attorney-General of the Province for permission to exhume the body of Raoul Delorme, for whose alleged murder his half-brother, Rev. Adelarde Delorme, is now on trial in the court of the King's Bench. Mr. Calder made his announcement when the court opened to-day.

The exhumation has been made necessary by the line of questions put by defence lawyer to the autopsists, Dr. Derome and Dr. MacTaggart, which have left the impression that Raoul may have been killed by shots from two different revolvers and by two people. Two bullets which entered the body were not located. Another autopsy will be held in the event of permission being secured to exhume the body to locate these bullets and see if they are of the same calibre and fit the same gun as the two which were found and which have been exhibited in the case.

Later Mr. Calder announced that formal permission had been received and that the exhumation would take place to-day. The body lies in the Delorme family vault in Cote Des Neiges Cemetery.

BOY FORESTERS ON A MOTOR TRIP

Invaded Peterboro Today on Way From Montreal to Toronto — Camping Out.

Canadian Boy Foresters, twenty-five strong, invaded Peterborough to-day in a big motor truck, which carried them, their tents and their luggage. The boys came from Montreal on a camping trip, and intend going to Toronto and Niagara, returning by way of the States. This afternoon they paid a visit to the Hydraulic Lift Lock, which formed one of the chief attractions in drawing them to Peterborough.

The Canadian Boy Foresters is an organization for the encouragement of outdoor sports, the protection of birds and small animals, and the teaching of camp life.

One of the special features about the organization is the encouragement given the boys in pursuit of their hobbies. Work shops are provided in the basement of the club room in Montreal, where machinery has been installed for carpentry and model building. The boys paid for this machinery ,and for the truck which they are using on this trip, by holding exhibits and sales of the models made by them in their workshop. Photography, rifle shooting, fretwork, wireless telegraphy, and collection of curios are some of the activities carried on during the winter months.

The boys who passed through Peterborough to-day range from 10 to 15 years of age .E. S. Almon, the organizer and leader, said the boys enjoyed cooking their own meals, but being in the city at noon they decided to have dinner in a restaurant. The party left for Lindsay this evening.

ESTIMATES FOR THE TRENT CANAL

$15,000 For Construction on the Severn Division is Voted.

OTTAWA, June 27.—(Special to the Examiner).—The supplementary estimates introduced by the Government show that Mr. G. N. Gordon, M.P., of Peterborough, has succeeded in getting some voted for this district.

$15,000 is contained in the estimates for construction on the Severn Division of the Trent Canal; and $4,000 to re-build the road in Harvey Township, near Buckhorn, where it has been flooded every spring for many years. This spring it was worse than usual, and had become a positive danger to people coming from Harvey Township to the city.

Reeve Robert Shaw of Harvey made representations to Mr. Gordon some time ago, and Mr. Gordon succeeded in convincing the Government that at least $4,000 should be expended on raising the highway so that there would not be the danger of it being flooded each spring.

In addition to that, the estimates show that $1,000 is to be paid Mr. John Doris, London Street, who, some years ago, had his hip broken while employed on one of the dredges of the Trent Canal.

Mr. Doris, at the time, received a small amount of compensation, but, upon his case being presented to the Government by Mr. Gordon, the Government has voted this year one thousand dollars to him for the very serious injuries he suffered.

MOST NOTABLE DISCOVERY OF ANCIENT BEAST

Digging For Drain, Delaware Man Finds Relics of Animal 30,000 Years Old.

MASTODON SKELETON

LONDON, Ont., June 27—Remains of a prehistoric animal that roamed these parts more than 30,000 years ago were found some days ago when William Jones, of Delaware was digging for a drain on the second concession. The skull tusks and teeth of the beast were shipped to A. D. Robertson, Professor of Zoology at the University of Western Ontario, this morning.

Mr. Jones' niece first informed Professor Robertson of the discovery, and the latter immediately proceeded to the location of the find. There he unearthed numerous other parts of the animal, which he declared were those of a mastodon that lived in this country from 30,000 to 300,000 years ago.

The discovery is perhaps the most notable of its kind ever made in Canada. Nearly the entire skeleton of the mastodon, the last of the ancient elephants, was brought to the University. It will probably be placed in the college museum.

The find was the result of an attempt on the part of Mr. Jones to excavate for a drain at the second concession near Delaware. In digging, he struck what he believed to be a root. Seizing an axe, he hit the article a hard blow and part of it broke off. The object was so brittle that Mr. Jones investigated and discovered numerous pieces of semi-decomposed ivory.

Jaw Weighs 40 Pounds.

Later, when Professor Robertson arrived, other portions were unearthed. The lower jaw, weighing about 40 pounds, teeth, cranium, a number of vertebrae, ribs, and a tusk weighing about 20 pounds were found.

The Professor concluded after a minute examination of the bones, that they were those of an ancient elephant which became extinct thousands of years ago, and which roamed the earth during the Pleistocene period This is the same period in natural history when man first appeared on the globe in primeval form.

In size the animal, if alive, would be nine feet in height, and would resemble the Indian elephant but for the curious formation of the proboscis and head. In Nebraska and certain Western States remains of a similar nature have been unearthed, but it is doubtful if one in such a fine state of preservation has ever before been found.

At first glance the tusks look like ordinary driftwood, but an inspection shows they are extremely brittle. All substances are liable to decomposition after a long period of years, even ivory, and the tusks of the Delaware mastodon are no exceptions. The immense lower jaw is crowned with three tremendous teeth, fi preserved.

Water Preserved It.

Changing climatic conditions have brought about the extinction of all the great reptiles and mammals of prehistoric times.

Professor Robertson believes, however, that the end of the ancient elephant was probably expedited by North American Indians, who, no doubt, hunted the beast with their pointed arrows.

It belongs to a class of proboscideans that dwelt in Canada before the Neolithic age. In geographical distribution these mammals ranged from Europe, Asia, Alaska, and North America. They were forest-dwelling forms of the true elephants which were their contemporaries.

Remains of these animals have been found chiefly as a result of the drainage excavations in swamps and boggy lands.

Professor Robertson attributes the fine preservation of the remains to the watery nature of the sod in which it was buried. In all likelihood it was trapped or died just where it was found and gradually sank into the earth. Parts of the skeleton were less than six inches from the surface.

It is expected that Mr Jones, who found the animal, will make a presentation of it to the University. It will be the most valuable acquisition to the Zoological Department of the College ever found.

The skeleton was discovered about ten days ago, but the parts were not shipped to London until yesterday.

Two Candidates Dispute Election in Algoma Riding

SAULT STE. MARIE June 27. —Canadian Press. — Dr. A. G. Wallis, Liberal this morning claims Algoma riding by a majority of 7, and Dr. J. Robb, Conservative, claims it by 6.

All polls have been heard from but the exact figures are uncertain as corrections from returns collected by phone are being made as returning officers papers come in.

ROBBED MAILS BUILT CHURCH

German Postal Inspector Stole From American Letters and Posed as Philanthropist.

MUNICH, June 27. (United Press) —Chief Postal Inspector Pfaffinger grew rich over night by the simple practice of opening registered letters from America and stealing the dollars Americans were sending to German relatives and friends. He lived high and entertained frequently. Then he told the people that the Virgin Mary had appeared and instructed him to do good, so he took some more dollars out of registered letters and built a church. The Federal authorities then investigated. He got

1. Six months imprisonment,
2. A hundred thousand marks fine.
3. Ten years loss of citizenship

PUBLIC WON IN BERRY BATTLE

Jobber and Producer in Brief Price Competition Sent Market Tumbling Down.

Householders' expectations of cheap strawberries based on yesterday's sudden drop to the price of two boxes for twenty-five cents were rather sharply pulled up this morning when the market recovered some of its lost ground and appeared to have settled down for the brief season of this crop.

The previous decline from 35 to 25 cents was accepted by the public as part of the ordinary process of moving toward the normal price and Monday's improvement to two boxes for forty-five cents was another of the signs of the accummulating supply depressing the quotations. Yesterday came the real flurry, and from all accounts it was the result of a brush between a berry jobber and one of the local producers. At any rate the price fell swiftly to two boxes for a quarter, a breathless descent that caught the bargain-loving public napping.

It was reported that Sam Levine, had gone into the counry and bought up a truck load of fruit which he proceeded to dispose of in the city on the retail basis of fifteen cents. The spirit of competition brought quick action from one of the large growers to the west of the city who immediately undersold Levine to the extent that his fruit was placed in the stores to sell at two boxes for twenty-five cents.

Consumers who follow the uptown trade could scarcely believe that the strawberry market had been so violently disturbed and on the strength of the big flop some of them began to entertain hopes of the price of ten cents a box.

This morning, however, the flurry had passed. Prices were two boxes for thirty-five cents with some stores quoting fifteen cents.

ASK SOVIET TO SIGN TURKISH STRAITS PACT

Allies Take Another Step Toward Bringing Russia Back Into the European Fold.

TURKS OBSTINATE

LAUSANNE, June 27. Canadian Press. — The allies to-day took another step toward "bringing Russia back to Europe" by a decision to invite the Soviet to sign the Turkish Straits convention when the Lausanne treaty is ready for signature.

The terms opening the Straits to foreign warships were arraigned at the first conference here, but Foreign Minister Tchitchern of Russia, also a delegate, objected to the agreement. The Soviet since that time and particularly during the excitemen following the assassination here of the iet envoy, Vorovski, have contended that Russia never refus to sign the convention, and was entitled to representation in t present conference. The allies are curious to see how Russia will greet the president invitation.

The Ottoman Debt.

It is announced from Angora that instructions have been sent to Ismet Pasha, the chief delegate at Lausanne, to insist upon the Turkish standpoint in regard to the payment of the Ottoman debt.

The newspapers here state that Ismet has been ordered to leave Lausanne if a settlement can't be reached in accordance with the Turkish claims.

THE SUMMER CAMP AT JACKSON PARK

Miss Ann Long Will Be Camp Nurse - Twenty-Reported Today.

The summer camp maintained by the Peterborough Health Association at Jackson Park for undernourished and delicate children of the city who are between the ages of six and fourteen years, opened yesterday. The attendance on the first day, as usual, was small, fourteen children reporting. This morning, there were twenty-six, and when the schools close, the ladies in charge expect the full quota of children. As in other years, the summer season will be divided into sections of three weeks apiece, with the Camp marking a limit of fifty children for each session.

The ladies are delighted with the convenience afforded them by the new kitchen, erected on Victoria Day by members of the Kiwanis Club, and anticipate a very successful year. Mrs. Florence Millet, who has been in charge of housekeeping arrangements at the Camp for some years now, will be in charge again this year, and Miss Ann Long will be Camp nurse. The ladies of the Health Association will assist in supervising and looking after supplies, etc.

Contributions of any sort, in the shape of Victrola records, toys, or treats for the children, will be thankfully received.

OTTAWA, June 27.— (Canadian Press.)—In recognition of his work in the discovery of insulin, the House of Commons today passed a resolution favoring the granting of a life annuity to Dr. F. G. Banting, of Toronto. Supplemetnary estimates contain a vote of $7,500 to enable Dr. Banting to devote his life to medical research.

The resolution was moved by Premier King and seconded by Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Leader of the Opposition. The Prime Minister felt that this expression of appreciation of Dr. Banting's work would be in conformity with the wishes of the whole Canadian people. Dr. Banting was a citizen of whom all Canadians and all British peoples were justly proud.

WAVE SELLING STOCK MARKET

Fifty Stocks Down to the Lowest Price of the Year.

NEW YORK, June 27. Canadian Press. — Another wave of short selling and liquidation occurred in today's stock market, pushing more than 50 stocks down to the lowest price of the year, including many important and representative issues. While the selling was not in large volume it was so persistent as to indicate that much of it came from tired and discouraged investors. The brokers reported many orders for the selling of odd lots, of less than 100 shares, which added color to the reports of public liquidation. Practically all of the low price shares slumped from 1 to 3 points and many representative industrial stocks also sank to new low levels.

SUBSTITUTE PERFUME FOR WATER AND BATH

He used perfume as a substitute for a bath. That was why perfumes were invented—to counteract lack of sanitation. Running water and the bath-tub enable us to get near each other without scent camouflage.

Maybe you wonder why good perfumes are so expensive. It takes three million roses to yield one pound of rose essence.

In a manner of speaking, there is debt not revenue producing really much in a manner of speaking.

Does Not Contemplate Big Increase in Air Fleet as Intended by Britain.

IMPROVE QUALITIES

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(Canadian Press.) — The United States does not contemplate a great increase in its air fleet such as has been indicated by Great Britain, but the government intends to increase its force at the War Department.

Secretary Weeks is understood to take the position that the army air service should continue to pioneer the way in development of improved military qualities rather than to attempt, under the present condition of national finances, to maintain equality with any particular nation.

FIRE DESTROYED RELICS IN THE FORBIDDEN CITY

Wooden Plates With Carved History of Almost Forgotten Ages Wiped Out—Fire Supposed Incendiary.

PEKIN, June 27 (United Press). —Fire swept through the Forbidden City to-day.

The ancient Imperial Historical Hall, containing ancestral relics of all the Emperors, was destroyed, together with dozens of smaller buildings surrounding it.

Wooden plates, upon which were carved the histories of dynasties stretching back into almost forgotten ages, were destroyed by the flames, and stories of many centuries before Christ were wiped out for ever.

According to seemingly authentic reports, the fire was of an incendiary origin.

Servants are reported to have sold valuable curios to American and to British tourists, and to have set fire to the Ancestral Hall to escape detection.

Little credit is attached to the reports that the fire resulted from a plot to drive the Emperor from Pekin.

The Imperial Palace was not damaged, according to the police, and the Emperor's life was not threatened.

The Forbidden City lies within the closely guarded wall; and now foreigners have penetrated its mysteries, although in recent years the Chinese authorities have looked upon the spot with less reverence than when a long line of Emperors ruled with complete power.

FAMOUS DIAMOND IN PURSE AND SHE LIVES IN POVERTY

The fourth largest diamond in the world lies in an empty purse.

Zita, former Empress of Austria, looks from the marvelously faceted gem to her clamorous brood of hungry children, and writes again to Italy.

The Florentine diamond, once worn so proudly by Charles the Bold of Burgundy, is all that stands between the exiled royal family and grim poverty.

"I pray you," wrote Zita, from her forlorn home, in the Pyrenees, at the edge of the rough Biscayan Sea, where she and the small archdukes and archduchesses languished in solitude. "I pray you, Italy, to buy my last jewel. We cannot live on the bounty of the King of Spain. For one year we could do so, but it may be forty Neither the King of Spain nor the Spanish people should be called on to take such a responsibility."

Will Italy heed her cry?

Italy has not the rather than longer live on the charity of the King of Spain she and her brood returned to Austria, where she is living almost like an outcast near Vienna. Her total resources are less than $5,000 realized by the sale of the remnants of the royal wine cellar.

The Swiss will not buy the diamond because it is too big for ordinary use, and is, therefore, chiefly of historical value. It weighs 137.27 metric carats, is beautifully cut, and has a slightly yellowish tinge.

Disaster Pursues Exiles

Since Zita and the Emperor Charles took their little family that windy night in March, 1919, and left the Castle of Ekartsau on the Danube, whither they had retired after the proclamation that created the Austria-Hungarian republic, disaster has pursued the royal exiles.

The wonderful collection of jewels, representing centuries of search and millions upon millions of Austrian crowns, lavished to enrich the house that had given Kings to Hungary since 1282, was taken with the refugees on their flight.

While Charles and his devoted Empress were flying by airplane to Burgenland to head the revolting royalists in that wild, ill-advised attempt to seize the throne, a conspiracy of pretended "international jewellers" defrauded the Emperor of the wealth of crown jewels, giving to Charles' personal representative, who was beside himself with anxiety over pressing creditors, a mere 5,000 pounds in exchange.

The Florentine diamond alone escaped the fate of the treasure that belonged to the Hapsburgs, probably because it is too large to be disposed of undetected, and because of its peculiar yellowish tinge and intricate faceting could not be recut and so disguised.

After, the fiasco at Burgenland, Charles and Zita were turned over to the Allies, placed on a British warship and sent to Madeira, where they were given a handsome villa, but supplied with no money for expenses.

Zita, to whom the ban forbidding Charles to leave the island did not apply, travelled to Switzerland to sell the jewels, and came back again, empty-handed, with the story of the swindle and without even the 5,000 pounds, which had been swallowed up in the enormous bill of costs presented by creditors.

The next day the royal family vacated the villa and moved into a cottage lent them by a neighborhood priest.

Emperor Dies in Poverty

On some days, if it had not been for charity, the family would have gone hungry to bed. The cold was intense, despite the supposed mildness of the Madeira climate, and wood and coal were high. Charles developed a racking cough. Bronchitis, then pneumonia, attacked him. Weak for want of proper food, exhausted by worry, his pride cut to the quick, his heart broken, Charles Frances Joseph, once Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary, last of a long royal line, died in a lowly bed beneath a humble roof.

The King of Spain appealed for Zita and her fatherless children, the seventh of whom was yet unborn, to all the crowned heads of Europe, asking that the private property of Charles be turned over to her. In the meantime he threw open to the tragic little family the castle of Pardo, on the outskirts of Madrid, where his own Queen had spent happy months prior to their wedding. Here the last little archduchess was born.

Still, Zita had no funds. The bank of Paiffy in Budapest, where the personal account of Charles had lain untouched failed immediately after Charles' death, and disputes over what is and is not private property of the Hapsburgs continue until today.

The ladies of the Belgian court sent Zita a layette for the new baby, born in a Spanish castle, but on soil brought from Hungary, in two great caskets.

"God knows," she said, "what we would have done but for your kindly thought. We would have been hard put to find something to wrap the little archduchess in."

A Queen Without A Crown

Presently, the proud daughter of the Duke of Parma, born an heir to his forty millions, now a Queen without a crown, a widow without a home, found the part of "poor relation" irksome. She moved, with her lovely children, to the tiny fishing village of Lequieto, a medieval town, on the lip of the Biscayan Sea.

The home taken by the 30-year-old royal widow is a dreary place, built of stone and unheated, though the climate of the coast is not mild. The fare of the orphaned Hapsburgs was plain and their garments those of the children of the fisher-folk of the village, with whom the young heirs to a by-gone kingdom romped on the sandy beach.

A contrast indeed to the style of her life as the favorite child of her wealthy father. Brought up in Italy and France, part of her education given her on the Isle of Wight—luxury lavished upon her in all three countries—the little "Princess Zita," as she was called, had no need to calculate the cost of coal and bread.

In the castle of Chambord, she dreamed away golden days of girlhood —that wonderful old pile in which Charles V. held magnificent receptions in the sixteenth century. "One of my father's houses," she could say, as she wandered among the 365 rooms, and ascended the monumental, double-spiraled central staircase, up and down which two regiments may march at the same time without passing or even seeing each other.

Pursued Her to Convent

But love came to her.

"More for you than for me," reads the motto and device chosen by the proud little princess when she was no more than a child—and bravely has she clung to it through these troublous years.

Charles Francis Joseph, then not even heir apparent to the dual throne, wooed her in the gardens of Chambord, pursued her in the convent in the Isle of Wight, and won her under the blue of Italian skies, which were, in truth, no bluer than the eyes of the young Prince.

Then came the assassination of the Archduke at Sarajevo, which plunged the world into war. But it gave to Charles and Zita positions next to the throne and an income of $16,000,000 annually.

Again "Princess Zita" lived in luxury.

Does she look back on those days with bitter regret as she hears the lessons of her eldest son, her "little Emperor," in that cottage in a Vienna suburb?

They were not days of joy, those days upon the throne. War shook the land. Charles, her beloved, was often away with the troops. Zita's own brothers were active members of the Belgian Army, her sisters nurses in English hospitals, her closest friends fought under the Italian flag.

The young Empress' heart was with the Allies. She was accused of influencing Charles toward a separate peace and incurred the malignant hatred of the Kaiser. That deadly hate urged the war lord to circulate accusations of the basest kind against the innocent Zita's honor. Manufactured evidence was presented to Charles, and he was pressed to obtain a divorce that would throw the luckless Empress, helpless and dishonored, robbed of her children, out into the world.

But the Emporer, who had once been a blue-eyed lover urging his suit in halting English in shady lanes on the Isle of Wight, did not listen.

"More for you than for me," reads her motto.

Now it applies to the handsome orphans who cluster about her knee to repeat their daily lessons, or run out to play—perhaps most of all it applies to the glorious youngster who has been acclaimed King of Hungary by ardent royalists.

Otto, as he is fondly called, is very near his mother's heart, He was only 8 when his parents made their fatal journey to Burgenland, and he was told nothing of their plans, but all the time they were away he was troubled by forebodings, and so nervous that he could not eat or sleep.

"Take a message to my son," begged Zita, from her prison cell in Tata. "Tell him he must not fear for us."

And so she looks from the Florentine diamond, flashing back at her from the royal jewel case, to the true blue eyes of the "little Emperor," and pleads with the country of her birth:

"I pray you, Italy, buy my last jewel."

RAOUL DELORME WAS SHOT BY SIX BULLETS NOT SURE OF CALIBRE

Autopsists State That the Bullets Might Have Been Fired By More Than One Person.

THREE WERE FATAL.

MONTREAL, June 27.— (Canadian Press.)— Evidence of expert medical autopsists in the hearing of the charge against Father Delorme of having murdered his half brother Raoul, here, yesterday, was to the effect that the victim was struck by six 25-calibre revolver bullets. There were eight wounds, seven on the right side of the face and one on the left, but two of the wounds are thought to have passed through and through the flesh, causing two extra wounds. One of the autopsists, Dr. D. D. McTaggart, stated that in his opinion any of three bullets that struck Raoul could have caused death. There were two that pierced the neck in close proximity to the internal jugular vein, and another whch lodged about one inch in front of the right ear.

The other autopsist, Dr. Derome, in the course of his cross-examination by C. H. Cahan, K.C., for the defence, admitted that more than one person might have fired the shots which killed Raoul. His evidence was was to the effect that five bullets were fired into the right side of the face and one into the left side. Two bullets were extracted, he continued, but two were never found when he and Dr. McTaggart performed the autopsy on the afternoon of January 7, 1922, the day following the murder.

"Can you say," asked Cahan, "whether the two bullets which went right through the head were of the same calibre as the ones you extracted?"

"I would not be positive," replied Dr. Derome. "I could not say from the wound alone whether a 22 or a 25 bullet had been fired."

"Or even a 32?"

"Yes."

"Can you declare with any degree of certainty whether one person fired the six or seven shots?"

"I can say that the same person could have fired the shots, but I cannot say whether more persons fired or not," was the reply.

"Is it not possible," asked the lawyer, "that two persons fired shots into the victim?"

"In my opinion it is not probable; it is possible, however."

From the questions as to the wounds, the cross-examination was carried on to the field of what is known as rigor mortis. This state, the autopsist explained, usually sets in after from three to six hours following death. In two cases, however, it sets in almost immediately. That is if at the time of death the victim is engaged in a violent muscular combat or if he s shot either through the heart or the brain.

Mr. Cahan asked if in cases of suicide when the bulleet has neither struck the veins of the heart or the brain, the deceased had not been known to clutch the revolver so tightly that it had been very difficult to wrench it out of his grasp, and that this was caused by rigor mortis.

Dr. Derome said he had never seen such a case personally. In the case of Raoul Delorme the witness was of the opinion that rigor mortis probably set in from three to six hours after death making an assumption from the contents of Raoul's stomach after his death, he gave it as his view that if the victim had eaten a meal about one o'clock he could have been killed about five o'clock that afternoon. The body was only half frozen and the witness ascribed the rigidity of the body to rigor mortis.

The two bullets extracted were shown, one by Dr. Derome, the other by Dr. MacTaggart. The latter explained that he had not turned in his bullet because he had been away to the United States following the coroner's inquest. He had kept it locked up in his private office. It had been examined by Chief Lepage of the local detective department and by Chief Lorrain of the provincial police. The bullet was extracted from the point of the victim's chin. It was considerably distorted. It had shattered the jaw, but Dr. McTaggart thought this would not have caused Raoul to have lost consciousness, and he would have been able to defend himself after the shot. Dr. MacTaggart filed several large sketches showing the position of the bullet wounds. They showed seven wounds on the right side of the face and neck and one on the left side of the face. He explained the exact position and the course and supposed course of the bullets.

Labor Reaffirms War Levy on Capital.

LONDON, June 27. — (Canadian Press.)—A levy on capital for redemption of the war debt was reaffirmed as one of the chief planks in the platform of British Labor by Sidney Webb, presiding yesterday over the twenty-third annual conference of the Labor Party.

He advocated a graduated levy on fortunes of £5,000 up, and declared there could be no financial security or restoration of the industrial prosperity as long as a million Pounds Sterling had to be taken out of the products of labor each working day, before either wages were paid or profit made, merely to defray the interest on the war debt.

The Labor party, he added, was prepared to form an alternative ministry whenever called upon. Labor's foreign policy would be to tell France that "we will go no step further with her in what seems to us a fatal policy of aggression arising seemingly from what psychoanalysts would call a fear complex, unworthy of a great nation."

GRAIN MEN ARE CHARGED WITH IRREGULARITIES

Charges Will Be Investigated By Grain Inquiry Board During the Latter Part of July.

WESTERN ROUTE.

EDMONTON, June 27.—(Canadian Press).—Alieged irregularities affecting some 25 western grain companies are to be heard by the grain enquiry board at Moose Jaw, Sask., during the later part of July, it was decided at yesterday's session of the board. Numerous witnesses are to be called and it has been arranged that they will be summoned by the counsel for the grain board. The charges were filed by H. A. Mackie counsel for W. H. Morrison, a member of the Order of Grain Buyers.

The importance of the western route to the farmer and the necessity of an adequate elevator facilities at Edmonton with complaints of substitution of grain at public elevator facilities at Edmonton with complaints of substitution of grain at public elevators and against the dock age system were features of the morning session.

J. M. Imrie, representing the Edmonton Board of Trade, gave evidence before the grain enquiry board to-day. He was called by C. H. Van Allen, counsel for the Alberta government.

Two main points stressed by Mr. Imrie were the aggressive development of the westbound route, and the establishment of adequate storage, cleaning and hospital elevator facilities at Edmonton. He pointed out that in the past there had been a great deal of attenion paid to production and not sufficient to marketing methods.

The prospects of a bumper crop this season were alluded to. If the 1915 yield is maintained, there would be around 546,000,000 bushels from the acreage sown this year. While the board of trade did not claim that Canada should control the world's price, it did feel that it should influence the price. Particular attention should be given to means to increase the margin for the farmer.

Dealing with marketing. Mr. Imrie pointed out that the trend in the past has been to ship through the neck of the bottle at the head of the lakes. The rush to market before this resulted in competition for farm labor, railways being obliged to carry a pack load with congested conditions at the head of the lakes. There was a dumping of the product on the world markets and caused an unnecessary depreciation in the world's price.

"We believe that the aggressive development of a second all-year-round route is the remedy," said Mr Imrie. It would give competitive element and work against the high lake rates of last season It would spread the harvesting over a longer period and lesson the competition for labor and threshing equipment

OPPOSITION TO PULP EMBARGO HEARD IN HOUSE

Fear Expressed That the United States May Retaliate With Embargo on Anthracite.

THIRD READING.

OTTAWA, June 27.— (Canadian Press.)—By a vote of 96 to 57, the House yesterday defeated an amendment to give the six months' hoist to the government bill empowering the governor in council to prohibit the export of pulp wood, and subsequently the bill received third reading.

The amendment, moved by Major Power of Quebec South, came from the Liberal ranks but it received only seven Liberal votes, including that of the mover.

A. R. McMaster (Brome) opposed the bill as being "not consistent with the principles whch we would have supposed animated a party calling itself Liberal."

"The prime minister has said that I have erected a little altar of my own," said Mr. McMaster. "That may be so, but I can inform him that the fires of this altar at least are not fed with fuel from the splinters of a broken platform."

The United States has no duty against the export of pulpwood or anything else from the country. If Canada restricted or prohibited exports she would simply be inviting reprisals. What would be the situation, asked Mr. McMaster, if the United States chose to prohibit the export of hardwood which was used by Canadian manufacturers of furniture, or of cotton which was the raw material for Canadian cotton mills. What would be the situation if the U. S. government put an embargo on the export of anthracite coal. The whole of Central Canada was warmed by anthracite coal from the United States, and the people living in this section would view with great alarm anything which would result in a stoppage of the supply.

W. C. Good (Progresive, Brant), thought there was something sinister in the measure. The necessary precautions to preserve forests seemed to have been used as an excuse to carry out a policy benefitting a few pulpmen in Canada by enabling them to purchase pulpwood more favorably in competition with purchasers of the United States.

EQUALITY OF SEXES.

LONDON, June 27.— (Canadian Press.)—The House of Lords, by a vote of 95 to 80, yesterday passed the second reading of the bill making the grounds for divorce the same for both sexes. The measure now stands a good chance of becoming law. It was passed by the House of Commons early this month.

TEN MINUTE STORM TOOK TOLL OF LIVES

Brief Storm of Terrific Intensity Swept Over Two Suburbs of New York, Leaving a Path of Death and Destruction—Many Heat Prostrations in New York City.

NEW YORK, June 27.— (Canadian Press.)—One woman was killed and several persons injured late yesterday when a violent wind, electrical and hail storm of only ten minutes duration, swept over the Bushwick and East New York sections of Brooklyn.

The woman, Miss Bertha Vail, was killed when the wind toppled a 30-foot brick wall, enclosing the East New York repair snop of the B.M.T., demolishing an automobile in which she was seated with Mrs. Rose Herring, and Mrs. Herring's divorced husband, David Rosenfeld, both of whom were injured.

B.M.T. workmen extricated them and took them to a hospital, where Miss Vail died. Mrs. Herring was injured internally and was not expected to recover, and Rosenfeld, though badly hurt, was expected to live.

Fifty of the finest specimens of trees in Prospect Park were felled, some of them more than a hundred years old, blocking motor traffic on the drives and resulting in the temporary closing of the park to all traffic.

The brief storm was the climax of a sizzling day fraught with tragedy. Mrs. Emily Ellsworth, wife of a retired stock broker, died of heart failure superinduced by the heat, while she sought relief by lying in a bathtub in her Riverside Drive apartment.

Unbalanced by the heat, Mrs. Dora Katz, mother of three children, leaped six stories from the roof of her apartment and was killed.

Mrs. Beckie Kessler held police and firemen at bay with an axe and knife while they pervented her from throwing her two children from a fire escape of her fourth floor apartment. She was sent to a hospital suffering from heat prostration.

Lack of rain and an extraordinary consumption of water have depleted reservoirs in northern New Jersey and many towns were practically without any supply yesterday.

WEST WILL START TO HARVEST EARLY

Good Rainfall Last Week Will Go a Long Way Toward a Bumper Crop in the Fall — Wheat in Head.

WINNIPEG, June 27.—(Canadian Press.)—Following uniform distribution of rainfall during the past week, all sections of the prairie provinces reported improved crop conditions, states the weekly report issued yesterday by the Canadian National Railways. If present conditions continue throughout the growing season the harvest should be started early, the report declares. Summarising the conditions in each province the report states:

"Conditions in Manitoba with the exception of a few districts in the southern part of the province where rain is needed, are satisfactory with every promise of good wheat yields. Oats and flax are doing well under favorable growing weather.

"From all parts of Saskatchewan the reports are of a very cheerful nature. Good rains have furnished moisture to all districts and have checked the grasshopper menace. No damage of consequence was done by recent storms.

"Reports from Alberta are optimistic, crops everywhere appear to be doing well and farmers feel assured of a good harvest. All weather conditions have been favorable for rapid and strong growth. There has been no damage from any cause."

EDMONTON, Alberta, June 27.—(Canadian Press.)—Wheat crops are already beginning to head out on some farms in central and northern Alberta. Splendid weather conditions have had their effect and as a result the prospects of early harvesting are bright.

Farmers have no alarm even if the grain is somewhat ahead of schedule as it is of good color and rapidly growing. In some parts wheat stands thirty inches high with every indication of a bumper yield. Heavy rains were reported last Friday and Saturday while some sections had rain during the week.

COAST-TO-COAST HIKERS.

COLUMBUS, Neb., June 27. — (United Press).—Movie struck girls and waitresses hunting new jobs! Hoboes and single men and floating laborers!

These made up the greatest number of men and women hikers given a lift by two automobile parties between the Atlantic seaboard and Columbus.

Wilbur Hartnet, Washington, D. C., newspaper man, who arrived in Columbus recently, said that along the Lincoln Highway there is scarcely an automobile tourist who is not importuned from 10 to 20 times a day to give a ride to some man or woman hiker.

In the course of four weeks' travel, Hartnet, on his way here from the east, gave lifts to 193 hikers and passing up 400 more. Of these 75 were women and 118 were men.

Among the girls, 50 were on pleasure trips to the mountains of Colorado or the lakes of Wisconsin and Minnesota. Most of these were either college girls, school teachers or business women. The rest of those whom Hartnet and his wife met said they were hiking to Los Angeles in the hope of getting into the movies. The others were waitresses or domestics walking to new jobs.

Of the 118 men, a few proved to be college students on vacation jaunts. The rest were either tradesmen or floating laborers, 18 to 60 years of age.

ANNUITY FOR BANTING.

OTTAWA, June 27.— (Canadian Press.) — Supplementary estimates tabled in the House of Commons by Minister of Finance Fielding yesterday provide for an annuity of $7,500 for Dr. F. G. Banting, of Toronto, the discovered of insulin.

DEMAND MANY REFORMS

LONDON, June 27.—(United Press)—Delegates from all over Great Britain met here today to consider the program for the twenty-third annual conference of the labor party.

The financial resolution condemns the government policy, particularly as regards expenditure on armaments, and urges the necessity for a capital levy to decrease the tremendous debt.

In its ducation resolution, the executive committee seeks to have the conference denounce the government for "its disastrous policy of crippling our national educational service and forcing education to pursue a similar course."

As to unemployment, the executive committee resolution holds the government responsible for most of the suffering and physical and mental deterioration to which it declares an enormous proportion of the entire wage-earning class has been subjected during the last three years.

With regard to housing, the committee calls for an immediate government undertaking to force local authorities to draw up and carry out a three-year program of house building sufficient to provide "a decent and adequate house" for every family at a rent within the wage-earners' means. A part of the scheme would be a subsidy to builders. Money for this would be raised by means of a national loan.

SIR HERBERT SAMUEL IN ENGLAND.

DIVISION IN THE HOUSE ON THE PASSAGE OF MONEY FOR RAILROADS

Meighen Again Tries to Have Money Voted Annually Instead of For Three Years As Bill Proposed.

CHANGE OF FRONT.

OTTAWA, June 27. Canadian Press. — There was a division on the third reading of the bill to provide for the construction of the Canadian National branch lines, when Right Hon. Arthur Meighen moved to amend it to require both money and guarantees for contsruction to be voted annually instead of for three years as provided in the bill.

Mr. Meighen's amendment was defeated by 101 to 28.

Mr. Meighen supported his amendment by citing the act to incorporate the Canadian National under which he maintained deficits, guarantees or advances must be placed in the estimates. Moreover he said in 1919 the present premier had insisted on the insertion of a clause compelling the expenditures to be submitted to parliament.

"Of course," he said, "this is a change of front, but changes of front are the invariable rule, the only consistent thing that this government does."

Hon. W. S. Fielding replied that the essence of the law was not that each item should be put in the estimates but that each expenditure should be submitted to parliament. He pointed out that the present bill did not submit these votes to parliament. Railway subsidies, he added, were voted in bulk as was the loan to Montreal harbor.

"Why was it wrong in 1919 and why is it right now?" asked Mr. Meighen.

Mr. Fielding replied that he did not remember speaking in 1919, nor did he care to dwell upon that point now. The important thing was that every expenditure should be submitted to parliament and this the government had provided for in this case.

Robert Forke (Progressive leader) agreed with Mr. Fielding as to the interpretation of the law. He was not interested in dispues over what was said in 1919. At the present time the practice proposed by the government seemed to be quite reasonable.

Sir Henry Drayton then read several quotations from Premier King's speech in 1919. In one the principal of the bill then before the house was described as "thoroughly vicious in that it deprives parliament of this control over the supplies necessary for the purpose."

Mr. King smiled while Sir Henry was reading and when he concluded remarked: "There has been a change of government since then."

"Yes," came back Sir Henry: "my right honorable friend has a different view there than here. What is wrong here is right there."

He went on to say that the present bill gave the Minister of Railways the right to spend money as he liked in 28 constituencies, "though," he added, "I dont believe there will be an election."

"You never can tell," put in Hon. G. P. Graham.

After Mr. Graham had pointed out that there would be a report to parliament of these expenditures each year the division bells rang.

The vote on the Meighen amendment was 28 for and 101 against.

The Conservatives voting for the amendment had the support of the two Labor members, four Progressives and one independent; Progressives otherwise united with the Liberals in defeating the motion.

The bill then passed its third reading.

LATE SPRING CHICKS MEAN EGG SCARCITY

Poultry Expert Gives Warning of Low Production Next Winter.

"The delayed spring this year was responsible for many poor hatches and a large proportion of the late Spring Chicks, this will mean far fewer pullets than usual" says Prof. F. Elford at the Poultry Division of the Experimental Farm at Otttawa. A serious situation has thus developed, according to Canada's chief poultry authority. At the present there are practically no eggs in cold storage. Usually eggs are coming forward in heavy shipments at this season and the storage houses become well filled. This year their floors are practically bare and supplies in sight are more limited than they have been for some considerable time.

Canadians are today consuming more eggs per capita than ever before, and so, with this combination of circumstances, the late hatched chicks this year present a serious problem.

If ever there was a need for taking care of the pullets and bringing them to maturity at the arliest date, it is right now. In fact Prof. Elford goes so far as to advise securing expert advice and assistance in order that the maximum of eggs may be secured. Under the circumstances the poultry-keeper and the man or woman who has a few chickens in the backyard should do everything possible to take advantage of these conditions, and secure such information and knowledge as will enable them to get the best results from their hens. He exprssed himself as being of the opinion that great good would be accomplished by having reliable information on the care of poultry broadcasted in every possible way. Otherwise, he says, the Canadian people will not be able to eat their egg a day, owing to scarcity and high prices.

French Have Scheme to Save Public Money.

PARIS, June 27.— (Canadian Press.)—A bill making the figures of the 1923 budget now in the process of being voted by the Senate, applicable for the 1924 budget without detailed vote on each article, was deposited in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday by M. D'Aubigny, Under-Secretary of State for the Ministry of Finance.

The measure has the support of the Government. If passed it would save the Chamber and the Senate several months' work in the 1924 session and thus also save considerable money for the taxpayers.

Premier Poincare is prepared, when the bill comes up in the Chamber, to make it a question of confidence, as he feels that too much time has been lost on the budget in Parliament. As the situation stands now, provisional credits will have to be voted for July; thus, the 1923 budget will not be approved by Parliament at least until seven months of the year have gone.

M. D'Aubigny's project provides that the Chamber have authority to vote modifications in those items of the 1923 budget that, owing to changed conditions, might have to be considerably altered.

CRIMINAL CARELESSNESS.

The Examiner has from time to time warned motorists to exercise reasonable care in following safety first rules when passing over railway crossings.

There is apparently much need for such advice, not only at unprotected crossings, but at points where the railways have provided safeguards.

A recent bulletin of the Board of Railway Commissioners indicates that there is much carelessness being displayed everywhere in this regard.

Some of the information is of general interest.

It is shown that from October to May at protected crossings of the Grand Trunk there was danger of accident fifty-four times.

In all but four of the cases reported upon the trouble was caused through the carelessness of the driver, and almost invariably the driver either disregarded the signal from the watchman at the crossing or crashed through the railway gates.

Such accidents as these are criminally careless and are occasioned largely by the desire to save a few moments' time.

It is often a very expensive way of saving time.

COMPULSORY VOTING.

Citizens who were actively engaged in the election campaign and who found difficulty in inducing many of the electors to visit the polling booths and record their votes, are again advocating a system of compulsory voting.

This has been an aftermath of every election in recent years.

The experience has been that an unduly large proportion of the electorate is indifferent to political responsibility—unwilling to take any part in the campaign or even to use the franchise.

This being the case, advocates of compulsory voting ask why such electors should be given a vote at all, and argue that were a penalty clause to be inserted people would put a higher value upon their franchise.

A suggestion frequently advanced is that the elector who could not show sufficient cause for not voting in any particular election should be punished by being disenfranchised during the next two campaigns, while other advocates of compulsion in regard to the franchise advance variations of this plan as an antidote to the slow poisoning apathy that seems to have set in in this country.

There are obvious objections to a system of compulsory voting, and it is doubtful whether the situation could be materially helped by the adoption of such a method.

Nevertheless the indignation of those who have come closely in contact with hundreds of electors who refused to take the trouble to vote is not difficult to understand under the circumstances, and it is no wonder that from them at least should come a demand for compulsory voting.

MR. BRADBURN FOR THE CABINET.

There is a strong feeling in Peterborough and district that when Hon. G. Howard Ferguson is choosing his Cabinet, he might be very wise to look in the direction of this riding and to consider the qualifications that Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P.-elect, could bring with him to the executive council of the new Government.

Although the newly-elected member for West Peterborough will make his debut in the Legislature when the session is called, the people of West Peterborough who know him best are very much of the opinion that in every other respect Mr. Bradburn is eminently fitted for promotion.

The prestige of the new administration would in this district be very considerably enhanced if West Peterborough's representative were to be chosen for membership in the Cabinet, and his selection would be a source of satisfaction to citizens generally regardless of their political affiliations.

The people of this riding known W. H. Bradburn. They know that because of his training in business and his experience in the public service he has had an excellent schooling for the bigger problems that have to be dealt with by the Cabinet.

They know that as Mayor of this city for two years he showed a grasp of municipal affairs and of civic financing that would stand him in good stead in the larger arena.

They have followed his experience as a member of the City Council and as a member of the Utilities Commission, and they feel that he has received an education in public service that makes him a conspicuous figure in the ranks of the elected members.

For all these reasons West Peterborough believes that Mr. Bradburn has many claims to consideration when the personnel of the new Cabinet is being determined.

This portion of Ontario deserves and should have Cabinet representation, and the view in West Peterborough is that among all the supporters of the new Government elected in this district none stands higher from the viewpoint of personal qualifications than does W. H. Bradburn.

No Cabinet appointment would be more popularly received here than would the selection of the member for West Peterborough.

GOOD USE OF POOR PRACTICE.

Have the electors a right to drag in the private life of a candidate? Is an election to be fought out upon the merits of the case, or upon the general worth and standing of the candidates supporting that case? asks the London Advertiser.

"Let us have this fight free from personalities." That is a fine old election plea, and it is generally made near the start of the campaign and promptly forgotten as soon as it is thought that a voter here or there can be turned by talking about the character of the candidate rather than the platform on which he is appealing.

Accepting things as they are, this tendency of pulling the candidate's record in for an election issue has made it necessary that the nominee of a party shall be a person of good record. The tendency to turn the spotlight on, and bring out things done in past years when there was no election in sight, has really turned out to be a fairly good force in political life. The result is that very few candidates have a chance to secure a nomination in the first place if they are not citizens of good record. They know that as soon as they are nominated they step out in the spotlight of criticism and attack. Candidates and workers of other parties are going to see what can be brought out to prejudice their chances of election. That may be very poor tactics, but it has been practised for a long time, and it has brought a goodly amount of grist to the mill.

A man who has a record of which he is ashamed, one of which others can make adverse capital, has, by force of our rather questionable habit of mud-slinging, been forced to submit himself to the process of elimination as far as being a candidate is concerned.

It is one case where a poor practice has helped to accomplish a good end.

THE CHINESE PUZZLE.

The Shanghai General Chamber of Commerce has taken the drastic course of withdrawing recognition from the Chinese Parliament and Cabinet, and calling upon the civil and military authorities to undertake the preservation of order. It is understood that this will be followed by the summoning of a national convention at Shanghai to set up a new Government—if the soldiers will let it meet, a very big "if."

The Shanghai Chamber of Commerce is one of the most potent independent bodies in China. It owes much of its prestige to the fact that it functions in the commercial city of Shanghai, with its large foreign concessions and population, and to its position of practical independence of both Chinese Governments, that of Canton as well as that of Peking. Shanghai is, indeed, largely a law unto itself. It was to Shanghai that Dr. Sun Yat Sen fled for asylum when he was driven from Canton.

But the trouble is that, while Shanghai can defend herself at home, it has no power in the rest of China. All power in China lies in the hands of the military chiefs, some of them quite frankly bandits. The rifle rules absolutely. And as there are at least as many "armies" as there are Provinces, and as several of them are openly at war with others, while all are supreme in their own areas, China is back in the condition of Europe in the Middle Ages when every walled town was an independent "kingdom."

The suggestion that the Japanese may be thinking of intervening for the re-establishment of law and order is not very plausible, unless their intervention is invited by a sufficiently large faction in China to afford them a genuinely impenetrable mask. The Japanese abandoned Shantung after spending a mint of money there, because the passive resistance of the helpless Chinese and the unpopularity their presence in this sacred Province won for them all over China, was costing them a ruinous sum, far in excess of any profit they might make. The shrewd Japanese have pretty well given over the idea that they can dominate China by force. Their policy since last autumn has been rather to win the respect and friendship of China by helpful and sympathetic assistance.

So if a strong Chinese milltary combination were to ask Japanese assistance to clear the path of the Capital, and then retire it might be given. But it will be a long day before Japan burns her fingers again on anything like an attempted permanent occupation of any important part of China. It is not so much the suspicions and hostility of other Powers which the Japanese would fear, as the tremendous capacity for commercial resistance possessed by the Chinese.

The place best worth watching is still Tien Tsin. There President Li Yuan Hung lies in hiding in the British concession and apparently awaits a move by his new ally, Chang Tsao Lin. The British seldom place their bets on the wrong horse in a case like this. If Chang Tsao Lin comes down, he is very likely to capture Peking with its already corraled Parliament. Once there, he will restore President Li and his friends; and the Peking Government will be stronger than it has been for several years. The chief obstacle in the path of such a move would be other ambitions in the mind of Chang. If he prefers rather to play his own hand and restore the Manchus, he might sit still until President Li had been finally eliminated.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The election returns sound as if Ontario had returned to a one-party Government instead of the two-party system.

J. J. Morrison declares that Monday's defeat is not the end of the Farmers' political movement. But even the U. F. O. Secretary will have to admit that it will be a long time before the U. F. O. organization is convalescent.

Hon. W. E. Raney can now take his turn in criticising the administration of the Ontario Temperance Act.

Hon. Beniah Bowman was the first U. F. O. member in the Legislature, and for a time on Monday night it looked as if he were going to be the last.

The Gregory Commission is about to pass from the scene. There'll be no weeping—in urban Ontario at least.

Mr. Drury will have plenty of time to develop his broadening-out theory, unhampered by other duties.

It is a funny thing that no one has been worrying since Monday over the question of a possible fusion with the U. F. O.

The Gregory Commission is not likely to outlast the Drury Government very long.

It is a nice speculation whether Mr. Drury or Mr. Morrison will first use the words "I told you so."

FLEXIBLE GLASS

LONDON, June 27.—(United Press)—Continental experimental scientists are on the eve of announcing one of the greatest discoveries of the age. According to Professor A. M. Low, know as England's edison.

The aim of German and Austrian scientists is to discover how to make flexible glass and Professor Low says that so much success has been attained that he is confident the announcement wil be made withing two years. At that time the folding window pane and the collapsible electric light bulb will be put on the market.

Low says he has already contrived the non-disappearing keyhole and the leech-like lead pencil that cannot be lost. The drying up of the U.S., it is said, has cut off a promising market for the non-loseable keyhole.

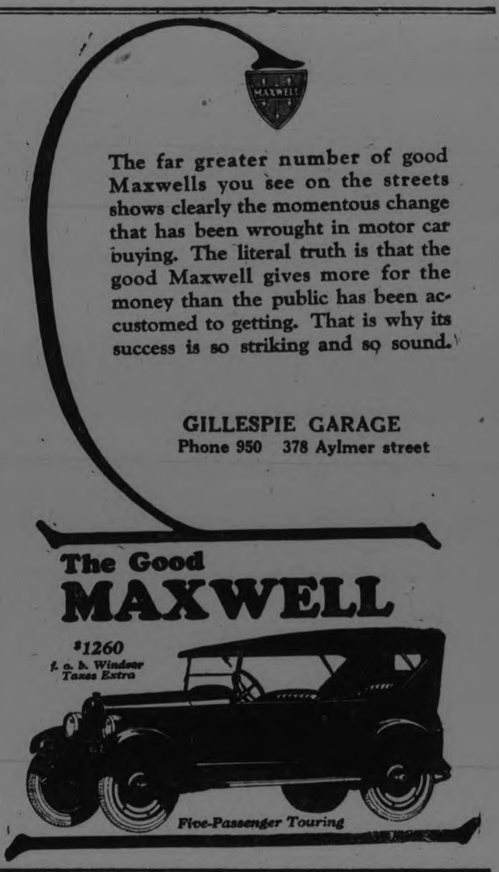
FANCY SCARF

The scarf of crepe de chine or tulle, harmonizing with the frock, is preferred by many women to the summer fur as a neck accessory. Certainly it is more comfortable during the very hot months.



The far greater number of good Maxwells you see on the streets shows clearly the momentous change that has been wrought in motor car buying. The literal truth is that the good Maxwell gives more for the money than the public has been accustomed to getting. That is why its success is so striking and so sound.

Old Time Barn Raising

Mr. Elton Goodrich. Dandonald invited some half a hundred of his neighbors and friends to assist in raising his large barn on Friday. When finished Mr. Goodrich will have one of the finest barns in that section of the country. Everything went in fine style and the big structure was speedily erected. Barn raising bees are one of the few survivals of the old community gatherings that settlers of half a century ago used to delight in. The boy or girl of today who has not heard of the faring bees, the corn huskings, each usually followed by a dance, the barne raisings, and in earlier days in this country, the logging bees, has missed a vital part of the historical setting of community life in the rural districts of Ontario. They were happy occasion when the young people and the old people gathered from far and wide. There was almost always some one present with a violin which constituted the orchestra, and another proficient in "stepping the light fantastic" to "call off." But perhaps one of the most delectable of the community affairs was the "sugarin off" often cut in the open in the big maple sugar bush, with a big fire to provide the neccessary amount of comfort.

U.F.O. SUNDAY AT WALLACE'S POINT

Rev. A. H. McConnachie Addressed a Big Open-Air Gathering.

BAILIEBORO, June 27.—U. F. O. Sunday was celebrated on the 24th inst. by a splendid gathering at Wallace's Point on the Otonabee River. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Cavan and South Monaghan and Peterborough clubs. Other clubs were represented, as well as the general public from far and near. The grounds of Mrs. Cardwell lend themselves to such meetings and a most attentive audience listened to the addresses in spite of the heat.

The Rev. A. H. McConnachie presided and delivered the first address to the young. Basing his remarks on the ball game of a previous day, he complimented the rival teams on their clean, manly play. It did not matter so much who won or lost so long as they played the game. Not disparaging any manly sport, the speaker emphasized the fact that the greatest of all games was the game of life.

He quoted Chesterton: "Life is already a splendid thing—let us therefore make it better." It was necessary to enter this game intentionally, making definite choice. Christ was the well-tried captain to be trusted to the uttermost in the great game. Conditions had to be observed. Paul said: "If a man strive in the games, yet is he not crowned unless he strive lawfully."

Rules of honor aid fair-play, of forbearance and mutual consideration had to be enforced. The fight itself was splendid. "Aggressive fighting for the right is the noblest sport the world affords," said Theodore Roosevelt. Even if there was no prize to be won, no heaven to be gained or hell to be shunned, the fight itself was worth while. To subdue evil in oneself and thereafter in the world was noble sport. God Himself was interested in the great game. Love is crucified in the world. Evil must be overcome with good. To play the game was more important than to win the prize, but God had promised fulness of life to all who took part in the contest.

After this address Mr. H. B. Cowan of Peterborough offered prayer.

The Rev. Robert Pogue of Peterborough followed with a powerful evangelical address. Referring to the U.F.O., he said that being a city man he was not directly interested in it, but he was not ashamed of it. He had known Ernest Drury years before he became Premier and considered him one of the greatest men in the Province.

Taking as his text, "To as many as received Him to them gave He power to become the sons of God," the reverend gentleman preached the old gospel with great fervor. God was not careless concerning the world He had made. He had not left it to its own resources. He loved it passionately. In the Old Testament as well as the New God was entreating the sinner to be reconciled. He was the hound of heaven. He tracked men down and stood over them in compassion.

"Ah, fondest, blindest, weakest,
I am He whom thou seekest!
Thou dearest love from thee who dearest me."

The sinner must receive Christ. In no other way could he receive power. Christ would not force His way into the heart. The sinner must yield and open the door. As the electric current coursed along the wires, giving light and power, so the spirit of Christ took possession of a man, enabling him to see and do the otherwise impossible. We were called to a very great honor—"to become sons of God." In an appeal that touched the hearts of many, the speaker urged his hearers to receive this Christ.

The meeting was of the most orderly kind, and a fine spirit of worship prevailed. The praise was led by a mixer choir, Mr. Jas. Hutchison presiding at the organ.

Altogether U.F.O. Sunday was worthily celebrated in a memorable way. It would be well if such open-air meetings were multiplied throughout the Province. The meeting closed with "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" and benediction.

Mr. Clark was taken to the residence of Mr. Scott when medical aid was at once summoned and it was found that his collar bone was broken and splinter ed besides having three ribs broken and other bruises. Held Quarterly Missionary Programme.

On Sunday afternoon the Methodist Sunday School had their quarterly missionary programme in place of review. The attendance was not as large as usual owing to the very warm weather, but the following programme was given: Recitation, "Jesus Loves You," by Muriel Patterson; reading, "Does Mission Work Pay," by Miss Lizzie Mines; solo, "Christ Is All," by Hazel Jackson. A list of missionary questions were asked by the leader and answered by the different members of the school. These contained an unusual amount of missionary information and were of great interest. Reading, "Boys and Girls, Will You Help?" by Miss Lily Weatherilt. The work among the different mission stations was also of deep interest. A temperance challenge was lead by William Martin, one of the Trail Rangers group, and answered by the different members of the class. A temperance reading, "Strange Voices," was given by Helen Byers; also a reading, entitled "A Bell No One Hears—Except You," by Betty Salibury.

After singing that very appropriate temperance hymn, "Yield Not To Temptation," Mr. Wm. Lee closed the school with a short prayer and the benediction.

ULSTER HOLDS ALOOF FROM THE FREE STATE

Northern Division Is Prosperous and Clings to the Empire — Premier Craig Is Satisfied.

By CHARLES M. McCANN

BELFAST, June 27.—(By mail to the United Press—Ulster unwillingly separated from the United Kingdom to the extent at least of having its own government and parliament, has made the best of things and is progressing normally.

Its budget balances, its agriculture is thriving, its industry is prosperous.

Sir James Craig, the prime ministre of northern Ireland, in a recent statement summed up Ulster's aims:

"We propose in close community with Great Britain jealously to preserve that fine standard of industrial achievement which it has been her pride to establish and the boast of the Empire to maintain.

"Our single ambition is worthily to fill our place in that league of peoples at home and overseas who are bound together in a common allegiance.

"In the friendly rivalries of Imperial industry Ulster, we are confident, will have no cause to be ashamed."

Don't Want Freedom.

Ulster still regards itself not only as part of the British Empire but as part of Great Britain. Ulstermen do not want "freedom"

But the partial separation has not hurt Ulster's industries. The linen and ship building trades, which form the bulk of the industry of Northern Ireland, are proceeding as if there had been no war in southern Ireland, and no rebellion.

And agriculture, even more important to Northern Ireland than industry, has no complaints too make. Ulster comprises only one-sixth of Ireland, territorially. But one-third of the Irish crop of potatoes and oats; three-quarters of the flax, and one-half of the fruit are grown here. One-fourth of Irish milch cows and young cattle are in Ulster; one-quarter of the horsese and one-third of the poultry.

Ulster's "separation" from England has brought Ulstermen even closer to the Empire. There is no prospect of eventual amalgamation with the neighboring Free State "Ulstermen want only to be let alone. And having been let alone since the Irish treaty was signed, they are busy consolidating Ulster's position as one of the world's greates industrial centers.

The storm put several telephone lines out of commission. There was no reaching Peterborough by either Lakefield or Douro.

Barn Raising.

Everything went off well at Mr. Robert Moore's barn raising last Thursday. Rolly Payne, Lakefield, was the carpenter and had charge of the raising. The cement walls were prepared last fall. The barn is 105 ft. x 55 ft., iron roofed and sheeted. There were 119 men for dinner and 130 for supper, at which 20 women assisted Mrs. Moore with the abundance of good things to serve.

Damage by Storm.

The rains were much needed, but the wind and electric storm accompanying them did much damage. Some of the wheat and hay was levelled. A cow belonging to Mr. Hendren was killed, and a barn recently bought by Pat Condon was burned Sunday afternoon. There were neither crops nor stock in the barn, and all machinery was saved except the hayfork. The wooden part was totally destroyed, and only the cement walls are left standing; but these are cracked in many places. The barn was built about 11 years ago. A hen-house and the dwelling house were saved.

Mr. George Barr's house was struck by lightning. Evidently the current came in on the wire of the telephone, near which Mr. Barr and his little daughter were sitting. Mr. Barr's arm was burned, as also was some parts of the child's body. Some of the flooring was splintered. About half an hour later a tree between the house and barn was struck.

The hotel at Crowe's Landing was also struck and slightly damaged.

Church News.

During Mr. Weir's absence at conference there was no service in the Methodist Church, except the Sunday School last Sabbath.

Pastor Chorley preached in the Bantist Church Sunday, and Rev. Atkinson preached at Warsaw and at Cottesloe.

The Women's Institute executive met on Tuesday afternoon last, transacted some business in connection with the lunch for July 12 and arranged the program for the year.

A LIFE-CRIPPLE MADE MILLIONS.

Invented Devices That Bring Comfort to Many Thousands.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 27.—Handicapped by being crippled throughout his 52 years of life, starting with but a seventh-grade education, C. Lee Cook of this city, has made millions, invented devices that bring comfort to thousands and educated himself until no whe is an authority on English.

"Lifes' just what you make it," he muses. "A man takes from it, exactly wha he puts in."

Recently he refused at $40,000-a-year job. That's how good he is.

He never has been able to walk. His hands he can lift no higher than his head. An invalid's chair carries him about.

But he did design and build a creosoting works at Brunswick, Ga. He is the intimate adviser of noted lawyers. And he is one of the very few private citzens ever given the privilege of the floor in the U.S. Senate.

"Measure of Service"

Cook likes to talk of success, which his friends say he personifies.

"Success" he says, "is the measure of service to one's fellow man."

And in speakng of success, Cook flays modern standards of pronouncing a man a success or failure according to the amount of money he has.

"The world in its judgment never takes into consideration how the person ever accumulated his money or how he acquired his power. It simply looks at his bank roll. Such a standard is a mockery."

John Burroughs and Luther Burbank are true successes, he believes.

"If Burbank were in business to raise dollar signs on trees he would long ago have ceased his botanical labors and would have taken up some more remunerative occupation."

Presidents of railroads and other corporations many times are reputed successes, he adds, but the history of their organzations shows one receivership after another.

Audience Laughed.

When Cook was 24, he was asked to read a paper on future possibilities of steel before an audience of engineers. His statements were sound. They still are being quoted. But so ungrammatical was his English his auditors laughed.

He was puzzled. Also humiliated. A friend told him why they laughed. Then he set to work to study English and now is an authority on it.

Another of his accomplishments is law. His friends say he would have made Supreme Court timber. But he uses this knowledge only in his daily work.

Cook began inventing things when a mere boy. Now he controls patents for many articles used on steamships. One of his most noted inventions is a pack which prevents escape of steam from engines. Many railroads have adopted it.

A Thought

DISCUSSING IDENTITY AGRICULTURE MINISTER

GUELPH, June 27 (Canadian Press). — There is considerable speculation among the county representatives of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, in annual conference here, regarding the identity of the next Minister of Agriculture.

General opinion points to the Hon. George S. Henry, of East York, who held the position under the later Hearst administration, but some of the Government men here think that Mr. Henry will be successful in securing the administration of the Highways Department, provided the Hon. F. G. MacDiarmid, of West Elgin, who held this post under the last Conservative Government, is not awarded the office.

The second choice for Minister of Agriculture goes to John S. Martin the "Wyandotte King," of Port Dover, who was elected yesterday in South Norfolk

Mr. Martin, besides being a poultry man of international reputation, is a good farmer and a University graduate.

T. B. Mahoney, of South Wentworth, who for a year was head of the Niagara Peninsula Growers, is also spoken of as a probable head of the Ontario Department of Agriculture under the next administration.

WHEN A CHILD WHAT DID YOU WANT TO BE?

Nearly Every Boy Envies the Engineer — A Job Symbolic of Power.

ARE YOU SET RIGHT?

When you were a child, what did you want to be when you "grew up?" Many a man smiles in reminiscent moments when he recalls how, as a boy, he was undecided whether to become the drum major at the head of the minstrel parade or the engineer of No. 4, the train that "made" the village in the evening and chugged away in the mysterious gathering darkness.

We doubt if there is any American male who, at some time or other in youth, doesn't have this ambition to be the man at the throttle in the locomotive cab.

A boy's ambition is vagrant and changeable as the wind. At times he aspires to such goals as running a candy store. But periodcally he comes back to his true love—the railroad engineer's job. For it is a job symbolic of youthful ambition—handling power, being the center of attraction, and travel to explore the alluring country beyond the horizon.

We smile at the boy, but these three attractions of the engineer's job (power, vanity and travel) persist in our matured ambitions.

A queer thing, ambition. It's a mighty rare man who, no matter how successful, doesn't wonder at times if he wouldn't have been more successful at something else.

At the end of the road, when we face death we realize that it doesn't matters so much what our earthly ambitions were, as long as we improved our spiritual natures and helped others. Then the Great Engineer takes up on the train into eternity.

Unsolved Mysteries

THE BLACK BOX

For centuries past tradition had stated that, concealed in the underground repository of one of the leading families of Germany, there has reposed a black box, fashioned of intricately carved wood, which originally contained the heart of one of the Teutonic leaders who fell upon the field of battle during the Crusades. But, according to the story as generally believed, this box has for many years been used as the hiding place for some of the most important documents of state, dating back to the earliest days of what became the German Empire.

Those who are familiar with the details of this legend (if it is a legend) maintain, that in order to provide additional protection, the crevices of the black box were kept filled with a fine white powder which would cause the instant death of anyone who opened it, unless the box were first immersed in water, the documents inside being protected by a roll of oiled silk. On two distinct occasions, it is declared, foreign spies attempted to penetrate to the secrets of this hidden receptacle, but each of them was found dead beside it.

Regardless of the truth or falsity of this story, it is certain that, on the night of June 15, 1888, only a few hours after the death of the Emperor Frederick III, a secret conclave was held in the royal palace, at which were present Wilhelm II, Bismarck and four nobles of the Empire, among them the head of the family supposed to have the keeping of the black box. When he entered the palace the latter was seen to be carrying a heavy parcel only partially concealed by the folds of his cape. When the conference concluded the alteration of the expression of the the young emperor was apparent to all. From a gay carefree boy he had changed to a hard determined man. New lines had appeared around his mouth. A new light was to be seen in his eyes and the word was quickly passed that Wilhelm II. had read the instructions which were to carve his destiny and that reading, he had determined to obey.

Some there were who maintained that the documents presented to Wilhelm on the night that he took over the active rule of Germany were in the handwriting of Frederick the Great. Others stated that they were the combined wisdom of all the great leaders of Prussia and the Teutonic States, handed down from generation to generation for the guidance of the German Kings. What they actually were has never been disclosed, though many traced a connection between them and the first official action of the Kaiser—the placing of his own mother, the daughter of Queen Victoria, under immediate arrest, and Wilhelm's subsequent antagonism to England.

It is possible that, when the seething unrest of Germany settles down to a peaceful calm, the mystery of the black box of the Hohenzollerns may be solved. But until then it will remain one of the greatest problems of German history.

Why you need auto insurance

As long as the roads are crowded with drivers who persist in cutting in regardless of ordinary considerations of safety, just so long will the careful driver need complete automobile insurance. BEGIN HERE TODAY

Calvin Gray, living in Dallas at the most exclusive hotel, is the enemy of Colonel Henry Nelson, son of Bell Nelson, banker. Gray falls in love with Barbara Parker, daughter of Tom Parker. The Briskow family, friends of Gray, have gone to the mountains, where Allie, the daughter, has a tutor and a dancing master. The dancing teacher kisses Allie and, enraged by his advances she throws the professor from a window. Mrs. Ring, the tutor, resolves to resign. The hotel manager orders the Briskow family from the hotel, but Calvin Gray arrives in time to arrange for them to remain.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

"Nothing simpler. I merely showed Mr. What's-his-name that he was making an ass of himself. I've spent a fortune here; know the owners, too. Nice chap, that manager, but he has no business running a hotel, and I so informed him." The speaker laid a finger upon his lips; his eyes were dancing. He knocked sharply at the Briskow door and cried, "Baggage ready, ma'am?"

There was a stir from within, the door was slowly opened by a bent, pathetic figure of grief.

"Ma!" Gray cried, and he held out his arms.

Perhaps it was his virile personality radiating confidence, security, or perhaps it was Gus Briskow's shining face that told the story; whatever the fact, Ma Briskow uttered a thin, broken wail, then walked into those open arms and laid her head upon Gray's breast.

"Oh-h-h! We ain't goin' away!" she said. "We ain't—goin' away!"

"Of course not. Gus misunderstood. The manager merely wanted you to move—into a larger, finer suite, and he is positively distressed at the thought of your leaving. The poor man is dashing about collecting an armful of roses for you and Allie. He wants to come in person and apologize."

There was another sound and Gray looked up to see Allie standing in the doorway to her bedroom; with one hand she clutched the jamb, the other was pressed to her bosom; she was staring at him as at an apparition.

It was several hours later. In the parlor of the new suite, a spacious, sunny room, fragrant with flowers and cheerful with brilliant certonnes, Gray and Briskow were talking. Allie and her mother could be seen in their bedrooms putting away the last of their belongings. Gray's eyes had been drawn, at frequent intervals, to the younger woman, for the change in her became the more amazing the more he observed her.

Gray sent the father away on some pretext, finally; then he called to Allie: "Come in here and talk to me. I am a guest and I demand entertainment." He observed with silent approval her carriage as she entered the room and accepted the chair he offered her. Faint trace of the nester's d[illegible]ater here. "I want a good chance to look at you.

"Now then, do you like Mrs. Ring?"

Allie nodded. "I like her, but—I hate her. She makes me feel awful mad because she can't understand that I ain't—I am not mad at her, but at myself. I don't hardly know how to explain it. If I was her I'd hate me, like I do."

"Would you like to have her remain?"

"Oh, I would! She knows everything, and she makes me learn. But she won't stay. I just found out that she's been quitting every few weeks, and Pa's been raising her wages. No, the disgrace, and our being thrown out—"

"My dear girl, let me assure you, once for all, there is no suggestion of disgrace about this affair. You behaved with spirit, and those who have heard about it admire you. I have talked with a number of them, and I know. I had a talk with Mrs. Ring also, and she will remain if you wish her to do so. Tell me, what are you going to do this afternoon?"

"I dunno!" Allie looked blank. "I don't do anything but study. I s'pose I got to study."

"Nothing of the sort. You have circles under your eyes now from overwork, and this is your vacation. I am a visitor, a restless visitor; I abhor being asked to make myself at home, and I never do. I demand amusement. Do you know what I'd like to do best of all?" Allie did not know. "I'd like to sit here and smoke while you show me all your pretty dresses. You're dying to show them to me, aren't you?"

"Would you? Honest?"

"Run along and try them on, then I'll borrow a pair of puttees and we'll go for a ride."

For the next two hours Allegheny Briskow was in heaven. Never had she dreamed of anything like this.

HIS TOUCH WAS DEFT AND CERTAIN.

To have Calvin Gray alone, all to herself—Ma, as usual, had disappeared—and to discuss with him exciting questions of dress and good taste that she could not discuss with her own people; to meet his occasional hearty approval—well, it was enough to make a girl drunk with happiness. Gowns that he liked became precious; she hated those that he condemned. Her fingers grew clumsy with haste, her cheeks burned. He said she wore her clothes well, that she carried herself well. He approved of her—liked her! God above! And to think that she had contemplated suicide!

"Where is Ma?" Gray inquired, when the last gown had been paraded and when Allie appeared in her riding suit.

"Out with the fairies, I suppose. She won't tell Pa or me where she goes or what she does—says it's all foolishness."

"Perhaps she will tell me, for I believe in fairies," Gray said, seriously.

Allie smiled at him. "I reckon she will. Folks tell you 'most anything you want them to, I reckon."

This was the busiest hour of the afternoon. Gray had purposely ordered the horses sent around at a time when he knew that the veranda, the walks, and the tennis courts would be filled, for ever since his interview with the hotel manager a plan had been shaping in his mind and already he had dropped a few words, a hint or two here and there, that were calculated to stimulate interest in Allie Briskow.

It gratified his craving for the theatric now to lead the girl out before so many curious eyes. For himself, he knew that he commanded attention, and as he noted the lines of this young Juno he could find nothing in her that needed betterment.

Under cover, Gray noted Allie's effect upon her attentive audience, and he smiled. If only he could spend a few days here he would make her a woman to be sought after by some of the best people.

"We've been having supper in our rooms lately," she told him, when they returned at dark. "You're going to eat with us, ain—aren't you?"

"I am, to be sure. But not in your rooms," he declared.

"I'd rather—"

"You'd rather do exactly what would please me, now, wouldn't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then run along and put on that dinner dress that I liked best. And tell Ma to look her prettiest, too. We'll not spoil this day."

It was seven-thirty when Gray, in evening clothes, appeared at the Briskow suite. Allie told herself there had never been a man so handsome, so distinguished, so Godlike as he.

Allie wore an expensive black lace dress, sleeveless and sufficiently low of neck to display her charms. "Plain! A little too somber," Gray declared. "She can afford colors, ornaments. Jove! I'd like some time to see her in something Oriental, something barbaric. The next time I'm in New York I'll select a gown—"

Mr Briskow entered at the moment, greatly flustered and extremely self-conscious, and here, certainly, was no lack of ornamentation or of color. Ma wore all her jewelry, and her dress was an elaborate creation of brilliant jade green, from one shoulder of which depended a filmy streamer of green chiffon. In her desire to gild the lily she had knotted a Roman scarf about her waist—a scarf of many colors, of red, of yellow, of purple, of blue, of orange—a very spectrum of vivid stripes, and it utterly ruined her.

"You said to look my nicest," she bubbled, "so I done the best I could."

"You are lovely, both of you, but—this is my party, isn't it? I can do anything I please?" Gray looked from one to the other in eager inquiry. "Then let me fix you my way. Ma Briskow, your face is too sweet, too gentle, to be spoiled. Your charm is in your simplicity. Here, I have it!"

With swift impetuosity he untied the scarf and whipped it from Ma's waist. "Watch me now and you'll see I'm right." With his penknife he cut the threads that held the chiffon streamer in place and removed it. "Voila! Even so little, and we see an adorable motherly person, richly but unostentatiously gowned. Don't you agree with me?"

Without pausing for an answer, he wheeled upon the daughter. Around Allie's hips he flung the scarf, drew it snug and smooth, then knotted it. Next he snatched the length of chiffon and bound it about her head. His touch was deft and certain; a moment and it had been fashioned to suit him.

This proved to be an evening when people really did turn their heads as the Briskows were shown to their table, but for once Allie suffered no embarrassment, for she felt sure they were looking at Calvin Gray, and in the shining glory of his presence she knew that she and her parents were invisible.

It was the sort of situation in which Gray appeared to best advantage, so he talked incessantly during the meal, and in a key that kept his companions unconscious of their surroundings. On their way out they passed the entrance to the ballroom and paused to look in. The beat of the music swayed Allie unconsciously; then, before she knew it, Gray's arm was around her waist and he was guiding her out upon the floor.

About midnight Calvin Gray strolled outdoors for a breath of fresh air before retiring. He glowed with the consciousness of a worthy deed well done. He had come to the Notch expecting to spend one night, but events of the last few hours had induced him to change his plans, and he now made up his mind to stay several days.

PRAYER TO SAINT CEASED LAVA FLOW

Natives of Threatened Town Will Erect Votive Chapel.

CANTANIA, June 27.— (United Press).—Scientists may talk of decreasing volcanic activities experts may argue on the cooling of the lava flow but the peasant inhabitants of Linguaglossa know that only the all seeing eye and protecting hand of long dead Stegedius saved their village from destruction by the fiery floods of Etna. When the eruption roared most fiercely when the sky was black with clouds of terror and red with warnings of doom they called upon him with prayer to stem the tide of seething lava that rolled toward them. and the lava stopped, turned, rolled aside quenching elsewhere its lust of devastation. Stegedius had heard their prayers.

Now they are raising funds for a votive chapel to their guardian saint A chapel to be built on the spot, where he stopped the lava. A chapel whose altar shall always be wreathed in flowers in memory of his mercy and protection.

THINKS ONTARIO SEES THE LIGHT

New York Press Attributes Drury's Defeat to Dry Enforcement.

NEW YORK, N. Y., June 27. — (Canadian Press.)—Under the heading, "Ontario Sees the Light," the Tribune devotes nearly a column this morning to a discussion of the result of the Ontario elections, which the Tribune writer regards as "a complete swing of the pendulum from an extreme experiment in radicalism to the saner and broader tenets of the least experimental of all Canadian parties."

In the first post-war period the Farmer movement in Ontario was the most conspicuously successful of all the "proffered political pallatives." the Tribune says, reviewing the strong position attained by the United Farmers, and adding that when Mr. Drury was called to the Premiership, "the millenium was proclaimed with trumpets.'

"Mr. Drury is an able man," the Tribune concludes, "and was as good a premier as his friends permitted him to be. Even his sternest opponents concede his personal capacity for government, but his very excellencies encompassed his downfall. At the end of his first year in office he was to be found confessing that many of the more radical changes for which the United Farmers clamored were impracticable of achievement. He began publicly to advance the conviction that Government is for all the people and not for any one group."

Oppose Radicalism.

The Herald attributes the result in Ontario to widespread opposition on the part of the majority of the people of the province to drastic "dry rule," while some responsibility for the Farmer-Labor defeat must be attributed to mistakes in office and the growing unpopularity of radicalism in politics. The Herald says: "The big issue was prohibition. The party in power stood solidly on its record for strict enforcement and promised even more drastic efforts to make prohibition an absolute reality." The Conservatives, the Herald points out, argued it was time to have fresh expression of popular opinion and refused to consider the prohibition question closed for all time. By their vote the people of Ontario have placed the new Assembly under a mandate to refer prohibition back to the people. "That means another stirring wet and dry battle which the American people will watch with real interest." The Herald adds. "The wets on the basis of Monday's returns, appear to have the advantage."

TOURIST PRAISES ST. JOHN'S CHOIR

Sang Special Number for Benefit of Angler at Burleigh.

A pleasant incident came about at Burleigh Falls yesterday during the visit of St. John's choir. One of the vistiors there heard the talk of a fine body of singers coming to the hotel on Tuesday, June 26th, who always welcomed a bountiful supply of 'lunge or bass at dinner. This gentleman from the States, who is a fine angler, undertook to see that the fish was on hand, also expressing a desire to hear the singers. This desire was quietly conveyed to Mr. Devey, who assembled the choir and astonished the disciple of Walton with a beautiful rendering of "The Marvellous Work" from Haydn's "Creation." The number was given both by choir and accompanist entirely from memory, a feat which will be thoroughly appreciated by all who know the work. Mrs. W. G. Perks gave a wonderful rendering of the obligato. No finer tribute to intensive training could be given, than for a choir to be called on at a moment's notice to sing part of a work such as the "Creation." Needless to say the choir were heartily thanked for their beautiful singing and ready compliance to the wish of a visitor.

Nice thing about having a family is you can ask the judge to let you off for their sake.

BOAT HOUSE GUTTED WITH ALL CONTENTS

Five Canoes and Skiff Were Total Loss in Midnight Blaze.

A boathouse containing five canoes and one skiff was burned to the ground last night with all its contents near the Government wharf at the foot of Mark street.

At 11.45 p.m. an alarm was turned in from box 54 by a young man who noticed the glare in the sky. When the fire apparatus arrived on the scene the flames had already consumed the building, which was of frame structure, and the firemen were unable to save any of the property.

The skiff, which was a valuable 18 foot boat, was the property of Miss Mabel Scott; the canoes were owned by Messrs. W. Godfrey Carpenter, Smith, George Leonard and Dan Leonard; and the boat house was the property of Mrs. Leonard. Insurance of $100 was carried on buildisg; and contents were insured for $100. No apparent cause could be found for the blaze.

STORM BROKE WIRES

Between 7 and 9 o'clock last night the fire department answered several calls to places where the windstorm had caused power wires to fall. No damage resulted.

A RECITAL

A very pleasant and well-attended recital of the vocal and pianoforte pupils of Miss Florence Scott, and violin pupils of Miss Edwina Palmer, was held at the Conservatory of Music Hall last evening. Owing to lighting troubles, the recital was carrned on by candle light, the old-fashioned illumination giving sufficient light to the performers, anl leaving the audience in a semi-darkness which found them just as appreciative of the pupils' efforts as if they were offered in the usual blaze of artificial brilliance. FIRST READING FOR A CUT POSTAL RATE

OTTAWA, June 27. Canadian Press —The first reading was given to a bill in the House of Commons this morning reducing the postal rate on newspapers and magazines to 1¼c per pound. The present rate was 1½ c.said Hon. Charles Murphy, Post Master General, as against a former rate of only ¼c per pound. Many representations, he said had been received particularly on the part of small town dailies and rural newspapers as to the desirability of a lower rate.

MOVIE STAR REAPPEARS

PARIS (United Press)—Carlyle Blackwell, the handsome movie idol, who ten years ago caused the heart of many an American flapper to flutter as he cavorted on the screen, and who more or less dropped out of sight since then, has made his appearance in Paris. At the head of a company of English movie artists, he has invaded the Latin Quarter to shoot scenes for the film version of William J. Locke's novel, "The Beloved Vagabond." Blackwell is doing a combination job of director and star, in addition to granting press agent interviews about cinematagraphic art.

ROTARY CAMP NEARLY READY FOR THE BOYS

On Friday the carpenters at work on the new addition to the Rotary Camp on the banks of Clear Lake will drive the last nail and with a few minor additions the camp will be ready for occupancy by the boys of the Y.M.C.A. on Monday next. The advance party of the Y.M.C.A. camp will leave the city on Saturday morning in the camp motor boat and will put the boats into the water and prepare for the main body at the beginning of next week.

The Y.M.C.A. has been singularly fortunate this year in securing camp leaders who are experienced in very branch of camping activities. The Boy's Secretary of the "Y", F. G. McNeely, will be in charge as Camp Director and under him Ken Hall, who attended Normal School last term and who plays ball with the Adanacs, Ted Outram experienced in C.S.E.T. work. Howard Young and Linnie Richardson who are graduates of previous Y.M.C.A. camps and this year take their places as group leaders.

The Y.M.C.A. again desires to call the attention of parents to the fact that any body in the city may enroll with "Y Camp" It is desirable that registration be made early to ensure a place. This may be done at the Y.M.C.A. office and a list of camp requirements and full information secured at the same time.

SHORTER SKIRTS.

New York designers agree that skirts for fall and winter are to be much shorter than those now in vogue.

TO THE FOLLIES 'STAGE.

NEW YORK, (United Press)—From elevator operator in a Milwaukee hotel to chorus beauty in the Ziegfeld "Follies" has been the lot of Evelyn Brown, an 18-year-old miss of the "Billie Burke type." She was discovered by E. D. Price, business manager of one of Ziegfeld's travelling companies, whose wife noticed pretty little Evelyn gracefully handling the acceleratoro and folding doors of the hotel lift.

A little question brought out the fact that Evelyn "had done a little amateur theatrical work" while in high school, so Price immediately wired Flo Ziegfeld, who ordered another pair of tights. Result: Another embryo star twinkling in back of the New Amsterdam Theaters' footlights this summer.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Lodge Paraded to Church — Many Visitors to the Village.

MILLBROOK, June 27—The extreme heat on Sunday considerably lessened the attendance of members of the J. B. Hall Lodge, A. F. & A. M. No. 145, who paraded to Grace Presbyterian church at 7 p.m. according to their custom, taking the three churches in order semi-annually. The congregation, also, was smaller than is looked for on such an occasion. A most appropriate sermon was preached by the pastor. Rev. G. S. Gervan and the special selections by the choir included an anthem previous to the sermon and a quartette, "Come unto Me," by Mrs. Gervan, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston and Mr. E. Hansman, which made a fitting number to follow the discourse of the evening carrying out its theme in an impressive manner. The usual votes of thanks were passed upon returning to the Lodge rooms at the conclusion of the service.

Mr. and Mrs. George Smith and Mrs. Harvey Smith, of Port Hope, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Gray, Main street, on Tuesday. Mrs. F. Russell and baby daughter, Aileen, who accompanied them to Millbrook, was the guest of Mrs. J. J. Russell for the afternoon.

Mr. A. A. Birchard was in Lindsay on Saturday attending the funeral of his aunt, the late Mrs. T. Birchard. Other relatives who attended the funeral were Mrs. J. Staples, and Mrs. Jas. Douglas of Cavan.

Mr. H. Gardiner of Brockport, N. Y., and Miss Margaret and Master Bobbie Deyell, of Rochester, who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gray for the past few weeks left for home on Saturday.

Mrs. H. J. Fiddis and baby boy of Toronto are visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. Janes at present.

The quarterly teachers' meeting of the Methodist Sunday School will be held on Tuesday, July 4th at 8 p.m. A full attendance of the executive is looked for as important business will be attended to.

Mrs. H. Rae, of London and Mrs. A. E. Armstrong of Saskatchewan, are at the home of their brother and sister, Mr. D. and Miss A. Hampton. Mrs. Rae, whose husband the late Dr. Rae, passed away recently, expects to make her home in Millbrook for the future.

The closing meeting until September of the Young People's League of the Methodist church was held on Monday evening, the 4th vice-president, Mrs. P. Stinson, being in charge. An interesting study of the life of the poet, Whittier, with selections from is works was taken up and enjoyed thoroughly. The literary evenings of the past season have been among the most profitable of the meetings under the League auspices and will be looked forward to for the fall and winter season with anticipation of further instruction and enjoyment.

The special song-service held at the conclusion of the usual evening worship at St. John's church, Ida was a source of much pleasure to the congregation in spite of the uncomfortable degree of heat. Three anthems had been prepared by the choir, and two solos were sung by Miss M. Rogers, all the numbers being much appreciated by the listeners

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Given left on Wednesday morning for an extended visit with friends in Saskatchewan. Alberta and Manitoba.

Mr. Sam Fallis of Toronto, has been a recent visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lavergne Fallis, and also with friends in Millbrook, during the past week.

Mrs. W. Westall of Peterboro. was the guest of her uncle, Mr. J. Gardiner, Tupper street over the week end.

SIR ADAM BECK TO BE MEMBER

Government May Take Over the Hydro-Minister of Power.

TORONTO, June 27.—(Canadian Press.)— Sir Adam Beck is looked upon as a sure member of the new cabinet. His sweeping return from his home city of London and the defeat of the U.F.O. candidates in the constituency more particularly affected by Hydro, is heralded as a vindication of the hydro knight and the only doutb seems to be whether he will be the government's representative on the Hydro Commission holding cabinet position without portfolio, as Hon. D. Carmichael has under the present administration, or be Minister of Power, with the Government taking the Hydro definitely under its wing and assuming responsibility for it as any other department. A Minister of Power, with Government responsibility, instead of keeping the Hydro non-political, was frequently urged last session.

MONDAY'S STORM TOOK A TOLL OF AT LEAST 4 LIVES

Rumors of Several More Deaths to Be Recorded —Property Damage in Ontario Near $2,000.

TORONTO, June 27.—(Canadian Press).—At least four people lost their lives in the terrific storm which swept Peel, Halton, Dufferin and Wellington Counties on Monday night. With the restoration of a partial telephone and telegraph service yesterday, details of the havoc commenced to pour in and the death toll mounted. Rumor has it that several more persons were either injured or killed.

Mrs. John Ellis, aged 82, was struck by flying timber at her home near Marden and died yesterday in Guelph Hospital.

William Farrelly, aged 73, hired man, employed in Lower Pilkington Township, Wellington County, lost his life when he was blown from a manure spreader.

Isabelle Brosman, aged 15, was struck by heavy timber near New Germany, Lower Pilkington Township, and died yesterday.

Thomas Dunn, aged 75, of 7th Concession, Trafalgar Township, was so badly injured from flying timbers when the roof of his barn was blown off, that he died yesterday morning.

A road workman was seriously injured near Erindale, and his condition is said to be critical.

The damage, roughly estimated Tuesday night at a million dollars, is now said to be well over that figure, and may even total $2,000,000 if all the loss to farmers is included. The cherry crop around Clarkson and Oakville, which had every promise of being larger than usual, is said to be ruined. Orchards felt the full force of the gale and trees not blown down were badly dismembered.

RAINS IN PROVINCE QUENCH FOREST FIRES

QUEBEC, June 27. — (Canadian Press).—Rains over most of the province have helped a great deal to quench the forest fires, and from nearly all districts the reports are most encouraging." This was the statement made by Gustave C. Piche, chief forester. He added that in only two districts, the upper St. Maurice and Matapedia Valley, was there any trouble over the fires, the rest of the province being under the spell of rain.

FORTY YEARS IN MINISTRY REV. THOMSON OF HASTINGS IS HONORED BY PRESBYTERY

Presbyterian Ministers and Elders Unite in Tendering the Pastor of St. Andrew's Church With Presentation and Address

HAD WISE COUNSEL.

HASTINGS, June 27.—At the meeting of the Peterboro Presbytery held here the ministers and elders joined in a resolution congratulating Rev. D. A. Thomson, on the completian of 40 years in the ministry, all of which time has been spent as pastor of St. Andrew's church here, to which charge he was called when he graduated from Knox College in 1883. The address, beautifully engraved, was read by Rev. T. M. Wesley of Norwood and on behalf of the Presbytery, Rev. R. Pogue and Rev. A. H. McConnachie presented Mr. Thomson with a handsome upholstered easy chair. The presentation was made a special order of business at 2 o'clock during the afternoon session.

Congratulatory Addresses

Mr. Thomson made a brief and feeling reply in the course of which he remarked that if he could bring himself to believe half the kind things that were said about him he would be forced to the conclusion that he was too good for his present surroundings.

There is only one member of the Presbytery remaining who was in it when Mr. Thomson. a young pastor came to Hastings. Rev. A. K. McLeod, of the Presbyterian Church at Brighton.

Congratulatory addresses were made made by Rev. Dr. McKenzie Rev. G. I. Crow, Rev. A. H. McConnachie, Rev. R. Pogue, Rev. W. A. Bremner of Cobourg, Rev. C. F. McIntosh of Campbellford, whose father had been associated in church work with Mr. Thomson in Scotland and greeting, were present ed from the congregations at Havelock and Warkworth to both of which Mr. Thomson has rendered timely aid.

In his concluding remarks Mr. Thomson said that he owed his success in life to a large extent to the wise counsel and assistance of his wife.

The fact that the meeting of the Presbytery was held in Hastings in honor of Mr. Thomson's anniversary was duly inscribed on the minutes, Mr. Thomson has been Presbytery clerk for nearly 25 years.

Delegates to Assembly

Rev. A. H. McConnachie and Rev. A. K. McLeod of Brighton, gave a brief report of the recent meeting of the general assembly in Port Arthur and their summary gave rise to some discussion. Mr. Thomson wondered how it was that every one of the eight delegates from this district had voted for church union when the last vote taken on that question in the Presbytery had shown that only nine members were in favor while 20 were opposed to the professed amalgamation.

Rev. G. I. Craw asked whether a delegate to the assembly was supposed to vote according to his convictions or to represent the sentiments of his congregation. He was told that the rules of the church left the delegate a free hand in such matters. This drew from Mr. Craw the remark that that being the case, the wishes of the people on any issue could not be got before the assembly.

REV. D. A. THOMSON,

Hastings pastor, whose 40 years' ministry were fittingly recognized at Peterborough Presbytery.

Calls Sustained.

The calls to Rev. M. C. MacKinnon from Knox church, Peterborough, were presented by Rev. R. Pogue, interim moderator, and was sustained. The same course was taken with regard to the call to Rev. John A. Black, from the congregation of Omemee. If these calls are accepted arrangements for the induction of the new pastor will be made by the interim moderator and Rev. D. A. Thomson, clerk.

Called to Havelock.

The call from the congregation of Havelock to Rev. James McIlroy, of Dutton, was not sustained. Mr. McIlroy will supply in Havelock for six months and in the meantime an effort will be made to unite this charge with one of the Methodist churches in the vicinity in the hope of making the Havelock congregation self sustaining.

Oppose Sunday Funerals.

The Presbytery went on record as being opposed to Sunday funerals and the miinsters were instructed to report the substance of this resolution to their congregations.

Financial Problem Settled.

Rev. W. A. Bremner, of Cobourg, recommended an adjustment of the financial problem of the Coldspring and Baltimore charges, and his report was accepted. The two churches are to pay Rev. J. S. Ferguson, the pastor, the minimum salary of $1,800 a year, of which $980 is to be raised by Coldsprings and the balance by Baltimore. The $600 insurance on the manse, recently destroyed by fire, is to be equally divided between the congregations, both to unite in putting up and maintaining a new home for the minister.

Appeal For Missions.

Rev. G. I. Craw gave an address in which he appealed for more funds to support foreign missions, which he regards as of vastly more importance than the home field or evangelistic work.

Next Meeting.

The next meeting of the Presbytery will be held on 18th September in St. Paul's church, Peterborough. This is about a week earlier than the scheduled date, but the members are anxious to hear Rev. Campbell Morgan, who will be conducting special service in Peterborough on that date.

Rev. M. L. Hinton of the Methodist church here, and Rev. W. A. Pippen, Anglican clergyman, of Hastings, were among the visitors who attended the morning session.

BARN DESTROYED HORSES BURNED

Tuesday's Electric Storm Caused Costly Damage Near Hastings.

HASTINGS, June 27.—In the severe electric storm which passed over here at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning, lightning struck the barn of Mr. James Dickey, of Percy Township, causing a fire which destroyed the building and a valuable team of driving horses, buggy and harness; also the farming implements of Roy King, a neighbor, which were stored in the building.

Mr. Dickey's loss is partially covered by insurance.

Cattle Killed.

Mr. Fred. Lynch, of Asphodel Township, had seven head of valuable cattle killed by lightning on Tuesday morning.

SUSPICIOUS OF CLARKE DEATHS

Crown Attorney Has Been Asked to Investigate Case.

OMEMEE, June 27.— Suspicion is aroused that the two children, Melville and Albert Clarke, aged 7 and 9 years respectively, sons of Mr. James Clarke, whose bodies were found floating in Pidgeon river, near Lee's Landing, did not meet their death by drowning as at first surmised. It is now reported that the vitms' lungs were not filled with water as is the case with drowned persons, and also that after being taken from the water they bled from the nose and mouth. While one of them bore a black mark on the forehead.

Another circumstance which has aroused suspicion is that the father and his housekeeper left the neighborhood yesterday for parts unknown, according to rumor.

Then Sam Mills who is building a cottage near the scene of the alleged drowning accident, is reported to have declared that the children ate with him from his dinner pail after the hour at which the drowning is said to have occurred.

Crown Attorney Anderson of Lindsay has been notified of these reports and is sending a man to investigate.

TAXIMETER IN ANCIENT ROME.

ROME, (By mail to the United Press)—The old biblical maxim that there is nothing new under the sun and is once more proven by a passage in the works of Vitruvius, the great architect of the first centruy before Christ. It appears that even the taximeter was known to the Romans, together with the lift and open plumbing. Vitruvius says that in ancient Rome there were cab statiosn. The horse charriots were furnished with a device which dropped into a box a small, white ball every thousand steps, and that the cost was figured by counting the number of balls thus released.

SIBERIAN FLAX TO COMPETE.

VLADIVOSTOK, June 27.—(Associated Press)—Energetic steps are being taken by the government to increase th number of acres under flax in Primoria. The country is pre-eminently suited for this fibre, and it is hoped thus to win back the markets which Russia once had.

The Russian authorities state that three fifths of the former flax used in the markets of the world was exported from Russia and, with the vast amount of land at present lying uncultivated in the Russian Far East flax can be produced so cheaply here that it will be able to compete favorably with the output of all other countries.

Age of 78 Is No Handicap In Gymnasium Classes

"GRANDMA" SCHULZ TRIES THIS DAILY TO KEEP YOUNG.

ST. LOUIS, June 26.—She's 78 years young and attends gymnasium regularly.

That's the proud record of Mrs. Dorothy Schulz — more familiarly known as "grandma" here.

Her friends say no bob-haired flapper is more athletic than she.

"How come?" interrogated the perplexed reporter.

"Plenty of exercise, lots of time spent in the open, and 24 hours a day devoted to loving fellow beings," she answered.

"How about dancing? Does that help one keep young?"

"During my youth I was very fond of dancing," she said. "We often stayed up till the wee sma' hours, in those days. But dances were different than they are now.

"You can say I am 78 years young—not old. And that I expect to be here for a long time to come. Probably you will feel older than I when you interview me on my 100th birthday," was the parting "shot" of "Grandma," who was a bride when the Civil War broke and a mother when Lincoln was assassinated.

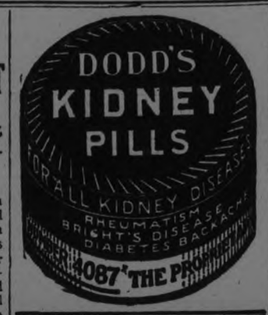
IROQUOIS HAVE PASSED.

PARIS, (United Press)—Whatever the word Iroquois may mean in "American" it will be perfectly good French for "bizarre" when applied to a person one hundreds years from now, when the "Immortals" of the French Academy expect to have completed their revision of the recognized dictionary of the language. The Iroquois have passed out as a nation. The Academicians decided, but in the year of grace 2023, if somebody wants to call a fellow human a "strange bird" or a "funny guy" he will have a perfect right to utilize the name of the lost nation for his purpose.



VACATION DAYS

NEW YORK, June 27.—Vacation days need not necessarily be idle days. Many a woman prefers to have some bit of sewing or knitting to occupy her fingers during those afternoon when the porch seems the only livable spot.

There are many smart accessories now, easily made, that not only furnish up the summer frocks and give style to the organdies or crepes that are losing their freshness, but also afford pleasant summer pastime.

Fancy bandeaux for the hair, composed of ribbon, flowers and perky bows require only a few stitches and they are ever so attractive.

The craze for bracelets has revived the old fashion of black velvet bands for the wrist or above the elbow with trimmngs of fancy buckles or clusters of flowers.

Wrist Bands.

One New York debutante has popularized the fad of wearing an inch wide velvet band tightly about each wrist, fastened with a pink satin rose. She wears these with sleeveless frocks and the effect s charming.

Another fad is for corsages, worn directly in the front, made of cascades of flowers and colored ribbons, almost resembling the bridal shower boquet.

The matching jacket and hat of gay cretonne is a very smart accessory to any costume, and if one makes the coat sleeveless, the question of fit is greatly modified.

Handpainted Hats.

Handpainted hats are very smart and easy to make. Simply buy a white or colored felt and, with a small water color brush and a little oil paint or dye, transpose thereon your favorite flowers. If you prefer conventional designs, stick to angles and lines To show your interest in the recent Egyptian excavations, you can copy an Egyptian motif.

If you are afraid of your free hand efforts, stencils will make the work much simpler. You can make your stencils or buy them.

Slipper buckles are made of lace and ribbon arranged rosette fashion about clusters of flowers or buckles set with brilliants. Beaded stockings are quite a fad and are easily made. Steel beads are very effective as well as colors to match the frocks.

Dame Fashion is well equipped to furnish work for idle hands.

COMPARISON

It is frequently asked whether wages in the United States are really higher than in Great Britain, or if the workman in Italy is better off than his comrade in France.

It is extremely difficult to answer such questions, partly because in most countries wage rates have since the war been undergoing more or less rapid changes, and partly because the real purchasing power of the wage depends on the economic situation of the particular country.

Some interesting figures of recent wage changes are contained in the International Labor Review (the monthly publication of the International Labor Office), from which the following general conclusions may be drawn.

Of the countries in Western Europe, recent wage conditions in France and Belgium have been similar, and the movement of reduction, which in these countries in 1921 was less marked than in the United Kingdom, for example, gave place in 1922 to a relative stability which continued throughout the year.

In the United Kingdom, Denmark and the Netherlands, the decline in wages which began generally in 1921 has, according to the latest data, continued throughout 1922. There were indications, however, that at the end of 1922 or the beginning of 1923 the decline was giving place to more stable conditions.

In Germany, the wage movement has been one of rapid rise during recent years, and figures for the autumn of 1922 and up to February 1923 show that the movement continues, the only feature being variations from month to month or from industry to industry in the rate of rise. In Austria, which until September 1922 showed price and wage movements similar to those in Germany, the situation has changed as a result of the action taken by the League of Nations. Prices fell steadily from September 1922 until the end of the year, while wages rose until about the middle of October, remained generally unchanged until the middle of November, and then began to decline in December.

Of the countries outside Europe, wages in the United States of America, which fell considerably from the end of 1920 to the beginning of 1922, were relatively stable in the spring and summer of the latter year. During the closing months of the year, however, a tendency for wages to rise became evident.

OLDEST ONTARIO VOTER BACKED WINNING PARTY

KINGSTON, June 27.—Probably the oldest voter to cast a ballot in the Ontario elections on Monday was Mrs. Mary Smith, Collin's Bay who will be one hundred and two years next October. Mrs. Smith was conveyed to the polls in an automobile. She cast a vote for Anthony M. Rankin, Conservative. Mrs. Smith is in very good health and had been looking forward to election day for the past month.

CROP REPORTS

The following is a summary of returns made by the agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Haying has begun in many counties. Pastures were looking rather dry until refreshing showers fell late in the week.

Fall wheat is heading out nicely, but the straw is rather short as a rule, and many fields are looking patchy. Brant says that there are some complaints of loose smut.

Spring grains are coming along in fair condition, but would be the better of some good rains.

Brant: Wire worms continue to do considerable damage in some sections where the grain has been sown the second year in sod.

Alfalfa is looking promising where grown in the northern districts. It is described as being knee high at the Dominion Government Farm at Kapuskasing, and almost ready to be cut.

Hastings reports an increase in the acreage of alfalfa compared with that of sweet clover.

A larger area of potatoes than that of last year has been planted in Dufferin. Some farmers in Frontenac are planting potatoes this week.

Corn for ensilage is not looking as well as usual, but there is ample time for the crop to pick up yet.

Several representatives speak of the scarcity of farm labor, and good men seeking rural employment can be readily placed.

The peach orchards of Lambton are looking very promising, there having been another good setting of fruit.

Canker work has been doing much injury to orchards in the county of Haldimand.

Halton: Apples are badly affected by tip-burn. Early apples are a light crop, and fall and winter sorts about an average. Sour cherries are about average. Plums will be light in yield. Strawberries are an excellent crop, and have been selling locally at 30c a box. Thimble berries show plenty of bloom.

Lincoln: Sweet cherries are ripening up. They are small in size, due to insufficient moisture. Strawberries are fairly plentiful, but badly needing rain.

A heavy setting of apples has been made in Norfolk this year, and with favorable weather, a record crop should be produced. So far, apple scab has not done much damage. Rose bugs have again made their appearance on the lighter sections, and are doing a great deal of damage to apples, grapes, sweet cherries and other fruits.

Lennox and Addington: Ox-eye daisy and mustard are giving the farmers considerable trouble. We have had to interview several regarding the Noxious Weed Act, and request them to cut their ox-eyed daisy.

Dairying is on the increase in Lambton. The local trade in Sarnia, and surplus to Windsor, have stimulated dairying in the area adjacent to the first-named city. In the more outlying districts production for the creameries shows an increased volume.

North Simcoe: Lambs and veal calves are the bright spots with regard to prices among the various classes of live stock. Farmers report receiving an average of $13 apiece for spring lambs and good prices for veal calves.

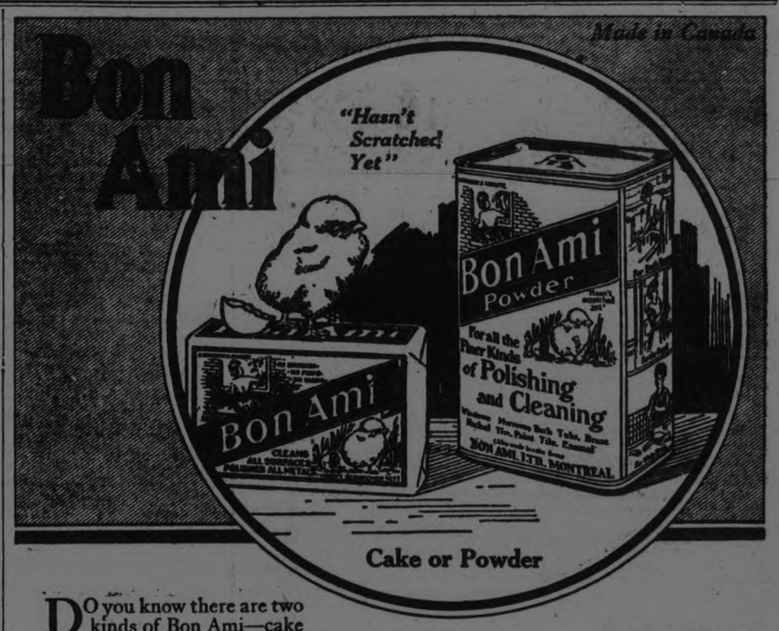
Lambton: There are more cattle on pasture this season than for two years back, and the quality is superior. There will be heavy shipments of export steers later in the season.

Wellington: Live stock are picking up wonderfully on grass, but the heel fly is chasing cattle badly, and dairy cows are inclined to fall off in their milk production.

The Dufferin representative reports an increased number of sheep being kept in that county, and about an average of hogs. Interest in horses is increasing, and a fairly large number of mares are being bred.

COAL OPERATORS TO DISCUSS FUEL NEEDS

OTTAWA, June 27. Canadian Press. — A conference of coal operators, representatives of transportation companies, and of the Federal and various Provincial governments to discuss methods for establishing an independent fuel supply for Canada, is recommended in the final report of the House of Commons committee on Mines and Minerals.



Cake or Powder

Do you know there are two kinds of Bon Ami—cake and powder? Both are made from the same ingredients—both are equally good.

It's a matter of taste which you use. Many women prefer the powder in its handy sprinkler-top tin—it's so easy to shake the powder on a damp cloth.

Others prefer the solid cake—that's rubbed on the cloth like ordinary soap,

Many women keep both kinds on hand—they prefer the cake for some uses, the powder for others. It's a splendid idea to keep both—why not try it?

Are you familiar with the principal uses of Bon Ami—they're listed at the right?

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

What to Do for Colic.

The first thing is to be very sure that the baby has colic, which is just another word for indigestion. It would be the rankest folly to be stuffing a child with all kinds of medicines, wrapping it up warmly, and whatnot, if the child were suffering from hunger. Many a poor child has been doped with hot water and peppermint drops when what its poor stomach needed was a good big meal. If the baby is not gaining as it should—if it has colic at a regular hour every day or night, you may be fairly certain that it is not colic that is the matter with it, but insufficient nourishment.

If the child is fat and healthy and has evidence of big pains after eating, then it is safe to conclude that it is indigeston that is causing it.

Hot water internally is a good thing to bring up the gas that is distendng and causing pains in the stomach. A warm enema will rid the intestines of gas. Always change the baby's position. Just this may sometimes be sufficient to start the gas to moving and ease the pain. Put the baby over your shoulder or on its stomach this gives the gas a chance to pass out.

The feet and hands in true colic are usually cold and blue, the abondmen is hard and the baby gives evidence of great distress. A hot water bottle on the abdomen will help and keeping the hands and feet warm with blankets. One can see that warmth and water are the two prime remedies for colic. Simple and easy to remember and safe in the hands of the rankest amateur.

COMPLICATIONS LOOM IN SHELBY

Lumbermen and Labor Contractors Threaten to Foreclose Lien on the Arena.

SHELBY, Montana, June 27 (Canadian Press). — Further financial complications loomed yesterday for the management of the Dempsey-Gibbons heavyweight championship fight when local lumbermen and labour contractors threatened to foreclose a mechanics' lien on the arena constructed for the battle.

Steps were taken immediately by local officials of the fight and Great Falls business men financially interested toward plans for an application for a restraining order from the Supreme Court at Helena if such action becomes necessary.

The claim against the arena for material furnished is approximately $58,000, according to George H. Stanton, Great Falls banker, who attended a conference held here yesterday where a demand was said to have been made that the lumbermen be paid out of the first receipts from ticket money.

"We could not agree to this," said Stanton, "as the second $100,000 given toward the payment of Dempsey's guarantee at Great Falls was paid with the understanding that the donors would be reimbursed first out of the fight proceeds."

"We offered to split up the money received pro rata in the payment of outstanding obligations," declared Stanton. "If that offer is refused our only resort will be to ask for a restraining order."

LEAFS SWAMPED HILLCREST TEAM

Game Played in High Wind Featured By Hard Hitting.

The Maple Leafs added another game to their list of victories last evening when they snowed the Hillcrests of East City under by a 12 to 3 score in a juvenile fixture played at the King Edward School grounds. Last year's champs took the lead early in the game and had the game cinched in its early stages.

Manager J. Munroe had Keith Mein on the rubber for the Hillcrests. Mein worked well using a fast breaking drop, but he received poor support throughout. Leahy his receiving partner held up his end in faultless style.

"Chuck" Bradley pitching for the Leafs turned in his usual sterling brand of ball. He received classy support, the men behind him grabbing off all the hot ones hit into the fields.

The game was featured by some long hits, although none went for homers, Delahaye, Grant, Johnston and Bradley all connected with Meins' deliveries for long clouts.

The heavy winds put curves and twists on some of deliveries which made the batters pop-eyed with amazement and caused the youthful twirlers' heart to swell with pride and hope. The same winds shifted the heap of sand which surrounded the home plate to the outfield and on the journey deposited much of it into the fielders' eyes and mouths. Certainly the usual line of talk was rather sandy in last evening's game.

The players were:

Maple Leafs—Bradley, p; Hall, cf; Marchen, lf; Franks, 2b; Delahaye, c; Thirnbeck, ss; Johnston, 1b; Miller, 3b; Grant, rf.

Hillcrests—Wease, 1b; Calladine, 2b; Leahy, c; Vinette, cf; Wyatt, rf; Walsh, lf; Mein, p; Guerin, 3b; Perdue, ss.

DETROIT, June 27.— (Canadian Press.)—John L. Whitfield, wanted in Cleveland in connection with the slaying more than a month ago of a policeman who had arrested him, was captured here late yesterday.

Tigers and Woollens Played a Tie Game.

The Tigers almost won their first game in the Girls' Soft Ball League last evening. As it was they made a wonderful effort and in the final inning tied the score the game ending 32 to 32. The Woollens were the other team and more than once it looked as if they were about to be defeated. The high wind which prevailed made playing extremely difficult and was to a large extent responsible for the high score. Aided by the wind the Tigers hit no less than five home runs while the Woollens satisfied themselves with two. The game had to be stopped more than once to allow the dust to settle so the players could see what they were doing.

The players were:

Woollens—M. Bradley, p, rf; E. Mann, c; G. Kent, 1b; A. Clarke, ss; L. Gregory, lf; D. Woodgate, 2b; E. Drury, 3b; D. Sturgeon, cf; M. Todd, cf; V Langton, rf, p; C. Kennedy, ss.

LEONARD IS NOT SUSPENDED IN N.Y.

Refusal of New York Commission May Cause Break With Boxing Commission of N. J.

NEW YORK, June 27 (Canadian Press). — The New York State Athletic Commission yesterday refused to concur in the suspension of Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, and his manager, Billy Gibson, by the New Jersey Boxing Commission for the title holder's failure to fulfill a contract to box Charley White of Chicago at Jersey City.

The Commission's action, which was regarded in boxing circles as the forerunner of a possible open break between the New York and New Jersey ring authorities, removed the last obstacle in the way of the title match at the Yankee Stadium on 23rd July, between Leonard and Lew Tendler, of Philadelphia.

TRENTON, N.J., June 27 (Canadian Press). — "Leonard must respect his contract to box White in New Jersey before meeting Tendler. If he does not, he and his manager will be definitely suspended in this State."

This was Boxing Commissioner Bugbee's answer yesterday afternoon to the refusal of the New York Boxing Commission to concur in the New Jersey suspension of Leonard.

RAYBESTOS WON A WEIRD GAME

Mercantiles Defeated 3 to 2 in Their First Game—Cairns Pitched Good Ball.

The Mercantiles lost a weird game to the Raybestos nine last evening by a score of 3 to 2. The Mercantiles hit Doughty to all corners of the lot, collecting no less than twelve safeties from his delivery in the seven innngs played but he was able to tighten up with men on the runways and time and again the Mercantiles were retired with the sacks occupied. No less than ten of the Mercantile batters were left on the bases and bonehead base running accounted for several others.

Cairns pitched a great game for the Mercantiles and deserved the victory. He fanned eleven and allowed seven hits, the fifth inning being the only one in which the Raybestos boys got more than one safety. Doughty fanned six and both pitchers walked two men.

In the final inning the Mercantiles had the bases filled with but one man out but poor base running resulted in a double play to retire the side.

Lundy provided the fielding feature of the game when he made a great one handed stab of Thompson's fly to deep center.

Corner Lot League Ready to Open Soon.

The Corner Lot League is planning to get off to a start in the near future. Three teams the Hillcrests, Maple Leafs and Senators have already applied for entry in the league, thus promising a close race for Jerry Coughlin's Cup now held by the Wild Cats, last year's winners. This league is open to all players under eighteen and as the schedule has not yet been drawn up there may yet be time for another team to enter.

OULETTE TO BE THE GUNNER

Ex-Lindsay Pitcher Likely to Twirl Against Petes on Saturday.

If the importance of what is at stake and the previous record of the two teams forms any criterion Saturday's Big Four game between Belleville and Peterboro at Riverside Park should be just about the most exciting clash of the season.

The championship of the first half of the Big Four race will depend to a great extent on the result of Saturday's clash and both teams will be out to their last notch to grab off a win.

Jack Oulette who beat the Petes in Belleville a few weeks ago will likely be on the firing line for the Grand Trunks in this engagement, for Williams is expected to get the assignment against the Petes in Belleville. It will be Oulette's first appearance in action here this year.

The game will be called at 3 o'clock sharp.

Informal Conference on Tangier Question.

LONDON, June 27.— (Canadian Press.)—The conference of Spanish, French and British experts regarding the Tangier question, will begin on Friday of this week, and is expected to last four or five days. The discussions will be purely informal. They are being held to determine whether a basis exists for the summoning of the full international conference to settle the future of Tangier. The British do not question the sovereignty of the Sultan of Morocco, who will be represented in any formal conference but they are not ready to admit that France shall enjoy a position of suzerain power by acting through the Sultan. Internationalization and neutralization of Tangier, with the open door for all nations, is the situation favored here.

The French experts, who have already arrived in preparation for Friday's meeting, are: M. De Beamurchais, De Pougnadoresse and Raynaud.

The Spanish are expected to-day or Thursday. They are the Marques De Torrehermosa and Senors Caro, Sangroniz and Ruiz.

PREMIER DRURY LOST NO TIME IN FORMALLY OFFERING RESIGNATION

Conveyed Resignation to the Lieutenant-Governor Shortly After 4 O'clock Yesterday — Hon. G. Howard Ferguson Called on to Form New Govt.

STANDING OF PARTIES

TORONTO, June 27.—(Canadian Press.)—Latest returns in the standing of the parties show: Conservatives 75, Liberals 14, U.F.O. 17, Labor 4, Independent 1. The Mail and Empire says: "Presuming that the Labor and Independent members cast their lot with the U.F.O. this would leave the U.F.O. twenty-two supporters in the next legislature, making it the strongest Opposition group. Hon. W. E. Raney has aspirations to head the group and thus become the recognized leader of the Opposition. With the retirement of F. Wellington Hay to private life, W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., South Ontario, is regarded as the logical choice as Liberal leader."

Hon. Mr. Raney gave the quietus yesterday to a rumor that he would not be found in the next Legislature Questioned respecting a report that he would in all probability resign his seat rather than go into Opposition, Mr. Raney said: "The report is entirely unauthorized." "You know," he added, smilingly, "I do not mind sitting in the bleachers."

Events Move Rapidly.

Events moved rapidly yesterday in the Provincial political arena. Before even the House standing is known and while some members of the Drury cabinet are as yet uninformed as to their personal fate in the Monday landslide, Premier Drury yesterday conveyed his resignation to His Honor, the Lieutenant-Governor, and his successor, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, was called upon to form a new government.

Shortly after 4 o'clock Premier Drury called upon His Honor and conveyed to him his resignation. To give the old ministers time to clean up ther affairs and put everything in order, July 16 is the date set for the change of government. Two or three weeks' time is usually given to make the change from the old order to the new. Mr. Ferguson concurred in the arrangement and formally accepted the responsibility of forming the new government.

Cabinet Making.

Cabinet making is the favorite mental pastime of half the citizenship at the moment, but Mr. Ferguson is saying nothing. The one certainty admitted by the Premier-designate last night, is that Charles McCrea, member-elect for Sudbury, is to be the Minister of Mines in the new administraton. In stating that his Sudbury statement to that effect was to hold good, Mr. Ferguson said last night that he had received 25 or 30 telegrams from the north country commending the choice.

Further than that one post, however, Mr. Ferguson was not ready to discuss a cabinet. In the middle of next week Ontario will know who the various men are who are to preside over the different departments. In the meantime Mr. Ferguson is going home to think things over. On Thursday night he is to attend a public celebration in his honor at his home town of Kemptville, and he is to return about the following Wednesday.

QUEBEC DOCTOR SAYS PEOPLE NOT INSANE

When you read the news and observe the queer things people are doing these days, you probably often wonder if the world is going crazy. It is headed that way and unless there's a reaction nearly everyone in civilization will be insane or on the way to insanity in another 25 years, decides Dr. Desloges. He's head of the insane asylums in the province of Quebec.

"Nobody works or plays or does anything normally these days," says Dr. Desloges. "When we work, we work like mad. When we play, we play like mad. Whatever we do, we do it with all the intensity of a crazy enthusiasm."

However, this does not imply insanity, for insanity is a departure from the normal and nothing is abnormal as long as the majority of the people accept it as normalcy. Insanity is a relative condition, not a fixed one.

Facts about non-skid tires on all four wheels

THE dream of every tire engineer has been to produce a tire with the traction of a non-skid tread combined with the steering ease of a plain tread.

In Dominion Royal Cord Tires that combination is achieved.

On the rear wheels Dominion Royal Cords give all the traction and holding power against side slip that a non-skid tread can give.

On the front wheels the Dominion Royal Cord tread runs straight and true without "climbing" ruts or crowned road bed.

You can increase your mileage by the interchange of tires, front to rear, when the latter become worn; you have no steering trouble and you have the better appearance of a uniform set of tires.

To these advantages add the extra dependability and super service — without extra cost — which you get in Dominion Tires.

QUAKERS EASY FOR WAR VETS

The G.W.V.A. Footballers Swamped the Quakers By a Score of 5 to 1.

Very unfavourable weather prevailed last evening at the Oval for the football game between the Vets and the Quakers. The Vets had only ten players, while the Quakers placed on the field a disorganized team which went under by a score of 5 to 1.

A strong wind was blowing right down the field and the Quakers decided to kick with it. Opening exchanges were fairly even. On an individual rush G .Logan opened the scoring with a beautiful goal. Peel now turned up and the Vets settled down to the game. The Quakers forwards forced the play to the other end when G. Logan tested Griffin. In spite of the high wind blowing, the Vets penetrated the Quakers defence on the left wing, Peel centred to J. Wade who scored with an easy shot while Griffin was out of the goal. Play was travelling from end to end. On one occasion the Vets carried the ball right up to the Quakers' goal. J. Wade sent out to the right where F. Wade sent in a splendid effort, but Griffin stopped the ball in mid-air. A few minutes later Logan missed the upright by inches. Dyer sent up the field again T. Monks initiated a move to send across the Quakers' goal. Willshaw cleared to Logan who twice in succession hustled Charlie Griffin in goal without success. Griffin saved from Willshaw for a foul against Hurle. A long shot from Pellow dropped on the cross bar to give Charlie a fright. Quick as a flash Jack Peel beat along the line to shoot hard into goal, J. Wade breasted the ball forward, and shot low to put the Vets in the lead. Half-time Vets 2, Quakers 1.

On resuming, the Vets kicking with the wind soon increased their lead though the Vets centre forward Crowe, gave away a penalty at the other end. J. Willshaw was given a chance to score but he hit Griffin with the ball. Assisted by the wind, the Vets had no trouble in making raid after raid upon the Quakers' goal. J. Willshaw was playing a good defensive game although he was a sick man. Time after time G. Logan and Craig would try to force the play up the field but the wind spoiled their game. Corner after corner was awarded the Vets with no result. J. Wade on his own made it four goals for himself. Just before full time, A. E. Wade increased the score to five. Full-time, G.W.V.A. 5, Quakers 1.

Quakers—Griffin, goal; J. Willshaw and Hepburn, backs; J. Logan, Shaw and Mayette, half-backs; Montgomery, Craig, G. Logan, Croft and Pellow, forwards.

G.W.V.A.—Griffin, goal; N. Crowe backs; H Burrows, F. Dyer and O. Hurle, half-backs; F. Wade, E. T. Monks, J. L. Wade, A. E. Wade, Jack Peel, forwards.

Referee—Jack Clark.

Canadian Stock Exchange —And Mines— | New York Stock Exchange —And Curb Prices—

To-Day's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, June 27.—(Special.)—Trading began listlessly in the stock market to-day, prices showing little variation from previous close.

Studebaker and Baldwin scored 1-2 point gains, while recessions of equal extent took place in Corn Products and American Sugar. Rails continued indifferent to the striking improvements shown in additional statements of May earnings.

Industrials developed increasing activity at rising prices as first hour progressed. Studebaker recovered to 102 1-8 against Tuesday's low at 100 1-4. Baldwin sold at 121 against 118 3-8, Steel 91 1-2 against 90 3-8, and American Loco 134 5-8 against 131 1-2. Selling of Union Pacific and some of the other investment rails continued, but the Oils showed the best tone of recent weeks, reflecting more cheerful view taken of trade situation. Opening stock market prices: Sinclair 23 3-4, off 1-4; Studebaker 103 3-8, up 3-8; American Smelting 55 3-4, up 1-4; American Sugar 66 1-4, off 3-4; Baldwin 119 1-2, up 1-2; Corp Products 125, off 1-2; Consolidated Gas 57 1-8, off 1-8; United States Steel 91 1-8, off 1-8; Pan-American 65 7-8, off 1-8, "B" 60 1-2, off 5-8; American Cane 88 1-2, off 1-2; Can. Pacific 148 7-8, off 1-8; Atchison, 99 3-4, off 1-4. Further liquidation took place among Investment Rails and high-grade Coppers in late morning reflecting wider dissemination of a bearish circular issued this week by a Massachusetts statistical service.

Floor brokers reported that this selling came from widely scattered sections of the country.

Anaconda broke to around the year's lowest levels at 39 3-8, while Union Pacific established a record 1923 low at 128 and Northern Pacific at 67. New lows on current movement were reached by New York Central, Atchison, Delaware and Hudson. Livermore house were less conspicuous on selling side and it was noticed that Studebaker, Steel and Baldwin and other Industrials recently under pressure not only showed impressive resistance, but were able to score fractional gains while selling of Rails was at its height.

Want Ad Tips by John T. Bartlett

AN ASSET OF CURIOSITY

"That's interesting," remarked my friend, as I finished reading the want ad. "Sounds great.

"But what's the make of car?"

Right there, in the question, was the whole point, as I told my friend. The advertiser hadn't specified the make of car. He had purposely left it out, with clever psychological insight. Otherwise, the want ad. was definite concerning important qualities—the brief mileage driven, the short time owned, the quick response of the motor to any challenge of hill or roadbed, the beautiful Alpine blue of the body.

The message was definite, too, concerning the cash saving the buyer would effect. A cash price was stated. But the make was studiously omitted.

Make is a basic, descriptive fact. In nearly all cases, it would be an error to omit it from one's want ad. This advertiser left it out because he had understanding of the possibilities in carefully aroused curiosity. Like my friend, other readers would question, "What's the make?" What company manufactured the car the advertiser was so enthusiastic about? There was lure in the mystery. The number of inquiries would be large.

When they should come to view the beautiful Alpine blue motor creation, the advertiser was confident it would captivate them. The make then would become a minor detail.

Sales letter experts have a special type of letter they call an inquiry-bringer It is designed to draw requests for information, which the advertiser supplies. With these experts, curiosity of the average person, played on, is standard technique in this situation. The same method can be used on want ads.

Write a want ad, which, more or less indefinitely, promises much. Leave out some basic identifying detail. Used with discretion, this device will pull many want ad. inquiries.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

CIVILIZATION.

Editor of EXAMINER:
Sir:

Cable dispatches state that Lloyd George announces that "unless a new temper asserts itself I despair of the future of civilization. Civilizations as great as ours have disappeared owing t the spirit of force." He goes on to say that the substitution of force for right must assuredly and eventually win the world. Leading writers attribute the present prevailing determination of people (often calling themselves Christians) to leave their own way as due to the displacement of classics by science. Classics even if only a smattering bring people in touch with philosophy and prepare the way for the contemplation of the idealism of Christianity.

But science has nothing whatever to do with conscience or conduct and now that we have the Protestant clergy sneering as most of the Bible people are doing (to quote a recent writer) "just as they d—n please." Even the farmer who resented conscription as coercion put prohibition in his platform. What did he care about consistency? He's just going to do as he pleases also. And when men meet under these circumstances and one says to the other, "You're a decent fellow enough but you have no rights except what I give you," then the other says, of course, "if I have no rights when I offer nothing but your prejudices neither have you any rights," and so they go to it.

The war seems to have killed off our leading men and left us in the kindergarten—so that we shall have to work our way up to some sort of reason again and it may take years and years and more wars and bloodletting. When a man can go to the polls and a woman also and say, "I have a right to vote as I please and for whatever I please," without any restraint whatever, without any regard for the basic principles of other people's liberty or the fundamental principles of reasonable human conduct than it is plain that we lack either conscience or brains and perhaps both. For Lloyd George to bluff the people with talk about the Proportional Representation .Then, by the O. T. A., anybody can make wine if made from grapes grown in Ontario, and it is made by the million bottles with away up as high as 33 (thirty-three) per cent. proof spirits and Drury says to the people, "rejoice, you have prohibition," and the people bow their heads and thank him for his noble work. His government had a Last Night Party that put to shame all the shameless orgies and dirty stuff in the annals of public life in Canada and when the legislators and public ask for investigation Drury and the godly Raney say, "Oh No." They suppress it, actually put their foot on it. Again the people bow their heads and say, "What a fine people they are and we are. We're in the very van of Christianity. Even the Saviour, whom the Pharisees called a wine-bibber, was no match for us. This is a great world.

This is the greatest time in the history of the world and we are the greatest people in the world and as there's only one world we've got the whole universe beat." And so it goes. No wonder Lloyd George despairs of us. Let us see that prohibition becomes a law and no longer a mockery.

Capitol Entertainment

"THE SIGN OF THE ROSE" APPROXIMATELY TITLED

"The Sign of the Rose." What is the meaning of the title of George Beban's new picture of that name which comes to the Capitol Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Often titles are found not to mean a great deal after a photoplay has been seen. Frequently they are dis coverd to be more attractive than the picture they adorn. Seldom does a title really express the spirit of a picture or cover the span of its plot. It is refreshing to discover one that does all this.

"The Sign of the Rose," in the first place was written by George Beban its star, who also supervised every detail of the production. The story concerns a humble Italian who enters a flower shop in quest of just one rose for his little dead daughter.

Waiting in the shop is a wealthy woman who has received an anonymous letter demanding that she appear at this rendezvous with a large sum of money which she is to hand without question to a man wearing a rose. In return she will be taken to her child who is held for ransom by kidnappers. Sharing her vigil is a detective eager to apprehend the criminal. He is sure that the Italian (played by George Beban) is the man because he is a foreigner in search of a single red rose. Out of this play of cross-purposes comes the big scene of "The Sign of the Rose." It leaves no one in doubt of what the title of itself means, or its relation to the picture as a whole.

It is doubtful if "The Sign of the Rose" could be as appropriately called by any other name.

WILLIAM FOX Presents

The VILLAGE BLACKSMITH

from LONGFELLOW'S poem

A 1923 Melodrama Direct from its New York Run

Directed by JACK FORD

AT THE ROYAL

LAST TIME TO-NIGHT

AT THE ROYAL.

FOX PICTURE CALLED SCREEN MASTERPIECE.

"The Village Blacksmith," Based on Great Poem, Praised by Critics.

Could Longfellow see the William Fox motion picture adapted from the Cambridge poet's immortal "Village Blacksmith," he would be as pleased as a three-year-old child with a lolly-pop. Little could the master poet realize, when he wrote the immortal lines which have come down to this age, that the wonderful adaptation could have been made.

Paul H. Sloane, who wrote the scenario from the poem, has compiled a screen masterpiece. All through the scenes of the photoplay the sterling qualities of Longfellow's hero are preserved. The picture has been proclaimed by Broadway critics as a screen masterpiece.

One of the critics has aptly described the picture as "doing for father what 'Over the Hill' did for mother."

Throughout the trials and tribulations of a lifetime the father stands out as the heroic figure in a story about a typical American family. "Toiling, rejoicing, sorrowing, onward through life he goes," sang the poet and so has Paul Sloane depicted the central figure of the story.

In every way "The Village Blacksmith" is a screen masterpiece and it is destined to be one of the greatest film attractions of a year replete with photoplay successes. It will be shown at the Royal Theatre last time to-night.

VETERAN FOR SPECIAL HONOR

WARSAW, June 27 (Associated Press)—When Marshal Foch reviewed a parade of Polish troops during his recent visit to Warsaw, he commented upon a group of white-haired veterans walking as erect as their gathering years would permit. He was told that it was composed in part of members of the revolution against Russia in 1863, and that they all enjoyed pensions from the Polish government.

The Marshal said no more about the incident, but the next day, during a reception by the Warsaw Municipal Council, he walked up to the chairman of the Veterans' Union and, without having told anybody what he was going to do, pinned the medal of the Legion of Honor on the old man's uniform.

ANNUAL OUTING ST. JOHN'S CHOIR

Regret at Retirement of Mr. Devey Voiced by Rev. Lloyd.

The annual excursion of St. John's Choir to Burleigh Falls per steamer "Stoney Lake," was held yesterday leaving George Street Wharf at 8 a.m. returning at 7.30 p.m. About 90 choirmembers and their friends as sembled including the Rev. O. G. H. Lloyd and Mr. W. F. Johnston, (the Vicar and Mr. and Mrs. A. Gibson joining and leaving the boat at Lakefield). A thoroughly enjoyable time made the trip through the canal, river and lakes pass very quickly and at the famous Burleigh Falls Hotel, hostess, Mrs. H. W. Darcy had prepared a delicious dinner, eclipsing (if possible) any of the repasts provided for St. John's choir on fourteen bygone excursions. At the conclusion of the first sitting Mr. Devey called for hearty cheers for Mrs. Darcy and her helpers assuring them that nothing had been left undone both as to quality and service. Auld Lang Syne was also then sung in memory of previous gatherings and this being the last time that combination with Mr. and Mrs. Devey would again assemble. Three pleasant hours were spent wandering amid the beauties of the Falls, the weather being delightful

On the return journey, races were run of at Young's Point, the prizes with exception of two prayer books being very kindly given by Mr W. E. Conway for which he was accorded hearty thanks.

At Lakefield Mr. Charles Coleman not to be outdone by the service at Burleigh Falls. served a delicious supper making short work of the difficulties of service to such a large company, serving dainties as unexpected as they were delightful. Mr. and Mrs. Coleman and their staff were accorded hearty cheers.

The company indulged in singing and dancing at frequent intervals Nearing home the Rev. O. G. H. Lloyd said that he had been asked to voice the intense regret of the choir at the loss of their friend and choirmaster, Mr. R. J. Devey, who with Mrs. Devey left the service of St. John's the end of this month. Hearty cheers left no doubt as to the wealth of esteem and affection felt for Mr. and Mrs. Devey. Mr. Morphet was accorded hearty thanks for so finely carrying through the arrangements without a hitch anywere, a compliment also extended to Capt. Scollard. St. John's choir as constituted under the talented direction of Mr. R. J. Devey, passes into a memory, the majority of the members of the choir having signified their intention to retirement at the end of this month with Mr. and Mrs Devey, whose delightful services in the Chancel, Sunday school and among many members of the congregation will long be remembered.

CURLERS GIVEN GOOD PITCHING

No Hits Off Woods and He Fans Fifteen in Midget Opener.

With Clarence Woods pitching a no-hit, no-run g..., at Sacred Heart church grounds last evening Curlers defeated Sacred Heart in a Midget Series contest by the score of 6 to 0. Woods fanned 15 batsmen.

Masterson twirled a splendid game for Sacred Heart, but his support was shaky at times. Woods is the twirler who was seen here with the Lindsay Midgets last season in a semi-final O.B.A.A. game. He had a good team behind him last evening made up of youngsters who are developing fast.

It was the first experience in league ball for most of the Sacred Heart lads.

"Bill" McGee, Vincent O'Connell, and "Bill" Prindible looked after the teams and an interesting and well conducted contest marked the openign of the series.

The teams:

Sacred Heart: Kenneally c; Richea 2b; Masterson p: Grady 3b; McGraw ss; Barne rf. Collins lf; Paquette 1b; Masterson cf.

Curlers: Baird 2b; Fraser lf; Killaly 1b; Woods p; Ecobichon ss; Flemming cf; Baker c; McDonald rf; Gray 3b.

Score by innings:

Sacred Heart .. ..0000000—0
Curlers .. ..121200x—6

Umpire: V. Rishea.

Game to-night.

The second game in the series will be played at the Prince of Wales school grounds this evening between Hillcrests and Maple Leafs. Hillcrests will use Conners, who fanned 19 batsmen in the Bantam game on Monday evening, and the Leafs will start Joe Reynolds, who did good work with the Prince of Wales team in the School league.

ANOTHER CRISIS IN DEMPSEY BOUT

SHELBY, Mont., June 27. — Another crisis which threatened for a time to imperil the h...ling of the Dempsey-Gibbons world's heavyweight championship bout here on July 4th, was avoided to-day when an agreement was reached between the officials of the Great Falls business men financially interested in the bout and the nine local lumber dealers and labor contractors who hold a mortgage of $85,000 against the arena constructed for the battle.

Repayment of the money advanced by the Great Falls bankers for the second $100,000 guaranteed Jack Dempsey and the reimbursement of local lumber dealers and contractors will be on a pro rata basis, it was announced by George H. Stanton, a Great Falls banker, after a prolonged conference today.

TORONTO, June 27.—Under the Progressive banner, modified by the word Independent, two Toronto women have enlisted, hoping for Ontario Legislative honors. In northwest Toronto the Progressive candidate is Mrs. W. E. Groves, herself an ex-teacher, who has been school trustee on the Toronto Board of Education for four and a half years. She has worked very hard for the Handicapped Child and for the education of the feeble-minded, and has given many addresses in favor of the Adolescent School Attendance Act. Now she feels that the feeble-minded are such a vital problem in Ontario, that their segregation seems inevitable.

Mrs. W. H. Becker, a prominent club woman, is the Independent-Progressive candidate for northeast Toronto. During the suffragist campaign of 1916-17 she was General Secretary in the fight which brought needed reforms for women. She is Chairman of the Citizenship Committee of the National Council of Women, and Corresponding Secretary of the Toronto Federation of Home and School Clubs. Her interest in social welfare and along educational lines is very keen.

TORONTO, June 27.—The Toronto League of Women Voters is doing much educational work preparatory to the coming Provincial elections.

To each candidate will be sent a questionnaire asking him or her to outline their stand on such questions as race-track gambling, Hydro power, radials, adolescent School Attendance Act, care of the feeble-minded and minimum wage. They have prepared a questionnaire on Provincial matters that should make every woman conversant with much needed information if she is to take her place as a well-informed and equipped voter.

MURRELL COLLAPSES WHEN EXTRADITION TO CANADA ORDERED

Londoner Protests Against Proceedings at San Francisco and Declares That He "Didn't Do the Killing."

Regains Composure When Returned to Cell.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 27.—Dramatically protesting his innocence of the crime of murder charged against him in depositions and proofs admitted by Gerald Campbell, Esq., British consul-general here, Sydney Ernest Murrell, alleged murderer of Banker Russell Campbell, of Melbourne, Middlesex County, Ontario, was today ordered held in jail without bail pending issuance of extradition papers by the United States secretary of state at Washington, D. C.

Murrell, who was without legal counsel, charged the representative of the British Government with the introduction of "selected evidence," and vehemently shook his manacled hands in the direction of United States Commissioner Francis J. Krull, pouring out a verbal torrent of protest against the proceedings.

With his eyes flashing, Murrell heard the words of the court, that spelling his return to Canada and the prison in London, from which he escaped at 7.30 o'clock on the evening of September 2, 1921. Then the fighting spirit that has characterized the prisoner ever since he was taken into custody, a month ago, in the State of Nevada, went out of his face and manner. He crumpled slowly into his chair and turned to the United States marshal.

Protests His Innocence

"I didn't do the killing, I didn't do it," Murrell murmured over and over again as he was being led back to his cell in the federal building.

Once again behind the bars the prisoner recovered his nonchalance and consented to tell of his escape from the London prison with his brother, William, and of his subsequent adventure as gambler, prize-fighter and miner, until he fell into the hands of the Nevada sheriff.

This is his story:

"When Bill (his brother) and I were lodged in the London jail and charged with the crime of murder we decided to get away if fortune favored us. We watched for a chance to get by the guards, but that never came. Then late one afternoon while Bill was pacing up and down the cell he stopped suddenly. 'Come here, Sid,' he whispered, excitedly, 'do you see that glitter in that big crack up there?' and he pointed to a big crack up in the corner of the room. I didn't know what was in his mind, but I buckled up and let him stand on my back. In a second he dropped to the floor and in his hand he held two thin steel saws. He looked me in the eyes. 'This means freedom,' he laughed.

"That was the beginning of six weeks of sawing at the bars of our cell. We could only saw for a few minutes a day as we didn't dare take a chance of being caught. Each time we quit we put the saws back in their hiding place. To hide our work we plugged the saw cuts in the bars with soap, which we colored black with paint we scraped off the other bars'

To Montreal

"It was 7.30 the night we escaped. It was darker than it is in California in London at that hour so we got through the window unnoticed. Then we scaled a wall and got into the street. After that we made our way to the Grand Trunk freight yards, where we jumped an eastbound train, after one or two narrow escapes we arrived in Montreal.

"From Montreal by easy stages, hiding the day time and traveling by night, we arrived in Halifax. Three nights later we got aboard an ocean freighter bound for Cuba'

"When we arrived in Halifax we were fortunate in having ample funds, but when we left we were not quite so lucky, as it took most of our money to grease our way by the officials, who found we had no passports.

"Once on board the freighter and out at sea we felt better. It didn't take us long to find we were luckier cardplayers than the sailors, so when we arrived at Havana we were again well heeled.

"From Havana we worked our way to the coast of Mexico and thence into the interior. In Mexico we found our money made friends for us, but we soon tired of such company, as we could find mostly fugitive Americans, so we decided to cross into the United States.

Into The States

"In January, 1922, we crossed into the State of Arizona out of Mexico, my brother adopting the name of George Conway and I calling myself Bob Brooks. For a while we worked in the mines and then drifted up into Nevada. There we mined a gold and silver mine on shares and made a strike that gave us plenty of funds again.

"On July 4, 1922, under the name of Kid Brooks I boxed a 10-round draw with Jimmy Dunn, of California, and received $1,200 as my share of the purse.

"The piece of bad luck that resulted in my being unmasked as Sidney Murrell came when I got proud and bought an automobile. The car was recognized as a stolen one and Deputy Sheriff Morris Roberts, of Ely, Nevada, arrested me. From there I was taken to the county jail at Susannville, Cal.

"The sheriff at Susannville, after I sawed my way out of jail with a case knife and was recaptured, sent my photo and finger prints broadcast. In Ottawa they recognized me. That's all there is to my story at this time."

Message to Folks

Asked if he had any message fo his mother and sister, Murrell's eyes filled with tears, and he turned away. Then he pulled himself together. "Just tell my folks I'm the same boy that fought in the Dardanelles, and I'm coming home to face the charge."

United States Commissioner Krull held Murrell upon the following showing made by Consul-General Campbell:

Magistrate's warrant from London, identification of the picture of the accused by his mother and others, depositions by Inspector of Detectives Thomas Nickle, of London; Roy E. McCandless, manager of the Home Bank of Melbourne; Stuart Campbell, Robert Alexander Campbell, John Campbell Elliot, John Edward Little and Dr. Roderick Dewar. The accused will not be taken from San Francisco until the writ of extradition issues from the national capital. Throughout the entire proceedings Murrell remained silent as to the present whereabouts of his brother. It is known, however, that the brother was in Nevada three months ago.

There's a world of interest in the Want Ads. They reflect the urgent desires of various businesses, households and individuals.

The Wants tell what is most needed. If the cook has left, if a worker is needed in the office or factory, if an article of value is lost or found, if there is urgent necessity to sell a piece of property, secure tenants, roomers or boarders—all such conditions are expressed and met in the Want Columns.

The Wants are close to the heart interests of hte people. It is interesting to watch them carefully.

NATIONAL HEALTH LAWS PREMATURE SAYS MEDICAL HEAD

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27 (Associated Press).—Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford University, California, and president of the American Medical Association, told delegates to the seventy-fourth annual convention of the association here tonight that national social health legislation should be avoided at this time.

"There is at present no one best way of handling the social relationships of medicine," he said. "Fortunately, there are 48 states in the union, so that experiments can be tried out in them without too much risk. When a good plan is discovered, it can be repeated by other states. Not until we are sure of our ground, is national social health legislation advisable.

"At every step we must be available to help in making wise decisions. To those to whom are delegated the safeguarding of the public health should go the responsibility for our protection against inadequately trained and vicious practitioners of all sorts. Most important in public health is the safeguarding of the death certificate. When anyone who is not a trained physician is allowed to declare the cause of a death there is danger of the spread of unrecognized disease, vital statistics are impaired, and crime is made easier. It is imperative for the life of the state to guard carefully the girth of its citizens to have marriage laws that protect its children, and to know the causes of all deaths.

"The new position of woman as citizen and voter, and the capacity of women to replace men as industrial workers and as administrators, together with the marked shift of women from the home and farm to the congested city with its boarding and apartment houses, have already had their effect on medical practice. The hospital is rapidly replacing the home in the care of the sick and is having an increased relationship to child-bearing.

"When every student in school receives some training in biology, the quack, the "patent medicine" cheat, the aggrandized rubber and manipulator, and the knotted string faddist will have a less fertile soil for their mushroom activities. Since we are alive we need to be able to think biologically about our individual and mass problems if we are to avoid deception and danger.

"For the present we can only expect to get high percentage results in the application of medicine. Every time we learn a new fact, the structure of medicine becomes firmer and more dependable. Near facts must fall before facts. There can be no present finality. Dogma has no place in medicine today. Facts and not authority control.

"We as social animals can make our particular civilization secure only by developing and controlling our food supply and housing, holding aloof our enemies, particularly the microscopic ones, keeping up proper physical standards of individual and group health, and having ideals of service and religion that make life cooperative and wholesome.

"With the spread of general information, decrease in the number of home patients, the increase in hospital beds, the enlargement of office practice, the development of laboratories, the changes in the disease processes due to the betterment of public health, the increasing need of early diagnosis, the enhanced significance of prognosis, and the increase in size and number of cities, the practice of medicine is being remodelled right under our eyes.

"The opportunities before this great association are almost beyond parallel. We have the numbers, organization, intelligence and sympathy, and are in possession of a fund of knowledge which, it applied to the full extent of human deed and human development, would give untold happiness to humanity. We must exercise the patient leadership of the man who knows. No group of men understands human needs better than we."

HIGH WIND CUT LIGHT SERVICE

Parts of the City in Darkness Last Night—Minor Damage Caused.

The vicious electric storm of Tuesday morning followed by last night's big breeze left a trail of trouble for the Hydro staff in this district and also for the Utilities Commission in the city. The evening wind caused most of the inconvenience for H. O. Fisk, manager of the Utilities Commission, and his assistants. At least fifty services were reported out of order, and the entire south west end of the city was thrust into darkness about eight o'clock after the light flickered faintly and fitfully for half an hour and finally was extinguished.

Wiremen who were rushed out to meet the emergency declare that the tops of the trees were swaying through an arc of twenty feet at their tops and that it was positively dangerous to try to work in them. Complaints were numerous in the early evening, but they gradually ceased as the people realized that there was no relief for the night from the gale's disruption of the service.

And while the inconvenience and the complaints worried the manager there was a slightly compensatory new transmission system stood up against the racing wind without a trace of weakness. One pole was blown over in Ashburnham near the Vermont Marble factory but it was the only casualty on that front. That system had been largely rebuilt a year ago. North of Smith street which was renewed four years ago there was no trouble, and on George street all the lights were in operation.

The electical storm in the early morning blew out several coils in the Auburn power house, also hit the Lakefield sub-station, mussed up things at Healey Falls and damaged various transformers in and around the city.

WEDDING BELLS

ANDERSON—COON

At half-past ten o'clock this morning, the marriage was solemnized by the Rev. Harold W. Young, at George street Methodist church of Carrie L., daughter of the late Rev C. H. Coon and Mrs. Coon, 589 Aylmer street and W. Lindsay Anderson son of Mr. John Anderson and the late Mrs. Anderson, of Oxford Mills, Ontario.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her brother, Mr. Horace Coon of Ingersoll to the strains of the wedding march played by Mr. John H. Renwick, wore a beautiful gown of orchid georgette, with leghorn hat trimmed with orchid and grey shoes and stockings. Her show er bouquet was of ophelia roses and lilies of the valley. The young people were unattended.

After the ceremony, the wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother, which was decorated with peonies and white silk clematis. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left by motor for Ottawa, where they will reside after a summer spent at Brittania a neighboring summer resort. The bride's travelling costume was of grey, with small grey hat and navy wrap.

EAGLETON—BROOKS

The wedding was quietly solemnized yesterday afternoon at George street Methodist church parsonage by Rev. H. W. Young, of Robert W. Eagleton, Jr., and Florence Victoria Brooks, both of Peterboro, Mr. and Mrs. Eagleton were unattended.

CADIGAN—BLUEBIRD.

A very pretty wedding took place this morning at 8 o'clock at St. Peter's Cathedral, when Georgina Maud, only daughter of Mr. John Bluebird, was united in marriage to Michael Earle Cadigan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cadigan. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Finn.

The bride was charmingly attired in white crepe de chine, wearing a bridal veil caught with lily of the valley, and carrying a bouquet of Ophelia roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Dorina Russell, wore pink satin, with large black hat, and carried Columbia roses. Mr. Roque Gordon acted as best man.

After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cadigan. The bridal couple left later for a short honeymoon in Toronto, after which they will reside in Peterborough.

CUTMORE—YOUNG.

At one o'clock to-day, at St. James' Methodist Church, the marriage was solemnised by Rev. J. F. Champan of Ruby Agnes, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Young, 167 Aylmer Street, to George Herbert Cutmore, youngest son of Mr and Mrs. G. T Cutmore, of Witney, Oxen, England.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore an all-grey costume, with gown of satin-faced canton crepe, and hat to match, and carried Ophelia roses. The only attendant was the bride's small niece, Margaret Bull, of Oakville, a dainty little flower-girl, in peach silk, with hat of peach-coloured net, and basket of sweet peas.

The wedding march was played by Mr. Leslie Unitt, and Miss Ruby Quartermaine sang very sweetly, "O Promise Me."

Later, the wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, prettily decorated for the occasion with syringa and white peonies.

Mr and Mrs Cutmore left on the 350 train for Toronto and Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in a dress of cocoa-coloured all-tyme crepe, with brown hat, shoes and stockings, and navy wrap. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

WILL INVESTIGATE CHILDREN'S DEATH

Provincial Officers to Probe Supposed Drowning of Clarke Little Ones

LINDSAY, June 27. (Special.) — This morning T. H. Stinson, K. C., in the absence of County Crown Attorney Anderson at Ottawa, instructed Provincial officers to proceed to Omemee to investigate the mystery surrounding the death of the Clarke children.

County Coroner, Dr. Clarke, who was summoned to Omemee on Saturday last after the finding of the boys, stated this morning that he did not examine the bodies, but simply gave a certificate of drowning. He did not look for any marks or bruises on the bodies.

In connection with the alleged disappearance of Mr. Clarke, father of the children, and his housekeeper, Mrs. Wilbert Fee, of Fee's Landing, stated that Clarke had called at her home in the morning and informed her that he would require no more milk, as he had drive his housekeeper (Marjory Sloan, formerly of Peterboro, to that city, where Clarke's wife had left him over a year ago. He had advertised for a housekeeper and Marjory Sloan had been engaged.

A farm hand in the employ of Wilbert Fee is authority for the statement that it was impossible for the Clarke children to move or use the boat at the landing, as had been alleged. A farmer living near the landing gave the children their dinner shortly before noon on Saturday.

Efficient Housekeeping

The modern idea of economy extends into the household as well as into every branch of business. Most housewives pride themselves upon the fact that their homes are conducted in an efficient, business-like manner.

Every housewife knows, too, that the business of running a house, providing for the wants and needs of the different members of the family and meeting the almost daily emergencies is second to none.

The Want Ads. in the Examiner are a great boon to the efficient housewife. In securing helpers, in purchasing various articles of household equipment, disposing of discarded furniture, in fact in countless ways, the Want Ads. are the housewife's most valuable assistant.

Shipping Line to Meet Regulations

LONDON, June 28.—(Canadian Press).—Holland America shipping line has decided to comply with requirements of the United States prohibition law, so far as its ships are concerned it is announced in a Central News despatch from Amsterdam to-day.

HOW AMERICANS VIEW ELECTIONS

Regards Result as Expressing a Desire for Beer and Wine.

DETROIT, June 28.—An undercurrent of popular opinion favoring modification of the Ontario Temperance Act to provide for government sale of beer and light wine is believed the contributing factor to the defeat of the Farmer-Labor Coalition Government of Premier Ernest C. Drury in the Provincial elections Monday.

Political observers see in the result a swing of the pendulum backward from two earlier referendums which unmistakably registered Ontario's preference for prohibition and strict enforcement of the Temperance Act. That the wet element, those only moderately wet and the Moderation League — the latter a strong and well financed organization which has sprung up in the dry provinces the last few years — should turn to the Conservative party for a measure of relief from the aridity which has gripped the province for several years is only natural, observers says. While Premier Drury and his chief lieutenant, Attorney-General W. E. Raney, came out unequivocally for enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act, and while F. Wellington Hay, leader of the Liberal party, gave the wet element practically no encouragement, G. Howard Ferguson, leader of the Conservative party, held out a ray of hope in the announcement that if returned to power he would submit a referendum, providing for light wines and beer, providing he was convinced that there was a public demand for such a plebiscite. And in Monday's election there was a landslide to the Conservative party. Premier Drury and his Labor coalitionists were routed; the Liberal party captured only a few seats and the victorious Conservatives have a clear majority of 30 or more.

Referendum Predicted.

Both wet and dry elements say the election foreshadows a liquor referendum shortly after the province settles down and Premier-elect Ferguson gets settled firmly in the saddle. It is pointed out that while the Liberal and Conservative parties did attack the Drury Government on its financial record and that the issues of Hydro policy, good roads, timber land deals and even "The Last Night Party" were made to do public duty, the underlying issue was prohibition. Mr. Ferguson, as leader, followed shrewd politics in handling this issue loaded with dynamite. As leader of the party, he was careful in his announced policy, standing four-square for strict enforcement and promising only a referendum if advisable, but he did allow, with no protest, many of the Conservative candidates to make much broader statements. The result was that the wet portion of the electorate, ably prompted by the Moderation League, came to regard the Conservative party as the wet emblem bearer, and on the strength of that hot-wave appeal, coupled with Manitoba voting light wines and beer, Mr. Ferguson swept into power.

OPPOSES PLAN FOR INCREASE OF AIR FORCE

British Labor Leader Declares the Project is a Preface to a New Era of War.

IN BRITISH HOUSE

LONDON, June 28. — (United Press). — Geo. Lansbury, Labor leader, announced Wednesday he will place the following resolution before the annual Labor party conferenc now in session:

"The proposed increased of the British royal air force in competition with the French is the preface to a new era of war. Therefore this party demands that Labor members in Parliament oppose the increase.

"It is, moreover, a crime against humanity to promote a new race of armaments within five years of the end of the last war, which the peoples of the world hoped was the beginning of a new era of peace."

The Labor party conference voted to reject the proposal that Newbold, the Communist member of Parliament, be affiliated with their Parliamentary floor organization by a vote of 2,227,000 to 219,000.

Liquor Question.

After the discussion of Labor's attitude toward the liquor question, a special committee report was issued, depreciating any attempt on the part of the Labor party to commit itself to any particular panacea, and declaring the Labor party sees the key to temperance reform in taking the entire manufacture and retailing of liquor out of the hands of those finding profit in promoting the utmost possible consumption of it.

DOMESTIC BERRIES REPLACE IMPORTED

Fruit From Niagara Peninsular and Home Markets of Good Quality.

This is the season of the year when domestic fruits and vegetables start to come into the stores. The forced fruits and hothouse products of far-off places are a boon to Canadian housewives, looking for something in the tiresome spring months to tempt jaded appetites, but there is something fresh and new about our own, later, home-grown fruits and vegetables. The berries from the Niagara Peninsula or our own local gardens seem riper and more tasty than the paler berries from far away, and there is a tang to the fresh cabbage and beets and carrots of Canadian growth that has no duplicate in foreign markets.

Strawberries are plentiful this year, and of good quality. Cherries are expected shortly, perhaps by the end of this week. Mr. W. J. Oke, whose cool warehouse contains so many of the good things that contribute to the joy of life, anticipates the same method of buying as prevails in the early strawberry season, when, although the fruit is at its best and freshest, and often at a low price, people do not buy to any extent, waiting for the last few weeks. Probably the housewives have a certain schedule for doing up fruit, and if the berries come very plentifully, as in this season, when a hot sun brought them to perfection quickly, they are not ready for them.

Tomatoes from Mississippi in tall crates stand in this same warehouse; green and hard when they arrive, ripening slowly in their jackets of pink tissue paper. These require four or five handlings, if they remain long uneaten, to pick out the culls that manifest themselves from time to time.

Green bananas are piled up in a car on the siding, with their long stalks cut off roughly. They are consigned to the lower regions of the warehouse, where they hang suspended from the ceiling, slowly turning yellow with advancing age.

From far-away Brazil come the "large washed" nuts that the children call "nigger toes," so popular at Christmas time, with their firm, white meats. Behind their growth is a century of careful, slow maturing, for Brazil nut trees do not bear fruit until they are a hundred years old, and then they require careful cultivation to produce the best, large nuts. The uncultivated trees in the swampy districts have a poor quality of fruit.

A good quality of new potato is coming in from Virginia, and the price is up five cents on the measure.

Dairy butter is up a cent a pound in most stores, with eggs selling at twenty-one and twenty-two cents a dozen.

Hogs on the hoof still continue to decrease in price, with a difference of twenty-five cents on the hundred for the "thick, smooth" and thirty cents a hundredweight for the "select, graded," from last week's quotations.

The Prince of Wales receives an average of more than 700 letters daily and frequently the number is as high as 1500 or 1600.

Miners Discussing A New Scale of Pay

WASHINGTON D.C. June 28.—(Canadian Press).— Public sentiment will tolerate no suspension of anthracite coal supply this year. Federal coal commission to-day informed convention of Union miners delegates now in session at Scranton, Pa., considering new wage demands.

In a letter signed by John Hays Hammond, commission's chairman miners were urged to seek understanding with operators representatives and particularly convention was asked to "leave all questions open for nominations in committee."

VOICES A PLEA FOR GERMANY

Veiled Condemnation of France's Reparations Policy also Conveyed in Note From Pope.

ROME, June 28. (United Press.) —Considering the grave responsibilities resting upon us and upon those responsible for the destinies of the people, we once more entreat them to examine the different questions before Europe, and especially those of reparations, with a Christian spirit, Pope Pius XI wrote on Wednesday in a Pontificate addressed to Cardinal Gasparri, voicing a plea for Germany, and a veiled condemnation of the French reparations policy.

Declaring that "Hatred is a steady menace of a new and more ruinous conflagration in Europe," Pope Pius stated that "the situation had not improved since the Genoa conference a year ago."

"Instead, it has grown worse, justifying grave fears for the future," he wrote.

Grave Suffering.

"This saddens our hearts. It is well known to you who daily witness our particular cares that as the father of the whole Christian family, we cannot remain indifferent before the dangers threatening our children.

The Pope declared "every endeavor must be made to relieve the grave suffering of the present hour, and every occasion must be seized that will restore peace."

"In view of the new proposals for preparing to re-open diplomatic conversations to find a peaceful solution of the questions agitating the whole of Europe, and thus indirectly all nations, we deem it a duty to raise anew our disinterested protest, unbiased, and with benevolence for all."

"Considering the grave responsibilities resting upon us and upon those responsible for the destinies of the people we once more entreat them to examine the different questions, and especially those of reparations, with a Christian spirit, uniting in right and justice that social charity upon which rests perfect civil intercourse.

"Should a debtor in order to repair damages suffered by the populations of towns once prosperous and flourishing show a sincere desire to reach a definite and equitable accord, justice and charity, as well as every interest of the creditors seem to counsel not exacting from the debtor what he cannot give.

"Likewise if it is just that creditors should have guarantees proportional in importance to their credits, and such as will assure collections on which vital interests depend, we leave it to such creditors to consider whether it is necessary to maintain at all costs territorial occupations implying heavy sacrifices for both the occupied and occupying countries, or whether it is not rather preferable to resort even though gradually to more proper and less odious guarantees.

A Direct Message.

"Once both parties accepted such peaceful terms and ended their bitterness and territorial occupations it would be possible to reach that sincere pacification and peace which is indispensable for economic reconstruction and is ardently desired by all.

"This pacification and reconstruction is such a great blessing for all nations as to justify any grave sacrifice."

The Pope concludes that these blessings can only be obtained by the favor of God.

The Pope's letter is interpreted as a direct message to France, and complicates the relations between France and the Vatican which were tending toward a reapprochement.

Poincare has recently declared that the Vatican supported the French policy, Wednesday's message refutes this, placing the French premier in an embarrassing position with the Communist and anti-clerical group of the French Chamber who bitterly oppose any vatican leanings.

Significance is also seen in the fact that the Vatican's plea backs up both the English stand and that of Premier Mussolini of Italy.

It will strengthen the morale of the great Catholic groups in South Germany, Austria and Hungary.

REMINDER FROM CROWN ATTORNEY

Copies Of Judgment Handed To Members of The County Council.

Copies of the judgment delivered by Mr. Justice Latchford in 1918 in favour of Crown Attorney Hatton in his claim against the County of Peterborough were distributed among the members of the County Council during their session

The order made on that occasion awarded the plaintiff $466.66 for rent and $64.00 for furniture, and also directed that the County should provide Mr. Hatton with proper offices necessary for him to carry on his work as Crown Attorney and Clerk of the Peace.

This order was made without prejudice to the plaintiff's right to bring action against the County in respect of any omission on the County's part to supply him with fuel, light, stationery and furniture in compliance with the statutory provisions in that behalf.

Mr. Hatton has not occupied any office at the Courthouse.

WILL TRAWL WITH CABLE NEXT TIME

Dan Simons Lost Biggest Fish Ever, When Line Snapped During Fight.

Dan. Simons has placed an order with E. B. Fowler for a special Hood-Haggie, made in Scotland cable, against his next fishing trip at Rice Lake with Tom Hooper. Ordinary lines are not to be trusted after their experience the other day out in front of Harwood as they were paddling along toward Idyl Wyld along the rice bed. After that, the impersonator of Jiggs of George McManus's famous comic strip and the musical comedy, "Bringing Up Father," decided to take no chances the next time he throws out a riffling spoon into Rice Lake First he got a strike that nearly upset the boat, and then, as Dan let out the line a bit in a desire to drown the fish rather than endanger the life of his host Hooper, he began to realize that it was no sunfish on the business end of his silk line. For five or ten minutes Dan used all the skill at his command, backed up by the advice of friend Hooper, and just as his imagination was measuring the length and the weight of the monster, and as he was wondering how he could ever drag it aboard, the line snapped with a recoil that nearly capsized the canoe. Away went the visions of the man-eating shark, or whatever it was, dangling as a prize capture in front of Eddie Wright's shop, but in their train came the determination that next time he goes fishing he will have a hundred yards or more of cable, something stout enough to snub even the Leviathan.

J. M'CAUSLAND TO PRESS FOR O.T.A. CHANGE

Declares Good English, Irish and Scotch Stock Look For Their Glass of Beer.

A DEFINITE PLEDGE

TORONTO, June 28. Canadian Press.— J. A. McCausland, the Conservative member for South west Toronto, in the newly elected Legislature this morning, definitely announced that the first thing he would do in the next session of the Legislature would be to press for a change in the Ontario Temperance Act.

"We cannot hope to get good English and Irish and Scotch stock into this province if they cannot get a glass of beer," said Mr. McCausland. "They will not come. We will keep on filling up with foreigners—we have too many of them now."

Power Rights.

Mr. McCausland said that he would also demand an improvement in the control of power rights and transportation in the north country.

NO INFORMATION TO NEWSPAPERS AHEAD OF COURT

Delorme's Counsel Raises Objection That Features of Case Were Revealed First to Press.

TRIAL IS RESUMED

MONTREAL, June 28.—(Canadian Press).—That information had been published in local morning paper concerning features of the Delorme case prior to its having been given in court was an objection advanced by C. H. Cahan K.C., Counsel for the Defence, when the case of Father Delorme, indicted for the slaying of his half-brother, Raoul, was resumed this morning.

This information, said Mr. Cahan had emanated from Crown officers.

Crown Prosecutor, R. L. Calder, K.C., addressing the Judge Sir Frances Lemieux, declared that what had been published in the newspapers in question had apparently been obtained by some reporter having overheard a conversation between the two officers in question between Dr. McTaggart and himself. No information in the hands of the Crown Counsel would be given to newspapers before it was given in court, said Mr. Calder.

Book of Theories.

Argument and counter argument, regarding the competency of Detective G. J. Lajoie as a witness were heard this morning.

Lajoie, who is not now connected with the city detective department, having resigned as he testified on account of conflicts with his colleagues arising out of this case some time ago, wrote and published a book entitled "My Impressions of the Delorme Case." Lajoie was called to the stand by R. L. Calder, K.C., counsel for the prosecution, but witness was at once objected to by Alleyn Taschereau, K.C., counsel for the defence, who questioned the competency of Lajoie on the ground that he had made definite statements in his book which prejudiced the case. Lajoe rejoined that these statements were theories which he as a detective had advanced in reconstructing the murder.

HOUSE OF DAVID IN FINAL DECREE

Hansels To Get $24,078 From Benjamin Purnell and His House.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., June 28. — A final decree in the suit brought by John and Margaret Hansel formerly of Nashville, Tenn., against Benjamin Purnell and the House of David at Benton Harbor, was filed in the Federal Court by Judge John Sater, of Columbus, O., in which he—

1. Overruled the application made by the House of David for a rehearing.

2. Awarded the Hansels $24,078.08 with costs.

3. Overruled the defendants' request for the appointment of a receiver.

The amount of the judgment was considerably higher than had been estimated at the time of the filing of the opinion. It was then thought the Hansels would receive about $15,000.

PETERBOROUGH MASONS AT PICNIC IN COBOURG

About forty Royal Arch Masons and their wives and ladies motored to Cobourg yesterday afternoon to attend the annual picnic of R. A. Masons in this district. Ten Chapters were represented with a total attendance of three hundred, including guests.

A programme of athletic events filled in the afternoon, Corinthian Chapter of Peterborough being successful in winning the soft ball competition, in which were entered teams representing each Chapter. Cobourg Chapter was runner-up.

Most Excellent Companion R. H. Spencer of Trenton, Grand First Principal of the Grand Chapter of Ontario, was in attendance and presented the prize to Corinthian Chapter. This was a beautiful R. A. banner.

Great credit must be given to District Superintendent I. A. Humphries of Campbellford, who was in a very large measure responsible for the arrangements.

LOCAL RESULTS.

The results of the 1923 Interschools rifle competition conducted by the Royal Military College, Kingston, have been announced. Hamilton Collegiate Institute, which won the shield last year, wins it again this year with 197 points, and Kingston Collegiate Institute comes second with 195 points. Peterborough Collegiate Institute is included in the list with a total of 150 points.

Fisheries Treaty Properly Endorsed

LONDON, June 28.—(Canadian Press). — British Government officials consider the fisheries treaty signed between the United States and Canada as an affair between those Government and as not requiring ratification by the other British Dominions it was stated in authoritative quarters.

TRAIN SERVICE IS APPRECIATED

Railways Committee Acknowledge Prompt Response of C.N.R. To Local Request.

Appreciation of the prompt action of the Canadian National Railways in extending to Peterborough the terminus of the new fast train to and from Toronto through Lindsay, and also in adding a sleeping car to the train for Montreal for the accommodation of passengers from this district was expressed by the Railways and Parks Committee last night.

At the same time attention was called to the need of a shelter at the Auburn Station and it was suggested that such an improvement would be a convenience for people going into Peterborough.

Ald. Turner, the chairman, reported that he had given the contract for the painting of the bandstand in Victoria Park to George H. Duncan.

The committee approved of the repairs to the grand stand at Riverside Park, as detailed by Ald. Turner, and authorised him to have the rest of the plans carried out to make the stand absolutely safe. The cost of these alterations, which are in T. Ephgrave's hands, is estimated at more than $900.00.

A dressing-room for women will be provided at the Lake Street bathing beach, and the committee recommended that the dressing quarters at both the Inverlea and Lake Street beaches be kept open on Sundays, and that the caretakers remain on duty and be paid for the extra work on the certificate of the chairman.

Mayor Taylor was requested to call the attention of the Royal Humane Society to the bravery of John and Fred Murphy in saving several persons from drowning.

CLARKE BODIES WILL BE EXHUMED

LINDSAY, June 28. — County Crown Attorney Anderson, who returned from Ottawa this morning, stated that he will instruct County Coroner Clarke to hold an inquest into the death of the little Clarke children, whose bodies were found floating in Pigeon River, near Omemee, Sunday. Undertaker Morcombe, of Omemee, is awaiting instructions to exhume the bodies.

Miss Sloan, who was held over night by the Peterboro police, was released this morning on bail of $500 and will appear on Saturday morning for trial.

GET STERN JUSTICE

LONDON, June 28. Canadian Press —Three German U-boat commanders, who escaped from the arm of the law after their exploits in the war, are now prisoners of the French in the Ruhr and are likely to receive stern justice, says the Dusseldorff correspondent of the Daily Mail.

The first of these is Paul Audler, who commanded the submarine 9-A. He is now charged with complicity in the explosion that partly wrecked the Rhine-Herne canal.

The third is commander Rose who navigated theU-53 in its trip to the American coast in 1915. He is now suffering from the effects of a severe beating administered by Belgian officer whom he insulted.

RESOLUTION FOR LEVY ON CAPITAL

British Labor Party Determined to Keep This to the Forefront.

LONDON, June 28.— (Canadian Press).—A capital levy on a graduated scale on fortunes from £5,000 upwards became an integral part of the British Labor's Party's program to-day, when a long resolution dealing with national finance was adopted by the party conference in session in Queen's Hall. Charles G. Ammon Labor member of parliament for Camberwell, in moving the resolution, said the capital levy was the keystone of the whole future of labor finance and instead of apologizing for it the party was determined to keep it to the forefront in its program.

The resolution declares that the policy of Labor is to redeem a substantial portion of the British National debt by a levy on capital, with a saving in annual interest and sinking fund thereby being affected, together with other economies, notably an amendments, and by the taxation of land values.

DETROIT CASHIER FALLS TO LURE OF GAMBLING TABLE

Confessed to Embezzlement of $8,993.50 to Satisfy His Craze for Rolling the Ivories—Shortage Dates Back to 1922

DETROIT, June 28 — Dice rolling over green baize covered tables in Detroit gambling dens took from Tailey Piper, 26 years old, assistat cashier of Grinnell Brothers, Woodward Avenue, $8,993.50 which he had embezzled from his employers. Piper confessed to the detectives.

Piper pleaded guilty when arraigned before Judge Charles L. Bartlett in the Recorders' Court, and his bail was fixed at $20,000 with two sureties. He is to appear before Judge Pliny for sentence.

Piper was arrested on his return from a three weeks' vacation in Fairfax, Ala., where his wife and two children now are.

"They know nothing about my trouble," he said. "While I was down South I decided the only thing to do was to confess, and I did so on my return. I know I have done wrong and I want a chance to make good the loss my employers have suffered."

Auditors examining Piper's books recently report they found the shortage. Amounts between $200.00 and $1,200.00 had been taken by Piper on the average of every second week, it is alleged. The shortage in the accounts, officials of the company stated, dated back to October, 1922.

Piper had been in the employ of the music firm for more than two years. He is a college graduate, and is a veteran of the World War.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines — | New York Stock Exchange — And Curb Prices —

To-Day's Quotations and Opinions and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, June 28. Special.—A semblance of a rally in the stock market to-day was short lived, another drive being made on the whole market in the late morning.

New lows were reached by many of the active issues. Baldwin dropped to 117 3-4; American Can to 36 3-4; Canadian Pacific to 147 3-4 and Baltimore and Ohio to 41½.

New lows were also made in the Erie and Wabash issues and in many other low priced rails despite the remarkable character of the May earnings statements now coming on.

Returns from 33 representative railroads indicate a net of 6.88 per cent. on the property valuation, the best record in many years. But the weakness of this section of the list was offset by signs of impressive supporting steel and Studebaker, both of which rallied easily at noon when the pressure was momentarily lifted. Stocks acted in the first hour as though a heavy weight had been lifted. After the close on Wednesday, which held forth the prospect of a continued decline, prices showed improvement from the start of trading till the end of the first hour and this suggested to some that there had been developments over night, which had bettered the inside position of the speculative structure.

One prominent "bear house' was reported to be covering early "all around the room" before 11 o'clock. Substantial rallies from their recent lows had been registered in active stocks.

Another change of heart by a statistical service which turned bearish early in the week apparently had some effect on the investment rails in the early dealings on the stock exchange to-day.

New York Central jumped a full point to 99½ on the initial transaction and the Union Pacific 1¼ to 130½. Rails were also helped by continuance of record carloadings for the season.

Dupont was a feature of the industrial group spurting 3 points to 110.

Opening prices: New York Central 99½ up 1; Studebaker 100¼ up 1-2; Southern Railway 33 u 3-8; Sinclair 23 1-8 off 3-8; Bethlehem 47 1-8; Baltimore and Ohio 43½ off 1-2; New Haven 15 1-8 off 1-4;; Union Pacific 130½ up 1¼; Corn Products 123 1-8 up 1-8; California Petro 20½ up ¼; American Can 87 3-4 up 3-4.

The electrical storms of the recent few days have completely demoralized the wire service, both east and west of Toronto. Only intermittent quotations were available to-day.

CANADA GIVES ACCORD TO FISHERIES TREATY WITH UNITED STATES

Sharp Debate Preceded Formal Approval By the House of Commons Yesterday.

SIGNED BY LAPOINTE.

OTTAWA, June 28.— (Canadian Press).—Following three hours of sharp debate, the House of Commons yesterday approved the North Pacific Halibut Fisheries Treaty between Canada and the United States The signature of the treaty by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Marine without the British Ambassador at Washington signing it at the same time; the controversy which arose in consequence; and the rider attached to the treaty by the United States Senate making it applicable to the nationals and vessels, "of any other part of Great Britain," figured largely in the discussion.

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen declared that, in the signature of the treaty, Sir Eric Geddes. British Ambassador at Washington, had figuratively speaking, been kicked out of the door.

"Why," Mr Meighen asked, should we continue this process of offering one affront after the other, in order, if possible, to magnify and emphasize before the world or desire to dissociate ourselves from the rest of the Empire."

The Senate reservation in making the treaty applicable to the rest of the Empire, had "completely destroyed the pedestal upon which the Minister of Marine wished to stand.

Mr. Lapointe warmly resented any charge if discourtesy with regard to Sir Eric Geddes. "When a man is 21." he argued, "as my Right Honorable Friend has many times said this natior, is it is not discourtesy on his part to sign a promissory note without asking his former guardian to sign with him." If to sign the treaty had been a crime, Mr. Lapointe declared himself an "unrepentent sinner." The Canadian Government did not wish to accept the Senate reservation. for it would mean submission of the treaty for ratification to all the Parliaments of the Empire.

But he thought the legislation to be enacted both by Canada and the United States would reach the same end.

Concluding the debate, Premier King added that the Canadian Government taking the view that the treaty was a domestic concern of Canada, considered the signature of the Canadian Minister sufficient. Had the treaty had an imperial character Canada would have expected the British Ambassador to sign. Premier King, replying to Mr. Meighen, characterized as "thoroughly disloyal" any remark that the Canadian Government was seeking to dissociate itself from the rest of the Empire.

POLITICAL PATRONAGE.

OTTAWA, June 28 (Canadian Press). — In the Senate yesterday, Senator Murphy complained of the political patronage on the Government Railway in Prince Edward Island.

He said that the work of broad-gauging the road in his county was controlled by the officers of the Liberal Associations and that supplies for the Government boats were purchased from a figure-head, who represented prominent Liberal workers.

Nothing makes us happier than seingf a shoe clerk buy a pair of shoes that hurt his feet.

Returned After a Forty Years' Absence.

OTTAWA, June 28.— (Canadian Press.) — After an absence of 40 years, during which time he roamed through most of this continent, while his relatives supposed him dead; Clement L. Archambault, returned to Ottawa Tuesday and with some difficulty succeded in establishing his identity.

He remembers Ottawa as a miniature city and part of its present business section as a bush.

Mr. Archambautl has of late resided in Seattle, Washington.

Will Move a Resolution For an International Conference on Aerial Disarmament.

LESS THAN FRANCE.

LONDON, June 28. — Canadian Press. — Opposition to the government's proposal for increasing the British air force was expressed at yesterday's conference of the Labor Party by George Lansbury, Member of Parliament, who announced that he would move the following resolution later in the session:

"That the proposed increase of the British air force in competition with France is a preface to a new era of war, and the Labor Party calls on the Parliamentary Labor Party to offer every resistance, declaring it a crime against humanity to promote this new race in armaments within five years of the late war, which the peoples of the world hoped was the beginning of an era of peace, and demands that an international conference should immediately be called by Great Britain for the purpose of eventually abolishing by international agreement, all air armaments."

Meanwhile at Derby, the Earl of Birkenhead, in an address, declared that if "he understood the facts aright the government's proposals would still leave Great Britain with 300 airplanes less than would be at the disposal of France." However he accepted the Government's statement that if the present provision did not prove sufficient it would be ratified.

The question also arose in the House of Commons, where Edmund Morel, the Labor Member for Dundee, asked: "If before definitely committing the country to further heavy expenditure upon aerial war machines, and in order to prevent development of international rivalry in air armaments, the government will consider the advisability of addressing an invitation to all the powers to meet in conference for the purpose of arriving at an agreement for international limitation of aerial war craft construction?"

Home Secretary Bridgman replied that the League of Nations Commission for the reduction of armaments was considering the whole question of the limitation or armaments, and that Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin thought that Great Britain should await this result before taking any other steps in regard to limitations of armaments, and that Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin thought Great Britain should await this result before taking any other steps in regard to limitation.

Answering another question, Secretary Bridgman said that Great Britain would not delay carrying out their present aerial proposals until the league's commission reported.

Carlyon Bellairs, the Conservative member for the Maidstone division of Kent, asked whether Mr. Bridgman was aware that the United States Congress had passed an act advising that a conference be summoned on this question. The member also wanted to know whether since the United States was not a member of the League of Nations, it would be well to approach her in this matter. Secretary Bridgman asked for notice of this question before replying.

Longfellow's Daughters Invited to the Sault.

SAULT STE. MARIE, June 28. —(Canadian Press)—The Sault city council have passed the following resolution:—

"That the Mayor and Aldermen of the city of Sault Ste. Marie, Canada, send invitations to be present at the Ojibway presentation of Henry W. Longfellows poems "Hiawatha" on August 7 and 8, during, discoverey week to the daughters of the poet, Miss Alice Longfellow, Mrs Dana and Mrs. Thorpe."

Miss Longfellow is now living at Craigie House, Cambridge, Mass. Her married sisters also reside there

Longfellows career is of particular interest to the people of the Sault and Algoma for the reason that the scene of is best known poem is right around the Sault. Pawiting, the ancient Indian village that stood on the site of the Sault, was Hiawatha's home and Lake Superior is the Gitche Gumme, the big sea water, of the poem. It is strange that although this is the case the poet never visited this section, gaining most of his local color from school craft.

UNRULY LABOR MAN CAUSE OF STORMY SCENE

Three Scottish Labor Members Were Suspended From the House of Commons Last Evening.

BITTER WORDS.

LONDON, June 28.—(Canadian Press).— Three Scottish Labor members, James Maxton. J. Wheatley, and Rev. Campbell Stephen, were suspended from the House of Commons last evening after a stormy scene over a proposed reduction in the appropriations for child welfare in Scotland during discussion of the Scottish estimates, usually a most peaceful topic.

Maxton and Wheatley denounced those favoring the reduction notably George Banbury, a Labor member for Poplar as "murderers," and refused to withdraw, despite the advice of J. Ramsey MacDonald, Parliamentary Labor leader. They also refused summons to leave whereupon they were formally named by the Speaker and the Home Secretary moved their suspension, which was carried. 258 to 70 .

Then the Rev. Mr. Stephen arose and excitedly repeated that Mr. Banbury was a "murderer." He also refused to withdraw, was named by the Speaker and suspended by a vote of 676 to 60.

Hardly had the hubbub subsided when another Scotchman, G. Buchanan, got into trouble. Emanuel Spinwell was commenting on the demeanor of the ministerialists, when Sir Sir George Hamilton was understood to have made some reference to a Jew with regard to Spinwell. This the latter resented, although he said he was proud of being a Jew. Immediately a clamor arose on the Labor benches for the suspension of the ofiender.

Buchanan roared "white-livered cowards," "dirty dogs," and similar epithets; while the Chairman, J. F. Hope. said he had not heard an offensive remark. Bt chanan continued shouting accusing the Chair of partiality. He refused to take his seat and was suspended, 28 to 58.

Sir George Hamilton eventually apologized to Mr. Shinwell and quiet was restored.

IMPORTATION OF LIQUOR FOR PERSONAL USE

Importation to British Columbia to Be Allowed Till a Plebiscite of People Decides Otherwise.

THIRD READING.

OTTAWA, June 28.—(Canadian Press).—The Canadian Temperance Act was again before the Senate yesterday. The chief point at issue was the right of import for personal use in British Columbia. The government legislation was amended in committee to permit of personal import until a plebiscite of the electors decided otherwise. Senator Dandurand strongly urged that this amendment be dropped to conform with the wishes of the British Columbia government and 99 per cent of the people of that province who had voted for complete government control.

Senators Taylor and Barnard strongly supported a reference to the electors on this question.

The amendment was sustained by a vote of 40 to 30.

Sir George Foster then proposed an amendment by which brewers or distillers who were found guilty of a violation of this law twice in five years would lose their licenses and be ineligible for new licenses This amendment was lost on a division and the act giving the people of British Columiba the right to import of intoxicating liquors for personal use until otherwise decided by plebiscite was given its third reading.

HELPING THE SICK THROUGH THE HEAT OF SUMMER.

Hot weather is enervating weather. It takes the "starch" out of most of us—even the fit. But it is especially hard on the ailing and the aged. An undertoned system needs more than the ordinary stimulation to make life bearable when the thermometer hovers around eighty in the shade.

Roman Meal is especially valuable for invalids, little children, and old people, as an item of diet for hot weather months. It is acid blood that causes that "all in" feeling on a sultry day. Acid blood is caused by acid foods. Acid foods are white flour, refined cereals, fats, meats, and sweets.

Roman Meal is the only alkaline cereal—400 parts in each 1,000 parts "Excess Alkali"—alkaline enough to correct the acids of acid foods and keep the blood alkaline in hot weather.

Roman Meal may be made into porridge, pancakes, puddings and cakes. Even hot Roman Meal porridge is more "cooling" to the blood than the coolest tasting cereal of the acid-forming, refined class, with their alkaline salts all refined away. But Roman Meal can be served deliciously icy-cold, as BROSE-O, CHOC-OL-O, JELL-E. With milk, cream, whipped cream, honey, preserved or fresh fruits any one of these is a hot-day treat, that can be prepared in ten minutes. See "Summer Recipes" on package. In any form Roman Meal prevents indigestion, positively relieves constipation. At grocers.

Big Reception For the Premier Elect.

OTTAWA, June 28. —(Canadian Press.) — A monster reception to Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, leader of the Conservative party in Ontario and to Mrs. Ferguson, will be tendered them to-night by citizens of Kemptville. Conservatives of the Ottawa association have been invited to be present and it is likely that a large delegation will take part.

Labor Party Barred Communist From Ranks.

LONDON, June 28 (Canadian Press). — The action of the Labour Party on Tuesday in voting against the Communist proposal for amalgamation was followed yesterday by the passage of another resolution by a majority of 2,000,000 on the card vote which in effect bars J. T. W. Newbold, the Communist member of the House of Commons, from official relations with the Labour Party.

At yesterday's session of the Party's annual convention some criticism was voiced by speakers of the acceptance by certain party members of invitations to dine at Lady Astor's home.

Delegate Medland, from Lady Astor's constituency in Plymouth, reminded these members that while they were dining at Lady Astor's they should "kindly remember that in Lady Astor's constituency there are 10,000 labour men and women who are trying to kick her out."

CONTROL OF GRAIN RATES QUESTIONED

Senator Casgrain Claimed Legislation Would Throw Many Men Out of Work.

OTTAWA, June 28 (Canadian Press). — Bills for the control of the grain rates on the Great Lakes received their third reading in the Senate yesterday.

Senator Casgrain claimed that the effect of the legislation on the shipbuilding industry would be to throw many men out of employment.

Senator Bennett said there was no sentiment among the shipowners and that they endangered the lives of the crews in inferior vessels. He also said that the National Railways had tied up the Government boats and carried coal for the National Railways in American ships.

Government railways, Government elevators, and Government cars, he said, were being discriminated against, and if the present conditions were to prevail he would advise the Government to pay off Sir Henry Thornton, and let him go.

Senator Dandurand said the Government was anxious to give the National Railways a fair chance

Senator Webster again asked for the opinion of the Department of Justice on the legality of these laws. He was doubtful if they would advance the interests of the Western farmers.

Senator Dandurand replied that the laws were prepared by the Justice Department.

Amendment Asked to Citizenship Laws.

WINNIPEG, June 28.— (Canadian Press.)—Amendment of present legislation to give women full rights of citizenship irrespective of her husband was demanded of the federal government in a resolution adopted by the Manitoba Federated Women's Institutes, in session here yesterday. The resolution condemned the present system of inflicting injustice on Canadian and British women.

FAIR PLAY FOR FARMER URGED BY ARCHBISHOP

Western Farmers Have Complained of Not Being Squarely Treated.

WRONGS TO RIGHT.

WINNIPEG, June 28.—(Canadian Press.)— Fair play for the farmer was urged by Archbishop Matheson in his pastoral charge to the synod of the Anglican diocese of Rupert's Land at the opening session here yesterday ,attended by 200 delegates.

The farmers of the province, he said, complained of not getting fair play in numerous ways. "We must cease to be always giving him advice. He has had enough of that gratuitous gift Let us give him instead fair play in the matter of freight rates and carrying charges; in the elimination of the often puzzling spread which takes place between what as producer he receives for what he sells and what the consumers pay for it .

"I cannot help feeling strongly but that something is wrong which calls for righting and that it is in the general interest of the whole country that where wrongs are found to exist they should be set right."

THURSDAY, JUNE 28, 1923.

THE U.F.O. FUTURE.

In urban Ontario the slaughter of the U.F.O. candidates on Monday is hailed as the end of the Farmers' movement in Ontario politics and as the beginning of the destruction of the Agrarian party in the Federal arena.

The conclusion may be considered justified by reason of the spectacular and complete defeat sustained by the U.F.O. forces.

And yet it is premature to calmly dismiss the Farmers as gone forever from the political stage.

They have had a taste of power—they have learned that through organization they can accomplish many things, and if the Farmers' clubs continue in existence as they undoubtedly will, there will always be the possibility of a revival of agrarian political activities on a more or less elaborate scale.

Just at present, of course, there is a rift in the lute, and many farmers will feel that they have been sold out by their colleagues, and as a political party the U.F.O. is momentarily in a state of collapse.

There are many people in Ontario who firmly believe that it would be a splendid thing for Ontario if the movement remained in that condition.

But it may be too early to write the complete obituary of the Progressive Party.

THE ONTARIO TEMPERANCE ACT.

Whether or not the Ontario Temperance Act should have been an issue in the Provincial election the fact remains that it was an important factor and that there are many people looking forward to a speedy relaxation in the regulations in regard to the liquor traffic.

Their hope is this regard is based upon the utterances of some of the successful candidates.

Mr. Ferguson, however, declared from many platforms during the campaign that the Ontario Temperance Act would remain on the statute books until removed in the same manner in which it was put on—that is, by the votes of the people—and that it would be enforced.

That means that there will be no change unless the electors say so.

Undoubtedly they will be given an opportunity by means of a referendum to express their views on some other method of handling the problem, provided there is a sufficiently strong expression of public opinion in favour of the submission of such a referendum.

The position of the new government, stated briefly, is that if the people of Ontario want an opportunity to vote on this or any other important subject it is the duty of the administration to provide for the taking of such a referendum—in other words, that it is for the people to say what they want and for the Government to carry out their wishes whenever possible.

A WELCOME CHANGE.

The most satisfactory thing about the Ontario result, viewed through non-partizan glasses, is that it means a return to responsible Government.

That is the feature that is being emphasized, not only by those who supported Monday's victors, but by many Liberals and by not a few members of the Agrarian party.

Mr. Ferguson, the Premier designate, has a large enough majority to make him independent of cliques in his own party or of combinations of the other political groups against him.

He has every opportunity to establish a sound, efficient administration and to bring in progressive legislation.

Ontario will expect that of him, and rightly so.

The people of the Province know that he has the situation in his own hands, and that there is nothing to prevent him from giving Ontario good Government.

And if he does not furnish the Province with what the majority of electors are looking for along the lines of efficiency, progress and economy, the people will know upon whose doorstep the blame will be laid.

If Mr. Ferguson and his associates fail to arise to the wonderful opportunity their sweep of the Province has given them, there will be no defence for them at the next general election.

The situation, therefore, is eminently more satisfactory than the entanglement of groups that hampered the late administration.

THE END OF THE FISHING TRIP.

The fact that one of the first acts of the new Ontario Government is likely to be the demobilization of the Gregory Commission, will be enthusiastically received by the municipalities interested in the Hydro-electric enterprises.

One of the chief weaknesses of the Drury regime was the tendency to appoint commissions to take a lot of the responsibility off the shoulders of the Cabinet, or, as one critic rather harshly put it, "to do the thinking for the Government."

And of all these commissions perhaps the most expensive was the one headed by W. D. Gregory, K.C., which was detailed to investigate the operations of the Hydro-electric commission.

The majority of Ontario people were opposed to the appointment of this commission, regarding it as unnecessary and as almost certain to injure the public ownership scheme in which the Province has taken so much interest.

They regarded it as a fishing expedition, operated with no care for costs and striving in every way possible to trip up Sir Adam Beck and to tear his beloved undertaking to shreds.

They could not help but detect a certain amount of hostility on the part of the late Government in the eagerness shown, to find something wrong somewhere with the Hydro enterprise by means of a commission that has succeeded only in running up an enormous expense account.

There will be no regrets at the passing out of the Gregory Commission.

NOT MUCH DIFFERENCE.

One hears lamentation to the effect that the youth of the land are not as good as their fathers and mothers, says the Kingston Whig. The wails come from those from whom youth has departed long since. Perhaps it is the angle from which the matter is viewed that leads to the conclusion. It may be that those who contend for the contrast have forgotten just what the boys and girls of a former generation were like.

Just as the "golden age" and the "good old times" were in the past so the good boys and girls lived in the past, if we are to accept all that we hear. The different environment which surrounds the youth of the present considered, there is not much between them and those of a former time, probably. Those of the present day do many things and have many privileges that their fathers and mothers did not have, but it is not so much because the youth have changed as that conditions have been altered.

If there is more available in the way of amusements for the present-day youth, it is due to the facilities provided by their elders and because improved conditions have enabled folks generally to devote a wider margin of income to entertainment. Earlier times produced good boys and girls, serious-minded youth and flighty ones, too, and it may be that the proportions have not been materially altered. Today there are greater numbers proportionately in schools than ever before; there are more libraries; there is more periodical literature—all the evidence of greater culture.

If the youth are retrogading as a mass, it is strange that so many would seek the halls of higher education. Those who are devotees of jazz and long-distance dancing may get bigger headlines in the newspaper, but they are not representative of the sober-minded young people who have a serious purpose in life; and the latter certainly are in the vast majority though they do not excite the public notice in an unenviable way.

Portraying the youth as decadent is of a kind with the belief that the winters once were colder and the summers hotter. It's a fancy possibly incident to beginning to look toward the past rather than the future.

BRITAIN'S SPLENDID RECOVERY.

When the war ended, Great Britain was confronted by a most fearsome and formidable array of problems. She had on her hands the settlement of international debts, the restoration of her foreign trade, the readjustment of the railway situation, Egyptian self-government, unrest in India, the Irish question, unemployment, taxation, deflation, and rent, food and liquor control. Any one of these matters was sufficient to challenge her best sagacity; but the situation as a whole, involving both domestic and foreign policies, was terrifying. Yet she did not shrink from the task.

More than four years have passed, and we are now able to measure with a good deal of accuracy what the Mother Country has done in the way of clearing up her problems. As a basis to what followed, she last year balanced her budget and had a surplus of $100,000,000. She has funded her debts to other countries, and has got we'l along on a plan of systematic payments. In particular, she has made an adjustment with the United States which provides for the reduction of her debt every year. True to her pledge, the first semi-annual payment for 1923 reached New York the other day. It makes one's blood tingle with pride to see such a fine demonstration of courage and integrity.

Britain grappled with the railway question in the same spirit of determination, first squaring her liabilities to the various companies right up to the letter of her contract, and then carrying out a scheme of consolidation which has already produced justifying results. India and Egypt came in for treatment under a plan of self-government which promises for permanent peace and contentment. In both cases her concessions to national ambition and self-containment were broad and liberal. Palestine is still on her hands, but she has already brought order out of chaos, and is at this moment in sight of a satisfactory solution of what has been for centuries a nasty situation in the East. As for Turkey, she has passed the point of being a serious danger, and Britain is today contemplating the triumphs of skilful diplomacy and infinite patience in that clash.

Her shattered foreign trade has in large measure been restored. It was impracticable to return to the old trading basis with many of the countries of Europe, owing to their greatly depreciated currencies, but there has been a steady advance in exports, and the adverse balance of trade has been lowered to about the pre-war level. Her basic industries are operating under promising conditions, helped mightily by comparative peace with the labor unions. Meanwhile, taxation has been high; but she has already been able to reduce the income tax from 5 shillings to 4 shillings 6d in the pound. What is perhaps more important, she has cut the price of beer by a penny a pint. We cannot on this side of the Atlantic view the significance of that matter as do those who are on the spot.

What are classified as her domestic problems have given her perhaps more trouble than others of seemingly greater magnitude. The England of today is not the England of 1914. Labor has asserted a potent voice in public affairs, and mixed with that development is a good deal of radicalism which is aggressively socialistic in undertone. This has made it difficult to deal with unemployment in a comprehensive way, and has also hindered the regulation of rents, foods and liquor; but all these matters are now well past the stage where they menace the peace of the country. It has been costly work, and called for a constant spirit of compromise. Her chief domestic victory, however, has been the disposal of the Irish issue. What seemed impossible at one time has been done. Ireland has self-government within the Empire, and an onlooking world, at the snapping point in the matter of patience, hopes that there has been reached an end to all irritation on the part of that unhappy unit of the United Kingdom.

Well done, Britain!—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Mr. J. J. Morrison should be happy now. The whole Farmers' movement is in his hands.

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson's next task will be to show Ontario that although he is a lawyer he is nevertheless a good cabinet-maker.

Mr. W. F. Nickle who proved that a surplus could also be a deficit will now have to get busy and produce a real surplus.

It took a little longer to do it than he first prophesied but Mr. Ferguson succeeded in nailing a lot of hides to the fence, after all.

Hon. Harry Mills was cleaned up—and not in his $500 [illegible].

HASTINGS PASTOR FURTHER HONORED ON ANNIVERSARY

Purse of Gold Presented to Rev. D. A. Thomson in Presence of Large Gathering From District.

HASTINGS, June 28.— Members of all denominations in Hastings and vicinity joined Tuesday night in paying honor to Rev. D. A. Thomson pastor of St. Andrew's church, whose fortieth anniversary an the ministry and a resident pastor fell on Tuesday. Among those on the platform were all the clergymen in the village with the exception of Rev. Father Bretherton, who was kept away by illness and who from a hospital in Kingston sent the following telegram to Mr. Thomson:

"Many long years of health and happiness is my sincere wish for you."

The town hall, in which the meeting was held, was packed to the doors with people of all ages and from all parts of the district. Among those from Peterboro were Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Waddell friends of Mr. Thomson and F. E. Kerr who when teaching in Hastings some years ago, was a member of Mr. Thomson's congregation. Campbellford too, was represented, Mrs. M. Hart and Mr. and Mrs. I. T. Frederick being among the visitors from a distance. Mr. and Mrs. Hormel of Campbellford, sent by Mrs. Hart, as a token of remembrance to their former pastor a beautiful bouquet of roses. Fred Wigglesworth organist and choir leader in St. Andrew's church, Campbellford, was engaged as soloist for the occasion. Albert Eadington of Toronto, after an absence of 16 years from his native village came back to congratulate the pastor to whose discourses he first listened.

Floral Decorations

The stage was tastifully decorated At the back the wall was draped with a large Union Jack and above this was a large life like portrait of Mr. Thomson. Flowers were placed in profusion along the footlights and on the table was a bouquet 40 carnations. Friends in the village had during day sent floral expressions of their regards until the manse was a perfect wilderness of flowers.

The most handsome piece of furniture on the stage was the easy chair that had been presented to Mr. Thomson by the members of the Presbytery during the afternoon and in which he sat while the different speakers showered him with congratulations. All of his four children were present Miss Bella, who resides with her parents. Rev. Archie, Presbyterian pastor at Moncton, Ontario, John who is manager of the Sherbourne branch of the Union Bank and Walter who has just graduated in law.

Presented With Purse

The people of the village and district gave Mr. Thomson a tangible token of the ir regard for him, as a man, citizen and a pastor by presenting him with an address, touched in highly complimentary terms, and a perse containing a generous sum in gold. The address was read by Miss Norma Anderson and the purse was presented by Miss Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Fowlds.

The scholars of the Sunday School as a token of their appreciation for the untiring energy of Miss Thomson in that department of the church work, presented her with an address and a handsome club bag, Mary Spooner reading the address and Velma West presenting the gift. On behalf of his sister. Rev. Archie Thomson, made a fitting reply, thanking the children for their thoughtfulness and the people generally for the many kind words spoken of their parents, who with infinite self-denial had managed to give all of their four children a high school training and had sent three of them to the University.

The Speakers.

Alex. Wilson, Clerk of the village, presided, and on taking the chair awaited the following to take seats on the platform: Mr. Thomson, Rev. P. L. Jull of Lakefield, moderator of the Presbytery; Rev. A. K. McLeod of Brighton, Rev. M. L. Hinton and Rev. W. A. Pippen of Hastings, Rev. T. M. Weslep of Norwood, Rev. W. H. V. Walker of Bethany and John Coughlan, who has the distinction of being the first male child born in Hastings, an event which occurred 73 years ago, and who has been a life-long neighbor and friend of the Thomson family, although a member of a different denomination.

Chairman Wilson read two telegrams of regret—one from Rev. Father C. S. Bretherton and the other from Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Frazer, who are now in the West, but who formerly resided here. Letters were received from former friends in all parts of Canada, all these communications extending congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Thomson and wishing them many more years of success and happiness. All of the speakers of the evening paid generous compliment to Mrs. Thomson, who has been so faithful and efficient an ally of her husband in his long years of service.

An Early Friend.

Rev. Mr. McLeod of Brighton, who has been in his present charge for 37 years, was the first speaker. He is the only member of the Peterborough Presbytery who was in the harness when Mr. Thomson came here, and the friendship between the two has increased with the advancing years. No spoken words could be more graceful than those uttered by Mr. McLeod in extolling his colleague in church work, as a man, as Clerk of the Presbytery and as a preacher.

Addresses were made by Revs. Hinton, Pippen, Walker, Wesley, Jull and by Mr. Coughlan, the younger ministers all testifying to the kindness and consideration shown them by Mr. Thomson, who at all times was ready to help them in their work and whose knowledge of the laws of the Presbyterian Church is unlimited. Mr. Walker said that his congregation in Bethany had given him no peace until he had secured Rev. Archie Thomson to preach an anniversary sermon, as the son was a worthy representative of his popular father.

Forty Happy Years.

In his reply to the presentation of the address and purse, Mr. Thomson said that he had spent 40 happy years in the village of Hastings. His people have been faithful and loyal to him and his family in the time of sickness. For his own part, he has never been out of his pulpit a single Sunday on account of illness. He has during his pastorate baptized children, officiated at their marriage when they grew up and lived to baptize their children. He has prayed at the bedside of the dying and laid away many a member of his church to their final rest.

Mr. Wigglesworth established in Hastings his reputation as an entertainer by his rendition of two comic selections, "Choosing a Wedding Present" and "Old King Cole."

Dr. W. E. Wilson and Reeve Walter M. Fowlds moved a vote of thanks to all those who had assisted in the entertainment. Both paid their tribute of respect to the guest of the evening, Reeve Fowlds referring to him as a citizen who was always ready to aid in any work designed to better the community.

On behalf of the Presbytery, Mr. Jull thanked the ladies of Hastings for their hospitality in entertaining the visiting clergymen and elders at dinner and supper in the basement of the church.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

During the evening more than one speaker made reference to the fact that only about six weeks ago a similar function had been held in the same place when the citizens joined in celebrating the 40th anniversary of Rev. Father Bretherton's ordination to the priesthood. All joined in the hope that Father Bretherton will soon be restored to health.

HEAVY DEBATE ON A FISH QUESTION

Ottawa Members Had a Busy Day -- War Tax Act Amended.

OTTAWA, June 28 (Canadian Press). — The treaty with the United States providing for measures for the preservation of the halibut fisheries of the Northern Pacific Ocean, was approved by the Commons after a full dress debate that lasted throughout the afternoon session, and at times was very heated.

Hon. Arthur Meighen said it was "unnecessary and indecorous" to insist, as the Government had done, on a Canadian Minister being the sole signator to the treaty. We, figuratively speaking, "kicked the British Ambassador out of doors," said the leader of the Opposition.

The Prime Minister replied that the Canadian Government took the ground that the convention was not one between the United States and Great Britain, but between the United States and Canada If it had been one of Imperial concern, the signature of the Ambassador would have been requested.

The Bill embodying the provisions for carrying out of the treaty was given a third reading.

The Business Profits War Tax was amended to enable the Government to collect arrears of taxes under that Act. Arrears total about $8,000,000 out of a total of $20,000,000.

The necessary Bill was given the third reading.

AUTHORITIES LOOKING INTO DEATH OF CLARKE CHILDREN NEAR OMEMEE

Provincial Police Visit the Scene and Action Will Likely Follow — Clarke and Sloan Girl Leave Vicinity.

FEAR FOUL PLAY.

Marjory Sloan is being held by the local police pending an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death on Sunday last of Melville and Albert Clarke, aged seven and nine years respectively, whose bodies were found floating in Pidgeon River, near Fee's Landing.

As the affair took place in Victoria County, the investigation is being conducted by the Lindsay authorities.

Marjory Sloan, who formerly resided in Millbrook, had been living with James Clarke up until this week.

Clarke is a farmer residing near Omemee, and is about forty years of age He formerly resided in Smith Township.

Last evening Provincial Officer Hartnett, who is stationed in Lindsay, went to Omemee and interviewed a number of persons who knew the Clarke children.

To Constable Hartnett, Undertaker Morcombe, of Omemee, who had charge of the funeral of the two children, expressed the opinion that they were the victims of foul play, and so far as he could determine, had been poisoned. The bodies were found doubled up in the river.

A visit was also made to the farm of William Burgess, who resides two and a half miles from Omemee. Burgess related a story of ill-treatment of the children by Clarke and the Sloan girl. He said they had been beaten and their meals withheld.

Up until a year ago, Mr. and Mrs. Cook uncle and aunt of Clarke resided with Clarke. The aunt broke her leg and was obliged to leave.

It was then that Clarke advertised for a woman and the Sloan girl responded. Clarke's wife left him a year ago last November and is said to be residing in the West.

On Saturday last the two little Clarke children were given a meal by two carpenters who were building a cottage at Fee's Landing. Two hours later the younger boy was seen in the schoolyard but there was no trace of the older boy.

That was the last seen of both children according to persons interviewed last evening. It is a mystery where the children put in their time from three o'clock on Saturday afternoon until three o'clock on Sunday afternoon when their bodies were found.

It was said at the time the bodies were found that the two children had been playing with a punt, the property of Wilbert Fee. The punt is an old-fashioned one, and two small children would have considerable difficulty in handling it.

When Burgess went to the Clarke home and broke the news of the children's death, Clarke and the Sloan girl appeared unmoved.

Clarke was asked by one of the neighbours to accompany him to the Landing, where the bodies were found, and it was some time before he made up his mind to go

The Provincial Police are taking the matter up with the coroner this morning with a view of having the bodies exhumed.

The absence in Ottawa of the Lindsay Crown Attorney, and delay in reaching the Provincial Police officers, who were in the north country, has been responsible for delaying the investigation.

Clarke who lived on the Blackwell farm near Omemee has left for Emily Township

Canadian Press —Sir Herbert Samuel, the British High Commissioner for Palestin, who arrived in London last night, called this morning at the Colonial Office, where it was understood he interviewed the Colonial Secretary, the Duke of Devonshire. There is reason to believe the subject of discussion was the situation that has arisen in Palestine in connection with the resignation of the Arab members from the Advisory Council.

Sir Herbert so far has declined to make any statement regarding the purpose of his trip from Palestine.

FIND SUBSTITUTE FOR GASOLINE NOW

Henry Ford Has Embarked on a New and Promising Enterprise.

WINDSOR, June 28. (Canadian Press. — Henry Ford has embarked upon a new enterprise which, if successful, will provide a substitute for gasoline, which will be as universally used as that natural produce. As it is revealed, the new Ford industry will distill from coal a by-product which the chemists say will be as good motor fuel as gasoline, and will leave the coal as good as if the by-product had not been taken from it.

A factory to cost about $300,000 is now being erected at the plant of the Ford company here. It is being equipped with new machinery for the distillation of coal by a low temperature process.

INTRODUCE Ovaltine at your Summer Camp or cottage and you will soon regard it as indispensable. It is prepared in a moment and makes a delicious beverage which everyone enjoys and it provides the sustaining food elements so often lacking in the summer diet. One cup of Ovaltine gives more nourishment than three eggs, seven cups of cocoa or twelve cups of beef extract.

The daily use of Ovaltine adds a new zest to canoeing, swimming, yachting and other summer pastimes, because it creates surplus energy which prevents the exhaustion so often succeeding strenuous exercise.

OFFICIAL ELECTION RETURNS FRIDAY

Algoma and North Brant Are Still in Doubt — Latest Standing.

TORONTO, June 28 (Canadian Press). — Not until Friday, when the official election returns are made, will the precise standing of the groups in the Legislature be known.

Algoma and North Brant are still in doubt, and the candidates themselves do not know who is returned.

In Algoma both Dr. Wallis, the Liberal, and Dr. Robb, the Conservative are claiming election by a few votes and in North Brant the last indication was that J. M. Patterson Conservative was 15 up on Provincial Secretary Nixon

In any event Hon. Mr. Ferguson's certain majority of 40 over all other parties makes the doubtful seats of little more than local concern.

With the returns in from Lincoln, which show the defeat of Thomas Marshall, Liberal, by R. G. Kemp, U.F.O., the latest standing, giving the Conservatives North Brant and the Liberals Algoma, would be:

Conservaitves, 76; U.F.O., 16; Liberals, 16; Labour, 3.

Among the election aftermath certainties is the fact that there will be several recounts demanded.

Hon. Nelson Parliament defeated in Prince Edward by a very slim majority is said to be asking a recount and Mr. Mercier, refused by K. K. Homuth in South Waterloo, by just 13 votes, is expected to have a recount of the ballots.

With Algoma and North Brant see-sawing between the return of the rival candidates, recounts there are also very likely.

NEWS OMEMEE AND DISTRICT

Local and District Masons Attend Church—Popular Teacher Was Honored—Omemee Proud of Her Sons.

OMEMEE, June 28.—On Sunday evening last members of the A.F. & A.M. of Omemee and vicinity, also visiting brethren from Lindsay, attended divine service in the Presbyterian Church. Rev. R. S. Scott of Cannington was the special speaker, and although the heat was intense, his discourse, which was most inspiring, was received with rapt attention. The choir rendered a very pretty anthem, "Lift Up Your Heads, Oh Ye Gates."

A Popular Teacher.

Miss Lillian Hart, the popular young teacher of the primary room in the Public School, has, much to the regret of the ratepayers, sent in her resignation and leaves this week for her home in Madoc. On Monday afternoon the pupils of her room presented their departing teacher with a beautiful ivory clock and the following address:

"Dear Miss Hart,—

"It is with feelings of deepest regret we have met here this afternoon to say good-bye to you as our teacher. During the two years you have been with us you have shown that you have chosen the calling for which you are very capable. We know it must often have been trying on your patience to teach the young children, especially those first starting to school, but it is the general opinion of the parents that under your teaching their children have shown wonderful progress. Very often we have been forgetful in our behaviour and gave you worry, but we will never forget your kind disposition. The lessons you have taught us were not all taken from the books, but by your life and actions we have been taught lessons we will never forget.

"Kindly accept this ivory clock as a slight token of our love to you, and as you hear it tick off the minutes may you always remember it was given with very best wishes for your future welfare from your pupils in Omemee

"Signed on behalf of your scholars—Jean McGinnis, Mertha Sanderson."

On Friday night the executive of the A.Y.P.A. met at the home of Mrs. Albert Ford and honoured one of their departing members by the presentation of a handsome silver electric lamp and the following address:

"Miss L. M. Hart.—

"The object of this informal meeting is that we are desirous of showing our appreciation of the service you have readily given in the work of the A.Y.P.A. during your all too brief a stay in Omemee. In view of the fact that, in addition to your being a member of branch No. 269, you have also been a great help on the executive. The latter desires you to accept this lamp as a token of appreciation. You have always been a most ardent work in our branch, and its success as a young people's society has ever been furthered by your efforts. Sorry we are indeed to lose you, but we sincerely hope that good fortune and good health may ever be in your possession, and in future reminiscence your recollection of Omemee Anglican Young People's Association may always be happy ones."

Omemee Justly Proud.

Omemee is justly proud in the fact that once again one of her sons has been the unanimous choice of the people of South Victoria as their Provincial representative.

In 1874 the late Arthur McQuade was elected to Federal Government to fill out the term of the late Geo. Dormer, M.P., who had been called by death. After serving the people for two years he was re-elected and went down to Ottawa in the interests of Victoria County for the term which then was five years. The late Arthur McQuade died thirty-two years ago and his family, most of whom still survive, reside in and around Omemee.

In 1919, Mr. F. G. Sandy was the popular choice of the riding, and as the Progressive representative has rendered able service for his constituency. Mr. Sandy is a farmer and owns a beautiful home on the outskirts of the village, where with his aged father, Mr. Joseph Sandy, his wife and two popular younv daughters, he still resides.

Again honour comes to our village in the election of Robert John Patterson, M.P.P., whose slogan during the campaign was taken from his Monogram, "R.J.P."—right, justice, prosperity.

What mother would not be proud of three such sons as have gone out to represent her people?

Congratulations to Mr. Patterson, M.P.P., his amiable wife and his only child, Mrs. Thorne of Millbrook.

Paving Streets.

A large number of Italians arrived in the village on Monday to put the finishing touches to our new paved streets. Each evening the dusky visitors, who are very musical, congregate on Coronation Park and there with their banjos, mandolins, guitars, etc., disperse sweet music which is being thoroughly enjoyed by the villagers.

CAMPBELLFORD MASONS' PICNIC

Jolly Time at Cobourg--Voting Today on High School Debentures--Houses Are Scarce.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 28. Soon after I. A. Humphries of this place was elected Grand Superintendent of the Royal Arch Masons for District No. 10, he planned a reunion of all the lodges in his jurisdiction to be held at some place during the summer months. A picnic was his idea and he took the matter up with the brethren on his official visits. It was agreed that when arrangements were completed the Grand Superintendent was to send out notices announcing the date

Those notices were sent out and the date was yesterday, the picnic being held at Cobourg. Masons were given the privilege of bringing with them members of their families and intimate friends. It is estimated that at least 150 left here yesterday in cars for the county town. The visitors were accompanied by the Northumberland Regimental Band. All report an enjoyable outing.

Special Election To-day.

To-day the residents will be given an opportunity to settle the High School question definitely for all time when a plebiscite will be submitted by the town council to ascertain the popular sentiment on the question of raising by issue of debentures another $28,800, to enable the Board of Education to complete the new building in accordance with the original plans. This building would meet the secondary needs of Campbellford for years to come. As the matter to be submitted is not money bylaw it has been ruled that all can vote whether they own property or not. This question, which after all more directly concerns the people, now and for the next generation, has been dwarfed in interest by the recent provincial election and very little has been heard about it. It is known however that some of the property owners who were opposed to erection of a new school, now that the work has been started, this to cost $67,350, and the building to be incomplete at that, are now of the opinion that the job shuld be finished and will vote for the additional funds required.

Work on the new building is progressing and the foundation is now completed. If the veridict of the people is favorable to completing that part of the building left out of the contract recently awarded the extra excavation and foundation can be started at once.
